Moreover, a collar bone, a leg bone and part of a hip bone believed to belong to the skull have also been unearthed, and these may enable anatomists to reconstruct the main parts of the whole Rhodesian skeleton.

The scene of the discovery was the "Bone Cave" of the Broken Hill mine, already famous for the beauty of its stalactites and stalagmites and for the remarkable fact that the lime of which they were originally composed have been largely repleaced by phosphates of zinc and lead.

It was the commercial value of these formations that led to the transformation of this cave into one of the strangest mines ever worked.

The floor consisted of a mass of fossilized remains of elephants, lions leopards, rhinoceri hippopotami antelopes, birds, bats and small mammals. Hundreds of tons of these animal remains had been removed, but no trace of man was discovered until a depth of 60 feet below water level was reached, when the bones described were found surrounded by soft friable lead conglomerate.

WHAT A TIRED BOY WANTS

By Arthur Guiterman

He doesn't need a pillow, soft and dreamy;
He doesn't need a sofa or a bed;
It may be hard, it may be rough and seamy,
But anywhere will do to rest his head.

The place he occupies may be required
For other plans and purposes than this:
But when a little boy is truly tired
He wents to go to sleep just where he is!

PREPARE FOR NIGHT FLYING IN EUROPE

LONDON, Dec. 7. — (Candian Press) Preparations for night flying on the airways of Europe are proceeding rapidly. The French Air Ministry have decided upon the erection of a new lighthouse that will exceed in candle-power and intensity anything that has yet been attempted either in aerial or marine lighthouses.

Showing a flashing power of one thousand million candles it will be from a distance of 200 miles, and wil lbe the guilding light for night air express entering or leaving the Paris aerodrome at eL Bourget from the South. The new lighthouse will be erected on Mount Africa, a hill top seven miles from Digon, rising to a height of 1,500.

On the London airways seven aerial lighthouses are now in operation or on the point of completion. The stretch of airway between the London Air Station at Croydon and the costal air junction t Lympi is now illuminated by four lighthouses, flashing distinctive signals. They are so arranged that an air pilot proceeding either to or from London and the Continent will always be in sight of one of them. In addition it is proposed to make alterations in the Warne lightship which is moored in mid-channel, so that it will act as a guide not only to shipping passing up and down the Channel but also to aeroplanes flying above it.

THE GREAT PORT OF MANCHESTER

MANCHESER, Dec. 7.—The interest of the port of Manchester is a different matter from that of most great seaports. Lacking as it does in the continuity of of historical connection which links modern Thamesside with 'London small and green and clean,' with Chaucer plying his quill in the Customs House, and with the Tudor adventures sailing to found a new world—lacking too, the natural beauty of such famous harbors as Falmouth, Sydney or Rio de Janeiro—its attraction depends on other qualities.

First, there is the touch of fascination which seems to cling to places, however new, however ugly, which "have their business in great waters"—the thrill which the romance-loving person can always get from a glimpse of a foreign name over the shop door, a group of earringed, swarthy seafarers at the street corner, coils of rope and gay hunting in the ship-chandlers' shops and piles of miscellaneous nautical junk in the dark caves of "marine stores." And again, there is the interest invariably part of an achievement of human effort, of human ingenuity, perservance and industry. Add to this the touch of the bizarre which belongs to great ships sailing through inland meadows to docks on the site of a race course—and there you have the place spirit of the port of Manchester.

Opened Many Years Ago

It is now well over a quarter of a century since the canal was opened by Queen Victoria. But the story of its beginning goes much farther back than that. So long ago as 1712 the first direct water communication was established between Manchester and Liverpool, in the form of the Mersey and Irwell Navigation, and in 1776 the Duke of Bridgewater's Canal was completed. Both these, however, were for barges only, but in 1824 was put forward the first scheme for a ship canal, which should enable seagoing vessels to carry cargoes direct to Manchester without transshipment. The bill embodying this scheme was by Parliament; but it was only the first of many, which were put forward only to be dropped through lack of support or some other reason until in 1882 the movement was initiated which resulted in the construction of the existing canal.

Work was begun in 1887 with a capital of 8,000,000 pounds, of which a large part was subscribed by the working people, and although tht shareholders have had to wait a quarter of a century for a dividend since the war the first has actually been paid. The original hapital proving insufficient, 5,000,000 had to be borrowed from the corporation of Manchester, and the interest on this sum, being a first charge, absorbed all the profits of the first undertaking until very recently.

Great Engineering Feat

The canal is a wonderful feat of engineering. Its length (from Eastham, where it is entered from the Mersey estuary, to Salford Docks) is 35½ miles, and the excavations required in its construction necessitated the removal of soil and stone equal in bulk to a pyramid 12 times the size of the Great Pyramid at Gizeh. It obliterated a river (the Weaver) and brought about the diversion of numerous railways and roads from their original course. Along the banks may be seen grass-grown tracks ending in nothingness showing where some busy road or country lane has been turned aside or stopped.

At its widest point—Partington Coal Basin—it has a breadth of 250 feet; its narrowest, at Runcorn is 92 feet. From Manchester to Barton Bridge the bottom width averages 170 feet, from Barton to Eastham 120 feet. The depth along its whole course is 28 feet. Four sets of locks —at Eastham, Latchford, Irlam and Barton—with mighty gates of greenheart and wrought iron to hold up the pressure of the water, lead up to a height of 70 feet above the mean tidewater level of the Mersey estuary. From Eastham to Latchford the canal is tidal, and from Latchford the difference in levels is met by the system of locks.

Aqueduct A Great Feature

Barton Swing Aqueduct, already referred to, is one of the most remarkable features of the canal. It replaces an older structure and of course, a fixed one, dating from the mid-eighteenth century, by means of which the Bridgewater Canal was carried over the River Irwell. The present bridge consists of a huge tank 235 feet long and 19 feet of water, and is swung open by hydraulic power to enable vessels to pass along the canal. Most of the road bridges over the canal are also swing bridges, the railway bridges being, however, all fixed and ships using the canal regugarly are fitted with specially constructed masts for lowering when passing under bridges.

Of the cargoes brought to the Salford Dock cotton, of course, forms a very large percentage. Wheat maize and oats from North American ports are also brought in large quanitities, while Manchester is one of the chief of British oil ports standing in this respect second only to London. Timber is another importtant import and there are usually to be seen in the canal a few Scandinavian barques, with their topgallat masts lowered, unloading pitprops for the Lanchasire dolleries, or taking in at Partington a return cargo of coal for the Baltic. Fruit from the Mediterranean, from Canada and from the United States is also largely imported, an in recent years wool has been an important new feature in canal cargoes. And on the return passage are sent out Manchester goods, glassware, soap and chemical products from the factories and warehouses which line the banks of the canal along a great part of its course.

TUESDAY'S VOTE WAS SMALL ONE

RURAL POLLING IN WEST PETERBOROUGH RIDING LIGHTER THAN IN BYE-ELECTION.

Expectations in many quarters that yesterday's vote would be small were fulfilled. Out of 18,000 voters only 11,183 voted, according to present returns, as compared with 13,003 in the February by-election. This difference is due to the small vote cast in the country, for the city was above the February record. Only about 2,500 votes were cast in the country, whereas in February there were approximately 5,000 polled.

The figures bear out the predictions of J. C. Campbell, Farmer candidate in the West Peterborough by-election, that the farmers would stay away from the polls.

A higher percentage of voters in the city used their franchise than in the five-cornered contest last winter. Present figures give a total of 8,748 votes cast in the city, while the total ten months ago reached but 7,475.

Out of Mr. Gordon's total of 6,624 votes he secured 5,071 in the city, Mr. Burnham's total of 4,559 being made up of 3,677 in the city. Mr. Gordon's majority of 2,065 over Mr. Burnham was divided as follows: City, 1,394; country, 671.

ANCHOR ICE TIES UP POWER SYSTEM

ONE OF THE WORST "FREEZE-UPS" IN HISTORY OF DISTRICT

One of the worst "freeze-ups" in the city's history occurred last night and this morning when every power station in the Central Ontario system was shut down for nearly twelve hours due to the formation of anchor ice. In 1914 a similar situation occurred, resulting from the same cause. At the waterworks, the steam auxiliary plant was pressed into service shortly after midnight and kept going until noon to-day. This safeguarded the city's interest from the standpoint of fire protection. This kept the water pressure up to normal.

Every power user in the city was affected and this morning hundreds of workmen were compelled to return home. The Examiner's noon edition was held up and the regular afternoon edition will be somewhat incomplete as a result.

The industrial tie-up gave some of the village jokesmiths a chance to call up and enquire if the shutdown was a realization of the prognostication made by some of the political speakers in the recent campaign, who claimed that the defeat of the party in power would be followed by industrial stagnation.

G. A. BRETHEN ON ELECTION RESULT

"Speaking for the Progressive party, we are highly elated at the results considering the splendid majorities in the past and the severe handicaps introduced by a third man in the field", said G. A. Brethen of Norwood, the successful candidate in East Peterboro, to the Examiner to-day.

"Only a perfect organization and unselfish sacrificing efforts by our friends made victory certain. It will be my desire so far as it lies in my power to work for the interests of the rural riding of East Peterboro and our country as a whole.

"I wish to congratulate both my opponents upon their splendid run and to assure them of my best wishes for the future."

HOW WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

May Escape the Dreaded Sufferings of That Period by Taking Mrs. Block's Advice

Hopkins, Minn.—"During Change of Life I had hot flashes and suffered for two years. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the paper and got good results from taking it. I recommend your medicine to my friends and you may publish this fact as a testimonial." — Mrs. ROBERT BLOCK, Box 542, Hopkins, Minn.

It has been said that not one woman in a thousand passes this perfectly natural change without experiencing a train of very annoying and sometimes painful symptoms. Those dreadful hot flashes, sinking spells, spots before the eyes, dizzy spells, nervousness, are only a few of the symptoms. Every woman at this age should profit by Mrs. Block's experience and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., about your health.

GERMAN BUSINESS GAINS AGAIN IN CHINA

LONDON, Dec. 7. — (Canadian Press)—The Germans are gradually returning to China and picking up the threads of their former business not trading for the present under their own names but in partnership with Chinese, says a report on the commercial situation of China, by H. H. Fox, Commercial Counselor of the British Legation in Peking.

Geman dyes and paints, needles, metals, drugs and sundries are beginning to appear on the Shanghai market, the report goes on, an it is stated that several important orders for machinery and electric plant have recently been booked by German firms.

There is no doubt, the report says, that the German assisted by the comparative cheapness of their products, will gradually recover the share they held in China's foreign trade before the war, but the process will be slow, as they have lost valuable connections; the business organizations they had so laboriously built up have been shattered, and they have suffered a serious loss of prestige in the eyes of the Chinese.

NEW "LANDED GENTRY" ARISES IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The advent of a new "landed gentry" in England since the war is made plain by "Burke's" an anual work of reference on that subject which has reappeared after a break of seven years.

Over 100 names of old landowners have disappeared since the last edition, and their places have been taken by double that number of newcomers.

In the preface, the editor remarks "Much as the passing of old families from the land, or the dimimution of their holdings, is to be regretted, the rise of a new class of landed gentry possessed of means enabling them to develop estates which had become impoverished through the misfortunes of their previous owners, cannot be without benefit.

AT THE THEATRES

THE ROYAL THEATRE.

To-morrow afternoon an important change will be made in the local moving picture business. For the past two years the new theatre, erected by Mr. Pappas on the site of the former Royal Theatre, has been operated as the "Allen" by the widely known Allen Theatre circuit. This popular place of local amusement has again been acquired and will henceforth be operated as the "Royal" by Mr. Pappas, Peterborough's oldest and most experienced moving picture expert. As is generally known, the moving picture business is one of the largest and most important on the continent. This is a legitimate and popular industry, as it provides clean and interesting amusement for the public at small individual cost. As in every line of business, to attain success, both judgment and experience are necessary. The proprietor of the new Royal Theatre, Mr. Pappas, is too well known, after eighteen years' experience in the moving picture business, to need any introduction to the local public. Eighteen years' exclusive attention to motion pictures has given Mr. Pappas a thorough knowledge of what his patrons want and also the ability to secure the best class of film service. Beginners in the picture business may try to please, but only the knowledge gained by experience can make the public absolutely certain of continuous success. The manager of the new Royal has been fortunate enough to conclude arrangements whereby the picture service at the Royal is in every respect equal to that used in the largest high priced picture houses of Toronto. This theatre has decided to entirely omit all amateur or "fly-by-night" cheap vaudeville. It will only show pictures, and the best pictures that money can secure. Owing to present depression the manager has decided to reduce prices to pre-war admission prices, so that the public thus shares in the benefit of this change in picture houses. For to-morrow's grand re-opening of the Royal Theatre see the display advertisement in this issue and you will find what will please you.

'THE GREAT IMPERSONATION'

Settings representing many different sections of the globe are seen in the new George Melford production, "The Great Impersonation," featuring James Kirkwood, which comes to the Capitol Theatre Thursday.

The picture opens with scenes supposedly laid in a room in Oxford University in England. Then it takes the spectator to a jungle in German East Africa, through the jungle to a clearing and a thatched cabin. The two principal characters there exchange reminiscences, and scenes in Vienna and England are introduced.

AT THE GRAND.

"THE THREE MUSKETEERS."

Before the days of Dumas and Balzac, French literature pursued the same course as that of other countries—first, there were hymns and church music written as people emerged from the warfare of barbaric times; then legends evolved—founded on stories of saints, interwoven with folk-lore. In turn, arrived the age of miracle plays, and travelling performers followed the troubadours and strolling minstrels. At the actual period so vividly described in "The Three Musketeers" the theatre in France had attained a very high standard, though the great works of Cormille and Racine belong to the latter half of the 17th century. Literature had developed wonderfully during the past century in spite of wars and strife between factions at home.

Every student of history is familiar with the stirring times in France during the early seventeenth century. The country was to a certain extent united and free from foreign invasion; Queen Elizabeth reigned in England and Louis III. was King of France. Temporarily the Hugenots were suppressed, the massacre of St. Bartholemew had almost passed out of recollection and a measure of great prosperity was enjoyed by all. Affairs at court were pretty much in the hands of one of the cleverest men known to history, the famous Cardinal Richelieu, so much feared and envied in his day, so often maligned by subsequent history, decidedly so by Dumas. At the period we write of, church and state were one; the religion of court and people was officially Catholic, the Huguenots owed their greatest encouragement and growth to the aptronage of the Princess of Coude, who used religion as a political power. Therefore, the fact that a Cardinal played such an important part in the destiny of France is not to be wondered at since actually he was Chief Minister of State. Just as in England, Cardinal Wolsey was Henry VIII.'s greatest friend and adviser.

Richelieu may have been ambitious—it is a failing shared by most famous men, and women also—but even his traducers admit that his aims were not personal ones; his great gifts and powers were constantly used for the glory of France and to advance the cause of his master—the King. What historians called his infamous "intrigues" might more justly be labelled "playing politics"; his spies and servitors were secret service men and detectives, but the more colourful language of the times made them dread creatures of horrible intent. He loved his country and he loved his King. What more natural then than his constant watchfulness, detected the schemes which were taking place between Anne of Austria, Queen of France, and Buckingham, the English Ambassador, or rather Elizabeth's secret service agent in France? The means he employed to frustrate them were the usual ones in vogue; stripped of the trappings of romance and prejudice they merely reveal the clever statecraft of the Cardinal.

"The Three Musketeers" by Dumas is one of the most attractive historical stories ever written. But do not take Dumas too seriously. Balzac, the first great French novelist, does not concern himself very much with contemporary history; his works dealt more with social problems and he is the same variety of French humourist that Dickens represents in English literature. Human nature in all its phases appealed to him, and his works present a fairly accurate picture of French character. It remained for Dumas, born in 1802, to reproduce the France of an earlier day, and he admittedly took many liberties with the truth. His prolific pen is credited with over twelve hundred novels and romances; naturally he could often supply merely the ideas and details which were often filled in by men of indifferent learning. So, there is a fairly simple explanation of the highly coloured version of Richelieu's power, of his greed, his cunning and his unscrupulous methods. With absolute truth, it may be claimed that Douglas Fairbanks has given in his latest and biggest picture, a screen version of a story crammed full of action, of thrills and red blooded fighting for country and honour, his very best. It is a splendid picture, but like most stories that appeal to lovers of the romantic, much is exaggerated, and no one should take either the beloved Glascon, his exploits or the other characterizations too seriously. Dumas admitted that he wrote for the crowd, that the majority of his readers wanted vivid pictures of the monarchy that had passed, of the loves of other days and the influence of the philosophers demanded the painting of a self-seeking and wordly prelate.

For this take equal quantities of boiled fish and boiled rice. For a cupful each, use two hard-boiled eggs, a teaspoonful of curry powder, two tablespoonfuls of butter, a half-tablespoonful of cream, and salt, white pepper and cayenne to season. OLD CLOCKS

Wells cathedral contains one of the most interesting clocks in the world. It was made by Peter Lightfoot, a monk, in 1320. Models of celestial and terrestrial bodies indicate the hours of the day, the age of the moon, and so on.

When this clock strikes two companies of armed horsemen dash out of the gateways in opposite directions and charge vigorously. They strike with their lances as they pass as many times as correspond with the number of the hour. A little distance away, seated on a high perch, is a quaint figure which kicks the quarters on two bells beneath his feet and strikes the hours on another bell.

The Nawab of Rampur (India) is the possessor of a watch valued at over £18,000. The lower case is cut from a single topaz, the upper from an emerald, and a diamond, ground very thin, serves for the glass. This watch shows the seconds, minutes, quarter-hours, half-hours, hours, days, weeks, months, seasons, years, and leap-years up to the year 9,999!

The clock in Strasburg cathedral (Alsace Lorraine) is one of the most wonderful of its kind. Besides various astronomical devices the revolutions of the planets are represented, so that the relative position of each at any time can be seen at a glance.

On a platform are movable figures representing the four ages of man. At the first quarter of an hour a child strikes the bell with a rattle; a youth strikes the half-hour, while at the third quarter a warrior strikes it with his sword. At the fourth quarter an old man strikes it with his crutch; a figure of Death then appears and strikes the full hour with a fleshless bone.

In Switzerland clocks are made that do not require hands or faces! The timepiece stands in the hall, and if one wants to know the time one presses a button. The clock, by means of a Commission to be Appointed to go to Canada for Evidence.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., Dec. 9.— Hearings in Stillman divorce case will be begun before a commission in Montreal on January 11th, and addipointment of a commission to hear on January 17. Application for appointement of a commission to hear testimony in Canada will be made here on Thursday, before Justice Morschauser, the papers to be returnable next Saturday.

The paternity of Guy Stillman and Jay Wards Leeds, both three years old, was the main issue in the testimony to-day at hearings in the suit.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make 16 ounces—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

HE WON IN A GLEAN FIGHT

IS WAY MR. G. N. GORDON CHARACTERIZES CAMPAIGN IN WEST PETERBOROUGH--GOVERNMENT FOR THE PEOPLE.

At the monster congratulatary reception tendered Mr. G. N. Gordon, the successful Liberal candidate for West Peterborough, in the Allen Theatre last night, Mr. Gordon, when referring to the financial phase of the Conservative Administration, declared he would exert every effort to farce a return by them of the vast sums of money robbed from the Canadian people.

As to his victorious election, he attributed it largely to the efforts of those West Peterborough women who had appreciated their citizenship and realized that the time had arrived when the Meighen Government should be kicked out of power and with such impetus that they will stay out (cheers). I believe, he continued ,that this country is tonight at the beginning of that golden era when Canada will reach the pinnacle to which she has aspired since confederation (renewed cheers).

A Clean Fight

Mr. Gordon here characterized the campaign just clased as the cleanest and most wholesome ever waged in this riding—a campaign in which no bad feelings had been created between Mr. Burnham, his opponent, and himself and such is the principle he hoped would always obtain in elections in this important riding.

For the Masses

The victor here assured the masses of the people of his wholehearted protection. "I ask your advice, he said, and your help and thoughts as to the great issues which confront this Dominion —problems greater than have ever before arisen. And if you will only accord me your co-operation, as West Peterborough's representative I may prove one of the most outstanding figures in the Parliament of Canada." (prolonged applause)

An Injustice

The second act of his official life Mr. Gordon pledged himself would be to secure for Mr. Joseph Harrison, of Harvey, a return of that unjust fine of $50 and costs assessed him by the Meighen Government because he did not make an income tax return, he having no income to tax. (tumultuous applause).

In conclusion, when referring in caustic terms to the defeat of the Government, he opined that the country had not only burried the late administration, but had erected the monument of a permanent defeat above their political grave (cheers).

R. R. Hall

This gentleman, ex-member of the Dominion House, was warmly received with three rousing cheers. In the course of a stirring address he congratulated Mr. Gordon on his splendid victory at the hands of o discriminating electorate—a victory for a broad principle of Dominion Government of the people, by the people and for the people. (applause).

Joseph J. Duffus

Was also a favorite with the enthusiastic audience, who applauded his utterance again and again. In a speech, punctuated with passages of irrestible humor he declared Mr. Gordon eminently fit to represent this constituency —a man of integrity, vigor and honor, and one who has the courage of his convictions. (prolonged cheers. The farmers he characterized as the most indispensable class of the people, a body who have raised Canada to its present status as a nation.

Far Democracy

Mr. Thomas Tooms, M.P.P., had an enthusiastic reception. He extolled Mr. Gordon as a true representative of the people, and described the present Liberal victory as the triumph of Democracy over autocracy in which West Peterborough had asserted herself and done her duty.

The meeting closed after singing the National Anthem. Although many remained till a late hour to hear returns from the Dominion in general.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

PARIS JEWELERS CHECK TIMEPIECES BY WIRELESS

PARIS, Dec. 9.—Fifteen hundred small wireless outfits have been installed in Paris jewelry, watch and clock stores to enable the jewelers to catch the correct Greenwich meridian time as it is sent daily at 10 o'cock by the Eiffel Tower. Formerly the exact time had to be obtained from the Observatory by telephone.

The installation is simpicity itself. The outfit, about nine inches in diameter, is hung on a nail in the wall. A copper wire run down to the cellar or along a water or gas pipe serves as a "ground wire", while the removal of the bulb from a nearby electric light, and the insertion of a contact plug take the place of antennae. It can be done in five minutes.

The outfit can be regulated to hear everything that is sent out from the Eiffe Tower. The correspondent listened-in when the Press matter was being sent out one day, an the signals were clear and easily heard.

HAD BAD COUGH AND SORE THROAT

Never neglect a cough or cold however slight. If you do it can have but one result: it leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected. A single dose of will help to stop the cough, soothe the throat ,and if the cough or cold has become settled on the lungs the healing virtues of the Norway pine tree along with the soothing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs, roots and barks, promptly eradicates the bad effects, and the persistent use cannot but help to bring about relief.

Mr. Albert Marsh, Lower L'Ardoise, N. S., writes: "About a year ago I contracted a cold accompanied by a very bad cough and sore throat. I sent for the doctor but what he prescribed did me so little good I became discouraged. A friend came to see me and asked me if I had ever used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I told him I had not and sent him away to get me a bottle. I started using it, and after a couple of days I found that I was getting relief, and after taking two bottles the soreness in my throat seemed to be leaving me, so I resolved to continue its use, and after I had used five bottles both my sore throat and the cough were gone. I would not be without "Dr. Wood's" for any money."

AERIAL LIGHTHOUSE VISIBLE 200 MILES

It Will Show Flashing Light of a Thousand Million Candlepower

LONDON, Dec .7.— Preparations for night flying on the airways of Europe are proceeding rapidly. The French Air Ministry have just decided upon the erection of a new lighthouse that will exceed in candle power and intensity anything that has yet been attempted either in aerial or marine lighthouses.

Showing a flashing power of one thousand million candles, it will be visible for a distance of 200 miles and will be the guiding light for night air expresses entering or leaving the Paris aerdrome at Le Bourget from the south. The new lighthouse will be erected on Mount Africa, a hill-top seven miles from Dijon, rising to a height of 1,500 feet.

NEW DEEMSTERS TAKE QUAINT OATH.

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man., Dec. 7. — The appointment of two new "deemsters," or members of the Legislative Council of this island, has called attention to the peculiarities of the ancient oath they take on the Bible when assuming office. It reads:

"By this book, and by the holy contents thereof, and by the wonderful works that God hath miraculously wrougst in Heaven above and in earth beneath in six days and seven nights, I do swear that I will execute the laws of this island justly between our Sovereign Lord the King and his subjects within this isle, and betwixt party and party, as indifferently as the herring backbone doth lie in the middle of the fish."

The Isle of Man, which is well known as a pleasure resort, is situated in the Irish Sea, has its own Legislature, and is not bound by any acts of Parliament, unless it is specifically mentioned in them.

WEDDING BELLS

JAMIESON — BRADSHAW

A quiet, but pretty wedding took place at 10:30 this morning at Knox Church Manse, when Cora May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bradshaw of South Monaghan, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Willard Andrew Jamieson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jamieson of Port Hope. Rev. J. A. Mackenzie performed the ceremony.

The bride's dress was a beautiful creation of white satin charmeuse, veiled with georgette, with garniture of radium lace and lovers' knots worked in pearls. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms, she wore a long chain of pearls and carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses. The young couple were unattended.

Mr. and Mrs. Jamieson motored to Toronto, en route to New York, the bride traveling in a stylish suit of ostrich velours, heavily embroidered and trimmed with French beaver, with hat to match. They will reside in Hope Township.

STRIKES IN PACKING PLANTS HAVE LITTLE EFFECT.

CHICAGO, December 7. — While reports of minor disturbances and some interruption of work, resulting from the strike of the packing-house workers, came from St. Paul, Kansas City, Denver, and other cities, the first day of the strike passed quietly in Chicago, and with apparently little effect upon the normal operations.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

The market broadened considerably during the forenoon on a very large volume of operations. Apart from several of the better known Steels, Equipments and Shippings, the list made further gains. Canadian Pacific was the outstanding feature all along, rising 1 3-4 points. General Asphalt Common and Preferred was the strongest of the Oils, and merchandising shares continued to be featured by Chain Store issues, including Kresge and Woolworth. Textiles were well supported, as were also Coppers, Chemicals and Food Specialties. Call money was freely supplied at 4½ per cent. The Bond Market showed further irregularity on realizing sales.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange heavy; demand, Great Britain, 4.07 1-8; Canadian dollars, 7 3-4 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 7. — (Canadian Press).—Opening wheat quotations, which ranged from a 3-8c decline to a 1-8c advance, with May 1.12 to 1.12 3-8 and July 1.01½ to 1.01½, were followed by a moderate general set-back, and then something of a rally.

Corn and oats were easy with wheat. After opening ¼ off to 1-8 up, May 53 1-8 to 53¼, the corn market sagged a little all around.

Oats started unchanged to 1-8 higher, May 37 3-4 to 37 7-8, and later showed but slight change.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Dec. 7. — (Canadian Press).—With the exception of moderate dealing in C.P.R., Steamship Preferred and General Electric, there was very little life to the local Stock Market this morning. C.P.R. was strong and closed at 131¼. Steamship Preferred, after an early advance of ¼ to 53, re-acted 5-8, with a net loss of 3-8 for the morning. General Electric closed unchanged. War Bonds dull.

LA MODE STORE'S FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE

FITTING OCCASION FOR AN ATTRACTIVE BONANZA OF LOWERING PRICES IN LADIES' APPAREL

Starting to-morrow morning, the La Mode Ladies' Wear Store, No. 371 George street, begins the celebration of its first year in business by an Anniversary Sale on a generous scale. According to the five-column announcement in another page. The event is to be inaugurated to-morrow by flashes of dependable bargains and beautiful Christmas gift suggestions.

This young and virile organization does things in no half way measure. Many of the printed offerings are nothing short of remarkable, when the regular prevailing prices are considered. So that this sale is likely to prove a bonanza to shoppers of ladies outer apparel. The preparations for this event afford a warrant for the assurance that qualities and values will be intimately linked together.

Some say that this has been a lean year for merchants. La Mode remarks cheerfully on its first year in business. In this connection, all will admit that it is vital to the community that the local shops get all the local trade there is to get. They need all the Chrismas cash business going which certainly would help to swell the year's trade. Peterboro without its shops, and the proprietors, and their families, would be a forlorn own. Every dollar spent at home is a home boost. Read La Mode's advertisement.

Release the Pinched Nerves

Chiropractic Vertebral Adjustments release the pinched or impinged nerves, thus enabling Nature to send the Vital Force over the nerve circuit in order that the body should be kept healthy. A great number of diseases are due to impingement of nerves as they leave the spinal column. Such impingement disturbs normal nerve functioning, giving rise to unnatural actions of organs supplied by these nerves. Pain and distress are two manifestations of such conditions.

Lack of health will invariably continue until this impingement is relieved. Chiropractic Vertebral Adjustments are Nature's way to health, renewed vitality and long life. They are SIMPLE, SAFE AND SPECIFIC.

BELIEVE DAIL WILL APPROVE PEACE TREATY

DISCUSSION TODAY EXPECTED TO DEVELOP VALERA'S ATTITUDE, INTERPRETED AS OPPOSITION

PRIMATE SATISFIED

DUBLIN, Dec. 8. — (Canadian Press.)—Regardless of possible opposition from extremists in the Dail Eireann which meets here to-day to consider the Irish Treaty it is firmly believed the agreement will be approved in principle. Discussion is expected to develop for the first time the real attitude of De Valera and his counsellors towards the treaty. De Valera's silence has been interpreted as indicating his disapproval of the terms.

LOGUE SATISFIED.

BELFAST, Dec. 8. — (Canadian Press.) — Cardinal Logue told the correspondent to-day he thought the peace terms satisfactory and said he hoped there would be unity "and no division of the country so that all could pull together for the good of Ireland. It would be a blessing if we could all pull together and give up the old battle cries."

ELOQUENT SPEAKERS AT MASONIC BANQUET

Unfortunately, in our reference to the installing of officers in Royal Arthur Lodge, A. F. and A. M. on Monday night, omission was made of one or two features in the proceedings deserving of special mention.

For instance, Wor. Bro. Rev. Dr. Blagrave, the speaker of the evening, at the banquet following installation, in a brilliant address explanatory of masonry and its symbols, made a lasting impression on all present. Bro. Rev. F. E. Malott spoke feelingly and forcefully on the responsibilities of Masons in the community where they reside, while Wor. Bro. R. F. Downey, Immediate Past Master of Corinthian Lodge, delivered an exceedingly illuminative and tensely interest-holding talk on what Free Masons owe to their craft in general. And Bro. Rev. J. R. Webb also interspersed a happy after-dinner speech with an acceptable smattering of good, clean humor.

The work of the Installing Board was exceptionally correct, and the charge to the newly installed officers by Wor. Bro. A. A. Fowler elicited warm commendation for its eloquence.

THE WEATHER

As the memory is sometimes not to be entirely trusted, here are a few dates regarding last winter. From November 17th to 21st we had good sleighing, with 6 to 10 inches of snow. Rain on the 22nd and 23rd spoiled the sleighing, and there was no more until Dec. 27th. A little snow, however, remained on the ground during this interval. Fair sleighing lasted until Jan 16th. During the whole of last winter there were only 20 days of sleighing in the city, and of those 20 days only 10 days could be considered to have had good sleighing. The first zero came on Jan. 16th, with 5 below. The thermometer only went below zero on six occasions last winter—in January 5 times and in February once. The coldest day was January 19th, with 19 degrees below zero.—W.P.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR COMMON POLICY ON REPARATIONS

LONDON, Dec. 8. — (Canadian Press.)— Negotiations for the establishment of a common policy by Britain and France in regard to Germany's war obligations opened here to-day following the arrival from Paris of Louis Loucheur, Minister of Liberated Regions. It is said the British Government is anxious to reach accord before open discussion of the reparations question is precipitated by Germany.

SAYS HAY PRICES ARE HIGHEST HERE

ADVANCE REPORTED ON LOCAL MARKET—WOOD VALUES OFFERED.

The price of loos hay has been advanced another notch by the farmers in the local market. Yesterday there were eight or nine loads brought in and one farmer asking $30, got $30 and the others $28 and $29. This morning there were several loads on the market and the farmers were holding out for the higher price. The farmers cannot complain of the regulation of hay prices for they appear to control the reins themselves. They generally get what they ask because very little hay is imported into Peterboro.

It is about 3 weeks since the farmers have received as high as $30 Some hay has been sold as low as $25. Pressed hay is selling at $36. The Toronto Globe claims the prices of hay in Peterboro are the highest in the province. Considerable pressed hay is being bought by local dealers from Meaford and it is said in semi-authoritative circles that it is being bought at 22 to 25 a ton.

While the market is recognized as the centre of the hay trade many citizens do not know that bargains in wood can often be secured there. Many days there are a dozen loads sold. A cord of 4 foot maple sold there yesterday for $11 and for those who are not afraid of a buck-saw offers good value. There is an occasional load in store lengths but 4 foot lengths are general and a full cord is secured.

The farmer who sold the hardwood lives near Nassua, and has on his place a scow load of wood he intends selling at the market.

If a man is a good judge of wood —good value can often be got— but if difficulty is experienced in distinguishing cedar from maple, the farmer is very much apt to get the better part of the bargain. Mixed wood sells at $8 and $9 a cord.

NOTED PREACHER AND SCHOLAR TO VISIT HERE

KNOX CHURCH TO HAVE VISIT FROM PROF. WM. MANSON, SUNDAY.

The eleventh anniversary of Knox church will be observed Sunday next Dec. 11th, by services suitable to the occasion. The session has secured the Rev. Prof. Wm. Manson, B.A., of Knox College, Toroito, as special preacher.

Prof. Manson is at present Professor of New Testament and Exigesis at Knox College. He came to this position as successor to the late Rev. Dr. Law, who had a great reputation both as scholar and preacher. He is a native of Scotland, where as a young student he had a very brilliant career. He is a finished scholar, being a graduate at Oxford and at Glasgow, at both universities with first-class classical honors. He then was a scholar at Oriel College, Oxford, and the George A. Clark Classical Fellow at Glasgow. After his ordination he was inducted into a large congregation, in the city of Glasgow. He is the author of a book entitled, "Christ's View of the Kingdom of God." In 1914 he delivered the fourth series of Bruce lectures in the city of Glasgow. In 1919 he received his present appointment at Knox, one which he has filled with great distinction.

This is Professor Manson's first visit to Peterborough.

The morning and evening services will afford the congregation of Knox and their friends a splendid opportunity to hear a great scholar and preacher.

The choir is preparing special music for the occasion. A day of great services is in prospect.

BUST CONTEST TO BE DECIDED NEXT WEDNESDAY, DEC. 14

On account of the official count of votes not taking place until next Wednesday, 14th December, the holders of the ballot box on the guessing contest in connection with the bust of Sir John A. Macdonald, offered for competition at the bazaar in the Market Hall in aid of the extension to St. Joseph's Hospital, will not decide on the lucky winner until after that date, when the box will be opened by His Worship Mayor McIntyre and Mr. Paul Trebilcock. The judges considered this the fairest method of deciding the contest.

UNIQUE CONTEST UNDER WAY HERE

FARMERS OF SEVEN COUNTIES TAKE SWINE COURSE AND ENTER CONTEST AT C.P.C. PLANT

A special educational three days' course in swine for junior farmers of the counties of Peterborough, Northumberland, Lennox and Addington, Hastings, Prince Edward and Victoria opened at the Canadian Packing Company's plant to-day. Nine farmers from each county selected by the county representative of the Department of Agriculture are taking advantage of the comprehensive course which offers a unique educational opportunity to swine breeders. The Canadian Packing Co. is co-operating in every way, and it is largely through its initiative that the course has come about. Also responsible for its being is the Canadian Swine Breeders' Association, the Industrial and Development Council of Canadian Meat Packers, the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa and the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.

I. B. Martin, Assistant Secretary, Industrial and Development Council of Canadian Meat Packers and W. D. Jackson, assistant director, agricultural representatives, Ontario Department of Agriculture and in charge of the course and judging competition.

The course opened at 1.30 p.m. to-day with a lecture and demonstration on cured Wiltshire sides by T. F. Matthews, president Canadian Packing Co. At 2.30 Mr. Matthews lectured and demonstrated on swine carcasses in conjunction with G. B. Rothwell, animal husbandman, Dominion Experimental Farms, Ottawa. G. B. Rothwell, W. B. Bonner, hog buyer, Wm. Davies Co., Toronto, and Gavin Barbour, Crosshill, at 3.30 lectured on selected class of live hogs.

To-morrow is a big day. At 9, a.m. the class will be shown through the plant by Mr. T. F. Matthews, and at 10 a.m. a judging competition in live hogs begins. There are three competitions, as follows:

(a) Judging 4 pigs of bacon type (written and oral reasons.)

(b) Judging 4 pens of pair bacon hogs (written and oral reasons).

(c) Judging 4 pens of group of 6 hogs (placing only.)

The Live Stock branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture have been generous in their prize list with 15 prizes, totalling $120. Judges will be G. B. Rothwell, W. B. Bonner and Gavin Barbour.

On Saturday there is a competition in judging and grading the carcasses of the hogs judged on foot on Friday with prizes the same as in the first competition, donated by the Industrial and Development Council of Canadian Meat Packers.

Rumours that ex-Alderman W. H. Taylor may enter the Mayoralty contest were partially confirmed this morning when Mr. Taylor told The Examiner that he was considering standing. He is being boomed for the Maoralty in several quarters.

Mr. Taylor ran against A. A. McIntyre in 1919, and was defeated by one vote on the recount.

JAPAN ACCEPTS THE QUADRUPLE ALLIANCE PLAN

VIEWED AS DEFINITE SHAPING OF DEVELOPMENTS ALONG IMPORTANT LINES OF ACCOMPLISHMENT.

OPTIMISM PREVAILS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(Canadian Press).—The Japanese Government has accepted the proposal of a quadruple understanding in the Pacific.

An atmosphere of distinct optimism prevails over the progress of the arms conference in relation to China. The proposal for a four-Power treaty was viewed to-day as a definite shaping of developments along important lines of accomplishment.

The powers represented in the Far East committee to-day adopted a resolution agreeing not to enter into any treaties or understandings among themselves that would impair the four Root resolutions concerning China.

POLITICAL HOMILY BY MR. BURNHAM

NEW PARTIES NONE THE BETTER FOR BEING NEW — VOTERS SHOULD CORRECT NOT WRECK PARTIES.

To The Examiner regarding the lesson to be learned from the election, the Conservative candidate, Mr. Burnham, said: "It has been a matter of great interest to me to see the struggle made by the Liberal party to maintain its life as a party. The Progressives were the first break-away. Then an idea struck Ottawa that it could appropriate the rest of the Liberal party by taking its name. But the Liberal party leaders were too strong for these attacks. They kept their flag flying when they had little else, and they have earned the reward of their courage and common-sense. New parties are none the better for being new. Where did they ever pick up that idea? Nor is it necessary for a voter to desert his colors because he thinks that party wrong on some occasion. He may vote against it and yet return to it on the next occasion. This is the manner of all institutions. Why break them up because once they may be wrong and do wrong? Punish them, but do not destroy them. All parties are the same in formation. The Liberal party has gained the admiration of the people by its strength and fidelity to itself, and why not?"

BLOCK CONTEST TONIGHT! TONIGHT!

LOOKS LIKE LAST WEEK OF ROLLER SKATING—GOOD PRIZES TO-NIGHT.

If the weather man continues giving us cold weather, this is likely to be the last week of roller skating at Brock Street. The season has been an excellent one, and roller skaters should finish it up with a bang. For to-night two good prizes are offered for the block contest, and for to-morrow and Saturday there will be something special.—Adv.

LABOUR URGES EARLY START OF CITY WORK

MANY FAMILIES PINCHED BY UNEMPLOYMENT—CITY COUNCIL RRQUESTED TO "DO IT NOW."

COUNCIL ALSO COMMENDED

The urgency of the need of employment was expressed in several resolutions passed by the Trades and Labour Council last night, and members personally stated that they had come in contact with rather numerous cases approaching distress.

Owing to the acute state of unemployment, read one resolution, the City Council is requested to begin work on the sewage disposal plant, storm drains and other projects with all possible despatch, and that this work be dealt with by the present Council, as the matter is of serious import to many respectable families in this city.

Another resolution commended Mayor McIntyre and the City Council for its action in assisting citizens to instal proper sanitary convenien. ces in their houses under the instalment plan.

The following is the Trades Council's opinion on the question of the sale of meat r the market.

Resolved th.t the Trades and Labour Council note with satisfactiin the salutary effect that has taken place in reducing the price of meat by the proposed action of the Council in premitting the sale of meat upon the public market place. Admitting that the shopkeeper has some lawful claim to protection we agree that the Council was dealing with a matter in which the public also had a claim for protection against unfair exploitation.

In a passing discussion the statement was made that a certain table of statistics comparing the salaries of municipal employees in this and other cities in Ontario as prepared by Ald. Crowe had never been published. Mr. T. Tooms, M.L.A., referring to Ald. Crowe, stated that he had found him most conscientious in the performance of his aldermanic duties, and especially in securing beforehand as much information as possible on various questions that were to come before the Council.

CAUSES FOR DELAYED DELIVERY OF EXPRESS

Consignors Fail to Furnish Street Address.

The Dominion Express Co., in a letter to the local Chamber of Commerce concerning undelivered or delayed shipments over their route, draws attention to the following recent analysis of causes therefar:

At thirteen of the principal cities in Canada during the month of August, 1921, we had 1670 shipments undelivered because shippers had failed to furnish the street addresses, the consignees being unknown to our people.

While practically all of these were eventually delivered to the proper consignees, the service was less expeditious and we assume less satisfactory than would have been the case that each shipment carried a complete address.

Perhaps you may find some means of impressing upon your members the fact that when an express shipment is consigned to a place of considerable size it is advisable to include the address the street and number

The Marshal will have a busy day crowded with happenings from his arrival here at three in the afternoon up to his departure for Quebec by the eleven o'clock train.

TORONTO, December 8 (Canadian Press). — The following is the Canadian Press summary of the standing by parties as a result of the Dominion elections, as revised on th basis of despatches received up till 1 p.m. to-day:

West Calgary is shifted from the Conservative to doubtful. West Edmonton (where Hon. R. B. Bennett is running) is shifted from Progressive to doubtful.

OTTAWA, December 8 (Canadian Press). — The members of the Meighen Cabinet are coming to Ottawa for the final meetings before the Premier places his resignation with the Governor-General. Following the constitutional practice, His Excellency will invite the Hon. Mr. Mackenzie-King to form an administration. It is probable that Mr. Mackenzie-King will have a ministry complete by the New Year.

So far as representation from the Eastern Provinces is concerned, Mr. Mackenzie-King will have no dearth of talent, for among the Liberals elected are a number who served with him in the Laurier administration and who are veterans in the service of the party.

Judging the situation on the basis of Provincial representation, the names to be considered are: Nova Scotia, Hon. W. S. Fielding, E. M. Macdonald, D. D. Mackenzie, and the Hon. A. K. Maclean; New Brunswick, A. B. Copp, Premier Foster, Hon. Wm. Pugsley; Prince Edward Island, J. E. Sinclair; Quebec, Sir Lomer Gouin, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Hon. Walter Mitchell, Hon. Dr. Beland, E. Lapointe, Hon. Jacques Bureau; Ontario, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie-King, Hon. Chas. Murphy, Hon. G. P. Graham, W. C. Kennedy, W. D. Euler; Manitoba, Hon. A. B. Hudson; Saskatchewan, Hon. W. R. Motherwell; Alberta, Hon. Frank Oliver.

WAS TROUBLED WITH HER STOMACH FOR FIVE YEARS

Mrs. Samuel Ward, Millerdale, Sask., writes:—"I feel that I must write to you before another day passes I am so happy and so grateful for your splendid medicine, Burdock Blood Bitters, for after an illness of five years I am better.

I had stomach trouble so bad, I could not bear the smell or taste of food of any kind, and got so thin and weak I could not work. I was in pain, but felt so ill, at times, I thought I would die, in fact, all my friends were sure I could not live many weeks.

This time last year I saw where a man was relieved of stomach trouble by Burdock Blood Bitters, so my husband got me two bottles, but I had no faith in it after all the different medicines I had taken, however he insisted, and after the first two days I must say I began to feel better, and after the first bottle I felt so much better I went out every day, but I soon got so I could walk and eat and have got quite stout.

I am nearly seventy years of age and I feel better than I have for years, and can now do all my housework.

You may make use of this letter if you wish, as it may be the means of making others as well and as happy as I am."

HON. "BOB" FINDS SOME CONSOLATION IN RESULT.

WINNIPEG, December 8. Canadian Press. — "The bright spot of this election to me," commented Hon. Robert Rogers yesterday, "is the evident return of the Canadian people to party government, as evidenced by the fact that Hon. MacKenzie King has a clear majority of Liberals elected who stand for such a form of government."

Mr. Rogers imself was defeated in Lisgar.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND

BY "SAPPER" (CYRIL McNEILE)

He paused when he reached the top, crouching in the darkness. Close to him he could feel someone else, and holding his breath, he listened. Then he heard the man move—only the very faintest sound—but it was enough. Without a second's thought he sprang, and his hands closed on human flesh. He laughed gently; then he fought in silence.

His opponent was strong above the average, but after a minute he was like a child in Hugh's grasp. He choked once or twice and muttered something; then Hugh slipped his right hand gently on to the man's throat. His fingers moved slowly round, his thumb adjusted itself lovingly, and the man felt his head being forced back irresistibly. He gave one strangled cry, and then the pressure relaxed. . . .

"One half-inch more, my gentle humorist," Hugh whispered in his ear, "and your neck would have been broken. As it is, it will be very stiff for some days. Another time—don't laugh. It's dangerous."

Then, like a ghost, he vanished along the passage in the direction of his own room.

"I wonder who the bird was," he murmured thoughtfully to himself. "Somehow I don't think he'll laugh quite so much in the future—damn him."

III

At eight o'clock the next morning a burly-looking ruffian brought in some hot water and a cup of tea. Hugh watched him through half-closed eyes, and eliminated him from the competition His bullet head moved freely on a pair of massive shoulders; his neck showed no traces of nocturnal trouble. As he pulled up the blinds the light fell full on his battered, rugged face, and suddenly Hugh sat up in bed and stared at him.

"Good Lord!" he cried, "aren't you Jem Smith?"

The man swung round like a flash and glared at the bed.

"Wot the 'ell 'as that got to do wiv you?" he snarled, and then his face changed. "Why, strike me pink, if it ain't young Drummond."

Hugh grinned.

"Right in one, Jem. What in the name of fortune are you doing in this outfit?"

But the man was not to be drawn.

"Never you mind, sir," he said grimly. "I reckons that's my own business."

"Given up the game, Jem?" asked Hugh.

"It give me up, when that cross-eyed son of a gun Young Baxter fought that cross down at 'Oxton. Gawd! if I could get the swine—just once again—s'welp me, I'd——" Words failed the ex-bruiser; he could only mutter. And Hugh, who remembered the real reason why the game had given Jem up, and a period of detention at His Majesty's expense had taken its place, preserved a discreet silence.

The pug paused as he got to the door, and looked at Drummond doubtfully. Then he seemed to make up his mind, and advanced to the side of the bed.

"It ain't none o' my business," he muttered hoarsely, "but seeing as 'ow you're one of the boys, if I was you I wouldn't get looking too close at things in this 'ere 'ouse. It ain't 'ealthy: only don't say as I said so."

Hugh smiled.

"Thank you, Jem. By the way, has anyone got a stiff neck in the house this morning?"

"Stiff neck!" echoed the man. "Strike me pink if that ain't funny—you're asking, I mean. The bloke's sitting up in 'is bed swearing awful. Can't move 'is 'ead at all."

"And who, might I ask, is the bloke?" said Drummond, stirring his tea.

"Why, Peterson, o' course. 'Oo else? Breakfast at nine."

The door closed behind him, and Hugh lit a cigarette thoughtfully. Most assuredly he was starting in style: Lakington's jaw one night, Peterson's neck the second, seemed a sufficiently energetic opening to the game for the veriest glutton. Then that cheerful optimism which was the envy of his friends asserted itself.

"Supposin' I'd killed 'em," he murmured, aghast. "Just supposin'. Why, the bally show would have been over, and I'd 've had to advertise again."

DOnly Peterson was in the dining-room when Hugh came down. He had examined the stairs on his way, but he could see nothing unusual which would account for the thing which had whizzed past his head and clanged sullenly against the wall. Nor was there any sign of the cobra by the curtained door; merely Peterson standing in a sunny room behind a bubbling coffee-machine.

"Good morning," remarked Hugh affably. "How are we all to-day? By Jove! that coffee smells good."

"Help yourself,' said Peterson. "My daughter is never down as early as this."

"Rarely conscious before eleven—what!" murmured Hugh. "Deuced wis of her. May I press you to a kidney?"

He returned politely towards his host, and paused in dismay. "Good heavens! Mr. Peterson, is your neck hurting you?"

"It is," answered Peterson grimly.

"A nuisance, having a stiff neck. Makes everyone laugh, and one gets no sympathy, Bad thing—laughter. . . . At times, anyway." He sat down and commenced to eat his breakfast.

"Curiosity is a great deal worse, Captain Drummond. It was touch and go whether I killed you last night."

The two men were staring at one another steadily.

"I think might say the same," returned Drummond.

"Yes and no," said Peterson. "From the moment you left the bottom of the stairs, I had your life in the palm of my hand. Had I chosen to take it, my young friend, I should not have had this stiff neck."

Hugh returned to his breakfast unconcernedly.

TO-DAY'S NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

VERDICT OF ACCIDENTAL DEATH RETURNED IN HUTCHINSON CASE

TESTIFY THAT ALL POSSIBLE WARNING GIVEN BY TRAIN CREW IN APPROACHING CROSSING.

URGE WARNING DEVICE

(Special to The Examiner.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8. —At the inquest held in the town hall last night, a verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury empanelled to investigate the circumstances in connection with the death of John Hutchison, who, on Thursday last, was struck and killed by the Toronto-Montreal C.P.R. express at a level crossing one-half mile west of Cavan station.

Coroner Dr. Aldridge, of Port Hope, presided, Dr. H. A. Turner, the local coroner, being associated with him. Mr. W. F. Kerr, of Cobourg, appeared for the Crown, and Mr. W. H. Herrington, of Toronto, for the C.P.R. No lawyer was employed by the family in connection with this case.

There were present to look after the interests of the C.P.R. the claims agent, Mr. G. W. Thornton, and the division master mechanic, Mr. Binns, both of Smiths Falls; neither of these, however, were called upon to give evidence. In all seventeen witnesses gave their testimony, the first one being Mr. Benjamin Raper, constable for the township of Cavan, whose evidence went to prove that the hearing of the deceased was not defective. Abraham Scrutton, engineering, and G. W. Ward, fireman, both gave clear evidence that everything possible had been done by way of warning, and also of stopping the train; the bell was rung, the whistle blown, the emergency brakes automatically applied, sand blowers were at work, etc. That the deceased had at first turned aside, hesitated, apparently changed his mind, whipped up his horses and attempted to cross the track in front of the oncoming train.

Geo. Gow, miller, Alex. Harkness and A. Fisher, all testified that deceased had called at the chopping mill that morning, and had left again on his way to the C.P.R. station, intending to make a second stop at the mill as he was returning home.

Other witnesses called were Joshua Swain, Robert Bigelow, Sidney Hutchison, Robert Elliott, L. Parnell, Ray Syer, Samuel Richards, Ross Carr, Chas. Thacker, H. Seymour and William Davis, none of whom had witnessed the accident, but on account of residing in the neighborhood, or being at work as track men, were able to give evidence that all the proper signals for approaching a crossing had been given. The last witness to take the stand was Mr. B. F. Carley, station agent at Cavan, who had not seen the accident occur, but had heard the train blow at the mile post for the station and also for the crossing; he had assisted in removing the body from the engine and could tell something of the injuries sustained.

The jury, which was composed of Messrs. John Cathcart, R. H. Edmunds, Harold Nattrass, Robert Howden, J. H. McGill, M. McSewell, F. McMahon, William Will, H. Ellis, J. H. Walker, Clifford Elliott and Levi Russell, after being out for half an hour, brought in a verdict of accidental death, adding the recommendation that the C.P.R. be advised to put an electrical safety device at the crossing where the accident occurred and also that trains should slacken speed when approaching that point. They also completely exonerated the engineer, fireman, train crew and C.P.R. from all blame in connection with the accident which caused Mr. Hutchison's death.

Why No Mail Edition Wednesday Noon

THE EXAMINER found it impossible to publish its Mail Edition at noon yesterday owing to lack of electric power, without which its modern equipment of typesetting machines, rotary press, and plate-producing plant cannot operate.

This failure of power, due to anchor ice, demoralised Hydro-Electric's generating system all Wednesday morning, not an ounce of electric fluid being available until one o'clock in the afternoon—too late for the Mail Edition, which must go to press shortly after eleven a.m. And THE EXAMINER was not isolated in this experience, for, due to the same cause, all the industries served by Hydro-Electric energy in Central Ontario were similarly affected.

Having prepared at great expense to give its out-of-town readers positively the most complete and earliest election returns service ever before attempted in this district, THE EXAMINER is as keenly disappointed at its intention being frustrated by the elements as its thousands of subscribers must have been.

However, this noon's Mail Edition carries the very latest election returns, by wire and through special agencies, more complete and accurate than possible in earlier issues, for the returns from Federal elections always need revision and additions during a period of at least 24 hours before the exact total result is reached.

THE EXAMINER feels confident that it will have the kind forbearance of its Mail Edition readers for its failure to issue on Wednesday morning under circumstances entirely beyond its control.

COUNTY MAY NEED ASSISTANT ROAD SUPERINTENDENT

DUTIES OF MR. D. MACFARLAND COUNTY ROAD SUPERINTENDENT WILL BE DISCUSSED THIS SESSION.

The conversation of the County Council at their opening session on Wednesday afternoon after they had disposed of the usual preliminary business indicated that the week would bring forth a discussion of the season's work in road improvement. County Road Superintendent Duncan Macfarlane is expected to be present at one of the sessions when various phases of the Council's road programme will be considered in the light of the experience of the last two years.

Some of the members believe that the duties which devolve upon Mr. Macfarlane are too much for one man, and that he should have an assistant. His territory extends from Smith, Ennismore and North Monaghan on the west side of the county to Asphodel and Belmont on the east and from Dummer south through Otonabee. Each township naturally looks for a full share of the Superintendent's time, and some of them seem to feel that this apportionment was not as equitable as might have been.

Reeve Darling of Dummer and Reeve Holland of Ennismore spoke in that vein on Wednesday, but it was felt that a conference with Mr. Macfarlane would bring out the facts, and also show whether an assistant was needed or not. Reeve Eason of Otonabee denied that his township had got more of the Superintendent's attention than it was entitled to. He had heard several insinuations to that effect, and the best way to clear the air was to discuss the whole question with Mr. Macfarlane.

Spent $63,080.

Mr. Macfarlane's estimate to the Highways Department, as prepared by him July 27 last, of the cost of Peterborough County's road work this year was $63,080, comprising the following items:

Suburban roads, extension of Provincial county roads ..	$ 3,500.00
Suburban roads, extension of county roads	15,000.00
County road bridge construction	9,000.00
Suburban roads, bridge construction	2,500.00
Machinery	1,500.00
Superintendence	2,580.00
Provincial county road maintenance and repair..	5,000.00
Suburban roads, extension of Provincial county roads maintenance and repairs	3,000.00
County road maintenance and repairs	15,000.00
Suburban roads, extension of county roads, maintenance and repairs.....	6,000.00
Total	$63,080.00

Salary From County, $800.

Reeve Eason pointed out that the county actually paid only $800 of Mr. Macfarlane's salary of $2,500 a year. The money was paid in the first place out of the county treasury,

AS OTHERS SEE US

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(By Canadian Press.)—New York newspapers comment at length on the result of the Canadian elections, taking the defeat of Premier Meighen's high tariff policies as a lesson of the incident.

The Evening Post says,

"Out of power since 1911, the Liberals return in Canada upon the strength of sentiment for moderate tariff duties, the general feeling of dissatisfaction with the Government left over by the war, and the special resentment which the 1917 election left in conscription-hating Quebec.

"On this side of the border we have reason to be glad that the Fordney Tariff Bills did not avail to keep Premier Meighen in power on a high tariff wall platform. The Liberals have officially declared for a marked but not precipitate lowering of duties; and though a Montreal element in the party will oppose this, it is certain to come. It is not impossible even that a reciprocity question will be revived.

"As for the Premier-to-be, Mr. Mackenzie King, he bids fair to be a worthy successor to Laurier. He is the most notable example of the scholar in politics that Canada has ever had, having studied at Toronto, Chicago and Harvard Universities, and written extensively upon labor and social questions. To him Canada owes her law for the compulsory investigation of labor disputes affected with a public interest. The Dominion can look forward to a truly progressive government under his guidance."

Says the Evening World:

"Yesterday the Conservatives and the high protection policy in Canada went down to defeat. The Liberals and tariff reform won a decisive victory.

"Yesterday was a big day for t iff reform. A Republican President of the United Staes endorsed a 'flexible' tariff, which is the convenient way out for the 'die hards' in Republican ranks.

"Gradually the world is learning its lesson. Obstruction of trade is economically unsound. Politically it fosters ill-will and an international suspicion. Canada is to be congratulated on learning this lesson more gradily than we of the United States ve been able to acquire it."

MUTUAL PLEDGE NOT TO GO TO WAR WITHOUT "COOLING OFF," PERIOD BASIS OF NEW TREATY

SUBSTITUTE FOR ANGLO-JAPANESE ALLIANCE SAID TO BE FAVORED BY THE U.S.

TO SAFEGUARD PACIFIC

WASHINGTON, December 8. — Canadian Press. — A mutual pledge not to go to war over disputes in the Pacific without a "cooling off" period of discussion, is the basis of the new four-power treaty proposed as a substitute for the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

Discussions of the proposals among the Arms delegates have now reached a well advanced stage, although some of the governments concerned—the United States, Great Britain, Japan and France—has given its final approval. A suggestion that the Anglo-Japanese pact be revoked, has gone to London and Tokio. Possible controversies over the Pacific Islands alone, exclusive of the Hawaiian group, and Yap, would come under the provisions of the new agreement. Yap is to be the subject of a separate treaty, negotiations for which are nearing completion and Hawaii is to be considered for purposes of the agreement as part of the United States mainland.

The problems of China or other portions of the Asiatic mainland are not to be touched by the poposed treaty, nor will it contain provisions relating to Pacific fortifications or the naval reduction programme.

It is possible, however, that all of these questions may come simultaneously to the point of a decision.

OTTAWA, Dec. 8.— (Canadian Press.) — A movement of settlers from the British Isles to Canada limited only by Canada's ability to absorb them, is predicted by W. J. Mr. Black's investigations covered, besides principal points in Britain, such centres as Antwerp, Brussels, The Hague and Warsaw.

THE NEW CABINET.

Hon. Mackenzie King's task of selecting a Cabinet for the new Government, which he will in a short time be called upon to form, will be a difficult one, not because of paucity of material, but rather on account of the abundance of Cabinet timber from which he is able to choose. Former members of the Laurier Cabinet, ex-Provincial Ministers with a record of good service, a plentitude of tried Parliamentarians with long experience in the House and new members who are outstanding figures in their own community are all at his disposal. Of the Laurier Cabinet he has Hon. Dr. Beland, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Hon. Chas. Murphy, Hon. W. S. Fielding and Hon. Geo. P. Graham available. The Provincial record of Sir Lomer Gouin and Hon. Walter Mitchell in Quebec and Hon. W. R. Motherwell and Hon. W. E. Knowles in Saskatchewan entitle them to consideration. So does the service in the House of such men as D. D. MacKenzie, Hon. A. K. MacLean, E. M. McDonald, A. B. Copp, Ernest Lapointe and a number of others. To select the best Cabinet possible from such qualified candidates and at the same time to do justice to each section of the Dominion will be a problem that will test Hon. Mr. King's ability as leader.

THE IRISH SETTLEMENT.

The announcement that an agreement had been reached between the British and Irish delegates to the peace conference in London was overshadowed in Canada by the excitement over the election, and Canadians have just begun to realize the importance and significance of the understanding that has been arrived at, an understanding that brings to an end a conflict that has spread over hundreds of years. The people of Canada have every reason as citizens of the British Empire to rejoice at the success of the negotiations. To reach an agreement there have been concessions made by both sides. The Sinn Fein envoys have dropped their contention that Ireland be allowed to form an independent republic and have agreed to continue in allegiance to the crown. They have also expressed their willingness to pay a portion of the national debt and of the war expenditures. Ireland is to be a Dominion with the same status in the British Empire as Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. As in Canada, the crown will be represented by a Governor-General. The new Dominion is to be known as the Irish Free State and will rule supreme in matters of finance and trade policies and to have the same amount of self-government as the other member of the British Empire. Ulster is given the option of joining the Free State, but if her people do not wish to do so she may retain her present status, the boundary between the two parts of Ireland fixed by a commission. The proposals have already been approved by the British Cabinet and will undoubtedly be endorsed by Parliament. It is impossible to think that they will be rejected by the Irish people.

THE DEFEATED LEADER.

Even among those who worked the hardest to bring about the downfall of his administration and who regarded his party's retention of the reins of government as usurpation expressions of sympathy are being heard at the personal defeat of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen in his own riding. The Canadian people respect a fighter, and although the majority of them were utterly opposed to the Meighen administration they admire the lone-handed battle that the defeated head of the defeated Government has fought on behalf of his cause. Almost by himself, Mr. Meighen strove valiantly to turn the tide that he must have felt was sweeping his Government into oblivion. His Ministers were too busy trying to save their own ridings, and he, frail, far from robust, was left alone to carry on the fight. In ten weeks he addressed 250 meetings, sometimes speaking in three constituencies in one day, and it is estimated that during the campaign he spoke to over 500,000 people. No Premier in the history of Canada has been called upon to handle such a campaign and none has had so large a share of the burden laid upon his shoulders. And at the end of it all disaster for his Government, and more bitter than anything else, his rejection by the electors of his own constituency. No wonder even the victors of the great campaign stop in the midst of their rejoicing to sympathize with the beaten leader. They realize, too, that men of his ability cannot be spared from the counsels of the country, and that as one of the leaders of the opposition he can be of useful service if he will make his criticism of the actions of the new Government helpfully constructive.

CHINA'S AWAKENING.

If the news is confirmed that Britain, France and Japan have agreed to relinquish all rights and claims to the leased areas of China, a distinct forward movement has been made in the settlement of one of the basic problems of the Far East. These relinquishments are contingent upon the performance by China of certain specified conditions, and this places upon China the responsibility for working out her own salvation.

The Great War, which was the main cause of the breaking up of the German, the Austro-Hungarian and the Turkish Empires, was not directly responsible for the fissures that have taken place in China, which disintegrated largely through the incompetence or the craven hearts of its rulers. The Manchu dynasty saw the upheaval which certain democratic tendencies threatened to impose upon their country, and rather than face the coming storm they resigned control and went into retirement. A republic was proclaimed amid general rejoicing, but the new rulers, while little more competent than the Manchus, lacked that experience in leadership which was the heritage of a long line of emperors. The result was that great segments of the country broke away from the Central Government. Tibet proclaimed its independence and Mongolia followed suit. Manchuria was not long in breaking the ties and the Southern Provinces set up a Parliament of their own, so that the Tsangtse became the dividing line between two Chinas. More than that, separate provinces both in the north and in the south acknowledged no central authority but that of their own Government and in so doing virtually became petty states.

While the Great War was being fought China was establishing some fifteen separate Governments of her own. So far as population and natural resources were concerned, each one of these Governments was fully capable of supporting itself and there did not seem to be the slightest reason why they should fight against one another. Yet it is a natural trait of aggregations of people to attempt to enlarge their boundaries, and it was not long before the more energetic of the provinces had effectively subdued their weaker neighbors.

Mongolians threatened Manchuria, Tibetans invaded Suechuan, Honan fought with Hupeh and Kwangsi with Kwantung, and by degrees the number of separate Governments was lessened. Indeed if we except the Tibetans, safe in the highland fastnesses, and the Mongolians who are now in the grip of the Russian Soviets, there are at present only two Governments in China, one controlled from Pekin and the other from Canton.

The General Wu, who has done great things in smashing the armies of the South, may prove himself possessed of those qualities that make for wise statesmanship in times of peace. If this is so, a new Power will appear on the Pacific. Japan has large interests in China. On certain conditions she is willing to forego her right and title to leased lands in Shantung. But a united China may in a few years be in a position to force her withdrawal without any conditions at all. This is a method of settling the Far Eastern question which must be taken into account. The delegates and the journalists at Washington are asking to-day, half in earnestness and half in derision, "What is China" The successes of General Wu and a rekindling of the old spirit of Nationalism may supply the answer.—Montreal Star.

INSPECTOR FOUND CONDITIONS AT THE HOUSE OF REFUGE GOOD

FEW MINOR IMPROVEMENTS SUGGESTED IN OFFICIAL REPORT TO THE COUNTY COUNCIL—REGARDED AS REPLY TO GRAND JURY'S CRITICISMS.

The report of the official inspection of the County House of Refuge by Alex MacKay, Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities, under the Provincial Secretary, was read at the opening session of the concluding meeting of the County Council for 1921 on Wednesday afternoon.

Reeve Eason of Otonabee, who presided in the temporary absence of Warden Griffith, stated that the report was entirely satisfactory with the exception of one or two minor details.

"I think the county is to be congratulated upon that report" he said, "especially in view of the insinuations made by the Grand Jury's report last spring. The people in the county should be acquainted with those facts."

The report, dated October 12, 1921, follows:

Number in residence—Males, 28; females, 11. Total, 39.

Number on free list—39.

Total number of beds—45.

How frequent are visits of committee?—Every three months.

How is institution officered?—Superintendent and Matron.

Number of employees—Two, female help.

Name of physician—Dr. Smith, Lakefield.

Is there a trained nurse?—No.

The Buildings.

How constructed?—Solid brick and stone foundation; barn, frame with cement foundation.

Condition and adequacy of halls, rooms and dormitories (describe fully)?—The halls and dormitories are clean and tidy. The beds comfortable and bedding clean. The interior will be much improved by the painting and decorating, and the installing of new mattresses and window blinds.

Condition and adequacy of quarters occupied by staff and employees?—Satisfactory.

Condition and adequacy of dining-room and its equipment?—Fairly satisfactory. Too many flies in dining-room.

Condition and adequacy of kitchen and its equipment?—The condition is satisfactory, but the meals are being cooked in the laundry, which is not satisfactory.

Condition and adequacy of the laundry and its equipment?—Small laundry with electric washer. Adequate for the purposes of the institution.

Condition and adequacy of the system of heating, lighting, ventilation, water supply and sewage disposal?—Steam heating, electric lighting, open window ventilation, spring water, septic tanks. All satisfactory.

Fire Protection.

Numbers of stories in building and facilities for escape?—Three storeys and basement.

Number and location of interior stairways?—One in centre and one at each end.

Number and location of fire escapes?—One at each end.

Is there a standpipe with hose in good condition attached thereto?—No.

What other provision for fire protection?—None.

Organization and practice of fire drills?—None.

How are the supplies furnished?—Open purchase.

Care of the Inmates.

Is there a proper separation of sexes?—Yes.

Are any of the inmates insane?—Two.

Are any in restraint or seclusion?—None.

Are the inmates comfortably clothed?—Yes.

How are inmates employed?—Those who are able are employed about the farm and house.

Appearance of the inmates?—Comfortable.

What provision is made for recreation of inmates?—Games, reading, music and concerts.

Condition of bedding and clothing?—Fairly good; 20 new mattresses.

Are the beds kept clean and free from vermin?—Yes.

Are the inmates bathed regularly?—Once every two weeks.

Have any of the inmates tubercular disease?—No.

Salaries of Officials.

Superintendent, $850; physician, $2.00; two maids, $20 each a month.

The Records.

The report says the records are kept by the County Clerk. Discipline and management much improved. The interior of the home is being painted and decorated; this was badly needed and will make a great improvement.

Needs and recommendations?—There should be fire extinguishers installed in every corridor for use in case of emergency. The meals are still being cooked on a small range in the laundry. The reason given is that the large range in the kitchen is not suitable for cooking the ordinary meals. If this is true, a smaller range should be installed in the kitchen where the cooking should be done. This should be much more convenient and desirable.

The report concludes with a recommendation that the floor of the men's lavatory be covered with battleship linoleum.

Discussed Them.

The Council discussed the recommendations of the report, especially the proposed improvement of the cooking arrangements. Reeve Shaw advised that the big range in the kitchen might be replaced. Other points referred to were mentioned by members of the Council, and it is likely that some of them will be adopted by the Committee of Management.

ENFORCE MINIMUM OF HEAT IN APARTMENTS

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 8.—(Canadian Press).—With the advent of wintry weather here Health Department officials have been kept on the jump investigating reports of cold houses and apartment blocks, and the advisability of seeking legislation for a minimum amount of heat in apartment blocks and rooming houses is now under consideration by the department. Very few instances have been found, however, where buildings were cold enough to endanger the health of the residents, but many are living in discomfort through lack of heat.

Other cities have been queried on the matter of regulated temperature by-laws, and it is learned that Chicago is the only one with a law of this kind in force. The by-law is general in its terms.

MUTUAL PLEDGE NOT TO GO TO WAR, ETC.

By the United States delegates, the project is regarded as the establishment of neither an alliance nor an entente, but merely as applying to the pacific islands the principles of the thirty-odd Bryan peace treaties to which the United States already is a party. A public statement setting forth that position probably will be made in the near future.

Conversations on the subject have been proceeding entirely behind the curtain of "executive sessions." Apparently the negotiations so far have been kept within a very narrow circle centering in the "Big 3," Hughes, Balfour and Kato.

As evidence of the optimism with which the United States officials, who are in on the secret, view the general situation in the arms conference, was given yesterday, however, by President Harding, who declared in a public address, that the negotiations promised to "succeed beyond our fondest hopes." Without making direct reference to the proposed four-power agreement, he predicted that the Washington Conference would usher in a new day in international amity.

All the outward indications point to a merging of the Pacific question with the naval ratio problem, so far as the final decisions of some of the foreign nations are concerned. No reply from Tokio regarding the naval plan is expected until the Japanese government is also ready to make some expression of the four-power proposal. It is possible that in the final analysis the questions of Shantung and China generally may also become interwoven in the general scheme before a specific and definite settlement of any of these elements is reached.

Thus, it would not surprise close observers here if the whole range of controversies under consideration were gathered in the end under one blanket understanding to be translated then into several formal instruments of agreement.

Both Japanese and Chinese reflected optimism over the Shantung negotiations last night, after another meeting in which Japan offered to give up the public property in the leased territory of Kao-Chow as another step toward meeting the Chinese position.

In the Committee of the Whole of the Nine Nations, a resolution was adopted during the day pledging respect for China's neutrality in future wars, and another restricting the uses of foreign radio facilities on Chinese soil.

There is a general feeling that all of these subjects—the Chinese questions, Shantung, the naval ratio and the new "cooling off" treaty—may all move along concurrently so that none of them reaches definite settlement until all are ready to be lumped into a final programme of accomplishment.

Although some of those who are sponsoring the new four-power plan have gone so far as to prepare a tentative treaty draft, there are several details on which the plenipotentiaries have not yet presented their views in their informal exchanges. There seems to be a universal confidence, however, that details can be easily adjusted once the principle involved has unanimous acceptance.

Thus far, Great Britain alone of the four powers, has given an "acceptance in principle" but her delegates, like those of Japan, have cabled home for further instructions before going into a more definite discussion of a treaty draft. The Japanese and the United States delegates are proceeding slowly, apparently taking into account the special requirements of their respective governmental systems and the French are said to have taken very little part so far in the conversations.

It was at a meeting of the "Big Three," nearly a week ago, that the project is understood to have taken such form as to permit of its transmision to the London and Tokio foreign offices for instructions. What passed at this meeting has been carefully guarded and until to-day no authoritative spokesman would confirm or deny the many and varied reports of proposed "alliances," "understandings," and "gentlemen's agreements." The official United States spokesman still remained silent but from other sources it became known what the United States attitude had been.

The United States' delegates, it was said, had felt from the beginning of the negotiations that some form of international concord to preserve the peace of the Pacific was one of the developments most to be hoped for as a result of the Washington conference. The Anglo-Japanese Alliance was said to be regarded as less efficient for such a purpose than would be an agreement in which other powers having extensive interests in the Pacific could join.

On the other hand the United States group found itself bound by well-defined restrictions in the view of the constitutional limitations of the executive in treaty making and the long established national policy of non-involvement in foreign entanglements. The foreign plenipotentiaries are understood to have been told frankly that the United States delegation could not consider any proposal approaching an alliance and that if such a proposal were negotiated the United States Senate would never ratify it.

The problem then became a question of finding such a basis of agreement as would impel Japan and Great Britain to abrogate the alliance and at the same time be assured of Senate ratification. At one time a system of compulsory arbitration treaties is said to have been considered and abandoned. In the plan now under consideration the United States delegates are understood to feel condident of the Senate support and the intimations coming unofficially from both British and Japanese sources indicate that the proposal also is receiving favorable consideration at London and Tokio. The position of France, brought in because of her large interests in the Far East, is less clearly defined.

In the long string of "cooling off" treaties negotiated by W. J. Bryan when he was Secretary of State, the period of suspension of hostilities for discussion and possible arbitration is fixed at 6 months. The same provision has been suggested in some quarters for the new four-year agreement while from other sources have come proposals for a longer or shorter period. In the main the tendency has been to closely follow the principles of the Bryan treaties, but whether the six months period will be adopted unchanged, remains to be determined.

Another point not yet entirely settled is whether, like the Bryan treaties, the new instrument is to exempt from the "cooling off" provision such controversies as may involve "national honor.

DO YOU SMOKE TOO MUCH?

There are many men on whose heart and nervous system tobacco produces the most serious results. It causes palpitation, pain in the heart, irregularity of its beat, makes the hands tremble, sets the nerves on edge, causes shortness of breath and loss of sleep.

To counteract this demoralizing influence on the heart and nerves there is no remedy to equal

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

They make the heart beat strong and steady, restore tone and vigor to the nerves, and remove all the evil results caused by tobacco.

Mr. Frank Lutes, 71 Terrace Hill St., Brantford, Ont. writes:—"I had been troubled witr palpitation of the heart for a number of years, and by spells it would bother me a lot. The doctor told me it would stop sometime if I could cut out tobacco. When I would get a spell my heart would pound and would break out in perspiration, and get so weak I would have to sit down and quit my work; also in the night I would wake up and my heart would be going, I should say, about 120 beats a minute. About three years ago I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, took them, and found that they did the job. I am feeling fine and have gained over 20 pounds in weight."

but 40 per cent. of it was returned by the Government. This was a deduction of $1,000, leaving $1,500. The next item was $1,000, paid by the Suburban Area Commission, which reduced the county's part of the original salary to $500. But the county paid 30 per cent. of the $1,000 from the suburban Area Commission, or $300, which added to the $500 aforementioned, made a total of $800, as the charge against the county for Mr. Macfarlane's salary. In brief, the actual cost of Mr. Macfarlane's services to the county was $800, although his complete salary was $2,500. Mr. Eason made this quite clear, remarking that the ratepayers should have that information.

Deputation Will Wait.

Ed. Hawthorne, President, John Roxburgh, Secretary, and other directors of the Norwood Fair, including Mr. Arthur Brethen, M.P.-elect, had planned to present a petition to the County Council yesterday for a grant to assist them in covering a deficit resulting from the rain that spoiled their exhibition this year. They made known their intentions to most of the members and the Council as a whole was apprised of their position, but the petition was held over until the 1922 Council meets in January.

The Norwood Fair Board had laid out plans for a bigger exhibition than ever this year, but rain utterly ruined their main day. The gate receipts, according to the information given Wednesday, was around $400. The board needs $1,400, and had they met with any kind of luck they would have had a credit balance of that amount instead of being forced to appeal to the county.

A Run on Insurance.

That many of Ontario's Fall Fairs were caught in the late September rains was disclosed by the statement that 71 Agricultural Exhibition Boards had applied to the Provincial Department for rain insurance.

Now the election campaign is over people can get down to their Christmas shopping.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, December 8 (Canadian Press). — The Government yesterday introduced a tariff bill in the Legislative Council under which preference of 5 per cent. is given all British manufactured goods. British cotton piece goods will obtain a preference of 50 per cent., and Canadian flour a preference of 25 cents per bag.

Those changes in the tariff, it is believed, will materially affect importations from the United States.

GEORGE STREET WAS ONCE AN OLD INDIAN TRAIL TO CHEMONG LAKE

In an interesting little clipping from the C.Y.C. column of The Toronto Globe of some years ago, writen by a young writer who signed herself "Dorothy Wordsworth," a short history if Peterboro' is given. It says, in part:

"It is believed that Champlain was the first white man to see and follow the Karwartha Lakes. At the time of his expedition with the Algonquins and Hurons against the Iroquois he is thought to have come by canoe and portage from Lake Simcoe to Balsam Lake. What is now one of the main streets of Peterborough was then an old Indian trail which ran from the Otonabee River to Chemong Lake, about six miles north of Peterboro'.

"In May, 1819, a party came up the Otonabee in a skiff to select a mill site, which resulted in the erection of a saw and grist mill, run by Adam Scott. In 1825, he, with one or two workmen, were the sole inhabitants of Peterboro, or, as it was called then, Scott's Plains.

"During that year, however, 415 families came out from Ireland, conducted by Hon. Peter Robinson. Their route lay from Kingston to Cobourg by water, overland twelve miles to Rice Lake, and up the Otonabee to Scott's Plains in a large, flat-bottomed, slow moving boat for the purpose.

Besides the usual hardships of pioneer life, the people suffered much that year from fever and ague. By autumn they were settled on their lands in the surrounding district, with the exception of a few families who remained in Scott's Plains. In 1827 this name was changed to Peterborough, in honor of Mr. Peter Robinson who had done so much in promoting immigration.

"At that time the place consisted of a few log houses including a large one known as "Government House" which was the residence of Mr. Robinson and his co-workers, a couple of taverns and a few stores. An amusing sight was given ito the business methods of one of the merchants, who seldom bothered asking the purchaser's name when giving credit, but made such entries as: "a bar of soap to the woman with the red claok." Needless to say his store was soon taken over by another manager.

"The first school was built in 1826 and conducted by Rev. S. Armour, the first Episcopal clergyman in Peterboro.' Soon a new mill replaced the old one, bridges were built across the Otonabee, and the settlement on the plains became a prosperous village. In 1849 it was incorporated as a town.

"In 1832-3 a couple of small steamers were placed on Rice Lake. About that year the project was conceived of rendering navigable the chain of waters from the Bay of Quinte to Lake Simcoe. The official opening of this great waterway was held last June, and it is expected that it will be a popular highway for travellers this coming summer."

AT THE BAZAAR

The respectable, well-dressed gentleman who was observed the other evening going home with a couple of chickens was quite in order. He was quite as light-hearted as the gentleman who went home that night with a goose. And there were others who had sugar, and butter, and sides of lamb and pork which they had purchased for the remarkably small sums of ten, twenty, thirty and forty cents in the Market Hall, all wearing smiles of happiness and contentment.

One gentleman who had squandered the sum of thirty cents without any results was looking eagerly around for the owner of ticket No. 1, and only after some fruitless searching, did he happen to glance at his own tightly-held slip, with the mystic numeral which entitled him to a pair of lovely birds. The lady also, who stepped briskly up the other evening when No. 45 was announced, only to be told that it was really No. 43 which was the winner was not badly off after all. Her little daughter held No. 43 and captured the prize.

LOCAL BRANCH OF W.C.T.U., MEETING

The local branch of the W.C.T.U. held a meeting at the Y.W.C.A. last week at which a very interesting paper on the principal activity of the society, "The Travellers' Aid," was read. This paper had been prepared by the Superintendent of the department and, in her absence, was read by Mrs. K. Throop.

An extract from "The Canadian White Ribbon Tidings" was read, part of a report presented by Dr. Detweiler of Kitchener:

"Approximately 41,000 persons have been assisted during the year by our station workers. But figures are most inadequate to convey any idea of the work done, because the term 'persons assisted' may mean any of the many forms of assistance a 'Travellers' Aid' may be called upon to give. It might mean simply giving the necessary directions to find a given address, or helping an aged person or a mother with her children on a train. It may also mean to find lodgings of a reliable boarding house, to secure employment, to locate friends whose address is not known, to make investigation as to the reliableness of a position offered, to look up and visit immigrant families or individuals and put them in touch with the church of their choice, or assistance similar to that of a case reported by Fort William may be necessary. That was a woman with a baby seven weeks old who had come from England. The child took ill and had to be taken to the local hospital and the mother cared for by the 'Travellers' Aid' for three weeks 'till the infant had sufficiently recovered to continue the journey. Most important of all is the work of protecting young women and girls against the wiles of their would-be destroyers. They occasionally have to be literally snatched away from the grip of those lepers of society."

The report read by Mrs. Throop went on to say: "Anyone taking time at the Union Station in Toronto to watch the 'Travellers' Aid' worker will notice how very busy she is at all times. We must not forget that the work being done in our cities is really the work done for the rural districts, for it is the girls from the rural districts that need the help the workers are giving. The White Slave traffic is a system, a syndicate which is rampant from the Atlantic to the Pacific, they have agents and clearing houses everywhere. . . ."

The report gave some appalling figures in connection with this subject and made a strong appeal for the proper sort of education for the young and for the co-operation of every branch in appointing workers throughout the rural districts and smaller centres to carry on the work and help girls who have not had the right kind of home, concluding with, "For God's sake, do something. It will cost you time, it will cost you money, it may cost your reputation. But, for God's sake, do something, for the redemption of one soul is worth it all."

With regard to the report that the W.C.T.U. will war on tobacco, an excerpt from an address says: 'The rumor has always been created by the liquor traffic that the W.C.T.U. was out to cut off the men's tobacco. This is not so. The W.C.T.U. has absolutely no intention of trying for legislation along these lines, namely, the prohibition of the use of tobacco. The United States branches of the U.C.T.U. do not ask for such legislation and neither do we. Our educational work as far as tobacco is concerned is among the children, and we try to teach them the evil of narcotics and to protect and advise them against the use of cigarettes. You will find that men who are smokers will warn their boys against smoking while they are young, and that is our object, too."

RECIPES

AUTUMN PRESERVES.

Blackberry and Apple Jam.

Five pounds of blackberries, three pounds of apples, three-quarters pound of sugar of every one pound of fruit, and half a pint of water. Put the blackberries, the apples, peeled and cored, and one pound of sugar into a stewpan, and let it stew gently until the fruit is quite soft, then strain through a cloth, and to every one pound of pulp put three-quarters pound of sugar. Let it boil one and a half hours.

Crab-Apple Jelly.

There is a plentiful supply of crab-apples this autumn, and they can be made into very nice jelly for dessert. Take off the stalks, weigh and wash the crab-apples, then to each one and a half pounds add a pint of water, and boil them gently until they are broken, but do not let them boil to a pulp. Pour the whole into a jelly-bag, and when the juice is quite transparent, weigh it, put it into a clean preserving pan, boil it quickly for fifteen minutes, take it from the fire, and stir in it until dissolved three-quarters pound of preserving sugar to each one pound of the juice; boil the jelly from fifteen to twenty minutes, skim it very clearly, and pour it into small moulds. The jelly should be a nice bright colour, and makes an attractive dessert dish.

Quince Marmalade.

Wipe the quinces with a damp cloth, but do not peel them, cut them into slices and put them into an earthenware pan with enough cold water to float them. Boil them till quite tender and the fruit is reduced to a pulp, then rub through a sieve. Weigh the pulp and allow three-quarters pound of white sugar to every one pound. Place the whole on the fire, and keep it well stirred from the bottom of the pan with a wooden spoon until reduced to a marmalade. Drop a little on a cold plate, if it jellies it is done. Put into jars while hot, let it stand till cold, then tie down.

Vegetable Marrow Jam.

In answer to the request of a correspondent, the following recipe makes excellent vegetable marrow jam: To every five pounds of marrow allow five pounds of sugar, the juice of two lemons, two ounces of preserved ginger, and a large pinch of cayenne pepper. Put sugar and a little water to keep it from burning in the preserving-pan. When it is melted, add the marrow (cut up), ginger, cayenne, and the juice of the lemons. Boil slowly for an hour or longer. The marrow looks clear when the jam is cooked.

To Bottle Blackberries.

Put the fruit into a colander, sink it gradually into a pan of cold water. Lift and drain. Arrange neatly, packed in proper preserving jars. Place the lids on loosely, and stand the jars at the bottom of an ordinary boiler. Pour in sufficient cold water to come nearly to the neck of the jars, cover the boiler, bring the water to the boil, then take out the jars, fasten the lids on tightly, and cool gradually.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Industry

HOW THE INSECTS INVENTED WIRELESS

WHEN a little spider was observed to throw its silken thread over a running brooklet, and another species of the same group built a fairy dome of imprisoned air beneath the waters of the stream, great engineers were said to have taken the idea of the suspension bridge and the diving-bell from these humble creatures.

No sooner does any great scientist make a discovery than it generally has to be admitted that Nature thought of it before.

Nothing exists in the natural world that is entirely useless, although the exact purpose may not always be clear.

This is seen especially in the case of the "antennae," or feelers, of insects, those strange organs which have puzzled scientists ever since the study of insect life has been pursued. The weird uses to which these "arms" seem to be put have led to the conclusion that insects enjoy the use of a kind of natural "wireless" far more delicate and more effective than our own.

A glance at the accompanying sketches will at once show how different the antennae may be on different insects. Yet they are all antennae, and all play a vital part in the insect's daily life.

At one time it was thought that these quivering "feelers" were organs of hearing, and again, organs of smell or touch, but experiments have proved these ideas unsatisfactory.

It was found that the explanation lay in the direction of a new sense of which scientists know little.

The antennae do not appear to be vital organs, like the heart or the brain, according to Ernest Crabbe, an English authority. Yet, if a butterfly had them cut off, or they were injured on its hatching out, the insect behaved in an extraordinary fashion. It would shoot straight up into the air at first, and its flight would be erratic for a space, after which the poor insect would settle down into a numbed, listless state.

Prof. Crabbe cites the common garden ant as a familiar instance of the important function of antennae. "These little creatures," he says, "are Nature's engineers, and perform the useful service of breaking up and aerating the soil while carrying out their wonderful earthworks.

"Now, supposing a worker starts off from the nest in the morning and happens to find, say, a dead beetle that will provide meat for the household. She hurries back, and on the way meets another ant outward bound. The lightest touch of an antennae upon that of her friend is sufficient to convey full particulars as to the place and nature of the plunder. The outgoing ant proceeds direct to the spot and aids in the home-bringing, while ant No. 1 continues to summon others as she returns to headquarters.

"The news is clearly conveyed in a way superior to speech or dumb show, and it would be interesting to compare the comparatively clumsy behavior of human beings under similar circumstances."

The uses of the antennae, however, by no means end here, a greater mystery still remaining to be solved. The "quivering" most certainly has reference to a power of reading or sensing invisible wave-vibrations in the air.

By what means is the male moth acquainted with the fact that the female is asking for his attentions? Certainly it is not by scent, for the males travel down the wind to the place where the female is just as surely as they will fly into the breeze. Another suggestion, offered by S. Leonard Bastin, writing in the Scientific American, is that the males are attracted by sound which is inaudible to human ears. That there is nothing in this suggestion has been entirely disproved, for the female Vapourer has been enclosed in a sound-proof box and still the males come to her with unerring instinct.

It has lately been suggested that these insects communicate with one another by means of "wireless." It is said that they do this by means of electro-magnetic waves of exceedingly short wave length. Well established facts seem to lend color to the suggestion. Probably the most sensitive organs that moths possess are their antennae. The antennae of the female, who is the transmitter, differs in pattern from those of the male, who is the receiver. This fact agrees with the design of wireless instruments. Another curious point is the behavior of the male as he nears the place where the female is stationed. Often he will alight in a very uncertain manner, moving his antennae about much in the same way that a wireless operator will swing his direction-finding frame in order to discover the quarter from which the signals are coming.

Prof. Crabbe says that the female emperor moth, for instance, can send a message with her simple threadlike antennae that will be received by the finely feathered "feelers" of several ardent males, and lead the luckiest of them unerringly to her abode amid the heather on the moor.

These males sometimes come from remarkable distances at her silent but certain call, and, needless to say, the strongest and swiftest-winged emperor gains the fair one!

Stag-beetles fight with their "antlers," stag-fashion, for the lady-stag who, possessing no such adornment, can, however, charm any number of them to compete for her favors.

The "antlers," by the way, are the upper jaws, the true antennae being marked "a" in the accompanying drawing.

The most effective of these living "wireless" stations are seen in the timberman beetles and the long-horned moths. The resemblance to a big receiver arm will at once be seen from the illustration. As these long "receivers" float in the breeze either in front of or behind the insect, they are able to detect the smallest wave-movements in the air.

The Death Danger That Lurks in Closed Garages

WITH the onset of cold weather comes the open season for fatalities resulting from carbon monoxid poisoning by inhalation of the exhaust gas of automobile engines running in small, closed garages. The last few years have seen a gradual increase in deaths resulting from this peculiar combination of circumstances. Cases have been reported which involve inhalation of gas from bathroom heaters as well as from both gasoline launches and automobile engines. In fact, cases have even been reported in which the matter of ventilation had been given some attention but not sufficient to prevent fatalities.

The gas responsible, carbon monoxid, is one which quickly overcomes persons exposed to it above certain concentrations, so that it has been important to determine the limits necessary to cause fatality. In an endeavor to determine this necessary concentration and exposure, Prof. Yandell Henderson, with the aid of a number of colleagues, carried on some studies preliminary to the problems of ventilation involved in the proposed vehicular tunnel under the Hudson river. When a man begins breathing in a low concentration of carbon monoxid mixed with air, according to a writer in The Journal of the American Medical Association, absorption occurs at the rate of 1 per cent. every 10 minutes per part of carbon monoxid in the air; but if the exposure is prolonged, carbon monoxid merely displaces oxygen from the blood up to a point of equilibrium, depending on the relative amounts of carbon monoxid and oxygen in the air breathed, and on the intensity of the affinities of the two gases for hemoglobin. Carbon monoxid, it has been shown, is attracted by hemoglobin 300 times as strongly as is oxygen.

With these factors as a basis, the investigators worked out a formula which indicated that a man breathing 10 parts of carbon monoxid would inhale enough of the gas to become 66.6 per cent. saturated in 66.6 minutes. But since the more carbon monoxid the blood contains, the greater becomes the tendency with which this gas tends to diffuse out again into the air, a complete blood equilibrium would not be attained without the passing of many hours. The practical application of this is that the time for attainment of half-equilibrium for persons sitting at rest and breathing concentrations of carbon monoxid up to seven parts is never considerably less than one hour.

Among other conclusions reached by the experimenters, the most important was the determination that, when the time of exposure in hours multiplied by the concentration of carbon monoxid in parts per 10,000 of air equals three, there is no perceptible physiologic effect. When it equals six, there is a just perceptible effect; when it equals 15 or more, the conditions are dangerous to life. If a motor car should give off one cubic foot of carbon monoxid per minute in a closed room 10x10x20 feet, the atmosphere would reach the dangerous concentration of 15 parts in 10,000 in three minutes.

Experience has shown that the running of a motor car in a closed garage for testing or warming up is a dangerous procedure. Scientific evidence reveals the reason for the danger and the narrow limits of safety surrounding the inexperienced motorist who indulges in this hazardous perforance.

WHAT a DAY DREAM Really IS

WHILE serving as interpreter at the front, Dr. J. Varendonck, a former lecturer in the Paidological Faculty of Brussels, became acquainted with Freud's writings, and, being already a practical psychologist, turned his attention to the study of his own day-dreams. The day-dream is not, in his usage of the word, the conscious musing which is called "building castles in the air," but is rather the work of that "fore-conscious" which lies just beneath consciousness, and may influence at any moment our thoughts and actions without our being aware of the processes concerned. All transitions are found, "from the fancy of the boy, who, riding his hobby-horse, plays the part of a general, or the poet who abreacts his unhappy passions in a work of art, or changes it into requited love, to the obscure hysterical sufferer or the schizophrenic." Dr. Varendonck has trained his power of seizing upon the last link in the day-dream, whether it occurs during distraction or between sleeping and waking, and of following back the links in the chain so as to reconstruct the whole phantasy. This, being a subjective process, can only be fully understood by experience. Dr. Varendonck, after training himself to recall and record his day-dreams, has studied them by the methods that introspective psychologists have applied to conscious mental processes.

Prof. Freud, to whose "Psychopathology of Every-Day Life" and "Interpretation of Dreams" Dr. Varendonck makes frequent reference in his book, "The Psychology of Day Dreams," writes a short introduction indicating the importance of the work and its results, though he criticises the use of the phrase "fore-conscious thinking," and would prefer to speak of "freely wandering or phantastic thinking" in contrast to the intentionally directed reflection of our conscious life.

In the opinion of a writer in the London Lancet, Dr. Varendonck's analysis of the process of fore-conscious thinking, it may proceed by recollections, in which one memory recalls another, and each memory is associated with its own affect (i.e., its own emotional tone); in this type the dream is almost entirely visual, and the dreamer is rather a passive spectator than the actor.

In a second type the dream is activated by a wish, and then the pictures are used as illustrations of a theme; the affect is associated more with an idea than with a memory, so that, for example, the recollection of being in a shelled village arouses no horror, though a feeling of interest is continually maintained; the "inner self" is too busy with acting to heed the spectacle. The pictures are not pure recollections, but new creations, which, on analysis, are found to be attempts to solve a problem, each new part being a new proposition, a new question, or a new answer. This type provides examples of creative thought directed by affect.

Fore-conscious or affective thinking is able to draw upon memories in a way impossible to consciousness; its inventive faculties are active, and, whereas conscious thought involves the use of energy to exclude ideas judged irrelevant or distasteful, the fore-conscious is under no such restraint, and knows no ethical standard.

Dr. Varendonck illustrates this by a day-dream in which he loses both legs through a shell explosion; this he does not recognize, until a fortnight later, as being activated by a wish to return to civil life and seek a professorial chair. His psychological blindness to this interpretation, which is a fairly obvious one to the psychoanalyst, is identical with the blindness of the hysteric to his own unconscious motives even when they are obvious to the onlooker.

The "PEJIBAYE" Is AMERICAN DATE PALM

THE pejibaye or chontaduro is characterized as a tropical American counterpart of the Oriental date palm. Both species are capable, almost unaided, of supporting life, as proved by Arab tribes which utilize the date as their principal food, and by the aborigines of southern Costa Rica and certain regions of northern South America, who subsist almost exclusively, during part of each year, upon pejibayes. There is, however, this noteworthy difference between the two fruits: sugar is the principal constituent of the date, while starch is the most important nutritive element in the pejibaye.

A Cluster of the "Pejibaye" Fruit, Actual Size.

In Costa Rica the pejibaye has been cultivated by the Indians, principally those of Talamanca and the Atlantic slope, since remote antiquity. Evidences of the important role played by this plant in the economic life of the early Costa Ricans are to be found in the accounts of the Spanish historians. In the lowlands of Colombia, Venezuela and Ecuador it forms a staple foodstuff of numerous aboriginal tribes. The Jibara Indians of Ecuador hold the fruit in such esteem that the ripening season is celebrated annually by a feast of several days' duration.

The pejibaye palm, as described in the Journal of Heredity by Wilson Popenoe, agricultural explorer, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and Oton Jimenez, Ph. G., of San Jose de Costa Rica, is a pinnate-leaved species, reaching a maximum height of about 60 feet. Its straight, slender stem, commonly about six inches thick, is armed from the ground upward with stiff, very sharp, black spines about two inches long. These are arranged in circular zones of varying width, those near the base of the stem being four to six inches wide, while higher up the width decreases to one or two inches: there is about an inch of smooth trunk between the zones.

The leaves, which are graceful in appearance, especially when the palm is young, are commonly eight to twelve feet in length, and deep green in color. The rachis is provided with scattered spines.

It is somewhat difficult to gather the fruit, because of the sharp spines which protect the trunk of the palm. Ladders may be put up, and the racemes cut and lowered to the ground; or, as is commonly done, the fruit may be knocked off with long poles.

Racemes of mature fruits sometimes weigh 25 pounds or more, and five or six such racemes are often produced by the palm in a single crop. The maximum production of one palm (or, more properly speaking, one stem, since four or five stems are often allowed to grow from a common base) is about 150 pounds of fruit. It is seen, therefore, that the productiveness of the pejibaye is similar to that of the date palm.

The individual fruits are top-shaped, conical, or ovoid in form, and vary from one to two inches in length. The base of the fruit is nearly covered by the green, leathery, three-toothed calyx. There is a wide range of variation in regard to the color of the surface, that of some varieties being clear light yellow, while in others the color is deep orange or reddish orange, sometimes shading to brown.

In order to determine the amounts of the principal energy-yielding constituents in the ripe, uncooked fruit, one of the writers has made an analysis of such fruit, under the direction of Dr. Michaud of San Jose de Costa Rica. This gave the following result: Starch, 26.90 per cent.; sugars, 4 per cent.; fat, 5.82 per cent.

The energy-producing value of the fruit is also a matter of interest. That of the guapinol, as expressed in calories, is 1564; that of the pejibaye is 1096; that of the avocado, as determined by numerous analyses made at the University of California, varies according to the variety and the maturity of the fruit, from 600 to 1300, with an average of approximately 1000; while that of the banana is 459.

The pejibayes sold in the markets of Costa Rica have usually been boiled in salted water for about three hours. In this condition they are ready for eating without further preparation, except to remove the skin. They are so palatable in this form that very few efforts seem to have been made by Costa Ricans to devise more elaborate methods of preparation, though enough has been done to show that this fruit lends itself to various uses.

After it has been boiled, the fruit cannot be kept in good condition more than five or six days. Before cooking, however, it has excellent keeping qualities. If placed in a dry room, where the air will have free access to it, the fruit will not decay, but will gradually dry up. If placed in a moist, warm room, fermentation may take place within a few days, and the fruit become useless for eating.

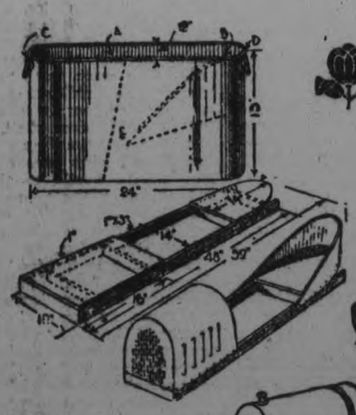
Like the chestnut, which the boiled fruit strikingly resembles in texture and flavor, the pejibaye is used as a stuffing for turkey and chicken. Dried, it might be reduced to a flour which would serve various culinary uses. But to one who has eaten the freshly boiled pejibaye, there is no incentive for seeking new ways of preparing the fruit for the table.

In addition to the fleshy portion of the fruit, the hard white kernel of the seed is eaten. It resembles the cocoanut in flavor, and contains a large quantity of oil.

Turning a WASH BOILER Into a TOY AUTOMOBILE

ANY boy who is the least bit "handy" with tools can easily make for himself a neat, light, and very durable body for a toy automobile from an old washboiler; and at the same time, if the work is neatly done, the body properly painted, and the hood striped to represent the radiator, it will have the appearance of the expensive store article that Santa Claus is going to bring many a "good" boy this year.

There are no details given here as to the steering and running gear, because every boy mechanic is thoroughly familiar with the many designs used.



Method of Cutting the Boiler and Attaching the Body to the Frame.

The first step in making the toy auto, as described by R. J. Stevens in Popular Science Monthly is to cut up the wash boiler as shown in the diagram. First saw through the rim A on both sides of the boiler, about 1½ in. from the line denoting the cut for the hood—the object being to have as much of the wire rim as possible for reinforcing the seat from E to B, without robbing the hood.

The wire rim is not cut at B, but the sheet-metal is unfolded from the rim, from A to B, and the hood is then cut off. In making the cut from E to B allowance should be made for enough material to fold over the reinforcing wire.

Note that the chassis is so constructed that the width of the hood measures 2 in. more in the back than in the front.

The larger drawing shows the general appearance of the body of the car. The boxing up of the inside of this will depend entirely upon the type of steering gear used.

WHY You WALK in a CIRCLE When LOST

WERE you ever lost in a heavy fog or a driving snowstorm, or even in a tract of dense woods? If so, you probably experienced the usual annoying result of finding yourself walking in a circle in spite of all your efforts to follow a straight line. Physiologists have studied this curious phenomenon and come to the conclusion that it is due to the fact of the difference which always exists between the two lateral halves of the body, and which causes one of them to show a constant though unconscious tendency to exert a pressure upon the other.

Some recent experiments in Vienna, which are described in The Scientific American, have thrown further light upon this difference between the two sides of the body and its effects. It was found that in spite of all orders to the contrary persons walking on foot showed a constant tendency to turn to the right, so that a definite effort of the will was required in order to turn to the left.

The famous German physiologist, Prof. Abderhalden, became interested in this question and investigated it further in the Physiological Institute at Halle. In this building there are two similar stairways, one running to the left and the other to the right, and both placed at right-angles to a short flight of steps at the entrance. Observations showed that by far the greater number of students in the building regularly took the right-hand staircase when they come to choose. Inquiry proved, however, that left-handed students, with few exceptions, made use of the left staircase.

The same results were observed in the case of the general public as well as in that of the students. When the stairs were descended, however, there was practically an equal use of the two sets of steps. This is doubtless due to the fact that much more effort is required to ascend a stairway than to descend it.

HARDSHIPS SUFFERED BY PIONEER SETTLERS IN PETERBORO' DISTRICT

CITED IN SUPPLEMENT TO PETERBOUGH EXAMINER OF DECEMBER 9TH, 1891—MOTHERS AND CHILDREN AT TIMES ATE BUDS OF BASSWOOD TREES.

THE "SCOTCH" VILLAGE

A correspondent has sent in a copy of the "Supplement to the Peterboro Daily and Weekly Examiner" under date of Wednesday December 9th, 1891.

The supplement contains a number of fine views of the then town of Peterboro, including a presentation of the Court House Park, in much the same condition as it appears today, of the Little Lake Cemetery, the Blythe Mills, vews of several of the churches, of the many beautiful residences of the town, including that of Mr. A. H. Mulhern, of Mr. Aaron Cox and Mr. D. W. Dumble, and various establishments; Hall and Innes' dry goods emporium, Fortye and Phelan, hardware, Gough Brothers, clothiers, and interior view of J. R. Stratton's store and a picture of "English's war canoe."

The old paper, with its precise small print, contains under the heading "Town of Peterborough"—a live town with a bright future, an interesting historical sketch of the now thriving city. Until 1818, it says, the county was practically a wilderness, until a small colony of Cumberland (England) mountaineers and dalemen obtained grants to the then Township of Smith, and erected the first log hut outside the limits of the present Town of Peterboro. The names of these pioneers were: William Dixon and his five sons, Joseph Lee and his sons John and George, Robert Milburn, Robert Walton, John Walton, Walton Wilson, Thos. W. Milburn, John Smith and Joseph Smith and his son.

Early Pioneer Life

Hardships of those days are exemplified in the recital of the bringing in of supplies by ox team through trackless swamps and by canoe across Rice Lake to the settlement. "Few could accomplish this feat, however, and in sheer desperation mothers have been known to satisfy the cravings of their own and their children's hunger with green buds of the basswood tree, and in the absence of even a hand spice mill to roast, boil and even chew the grain to a consistency, measurably at least, adapted to the capacity of their offspring.

In 1825, 415 families from Ireland in charge of Hon. Peter Robinson, and from the date of this important influx of population may be traced the gradual expansion of the settlement and development of the surrounding country. The ocean passage from Cork to Quebec was made in 21 days, and thence the immigrants (2,024 souls all told) were fowarded to Kingston, where they tented for two weeks, and subsequently embarked for Cobourg in detachments of 500, the steamer making the round trip each week. The route from Cobourg to Smith lay through a country all but uninhabited, and the road from Lake Ontario to Rice Lake was barely passable. The Otonabee River, morever, was in many places very rapid and the water much lower than usual at that season of the year. Nothing daunted, however. Mr. Robinson and his able assistant. Mr. McDonell, (afterwards Col. McDonell, nephew of the late Bishop McDonnell of Kingston) set about repairing the road so that loaded wagons might pass, and after ten days of hard labor the baggage, provisions and three large boats were safely conveyed to Rce Lake. Here, owing to the low water in the Otonabee River, eight days were occupied in the construction of a flat-bottomed boat, 60 feet long and eight feet wide, and in this unique craft the entire company and their effects were conveyed to their destination Pending their settlement on the allotted grants of land the company lived in huts constructed of slabs, bark, branches of trees, etc. and were provided with rations daily served out as follows: To each immigrant over the age of fourteen a pound of pork and a pound of flour, to each child between the age of four and under, a pound of meat and flour. It is related of the Western Scotish Highlanders that during periods of abnormal destitution they were wont to deal out to each of their children at the breakfas hour an intensely salted herring and an empty clam shell, with the injunction that the fiery morsel first mentioned having been disposed of they should hustle to the "burn" and abide anticipated results until the shades of evening sent them waddling home to dream of Lot's wife and the dropsy.

In addition to the food allowance above specified each family, upon its settlement was supplied with a cow, and auger, an axe, a hand saw, a hammer, 100 nails, two gimlets, three hoes, one kettle, one frying pan, an iron pot, three bushels of seed potatoes and eight quarts of Indian corn.

First Weekly Mail

In 1826, Dickson's mill and dam were erected, a weekly mail commenced to be distributed by James B. Ferguson, the first postmaster from a 10 by 16 post office on Water street; in 1834, St. John's (Anglican) and St. Andrew's (Presbyterian) Churches were put n course of construction; Rev. S. Armour and Rev. J. M. Roger being the first rector and minister respectively. The following year the small frame church previously used by the Roman Catholic denomination on Lower Hunter street having been burned, the one occupying the present site was commenced, under the pastorate of the Rev. Father Butler. In 1837 the Backwoodsman and Peterborough Sentinel newspaper was established by Mr. John Darcas. The population in 1838 was 850, and the incorporation as town took place in 1850, with Thomas Benson as its first mayor. In 1858, the name of "Scotch Village" was changed to Ashburnham, and in 1860, a disastrous fire destroyed 29 business establishments in the town.

Civic Administrations

At the time of the publication of this old paper, December, 1891, the town officiary was as follows: Mayor: James Stevenson, M.P. Councillors: Messrs. Thos. Cahill, R. S. Davidson, H. C. Winch, Thomas Kelly, E. D. H. Hall, J. E. Bradburn, W. H. Moore, Adam Dawson, W. H. Meldrum, James Kendry, R. Max Dennistoun, and W. Langford, James G. MacDonald was town clerk.

Advertisments in those days read peculiarly to the eyes of the present generation. A furniture manufacturer recommends his readers to look up back issues of the Toronto Saturday Globe for illustrations of "sensibel, serviceable Christmas gifts," the Palace Jewelry store of Toronto advertises the Indian clock, a very ornate timepiece, ugly and bulky, with makers' names and qualifications emblazoned on the front and sides, and a warlike Indian waiting at the side to strike the hours which probably in those days moved at a more languid pace. There is a good deal of gold-filled and silverplated ware advertised for sale, in heavy-looking squares filled with small type, and "wives and daughters" are admonished to wear improved featherbone corsets, with "no side steels to hurt, no side steels to break, and no side steels to rust."

The Newspapers

A rather interesting section is devoted to the newspapers, and says in part: "The Peterboro' Daily and Weekly Examiner is ably conducted by Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P. for the west riding of Peterboro'. Established in 1874, the paper came in possession of Mr. James Stratton, late collector of Customs, and father of the gentleman who now so successfully conducts it. In 1882 the weekly edition was enlarged and the daily edition made its debut in 1885. The latter has repetedly since been enlarged, and is now a four-page eight-column daily—the largest town daily in Ontario.

"The Peterboro' Review was established in 1853 by the late Hon. Thomas White and Mr. Robert Romaine and is the oldest established weekly in the county, and the Daily Review, established in 1878, was the fist daily paper published in Peterboro'. Mr. F. H. Dobbin is the managing director and Mr. S. R. Armstrong the editor."

ARMS CONFERENCE TO AFFECT WATERWAYS?

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. — (By Canadian Press)—The relationship between the pending conference on limitations of armaments and expenditure for internal improvemtns in the United States is intimate. This is a fact which is not yet clearly appreciated by the general public and by many members of Congress but it is beginning to stand out more and more clearly.

Waterway improvement advocates are especially concerned over the reduction of expenditures for the navy and the army. Already the long-headed of them are saying that if the conference is successful in limiting armaments and cutting down expenses therefore, there will be a much better chance for liberal appropriations for improvement of the country's waterways.

The powerful group of Senators and House members from the states of the Mississippi Valley and the Great Lakes region whose members are pressing for comprehensive development of water traffic on the Mississippi and also for the development of the St. Lawrence and Great Lakes water route, is awake to the possibilities of the conference on armaments and the economies in armament expenditures which congress will enforce. This group is already laying plans in an organized way to drive through Congress in the regular session large appropriations for river and harbour improvement. If the St. Lawrence project is advanced to the point where appropriations or authorizations for money are essential, the group will back that along with other projects. The two great things with which the Mississippi and its tributaries a great traffic route for sending this group is concerned are to make products from the Mississippi Valley country to the Gulf and to make the lakes and the St. Lawrence an outlet towards the East for the Upper Mississippi Valley and Great Lakes region. In spite of the tremendous opposition from certain eastern interests, the forces demanding these great water routes are in a position where they will probably dominate. Back of them stands not only the greater part of the agricultural interests of the U.S. but great manufacturing and other industrial interests. The demand for economy has held back waterway improvements for some years but if army and navy expenses can be radically cut, as they seem sure to be, there will be a much different situation. The demand will be strong in Congress and the country for putting at least part of the saving made in expenditures looking to war, into constructive improvements calculated to help the industrial and transportation sysem.

DEPRECATES ADVENT OF FARMING IN ALBERTA

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Expressing the belief that Southern Alberta is naturally a ranching country and an unsafe country to farm in, George Lane, widely-known rancher of the Bar-U ranch, Alberta, when interviewed here deplored the falling off in population of the small towns scattered throughout the southern ranching districts as shown by the recent census.

"It has been demonstrated by this time that a lot of the country in Southern Alberta and Southern Saskatchewan is ranching land suited to no other kind of agricultural use," Mr. Lane said. "For my part," he continued, "I have always thought it a very unsafe country to farm in. I have always said so, and have always acted upon my belief that it was an ideal country to ranch in. This was seen by Sir Clifford Sifton, who, when Minister of the Interior, had the country mapped out for ranching and for ranching only, based on the advice and experience of some of the best experts in his department. His decision has proved to have been absolutely right.

"The shrinking populations are, it may be said," Mr. Lane declared, "the latest evidence of the rightfulness of the position Sir Clifford took in the matter. If other proofs be looked for, I have only to mention the fact that the country which was so profitable as a ranching area, has under the present settled form cost both the Dominion and Provincial Governments millions of dollars, which they have expended in trying to uphold and keep on the land the people who were unwisely allowed to go in there at the outset."

TWO SEATS IN DOUBT STILL

CONSERVATIVE LEADS IN YUKON AND OLIVER IS AHEAD IN EDMONTON.

WHEN WILL GOVT. RESIGN?

DAWSON, Y.T., Dec. 8.—Yukon, sixteen polls out of twenty nine give:
Black, Conservative, 517.
Congdon, Liberal, 499.
Pitts, Farmer-Labor, 11.
Probably it will be three or five days before the outcome is definitely known.

OLIVER IS LEADING

EDMONTON, Dec. 8.—(Canadian Press).—The result of the election in West Edmonton remains in doubt. Hon. Frank Oliver, Liberal, has a lead of 255 in 166 polls out of 372 over Kennedy, Progressive. The missing are rural and it is claimed by the Progressives that they will elect Kennedy.

The vote stands: Oliver, 6,994; Kennedy, 6,729; Campbelli, Cons. 3,835.

MANION AHEAD

Fort William-Rainy River: Manion Government, 5,085; Garver, Prog. 4,167. A number of small country polls still to hear from.

MEIGHEN TO RUN AGAIN?

OTTAWA, Dec. 8.—(By Canadian Press.)—Premier Meighen has received Brig-Gen. J. A. Clark's telegram offering to resign his seat in Burrard in order that Mr. Meighen may contest the consituency. Mr Meighen refused, however, to make any statement in regard to the matter.

QUEBEC SPECULATES

MONTREAL, Dec. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Places in the coming Mackenzie King government are conceded in speculation in this city to Sir Lomer Gouin, who is talked of in connection with the public works department; Hon. Walter Mitchell, for Minister of Finance, and Jos. Archambault for the Speakship. In connection with the Lieutenant-Governorsip of the Province, a position that will shortly be vacated, the name of Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux is freely mentioned. Hon. Lemieux is frely mentioned. Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland and Ernest Lapointe are both slated for cabinet positions. Hon. Jacques Bureau will probably accept a position on the bench while A. B. McMaster may possibly be made solicitor-general.

WHEN WILL MEIGHEN RESIGN

OTTAWA, Dec. 8.—(By Canadian Press). — The Government having been decisively defeated, it becomes an interesting question as to when it will resign. The ancient constitutional practice was always to wait until Parliament had decided the matter by a vote adverse to the ministry. This rules was first broken in 1868 by Lord Beaconsfield, and although this action was very much criticized at the time —it being urged that the ministry was dependen on and answerable to Parliament and not to the electors—the precedent has been followed several times sinc. In Canada there have been four resignations of the ministry since confederation. On the first occasion Sir John MacDonald, anticipating an adverse vote in connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway scandal resigned, and the new ministry dissolved Parliament and were returned with a large majority. In the other three cases the defeat in each case being quite certain the ministry accepted the verdict of the electors and resigned, though no doubt it was accelerated in 1896 by the Governor-General refusing to make any appointments in the recommendation of the defeated Governmen. On the resignatio of a ministry it is tendered to the Governor-General by the Premier, who advises who should be sent for to form the new ministry. If the person so sent for cannot form a ministry, he in turn recommends someone else, but it is for the future premier to submit the names of the new cabinet to the Governor-General.

The following table will show the dates of the elections and resignations of the four ministries above referred to, and the date on which each of the new Parliaments was opened thereafter. After the Conservative Government was defeated in 1896, Sir Charles Tupper sought to fill up the vacancies in the Senate and to make a number of other appointments, relying on the similar practice in England. The then Governor-General, Lord Aberdeen, refused however, to ratify the appointments, upon the ground that conditions in Canada were not in that respect analagous to those in England and that such appointments would be calculated to seriously embarrass the incoming government.

Election Day

Date of Resignation

October 16, 1878.

When Parliament Was Opened

In the first case above noted the new Government was at once formed and dissolved Parliament, which had only been elected on July 20, 1872.

TORONTO, Dec. 8.—(Canadian Press).—There are slight changes in the standing of the political parties this morning. Complete returns from many ridings have yet to be received. In Ontario the Progressives stand with twenty one members and the Liberals in the Prairies have only two.

In West Calgary the victory of Shaw, Progressive, over R. B. Bennett is claimed by his supporters.

MRS. ALLEN OF MILLBROOK IS HONORED

PRESENTED WITH GOLD LIFE MEMBERSHIP PIN IN WOMAN'S AUXILIARY ON ANNIVERSARY OF HER WEDDING DAY.

MILLBROOK HAPPENINGS

MILLBROOK, Dec. 7.—The Womans' Auxiliuary of St. Thomas Church held a special meeting on Monday afternoon at Mrs. Chas. McNeil's in the form of a "grocery shower" when each member brought a wee pound package of some kind of groceries, the whole to be packed in a Christmas bale being prepared to be sent to the Rev. Mr. Spence for distribution at Apsley. The president, Mrs. (Canon) Allen, occupied the chair, and Miss Dixon of Toronto gave a most interesting "Travel Talk" on the trip to Rome, describing what she personally saw of the Vactican, St. Peter's, and many other parts of interest in and about the city. Mrs. Allen contributed two piano solos to the musical part of the program, which were much enjoyed.

Refreshments were served during the social leave. The next meeting will be held at the Rectory, in January, when the election of officers will take place.

An especially pleasing feature of Monday's meetng was the presentation to rMs. Allen of a gold Life Membership pin, it being the thirty-eighth anniversary of the Rector's and Mrs. Allen's wedding-day. Mrs. (Rev.) Spencer made an impromptu but most appropriate address in presenting the pin, and Mrs. Allen, who was completely taken by surprise, made a brief and very suitable reply.

Congregational Social.

Instead of their usual entertainment on the Monday evening following their anniversary, Grace Presbyterian Church had this year, a "Congregational Social" to enable their new pastor and his wife to become more thoroughly acquainted with the members and adherents of their present charge. There was a large attendance both of young and old, and to overcome any formality a contest was arranged in which everybody took part, and during which any feeling of aloofness vanished.

The program included vocal solos by Rev and Mrs. Gervan, Miss Kathleen Lanchasire, and Miss Florence Deyell. Mrs. Gervan also delighted the audience by a well-rendered recitation as did also Miss Anna Hawthorne. The pastor told a story intended especially to interest the younger members as the 'teen age boys, who usually meet on Monday evenings, were included in the social gathering. After refreshments weer served two charades of four acts each were well acted and created much interest and enjoyment. Afeter the benediction was pronounced and the National Anthem sung, the gathering dispersed.

Society

Rev. H. B. Kenny, of Campbellford made a brief visit in town on Tuesday the guest of the Rev. S. T. Tucker.

Mr. Pogue of Toronto, was in town on Tuesday in connection with his duties as Provincial Inspector of High and Contination Schools.

Mr. William Cathcart of Peterboro, was the guest of the Misses Grandy on Tuesday.

Epworth League

The Epworth League meeting of the Methodist Church on Monday evening was well attended and of a most interesting literary character. The theme of "The Story-Teller" was taken up by Miss Gertrude Richards, it reviewed the works and literary etyle of a variety of authors, readings from several being given to illustrate the topic as it developed. A Border Ballad from the works of Sr Walter Scott, was read by Miss Kathleen Freelove, 'The Day is Done", from Longfellow by Miss Stella Hetherington Burns; "To a Mouse", by Miss Pearl Burnham; Kiplings, "The Settler', by Mr. Arnold Raper, and a very interesting prose selection from Victor Hugo, "Friendship among Nations," by Mr. Frank Alcorn. The concluding number "The Vine and the Branches" from the words of the "Great Story-Teller", John 15 1-13 verses, was read by Miss Richards who occupied the chair, and under the auspices of whose department, the meeting as held. The singing of "Blest be the tie that binds" and the benediction, brought the gathering to a close.

Wedding Bells

Married — At the Presbyterian Manse, Millbrook on Saturday, December 3rd. at one p.m., by the Rev. G. S. Gervan; Grace, daughter of Mr. Warren Dunbar, of Hope township, to Stanley B., son of Mr. John B. Gray, also of Hope township.

The newly-married couple motored to Port Hope immediately after the ceremony, where they were met by a number of friends, and from which point they left on their wedding trip, expecting to be away for some time.

L.O.L. Dance

There will doubtless be a large attendance at the dance to be given in the Town Hall, Millbrook, on Thursday, December 8th under the auspices of Carmel L.O.L. No. 421, the program including both square and round dances.

Mr. L. J. Morton will act as floor manager, and the management committee includes Messrs. J. Thorne, L. J. Gray, A. V. Thorne, and W. Lunn.

Open Meeting

The Canadian Girls in Training are having an open meeting in the S. S. Hall of Grace Presbyterian Church on Tuesday, December 6th at 8 p.m. The program will be of a missionary character and their will also be some special musical numbers. It is hoped that a large number of those interested in the work of the C.G.I.T. will attend this meeting.

Acclaimed the Victor

When it became known definitely that Mr. F. W. Bowen's majority was 383 in this riding there was considerable cheering, and the demonstrations of enthusiam. A procession was formed of all the members of the local L.O.L. No. 79 who could be mustered together who with fife and drum band at heir head, marched through the main street. The intention of having the regular band play in the Armouries was, for some reason, finally abandoned.

KIWANIS TO GIVE CHRISTMAS CHEER.

Temporary Objective of Lively Organization Seeking to Promoto Peterboro.

(Contributed.)

On Tuesday at 12:12 in the Empress Hotel local Kiwanians from the four corners of the city gathered for luncheon. During the time spent around the table, topics of local interest were discussed .Everybody happy? Well I should smile.

Entbusiasm —that is their middle name. Every Kiwanian is full-up with it. Boost — why they're a bunch of boosters. Peterboro will hear shortly of Kiwanis. You simply can't keep them down.

Here to serve—to lighten some burdens now and then—to back all movements to better our city and our citizens—generally to do good—that's Kiwanis.

A treat in the way of an interesting address from Rotarion Fred Roy about the objectives aimed at by our elder sister-club was enjoyed by all. If Rotary does but one half what it sets out to do, Peterboro will be a better city—burdens will be lifted from many shoulders some lives made brighter Kiwanis backs up Rotary in its objectives.

A temporary Kiwanian objective to bring a little Christmas cheer to a few homes in our midst was enthusiastically endorsed by the members present and steps were taken to carry out the necessary plans.

Booster Rod. Grant gave three members some shocking things but that's his business.

Did anyone see Kiwanian Bill Warne? He has been missing for a week—but no doubt—he'll turn up soon. Hope he's happy. Never thought he'd do it—but you can never tell.

Those songs so energetically led by Kiwanian Bill Philips get them all going —whether right or not, is had to say—but there is pep and everybody gets the spirit of good fellowship and a dollar to a doughnut—there is better work for the rest of the week.

Two new Kiwanians joined the ranks —thus maintaining the steady growth that the club has enjoyed since its charter night. The spirit of Kiwanis is spreading over the whole continent —thus binding in the spirit of good fellowship—Canada and her cousin to the South.

A Kiwanis Club unites the energy of youth with the discrimination of age, a combination which always spells success.

MARSHAL FOCH COMES TO OTTAWA SUNDAY

OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—The dates of the visit of Marshal Foch, who is now touring the United States, to Canada have been announced. Marshal Foch will visit Ottawa first, and will reach this city on Sunday, December 11, at 9 o'clock in the morning. He will leave again at noon for Montreal, and will reach Windsor Station at 3 o'clock. Marshal Foch will remain in Montreal until 11 o'clock in evening, and will arrive in Quebec at 9 o'clock in the morning of Monday, December 12. He will stay in Quebec until 10 o'clock in the evening, when he will leave for New York. There are about 30 persons in his entourage.

It was stated here that Marshal Foch having visited America as the guest of the American Legion, the United States returned soldiers' organization, that body was assuming the responsibility of arranging the dates of the Canadian tour. The Dominion Government, through Sir James Liugheed, acting head of the Government, and Sir Robert Borden, in Washington, has been attempting to secure an extension of the Canadian itinerary, it being considered desirable that the famous soldier should visit Toronto, and possibly Kingston, the seat of the Royal Military College. These efforts were without success, however.

WASHING KNIT GARMENTS.

The correct washing of knitted garments is very important indeed, if they are to last long enough to justify the time and patience required for their fashioning. Naturally they must not be washed in very hot water nor in cold, but in water that is just a little more than lukewarm.

Avoid rubbing soap on the garments. Make suds first. Of course such garments must not be hung out to dry, but placed in a little hammock of cloth, and tossed about until no suspicion of moisture remains.

BOVRIL ALL THAT IS GOOD IN BEEF

WOULD TAKE ONLY BONA FIDE HARVESTERS

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 8.—(Canadian Press).—To eliminate the trouble experienced last fall in the West when it was found that many farmers were unable to get sufficient help despite the large number of men brought in from the East, a movement will be inaugurated at once to get the support of Canadian railways in an effort to prevent any but bona fide harvesters taking advantage of cheap rates from Eastern Canada in the future.

The support of Manitoba in this move is being sought by T. M. Molloy, Commissioner of Labor for Saskatchewan, who declares that if Manitoba authorities are willing to co-operate, Saskatchewan intends to ask the railways to adopt more drastic regulations concerning the bringing of harvest workers to the West.

"Last fall railway figures showed that 38,000 harvesters were brought into Saskatchewan, and during the rush we asked the railways to cancel further excursions, yet when the men were all placed on farms it was found many farmers were without sufficient help," said Mr. Molloy. "Upon investigation it was found that many hundreds took advantage of the cheap fares to take a long desired trip west with the result we were deceived in the actual number of harvesters available."

EXCITEMENT OF ELECTION

Being over, Let us settle down to Business.

5 REASONS WHY?

The 8% Preferred Stock of the Gallagher Remedy Co., Limited, Peterborough, Ont. is one of the best Investments on the Market To-day.

1st—Large profits have always been made on a remedy which meets with popular favor and stays on the market year after year. We have proven our lines to be in this class.

2nd—Ours is not a promition, but a going concern — no plant to build, no expensive machinery to be installed, no high-salaried officials or expensive offices to eat into the capital; all proceeds to go to purchasing goods for manufacture or for carrying accounts.

3rd—No commissions have been paid to market stock, all being sold from the office, thus making a saving of at least 25% of capital.

4th—The goodwill of a popular patent medicine increases each year, reaching in some cases up to millions; it is a most liquid asset and cannot be burned or destroyed.

5th—We have underwritten all our Common Stock at par, $100.00 per share, for either cash or its equivalent, no bonus, no water. This $20,000.00 stands as a protection to our preferred shareholders. The fact that we are getting $100.00 cash per share for our common stock should make our preferred stock as safe as a first mortgage. Money at 8% will double itself in about twelve years, simple interest.

OPPORTUNITIES for EXPANSION are Opening up sensationally fast, as at the present time a Splendid Selling Agency at Montreal, with fifty to sixty travellers, covering Quebec and Maritime Provinces, are arranging to push our Goods actively in that Territory. Our Sales for the past Six Days are over $450.00—and we have hardly had time to get a start as yet.

Our FIELD OF OPERATION is Limited only by our Capital. Therefore, we offer which is the Last we shall put on the Market.

150 Shares of our 8% Cumulative Preferred Stock at $100.00 per Share, for immediate sale.

Anyone familiar with the Profits on a Popular Patent Medicine knows that it will be no strain on the resources of the Company to pay this Dividend promptly and continuously. If you know a Good Thing when you see it, Act Promptly.

Headaches Gone

Perhaps you can imagine what this means to one who had suffered terribly with headaches for ten years.

Read about it in this latter.

Mrs. Tena A. Smith, Country Harbor Cross Roads, N. S., writes:

"I feel that if anyone can recommend Dr. Chase's medicines I certainly can. I suffered for ten years from severe headaches, and although I took all kinds of headache powders they just relieved me at the time. I became very nervous and run-down, and everything seemed to trouble me. I have taken eighteen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and it has made an entirely new person of me. I felt that I could not have lived without it. I do not have one headache now for every hundred I used to have, and my nerves are good and strong. I just weighed 109 pounds when I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and now I weigh 121. Knowing what this treatment has done for me, I cannot too highly recommend it to others."

MANITOBA TROUT MAY RIVAL NORTH ONTARIO

THE PAS, Man., Dec. 9.—(Canadian Press).—The speckled trout streams of Northern Ontario, invaded yearly by sportsmen from all over the Continent, may have a rival in Northern Manitoba for genuine speckled trout, identical with those found in the Nipigon River, have been caught in the Kettle Rapids on the Nelson River. With all the skeptics satisfied, there is talk now of stocking some of the lakes, such as Clearwater, with the spawn of these fish as an inducement to sportsmen, and many advocates of this plan believe a few more years may see fishermen from all over the world streaming into the north country after the speckled trout.

It had often been claimed that there were no speckled trout north of the great divide in the waters emptying into Hudson's Bay, but all doubts have been set aside by a local resident, formerly engaged in the fish hatchery business, who has caught trout at Kettle and declares them to be the same as those found in Ontario waters. The fish are said to be of a good size and very plentiful.

THURSTON ELECTED IN VICTORIA COUNTY

PROGRESSIVE WINS SAM HUGHES' CONSTITUENCY FROM T. H. STINSON.

LINDSAY, December 7.—At 3.30 p.m. returning officer Ford W. Moynes stated that an official estimate gave J. J. Thurston, Progressive, a majority of 52 or 54, with No. 2 and 3, Cardiff township, unreported. This will be the closest estimate until a week hence. Thurston defeated T. H. Stinson, of Lindsay, in the closest and one of the warmest election campaigns in Victoria and Haliburton.

Mr. Thurston, the member-elect, jumped into the campaign as a man very little known in certain sections of the riding. He was totally unschooled in matters political, in campaign work and as a platform speaker. As the campaign developed, however, he placed the policy of his party before the people in a clear, practical manner without the flourishes or finish of more experienced campaigners. He was surrounded by a loyal and zealous band of lieutenants who worked unceasingly in his behalf in order to bring about a triumphant result at the polls. He had as his opponent a gentleman whose popularity is not confined to this riding and whose ability and worth and life record is such as to make him a man among men. To have such a man as an opponent is in itself a great honor.

THE U.F.Y.P.O. ELECTED OFFICERS

At a recent meeting of the Peterborough branch of the U.F.Y.P.O. officers for the ensuing year were appointed as follows:—Leaders, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Shields (acclamation); President, Mr. Vivian S. Milburn; Vice-President, Mr. Harold Archer; Secretary, Mr. Earl H. Petrie; Directors, Stanley Whitfield of North Monaghan, Jas. C. Petrie of Otonabee, Allan T. Brown of Douro and Harry McKee of Smith.

Study leaders were appointed—Physical sports, etc., Mr. Harvey Webber; morals, Miss Mildred Archer; education, Miss Alberta Fowler; economics, Mr. Arthur Simpson; political, Mr. Stanley Cann.

Auditors for the year—Misses Rita Brethen and Mildred Fowler.

The Secretary, Mr. Earl H. Petrie, was appointed as a delegate to the U. F. O. convention in Toronto, Dec. 13th to 15th.

At a meeting recently held in the G.W.V.A. Hall, Lakefield, at which Mr. Herbert C. Abbott presided, Miss Pearl H. Petrie gave a short address on the benefits of organization. The following officers were appointed:—President, Mrs. N. S. Higgins; Vice-President, Mrs. J. E. Galvin; Secretary, Mrs. A. E. Higgins; Directors, Mesdames Graham, G. Garbutt, Darling and Boyce.

Mrs. A. E. Higgins, Secretary, was appointed delegate to the convention in Toronto.

JAFFA WOULD AMAZE PROPHET JONAH NOW

JAFFA, Palestine, Dec. 8.—(Associated Press).—If the prophet Jonah should return within the next few months to this little atavistic port, whence he set sail some 2,000 years ago on his tempestuous voyage, he probably would be amazed at the metamorphosis.

After all these centuries modernism, in the form of a 20th century harbor, is about to make its commercial encroachments upon this basking seashore, whose name was Joppa when Jonah knew it.

For some years, and particularly since the British occupation, a harbor for Palestine has been talked of, but only now is this dream of easy ingress and egress to and from the cradle of Christianity about to be realized.

An Italian banking syndicate, having satisfied itself that great commercial possibilities are wrapped up in new-old Palestine, has offered to advance the necessary capital, subject to adequate Governmental guarantees, and the actual work is expected soon to begin.

The plans as drawn call for the expenditure of a sum not to exceed $7,000,000, to be retired with interest within 30 years.

The harbor is to be located directly opposite the section of the old city of Bible times, making the present Custom House a central point from which the extension will be made northward and southward. It is to comprise three sections, one devoted entirely to freight and passenger ships, one to shipbuilding and repairing and one to fishing.

Lack of proper harbor facilities has been one of the greatest impediments to commercial development of Palestine, and, consequently, the inhabitants are looking with keen anticipation upon the time when large ships can dock easily on Palestine's shores. When the weather is stormy and the sea rough, it is now practically impossible for boats to come even within three miles of land, where even in mild weather all ships have to be loaded and unloaded with the aid of small obsolete craft. Thus it is estimated at least $1,000,000 a year can be saved on the loading and unloading item alone, to say nothing of the inevitable effect better shipping facilities will have on the cost of living, which is now excessively high.

Commensurate with harbor improvement, the city of Jaffa itself is making plans to come out of its lethargy and keep rich rewards. Independent commercial interests already are laying plans to develop four miles of waterfront, intending to build store rooms, restaurants, hotels and private homes for the benefit of traders and tourists.

The latest woman aspirant for a seat in the United States Senate is Mrs. Lomax Looney, now a member of the Arkansas Senate.

THIRTY ARRESTED AS PERSONATORS

Men Taken Outside Montreal Polling Booths on Suspicion.

MONTREAL, Dec. 9.—The police and private detectives yesterday arrested 30 men on warrants charging them with conspiring to personate voters. The agents for candidates of all parties figuring in the election here were active in prosecuting the search for alleged personators. In one case a man was in the act of "telegraphing" a vote when the owner of the name he was using came in. It is expected that the suspects will be turned loose after the polls close to-night.

Five more men suspected of being prepared to personate voters were arrested later. The men were picked up outside the building where the first arrests were mad.

As fast as they arrived in automobiles the detectives searched for evidence, and from each man secured cards bearing names other than their own. The men produced cards bearing names, occupations and addresses different from their own in every case.

A man, said to be Ernest Pitt of the political organization of Herbert M. Marler, Liberal candidate in St. Lawrence-St. George division, was among those arrested. He was taken by Government detectives, who entered the Liberal headquarters, placed Pitt in an automobile and took him before Judge Leet, after which he was released on $200 personal bail. The warrant, it is alleged, was sworn out by Thomas J. Smith ,44 St. Matthew street, who gave his occupation as a sailor.

ELECTION IN BRITAIN.

LONDON, Dec. 8. — (Canadian Press.)—A general election in Britain may be expected simultaneously with the creation of the Irish Parliament in consequence of the change in constitution of the Imperial House of Commons, made necessary through the removal of Irish members, according to the Parliamentary correspondent of the Times.

A Job For Every Man Prosperity For All.

Progress is an essential condition of mankind's power over nature.

THE opportunity for advancement during the 20th Century in Science, Art, Industry, Commerce, Law and Learning, in relation to human welfare is peculiarly Canadian. The Dominion of Canada covers a vast area, and reliable research shows that our material resources are stupendous. While our population is comparatively a small one, the will to work and the power to achieve are characteristic of the spirit and training of the Canadian people. With this great heritage the people of Ontario should not be content to either tolerate or condone a condition whereby masses of our material resources are undeveloped and large numbers of our people are unemployed.

In the Great War, Canada won her nationhood by sacrifice and devotion, and now she must maintain it by work and wisdom. The vital need of the world today is the production, distribution and exchange of goods. To have fields, factories and workshops curtailing production, and workers in semi-idleness, is a condition unworthy of the statesmanship and common sense of the Canadian people.

Plan of Co-operation.

The Provincial Advisory Committee on Unemployment considered the industrial situation and endorses the following statement of proposals:—

1.—That Manufacturers should be asked to take a price for goods on hand equal to the cost of replacement having regard to decreased cost of raw material and of labor used in manufacture.

2.—That Wholesalers should be asked to sell goods on hand at replacement prices.

3.—That Retailers should be asked to sell at replacement prices.

4.—Knowing that the costs of building at the present time have been considerably reduced, those desiring to build should be encouraged to ask for new tenders on their proposed work; and that building contractors and builders' supply people should make a special effort to reduce prices to a minimum in order to restore this important key industry.

5.—That Banks and financial institutions should be prepared to co-operate to the utmost with all productive enterprise by allowing all reasonable credits and by decreasing rates as rapidly as conditions may allow.

6.—That Farmers should be asked to maintain reasonable production, and in the event of a proportionate reduction being reached in other lines, should be prepared to make needed improvements and betterments.

7.—That Labor shall be asked to take willingly a reduction in wages proportionate to progressive decrease in cost of living, in so far as such a reduction has not already taken place.

The above statement has been submitted to and endorsed by the following interests—manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers, building industries, agriculture, financial interests and the veterans.

The National Debt of Canada is considerably over two billion dollars, but our financial prestige must be maintained, our loans repaid, our power to attract capital unimpaired, our workers kept in steady and congenial employment, our duty to disabled soldiers and their dependents fulfilled.

To successfully accomplish these tasks the production, distribution and exchange of goods and performance of services must be kept at the highest point of efficiency,—costs and profits consistent with safe business practices brought to the irreducible minimum,—waste eliminated,—co-operation between employers and employees encouraged.

Canada's basic industries, such as agriculture, lumbering, and mining produce quantities of grain, lumber and minerals far in excess of present Canadian requirements, and those industries, in conjunction with our manufacturing interests, should be encouraged to maintain their productivity and dispose of their goods in the markets of the world as well as in the home market.

Inflated prices and high wages should disappear. The task of promoting trade and reducing the volume of unemployment is a gigantic one, but the banker, builder, farmer, worker, manufacturer, wholesaler, retailer, the municipality and other interests can co-operate to stabilize industry and create employment.

Let each individual and every group of employers or employees resolve to assist in stimulating industry and commerce. Let unity prevail and conditions will improve. Ontario, the Banner Province, can set the example.

YOU CAN HELP! WILL YOU?

In subsequent announcements, the case of the manufacturer, the wholesaler, the retailer, the construction industry, the banker, the farmer, and labor will be set forth, endeavoring to show what has been done and what it is necessary to do to bring about the most complete co-operation.

Published by Authority of the Ontario Government on the advice of the Provincial Advisory Committee on Unemployment.

PROMOTING NORMAL DEVELOPMENT

By M. Jessie Leitch.

The Very Young Mother, whose father was a physician, sat at his feet, so to speak, one evening, and asked questions.

The storms of winter eddied about the little white house, shaking the shutters savagely

The Very Young Father had just tip-toed all the way down stairs, after the final peep at the morsel of pink blanketed humanity that was his son.

He piled more wood on the fire and appeared to read the evening paper. Instead, he was lisetning to the dialogue by the fire.

"How much should baby gain in the next five months? It will be summer then and he can live outdoors." The young mother smiled at the thought.

"He should gain, after the first few days, from four and a half to seven ounces weekly, until he is five months old," said the doctor-grandfather.

"From five months, until he is a year old, he should gain from two to four ounces weekly. Growth is less rapid after the first year."

"Do a yongster's muscles and bones develop rapidly? He's pretty limp at present," interrupted the baby's father anxiously.

"At the end of the third month the muscles of his neck should be strong enough to hold his head up," said the doctor, gravely. "By the eighth month his back won't need much support, for the muscles will be strong. Then he will start to creep. Creeping should be encouraged. It develops the thigh and abdominal muscles.

"he bones of the legs and spine are strong enough to enable a healthy child to stand when it is a year old, but don't allow him to attempt it sooner. There is not enough mineral matter in the bone to support the child's weight before it is a year old. So we have bow-legged children when they walk too soon," explained the doctor.

Voice of the People

Peterborough, Dec. 7, 1921.

I notice by to-night's Examiner that Mr. J. J. Hartley in his speech last night at the Allen Theatre, in his praises for Mr. G. N. Gordon, said that Mr. Gordon's majority of a little over 2,000, was the largest majority ever piled up in West Peterborough by any victorious candidate for the Dominion house.

Now, I think that if Mr. Hartley can's remember as far back as the year 1917, if he will just go to the trouble of looking up the figures on that election, he will find that Mr. Burnham had the large majority of 3,428, which is only 70 votes less than Mr. Gordon's majority in the last two elections, which for the two is only 3,498.

It generally pays to look up dates and figures.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this space in your valuable paper.

GLIMPSES OF THE BAZAARS

There was a large attendance at the bazaar in the Market Hall last evening, and everyone seemed to be having a very jolly time. The large central space was filled with people, men, women and children circling about the little horses, the fish pond with its delightful surprises, the candy machine, which holds so many nice things, the cigar booth, the various displays at the booths, and the auctioneers' stand, where Messrs. Turcotte and Leonard were putting up all sorts of provisions and fat fowl, geese, chickens by the pair, hams, bags of flour, sugar by the hundredweight, potatoes by the bags going to lucky winners. The country store is well stocked up for another big night to-night; there is everything in the home-made goody line in the dining-room, and chances may be had on ever so many useful articles, fancy work of all sorts, a tent, a beautiful piano lamp, a pair of patent leather Taplin pumps, a couple of lovely dolls, a manicure set, and a cake much too nice-looking to eat. The little boy who was asked to take a throw on it last night remarked that he was not thinking of getting married for a while yet, but he had the wrong idea. It isn't a bride's cake, it's a three-tier Christmas cake, and just the thing to finish off the Christmas table.

WITH OTONABEE CHAPTER I.O.D.E. ONE-DAY BAZAAR.

The Otonabee Chapter of the I. O. D. E. held a very successful and largely-attended one-day bazaar at Mr. P. Connal's George Street store yesterday afternoon and evening. The results were extremely gratifying, and the attendance for the sale and afternoon tea and supper surpassed expectations.

The different tables were devoted to the sale of fancy and useful articles for Christmas giving, the former making one of the most dainty exhibits of the season, with their pretty colors, careful handiwork, and dainty materials. Bright streamers and flags made a gay background.

Mrs. F. L. Robinson was convener of the bazaar, and ladies in charge of the various counters were: Candy table, done very effectively with rose-pink crepe festoons and baskets, and bluebirds—Mrs. J. A. Robinson. Baby wear, where tiny, fluffy, lovely things were on sale—Miss Burnett. Home-made cooking—Mrs. F. Whitehouse. Bags—Miss Reazin. Fancy work, in silk and linen and lace, dainty and fragile—Mrs. N. D. Buchanan. Dolls, tiny, candy babies and tots in wool fancies — Mrs. J. A. Morgan. Mrs. Yenney was in charge of the tea-room, with a bevy of assistants.

Mrs. W. R. Widdiss looked after the sale of a very pretty pink wool "nightingale," won by Miss Lottie Mowat; Mrs. Chris. Graham had two lovely tablecloths, won respectively by herself and Mrs. Wm. Comstock, and Mrs. Geo. H. King had a silver basket, which went to Mrs. C. S. Cummer.

WON QUILT AT LADIES' GUILD BAZAAR.

The Ladies' Guild of St. George's Church held a very successful rummage sale and sale of useful and fancy articles on December 6th and 7th at the Simcoe Street store. They realized a handsome sum from the sale, and are gratified with the results and pleased with the efforts made by their friends to help on the good work. The quilt, worked by the Ladies' Guild, was won by Mrs. Jas. Brownlee, McGill Street, with ticket No. 3.

KINGSTON VOTERS HAD PRICE SCALE.

Ton of Coal Said to Have Been Average — Peak Was $25.

It was the military hospital and other government institutions' vote that won the day for the Conservative candidate, says the Kingston Standard of the result in that city. The Mowat and Sydenham hospitals gave Dr. Ross one-half his majority, and a good-sized campaign fund added several hundred more votes. The lowest price paid for a vote was ten dollars, and a ton of coal was the average gift. The boast was made in Portsmouth that as high as twenty-five dollars was paid for a voter out there to put a little cross opposite the name of the Meighen candidate. However, that is all in the game of politics, and is only mentioned to show that the victory of Dr. Ross over J. M. Campbell is a very small thing when analyzed.

Mowat Hospital Incident.

There is one thing, however, that the Liberals do object to and that is an incident that occurred at the Mowat hospital where a special poll was established for the benefit of the soldier-patients. It appears that all the votes at this institution were polled about three o'clock, and contrary to the Elections Act, the deputy returning officer opened the ballot box, counted the vote and made an announcement. The news spread through Portsmouth that the Mowat had given a vote of 73 to 31 in favor of Dr. Ross, and the news was also carried into the city and bulletined in order to try and create an effect upon the late voters. It was noticeabue that the last bunch of ballots cast in the Portsmouth contest came out of the boxes strongly for Ross. It is declared that if the Liberals desired to protest the election they would have ground enough to unseat the candidate -elect on this Mowat hospital incident alone.

The fact that thirty-one soldier patients of the Mowat voted for Mr. Campbell out of a total of 104, was pleasing news for the Liberals, and in very marked contrast to the 89 to 8 vote against Mr. Campbell at the Sydenham hospital. Those eight are understood to be members of the staff who were not afraid to show their colors. They could not be coerced.

With regard to the Sydenham hospital vote a returned man said: "Now that the Meighen government is kicked out of office, we will have things in our hands and have the means of investigation. We intend to find out, for instance, if it is true that a number of returned soldiers were entered in the Sydenham hospital during the past few days on letters from Dr. Ross. There is a lot about this hospital that will bear investigation and you can depend upon it that there will be an enquiry before the new year is many weeks old."

POPPY WOMEN RETURN AFTER BIG CAMPAIGN.

ST. JOHN, Dec. 9.—Mlle. Y. Boulle and Mme. B. Berneren are among the passengers who sailed on the Canadian Pacific liner "Sicilian" yesterday. They came from France last spring to carry on the organization work connected with the sale of poppies on Armistice Day. Mlle. Boulle's sister was the originator of the idea, which attained such unusual success among all the former Allied nations. Mlle. Boulle and Madame Berneren brought with them from France, for distribution in the United States and Canada, three and a half million poppies, which were made by the children of France, a large portion of whom became orphans during the great war.

The Government of Cuba extended an invitation to Mlle. Boulle and Mme. B. Berneren to introduce the idea to Cuba before returning to France and assure them of a cordial welcome.

The poppies are being carried in large cases on the "Sicilian." It is expected that the poppy campaign will prove successful there during the Christmas season, as both the idea and the custom of having such a tag day are practically unknown in Cuba.

ONE MISPLAY ALL YEAR IS RECORD OF McINNIS.

"Stuffy" McInnis, the brilliant first baseman of the Boston Red Sox, made a most remarkable record last season.

Usually, when a player performs some unheard of feat it is heralded all over the States in big headlines.

In many ways the record of McInnis was one of the most extraordinary feats ever performed in the major leagues, yet it has been given only slight consideration.

Playing through the entire season, McInnis made only one error. Consider all the play that centres around first base. Recall the many difficult throws the first sacker has to handle. Don't forget the many plays the first baseman must make on ground balls.

Think over all those things and then remember that during the entire season McInnis made only one error, and you will have a fairly good idea of the magnitude of "Stuffy's" performance.

It was the irony of fate that McInnis should have made his only error in the city in which he made his start, Philadelphia. It was also a tough break that caused the official scorer to record the play as an error. It was really a play that involved merely the judgment of the scorer. Generous scoring would have made it an easy matter to have entirely overlooked the play.

Play Was Unusual.

Here is the play that was the only blot on "Stuffy's" great record. Read it over and form your own opinion. No doubt you will express a regret that the scorer decided to give McInnis an error.

The scene was Philadelphia and the date May 30, 1921. The error was recorded on a thrown ball. Jimmy Dykes was on first base, nobody out and the score close. McInnis figured the batter was going to bunt, and went in on the pitch to make a play at second if possible.

The batter missed the ball. Jimmy Dykes, who had taken a big lead, seemed to be a sure out either at first or second. The moment the batter missed, "Stuffy" ran back to first, watching Catcher Walters all the time. A perfect throw, properly handled by him, would have gotten Dykes a couple of yards. Walters started his throw and then hesitated slightly.

Dykes Was Trapped.

This rather threw McInnis off his stride and he slipped slightly as he neared the bag. When Walters finally threw the ball, he floated it down to first, rather than with his usual speed. A trifle off his balance, McInnis was forced to stretch for the ball and was unable to hold it. That enabled Dykes to get back to first in safety.

It seems the official scorer was of the opinion that Dykes was so far off the base when the throw was started, that he would have been an easy out, had the ball been perfectly handled. He failed to take into consideration that Walters had once made a false start and that McInnis was off his balance when he received the ball.

It is a cinch the scorer would have overlooked the play entirely had he known it was to be the only thing that approached a misplay on the part of McInnis all year.

To me no record has ever been made in baseball that is more noteworthy than McInnis' stunt of playing an entire season at first base with only one error. And that was a questionable one.

'THE GREAT IMPERSONATION'

A large majority of modern novel readers pronounces "The Great Impersonation" the best yet written by E. Phillips Oppenheim. When it ran in serial form the magazine publishers had difficulty in getting the instalments out fast enough to suit the demands of a clamorous public. Anything which arouses such interest to-day when readers are almost surfeited with novels, short stories and much advertised memoirs must be of unusual value. It simply means that Oppenheim wrote a story with extraordinary interest, worked the theme up in masterly fashion to a big climax and have a twist to the plot resulting in an absoluely unexpected and thrilling denouncement.

It is courageous either to write or play anything relevant to the war just now. A general public tired of the burdens of the struggle playing now and for many years, our great national debts turns to something entirely different, yet Oppenheim deals with war-time intrigues to many lands, and Paramount has screened the story with wonderful success. Such a story, released by Paramount, produced by George Melford, really needs a little exploitation.

Melford will be remembered by all as responsible for such popular successes as "A Wise Fool," "Behold My Wife," "The Sea-Wolf," and many others. The perfection of detail—the attention to the refinements of acting and giving special attention, and nothing is too small to receive the personal supervision of the director. His productions are conspicuous of the absence of those discrepancies which often strike the critical and blase patrons of the silver sheet. And the screen version in this case is done by Monto Katterjohn, who is responsible for many of the best recent photoplays. For several reasons the cast is notable and one could mention splendid work done by everyone of them. James Kirkwood has been featured in some of the greatest successes of the current year. In "A Wise Fool" he attracted the attention of movie fans by his wonderful impersonation of the crotchely philosopher, Jean Jacques Barbille, while Bob Hampton of Placer he portrayed a role entirely dissimilar in every respect. In "The Great Impersonation" he does a dual part—a most difficult thing in this instance, inasmuch as the two men are entirely different in every respect—one an Englishman, the other a German. Everyone who watches the pictures wonders and finds themselves like the half-demented wife, uncertain as to whether the man is himself or the man he impersonates. Whoever sees the picture should be in his seat at the very start as the first flash is most important to the development of the story. You cannot afford to miss one picture or one word of the titles, and don't leave before the end—the solution of the mystery is worth waiting for. Besides, the other excellent people in the cast, there is Ann Forrest, the wife in "A Wise Fool." In case there is any hesitation about seeing this picture, or waiting for a better one—go to this—it is one you'll never forget.

The vaudeville for this week is unusually good—Al and Flo Cooper in a new and quite different review of songs and pictures. Mr. Cooper was for years an artist on the staff of the San Francisco Examiner. He can do a picture a minute—a fitting number to work in with this Capitol entertainment programme.

Apropos of cheap vaudeville—the Capitol management wishes to inform patrons of the theatre that any vaudeville put on by Paramount is of the very highest order and worthy of the best audiences. The talent is recruited from head-liners on the big time—our prices are as low as consistent with a first-class programme, and the orchestra is reckoned by everyone in the city as the best at any of the local theatres.

AT THE ROYAL.

"Reputation" Said to Be Magnificently Produced Shows Star in Dual Role—At the Theatre To-Day

"Reputation", the Universal super-feature which is to be shown at the Royal Theatre to-day, Friday and Saturday, will establish Priscilla Dean as the foremost emotional actress of the screen. This is the opinion of reviewers in other cities who have seen the production and who say that it excels even "The Virgin of Stamboul" and "Outside the Law", Universal's recent pictures with the same star.

"Reputation" was filmed at Universal City under the direction of Stuart Paton. It is based on "False Colors", the sensational novel by Edwina Levin. The screen adaptation was by Lucien Hubbard, Universal scenario editor, in collaboration with Doris Schroeder.

Playing a dual role, that of mother and daughter, the star takes every hurdle on the emotional steeplechase and brings the story to a climax that has never been approached for sheer power and soul-stirring effect. The theme revolves around fantastic pivot of a girl impersonating her mother-actress appearing in her stead at opening of famous Broadway show and being an unconscious witness of the culmination of her mother's life tragedy, the end of an amazingly series of sordid and picturesque adventures along the red lane of unrestrained desire.

Niles Welch, Madge Hunt, Rex de Roselli, Spottiswoode, Aitken William Welsh Harry Carter, Harry Van Meter, Mae Giraci, Al Garcia, James McLaughlin, Kathleen Myers, Joey McCreery and many other accomplished artists play the principal roles in the supporting cast.

Gorgeous spectacles and magnificent scenes follow each other in rapid succession, alternating with humble and sordid backgrounds to give the story its striking contrasts Scenes behind the footlights, a performance of a big dramatic success in a Broadway playhouse and a series of incidents which range from episodes in a small town orphanage to a Babylonian feast in a London palace provide constant surprises in every reel.

AT THE REGENT.

GOOD WESTERN AT REGENT THEATRE

Harry Carey at his best in one of the most dramatic screen stories of his career, a splendid supporting cast and photography that establishes a new record for artistic camera work, is the entertainment promised playgoers who see "Desperate Trails", beginning at the Regent Theatre to-day.

The story was written by Courtney Ryley Cooper and appeared in the Red Book Magazine. It was purchased by Universal to provide Harry Carey with a story in which he could display the qualities of drama and humor which have endeared him to playgoers as the foremost exponent of the out-of-door action tale. Irene Rich, one of the screen's most naturallly loveable women, was selected for the principal feminine role opposit the star while Barbara LaMar, the spectacular Parisian brunette, has the second feminine lead, that of an unfaithful woman.

George Stone and Helen Field, two clever screen kiddies, appear in sympathetic parts while Ed. Coxen and George Seigmann have roles in keeping with their dramatic power. The story concerns a big hearted westerner who believes that he loves a woman. A train is robbed and she tells him her brother committed the crime. To save him, the hero takes the blame and goes to prison. He there discovers that the robber is not the girl's brother but her lover, and returns to seek justice. In the swift climax he goes to the woman who with her two children, had been deserted by the man who robbed the train.

The story was directed at Universal City and in the snow-blanked region near Truckee, by Jack Ford. The remarkable photography is the work of Harry Fowler.

AT THE GRAND.

TO-NIGHT—"THE THREE MUSKETEERS"

There is a famous picture called "Le Rixe." It presents a terrific duel just taking place—in fact it is more than a duel—because several swordsmen are engaged in it. Their costums suggest the period about which we shall know so much after seeing to-night's picture at the Grand. Critics and art lovrs pronounce the picture one of the most vivid and full of action ever painted. Douglas Fairbanks puts more pep, more vigour, more manly action into his portrait of the gallant d-Artagnan, than any living man could have done. You lovers of Dumas—rally around the famous guardsmen—see before you the trio and their leader whose motto is as good today as it was four centuries ago—"All for one—one for all." That is friendship personified, not the friendship of harsh criticism and petty fault-finding, but the will to do and dare anything in the course of king or "lady" faire."

Scene from DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS in "THE THREE MUSKETEERS"

AT THE GRAND
To-day, Friday and Saturday

Besides the book of the same name, the screen version of to-night's picture is taken from d'Artagnan's memoirs. Faithfully palaces, interiors and exteriors, were constructed from vivid pictures drawn by the bold Gascon in those later years when action gave place to reflection, and lovers of history will delight in the street scenes in old Paris. They will love the boudoir secrets, the intrigues between Buckingham and Richelieu, between the queen and milady on one side and the king's followers on the other. No money has been spared to produce as nearly perfect a picture as could be made, no lack of brains nor artistic ability were wanting because Edward Knoblock, who prepared the scenario, is an eminent dramatist and a scholar. He wrote "Tiger, Tiger," "One," "Tiger Rose," and is married to Frances Starr. Marguerite de la Motte, Barbara La Marr and Mary MacLaren are three of the prettiest women in moving pictures, and they play big parts in "The Three Musketeers." The incidental music played by an augmented orchestra, is an added attraction and should draw a large house to see the Dumas' masterpiece at the Grand Theatre to-night. LAURA.

BELL TELEPHONE INTER-DEPARTMENT LEAGUE.

Tuesday evening, in the Telephone Inter-Department League, the Duplex took two games out of three from the Sub Sets. While both teams seemed to be decidedly off, Captain John Robinson, of the Duplex, unheeding the failure of his team to deliver the goods, rolled the handsome score of 741 in three games.

The Sub Sets, who are winners of the first group of a triple schedule league, now wonder whether or not John has been kidding them along, and are now inclined to believe that they are not the only team in the Telephone League.

CRESSMAN'S DEFEAT BELMONTS AND ARE CITY BASKETBALL CHAMPIONS

NEW CHAMPS LED ALL THE WAY AND FINISHED IN FRONT BY MARGIN OF NINE POINTS.

Cressman's cinched the City Basketball League championship at the Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium last night by defeating Belmonts by the score of 30 to 21. It was Cressman's game all along the route, and on the form displayed by the Big Store quintet, the club boys had to be a good team to hold the score close:

In winning the championship last season. Belmonts defeated Cressman's twice. This season, Cressman's are in front with two victories over Belmonts.

The game, last night was keenly contested with the winners having the margin on checking, combination and shooting; on several occasions, Cressman's played the ball from basket to basket without a slip and the last man shot and scored unchecked. Ten minutes before the end, Belmonts were closing in and they had cut down Cressman's lead to four points. They did not have the punch, however, and failed to score again.

The Teams

Cressmans:—Lillow, Degraw, Elliott, Nicholls, McLeod and J. Hardill.

Belmonts: — Jobbitt Bergoine, Stuart, Darling and Kirn.

Referee—Walter Smaill.

ECKO CLUB WIN

RICKARD GIVES UP IDEA OF MATCHING JESS WITH DEMPSEY

By HENRY L. FARRELL,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Big Jess Willard can go right along digging up oil as far as Tex Rickard is concerned.

The boss of Madison Square Garden is off the big Kansan and is looking elsewhere for the second "battle of the century."

"I've passed up the Dempsey-Willard bout, because I can't do business with Willard. I can't get any kind of an answer from him. He has the contract I sent him, and I guess he has forgotten it," Rickard said today.

The big promoter just gave one of his characteristic chuckles when asked about the $2,000,000 gusher the former heavyweight champion found parked in his backyard.

"I know a few things about oil," he added with a grin.

As far as being the stage for another heavyweight championship the Jersey arena won't be much good next summer, Rickard believes.

"I can't see a good bout with Dempsey that would be a card for the arena. The only heavyweight in sight is Fred Fulton, and he's not enough of an attraction to fill the stadium," Rickard said.

"Fulton ought to be a good card for the garden and I wouldn't mind putting him on with Dempsey if he would go out and work himself up a little bit."

Despite the stories of Carpentier's disability being cabled from France, Rickard insists that the European heavyweight champion is coming back in February to meet Tommy Gibbons.

"I have good reason to believe that the Frenchman had nothing more serious wrong with him than a bad cold. I have been advised from sources that I can't question that he will be back in February to get ready for Gibbons," Rickard said.

TENNIS IS ONE OF "BIG MONEY" GAMES IN U.S.A.

Championships Said to Have Drawn $120.000—Players Also Have Chances For "Side" Revenue.

(By Henry L. Farrell, United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Tennis has not only developed into one of the most popular American sports, but it now takes rank with the foremost of "big money" attractions.

The national men's championships at the Germantown Cricket club, in Philadelphia last September, is said to have drawn a gate of $120,000. The challenge round matches of the Davis cup play between America and Japan brought over $70,000 at Forest Hills and the national woman's championship at the same club would have exceeded that mark if Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French star, had been able to play through. In addition the exhibition tour of American stars staged for the benefit of devasted France brought in $10.000 although it was played off season.

It is only to be expected that professional sportsmen would look with eagerness at tennis as a money-making proposition and it is understood that William T. Tilden, national and international champion, was offered $25,00 recently to turn professional next summer.

Tennis perhaps comes closer to a real amateur sport than any other American pastime. The number of professional instructors compared to golf, is almost negligible, and the star players get less out of their work than the great players of any other game.

Tilden wrote tennis article for a syndicate last summer, as did Vincent Richards. Tilden is reported to have been paid about $1,000 a month for his stories. But the champion adhered rigidly to the rule of the tennis association that players must write every word that appears in print under their names.

Many of the players are engaged in the insurance business and their connection with the game brings them in contact with most of the ultra-exclusive clubs of the country where "prospects" are very lucrative. It is said that one of the Pacific coast stars on his tour of the east last summer sold policies, the commissions on which netted him $20,000.

The association has done much to preserve a strict amateur standing among the players without doing them an injustice for the time and attention they devote to the sport. The Maurice McLoughin case of some years back recalls the allowing a player to capitalize his name by engaging in the sporting goods business. Last winter the governing body of the game also passed a rule prohibiting the players from allowing the use of their name of any placques of paraphernalia of the game.

WINTER LEAGUE LOSES $45,000.

SAN FRANCISO, Dec. 8.—Approximately $45,000 will be lost by owners of clubs in the new California winter base ball league during its ten weeks season which closes December 6, according to estimates by league officials here. Lack of patronage is given as the reason.

The league is made up of four clubs representing Los Angeles, Vernon, San Francisco and the Mission district of San Francisco. Four major league stars, Roger Hornsby, George Sisler, Ty Cobb and Harry Heilmann, are pilots of the teams. The other players are from the Pacific Coast base ball leagues.

Owners of the winter league clubs are indentified with the Coast League teams. At the opening of the season they took out insurance against rain to cut down their losses, for rain has caused cancellation of thirteen games here to date and one in Los Angeles.

SKIN DISEASE AND CONSTIPATION

What G. Prouton, Gordan street, Ottawa, says:

Gentlemen,—It is a great pleasure for me to recommend Dr. Henderson's Herb Treatment for constipation, having received great benefit from them in that respect, also your Hou-Tan Ointment. Ten months ago my youngest child which was then eight months old, had her head all covered with boils. We purchased a box and in a short time they all disappeared and she now has a beautiful head of hair which convinces me that it is a splendid preparation for the hair, as well as curing the disease. No family should be without out a preparation of that kind in their home.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment are two excellen preparations for all forms of kin diseases. Don't fail to give them a trial, and you like others, would not be without them in your home. They are for sale at Warne's Drug Store, Peterborough. The Herb Tablets are 25c. 50c. and $1 per box. The Hou-Tan Ointment 50c per box. THE HENDERSON HERB CO., TORONTO.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, December 8. Canadian Press. — The gains and losses among the railway shares at the opening of to-day's markets suggested the conflicting views of the speculative interests. St. Paul common and preferred rallied moderately on official assurances that impending obligations would be met at maturity.

Pere Marquette preferred continued to strengthen as a result of the declaration of an extra dividend.

Canadian Pacific, New York Central, Rock Island and Erie first preferred were fractionally lower, and steels, equipments and specialties similar tendencies were noted in oils.

The five per cent. opening rate for call loans aided shorts in their drive against the leaders during the morning. Motors and Tobaccos eased one to two points, Chandler again being adversely affected by dividend rumors. The market steadied before noon, buying of high-grade Oils, Shippings, Coalers, Rubbers and popular specialties stabilizing the list. The bond market was mixed, Liberty 3½'s and most of the 4¼'s reacting, while Victory 4 3-4's repeated their maximum price of the year. Foreign exchanges were strong, the British quotation rising to its highest level of the current movement.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange strong; demand, Great Britain, 4.09 7-8; Canadian exchange, 8 1-16 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8. — (Canadian Press).—Opening wheat quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 5-8c higher, with May 1.11¼ to 1.11 3-4 and July 1.01¼, were followed by moderate gains all around and then something of a re-action.

Corn and oats were firmer with wheat. Corn opened unchanged to ¼ higher, May 53 1-8 to 58¼, and then scored a slight general gain. After starting unchanged, 1-8 to ¼ up, May 37 5-8, the oat market continued to harden.

MONTREEAL.

MONTREAL, December 8. Canadian Press. — Trading was of a quiet character during the first ½ hour this morning on the local stock exchange and only a few of the principal issues put in an appearance.

Abittibi and Atlantic Sugar were unchanegd at 30, 31 1-2 respectively; Brompton was up 3-4 at 24. Montreal Power, which has been active of late, appeared the same at 88, as did also National Breweries at 53 3-4. Riordon was quoted at 5 1-2, its closing figure.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Dec. 8. — (Canadian Press).—The feature of this morning's session on the local Stock Exchange was the strength shown by Maple Leaf Milling, transactions of 150 shares putting this stock up six points to 124. Brazilian was off a fraction.

WHY CHILLY WEATHER BRINGS RHEUMATISM

Says skin pores are closed and uric acid remains in blood.

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed ,thus forcing the kidneys to double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twingeof rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Iad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to noraml action ,thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Iad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rehumatism.

BOOSTERS' COMMITTEE MEETS WITH REPRESENTATIVES OF 19 ORGANIZATIONS.

The Boosters' Committee, of which W. S. Merrill, is the chairman and H. R. H. Kenner, the vice-chairman, called a meeting last night at the Chamber of Commerce to discuss the boosting of Peterboro's contemplated Old Home Week. Invitations had been extended to all organizations in the city, including fraternal, church, social, sporting, business and charitable, to send two representatives to this meeting.

Representatives from 19 local societies were present: the Ladies' Auxiliary to the G.W.V.A., the Engineering Institute, the Children's Aid Society, the Peterboro Branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the Women's Canadian Club, the Wm. Hamilton Athletic Association, Sons of England, the Rotary Club, Industrial Exhibition Board, the Gun Club, Dental Society, Curling Club, Business Girls' Club, Holy Name Society, Belmont Club, Knights of Columbus, Automobile Association and the Corinthian Lodge of the Masonic Order.

All those present agreed on the advisability of boosting the contemplated project in every way possible. Definite action was deferred for a general meeting to be held next Monday evening, when it was hoped that all organizations in the city will be officially represented.

WOMEN IN PARLIAMENT! WHY NOT IN THE COUNTY COUNCIL?

BROADENING OUT POLICY IN MUNICIPAL ADMINISTRATION NOT WELCOME IN THIS COUNTY—EXTENSION OF FRANCHISE NOT CORDIALLY DISCUSSED.

"That means the whole dam family would have a vote," said a member of the County Council in a spirit of levity during the discussion this morning of a circular letter from the Provncial Government asking for the views of municipalities on the following questions:

"Are you in favour of the municipal franchise being extended to all or any of the following persons of 21 years or over—the wife, husband, sons, daughters, brothers, sisters, sons-in-law and daughters-in-law of and residing with the person possessing the necessary qualification to vote at municipal elections?"

"Wouldn't it be strange if this Council were all women?" mused County Clerk Elliott, and the Councillors laughed at the vision momentarily called up.

"There are one or two women I know that would make things lively if they got started here," said another member who was seeing things that are less of an impossibility now that Agnes MacPhail has broken into the House of Commons.

"I don't think it would be right that a farmer with a family of big girls should have votes for all of them, and another man with the same assessment would have only one vote," remarkd another Reeve.

"We don't want women in here," added another.

This question was left to the township councils for any expressions they wish to submit to the Legislature.

Basis of Representation.

Another paragraph in the circular letter sought opinions on the alternative of making assessment or increased population the basis of township representation in the County Council.

Several motions were framed, but after an hour's discussion they were negatived and a last minute amendment by Reeve Shaw that this question be left in abeyance until the 1922 Council meets in January carried.

Mr. Eason's motion, seconded by Reeve J. Scott, of Asphodel, endorsed the idea that representation in the County Council should be according to assessment. He proposed that townships with assessments exceeding one million dollars should have one deputy-reeve and those assessed at more than two and one-half millions in the equalized assessment should have two deputies. This was a variation of an earlier proposal that contemplated three deputies, a feature which Reeve Coughlin of Douro remarked would give affluent townships like Otonabee too numerous a representation in the Council.

Equal Voting Power.

"It should be remembered," he said, "that each deputy-reeve's vote counts just as much as the reeve's. That would give the second or third reeve as much influence or power in the Council as the Reeve of the smaller townships which would be entitled by this change to only one representative."

Would Rob Monaghan.

Discussing his amended amendment Reeve Eason said that the only difference it would create would be to give Smith and Otonabee each an additional deputy-reeve, would give Asphodel a deputy and take away Monaghan's.

Monaghan, Otonabee and Smith at present have both a Reeve and Deputy-Reeve each. Asphodel is represented by Reeve Scott alone, yet its assessment is considerably higser than Monaghan's.

"We'd have to enlarge the Council chamber," said Reeve Curtis, of Havelock jocularly.

Too Many to Watch.

"It would mean only two additional members," said Mr. Eason, who argued that the townships that "paid the shot" should have representation in proportion thereto.

"It keeps the back townships busy now watching the two men from Otonabee, without giving them another," said Reeve Shaw facetiously.

"This looks to me like autocratic government Mr. Eason," was Reeve Curtis's comment.

Reeve McIntosh moved an amendment, seconded by Reeve Curtis, that no change be recommended to the Government, but that the basis continue as at present(according to the number of ratepayers in each municiaplity.

Mr. Shaw's later amendment to the amendment carried with seven votes against five for the motion and four for the amendment by Mr. McIntosh.

FEINERS SPLIT BUT IRISH MAY RATIFY TREATY

BELIEVED SOUTH AND WEST OF IRELAND WILL INSIST ON THIS —RELEASE OF PRISONERS WILL HELP.

PRESS IS FAVORABLE

DUBLIN, Dec. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Arthur Griffith with move the ratification of the treaty between Britain and Ireland in the Dail next Wednesday.

LONDON, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press.)— Despite the announcement of De Valera that he would not recommend the Irish treaty to the Dail Eireann, the belief is general that the people of the South and West of Ireland will insist on its ratification by a full meeting of their representatives. The release of political prisoners has won a strong feeling of good will for Britain, and Griffith's statement that the Unionists would receive their full share of representation in the first Chamber of the All-Ireland Parliament has also met with approbation.

DUBLIN, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press.) — Commenting on the Sinn Fein split, the Freemans Journal says to-day that the men who represented Ireland demanded that the Irish people who trusted in them "as spokesmen of the nation should now support them to the fullest extent."

TO BE LONG AND LIVELY.

DUBLIN, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press.)—The sessionof the Dail Eireann next Wednesday promises to be long and lively as it includes many young men who are in the habit of expressing themselves with force, but the belief is general that the wonderful influence of Michael Collins, who is looked upon as a real hero of the revolution will win much support, for the Irish Nationalists are also countedupon to exercise their influence for acceptance of the agreement.

PRESS COMMENT.

DUBLIN, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press.)—Pointing out that "as the plenipotentiaries representing the Dail and Irish Nation," the Irish delegates signed the treaty of peace, the Irish Independent to-day says: "We submit that in the circumstances the nation is honor-bound to uphold their action."

AUDUBON SOCIETY PAYS FINE TRIBUTE TO F. L. ROY'S ART

GIVES FIRST PLACE TO ONE OF HIS PHOTOGRAPHS IN CALENDAR OF 1922—SAME WORK HAS BEEN EXHIBITED HERE.

The frontispiece of the 1922 calendar of the Audubon Society of Buffalo is a reproduction of a photograph taken by Fed. L. Roy of a nest of blue heron young at Sucker Lake in Cavendish Township. Most persons in Peterborough remember the pictures of the cranery which he exhibited in the windows of the Roy Studio a little more than a year ago. Great bundles of small branches and reeds in the high tops of dead trees, precarious homes of the blue heron and their young, attracted the interest of passersby almost as keenly as the cranery appeals to the hunters and fishermen on their treks through that part of Peterborough County every spring and fall. With what must have demanded a great deal of pains and presented no little difficulty, Mr. Roy obtained a sheaf of photographs, one of which was chosen by the Buffalo branch of the Audubon Society, an organization of bird lovers, for their cover design. It shows a gaunt limb of a withered tree, and in the horizontal fork half way out the limb a pair of blue herons had tumbled together their rough and ready nest. The photograph shows two young blue herons on the nest, apparently with their attention fixed upon the photographer, who must have climbed a nearby tree to get the range and a desirable level.

At the request of the society, Mr. Roy submitted seven photographs, and two of them were used. This is high distinction for Mr. Roy, especially when it is understood that only seven photographs were required and chosen to illustrate the calendar. The second one of Mr. Roy's to win preference is the nest of a loon on the shore of Gull Lake Narrows.

The loon is something of a recluse among waterfowl, and its nest is rarely found. In fact it does not make a nest after the fashion of other birds, but picks out a damp patch of shore, pats down a nesting place, lays its eggs and manages to bring up its family in the nearby water without being forced to the trouble of building an apartment such as the blue heron clumsily constructs.

Mr. Roy's many friends will congratulate him upon this recognition of his meritorious work by a society that is exceedingly discriminating in its search for the best photographic revelations of intimate bird life in America. Not only has Mr. Roy exceptional talents and abilities in his art, but he has the instincts of the nature lover, a combination that gives his scenic work a touch of genius in this department of photography.

THE STOCKYARDS STRIKE SITUATION IS BETTER NOW

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(Canadian Press). — The first death from violence in the stock yards strike was reported to-day. George Pile, 35, a laborer, died in the County Hospital from wounds received Wednesday night when the police say he was shot by a motorcycle policeman.

The situation assumed a brighter aspect to-day.

According to packing house officials the strikers are returning to work and these with new employes have placed the plants on nearly a normal working basis.

ONLY ANOTHER DRILL BEFORE INSPECTION

FIFTEEN JOINED PETERBOROUGH RANGERS LAST NIGHT

The appeal for recruits of Lieutenant Colonel A. W. McPherson, O.C., Peterboro Rangers, met with a generous response at the weekly parade last night, fifteen men being aded to the strength bringing it up to 300. The smartness of the unit last night was gratifying to the officer commanding and officers who have worked hard to get the regiment into shape for the annual inspection on Dec. 15 which it is expected will be made by Sir Henry Burstall, Inspector general for the Dominion.

There will be only one more drill before inspection next Tuesday night and another quota of recruits are desired.

Although drill will cease after inspection until April 1, the recreational activities at the armouries will continue throughout the winter. The billiard rooms and bowling alleys will be open to members and shooting competitions in the galleries are provided for.

Skating Rink

Rapid progress is being made in getting the skating rink ready for use as soon as Frost settled down to business. Dances and card parties are being planned in the sergeants' mess, and to-night a whist drive will be held by the sergeant's for members and their friends in the recreation room, and there will be dancing in the band room.

Lt. Col. A. W. McPherson, O.C. Peterboro Rangers stated to-day that an amalgamation of the Peterboro Rangers Band (formerly known as the 57th) and the G.W.V.A band was arranged at a meeting he held with the officers of each organization last night.

A very fine spirit of harmony prevailed and the result will give the regiment and citizens generally a band of 50 or 60 pieces equal to that of any of the other militia units in Canada. Both bands contained musicians of a splendid calibre and music-lovers in the city will read with pleasure of the amalgamation which has been effected.

DISCUSSION ON SWINE DISEASES

MUCH INTEREST IN EDUCATIONAL COURSE HERE FOR JUNIOR FARMERS.

The special educational course for junior farmers of the Counties of Peterborough, Victoria, Haliburton, Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Prince Edward opened at the Canadian Packing Co.'s plant at 1.30 p.m. and the interest the 53 young men are taking in this course is a good augury of a bright future for the Canadian swine-breeding industry. No better proof of their enthusiasm for the course could be adduced than the fact that out of 54 who enrolled for attendance, 33 have turned up. Victoria county, by the arrival of B. A. Wilson of Woodville and R. H. Worsley of Cameron now have a full team of nine, and with Ewart King of Plainville here, Northumberland lacks but one.

Lecture Yesterday.

The course opened yesterday afternoon with a lecture and demonstration by George Blackwell, general manager of the Canadian Packing Company, on cured Wiltshire sides, and at 2.30 p.m. Mr. Blackwell and A. E. McLaurin, Live Stock Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, lectured on swin carcasses. At 3.30 J. A. Helston, Wm. Davies Co. grader, lectured on selected classes of hogs, followed by a discussion along the same line by a well-known breeder, Gavin Barbour, of Crosshill.

Inspected Plant.

The class began to-day's programme with an inspection tour through the plant of the Canadian Packing Co., and at 10 a.m. the judging competition on live hogs began. To-morrow morning the carcasses of the same hogs will be judged, and the splendid prizes awarded.

Animal Diseases.

This afternoon the class heard Dr. Lowry, a government meat inspector, in an interesting discussion of animal diseases and meat inspection, and at 2.30 p.m. Mr. Blackwell and Mr. McLaurin gave them some fine pointers on judging and grading carcasses.

"The Hog Industry in Denmark," was the subject of an address by T. Olsen of the Harris Abattoir, Toronto, at 4 p.m.

Similar courses to the one being held in Peterborough are on in Toronto and Hull, and next week there will be courses at Toronto, Brantford and Ingersoll.

Peterborough is representing Central Ontario. The C. P. Co. have cooperated in every way, and by loaning their plant, meat supplies and equipment, have helped to make the course the success it is.

KINGSTON, Dec. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Seven students of Queen's University are confined to the General Hospital, several of them with broken ribs, while eight or ten others were so badly injured that they needed medical attention, as the result of a clash between the arts and medical students at the new Building his morning, when railing gave way and precipitated the strugglinlg mass of fifty or more students into the basement. The affair was the aftermath of a "rush" by the students last night, and this morning at ten o'clock the students met again, with the result that seven are still in the hospital.

SHOE PRICES CUT TO THE LIMIT

SURPRISES AWAITING SHOPPERS AT THE LEADER SHOE STORE

It hardly seems possible to find any lower prices for footwear than those quoted below by the Leader Shoe Store, No. 291 George street. The figures quoted below must certainly be "price sacrifices," as it could hardly be possible for smart, dressy styles of boots and shoes to be even manufactured for any less money than what the "Leader" offers for at retail. IRISH PRISONERS MOSTLY RELEASED

BELFAST, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press).—By three o'clock this afternoon practically all interned men in Ireland had been liberated.

The train conveying released Sinn Feiners from Ballykinlar camp was received with hostility in County Down, especially at Banbridge, where sympathizers who had assembled to greet them fared badly at the hands of a large crowd of Unionists. It was reported that three of the interned men were wounded by revolver or rifle shots before the train had actually pulled in to Banbridge.

STRUCK HEAD ON FAUCET, DROWNED IN HIS BATHTUB

LONDON, Dec. 9.— (Canadian Press.)—Sir Arthur Pearson is dead as a result of an accident at his home here. While bathing he struck his head against a faucet, was stunned, fell into the water and was drowned.

SANTA CLAUS ON MARKET SQUARE

Between 300 and 400 children gathered in the Market Hall yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to receive a free gift from Santa Claus, and patronize the candy booth, which had all sorts of goodies on hand for a penny each. The crowd of youngsters was so numerous and so enthusiastic that they literally swarmed all over the counter, and had a wonderful time for an hour or two. Santa, in the person of Miss Kitty Sharpe, in regulation costume of long fur coat, elongated whiskers, cap and false face, threw sweetmeats into the crowd, and the children scrambled for them, shouting and laughing.

Last night was a big night at the bazaar, and a bumper crowd is anticipated for to-night, the final evening, when everything will go at bargain prices. There are quantities of pretty and useful Christmas gifts and dolls left, and a jolly evening is anticipated.

MEDICAL MEN HELD A MEETING

A meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Ontario Medical Association took place last evening in the Public Library, with Dr. J. A. Morgan presiding. Dr. McNair, who is in charge of the newly-opened Provincial laboratory here, spoke to the meeting on the work of the laboratory. He explained in detail the work undertaken, described the proper methods of procuring material to be examined, gave the hours for taking in specimens and the length of time required for investigation, also the help afforded by these different reports in locating disease.

A lengthy discussion took place on the work of the laboratory, which is very important, especially at a time like the present, when an epidemic makes it imperative to get as speedy results as possible. A swab may be taken to this office, and in the course of a few hours the result may be determined, whereas a similar swab sent to Toronto may not be reported on for several days or a week.

At the conclusion of Dr. McNair's interesting address, Dr. N. H. Sutton gave a report of the meeting of the Ontario Medical Association held in Toronto on the 7th inst.

MEETING HELD BY INSTITUTE OF ENGINEERS

G. R. LANGLEY GIVES ADDRESS ON AUTOMATIC STATIONS OF RAILWAY AND HYDRO-ELECTRIC TYPE.

EQUIPMENT IS SIMPLE

A meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada was held in the Chamber of Commerce last evening. G. R. Langley, M.E.I.C., switchboard engineer for the Canadian General Electric Company, was the speaker, and described automatic stations, both of the railway and hydro-electric type. He showed conclusively that the equipment for such stations is not complex, but quite simple and rugged.

He further stated that the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway keeps a record of the number of operations in connection with its automatic stations and the number of times that an operator is required to visit the stations due to the equipment not functioning properly was the equivalent of once in six months. In these stations, a casual inspection is made every day and a thorough inspectiin onec a week.

Automatic stations are a distinct advance in electrical equipment, and by utilizing such equipment, small isolated power stations can be developed at a relatively small cost and with very little outlay for attendance, especially when forming part of a large system, as would be the case of several feasible power developments on the Trent Canal water sheds.

It might be interesting to note that the first automatic railway sub-station was put into operation on the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway, and that several others are now in course of construction.

APPROVES SYSTEM OF FARMING IN OUR WEST

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(Canadian Press.) — Commenting on Western Canada's exhibits at the International Live Stock Fair, the Herald says to-day: "Western Canada is encouraging diversified farming in a way that it is certain to bring an increased flow of dollars into the pockets of the agriculturists who at one time devoted their energies exclusively to the raising of grain crops."

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND

BY "SAPPER" (CYRIL McNEILE)

"Granted, laddie, granted. But had I not been of such a kindly and forbearing nature, you wouldn't have had it, either." He looked at Peterson critically. "I'm inclined to think it's a great pity I didn't break your neck, while I was about it." Hugh sighed and drank some coffee. "I see that I shall have to do it some day, and probably Lakington's as well. . . By the way, how is our Henry? I trust his jaw is not unduly inconveniencing him."

Peterson, with his coffee cup in his hand, was staring down the drive.

"Your car is a little early, Captain Drummond," he said at length. "However, perhaps it can wait two or three minutes, while we get matters perfectly clear. I should dislike you not knowing where you stand." He turned round and faced the soldier. "You have deliberately, against my advice, elected to fight me and the interests I represent. So be it. From now on, the gloves are off. You embarked on this course from a spirit of adventure, a the instigation of the girl nex door. She, poor little fool, is concerned over that drunken waster—her father. She asked you to help her—you agreed; and, amazing though it may seem, up to now you have scored a certain measure of success. I admit it, and I admire you for it. I apologise now for having played the fool with you last night: you're the type of man whom one should kill outright—or leave alone."

He set down his coffee cup, and carefully snipped the end off a cigar.

"You are also the type of man who will continue on the path he has started. You are completely in the dark; you have no idea whatever what you are up against." He smiled grimly, and turned abruptly on Hugh. "You fool—you stupid young fool. Do you really imagine that you can beat me?"

The soldier rose and stood in front of him.

"I have a few remarks of my own to make," he answered, "and then we might consider the interview closed. I ask nothing better than the gloves should be off—though with your filthy methods of fighting, anything you touch will get very dirty. As you say, I am completely in the dark as to your plans; but I have a pretty shrewd idea what I'm up against. Men who can employ a thumbscrew on a poor defenceless brute seem to me to be several degrees worse than an aboriginal cannibal, and therefore if I put you down as one of the lowest types of degraded criminal I shall not be very wide of the mark. There's no good you snarling at me, you swine; it does everybody good to hear some home truths—and don't forget it was you who pulled off the gloves."

Drummond lit a cigarette; then his merciless eyes fixed themselves again on Peterson.

"There is only one thing more," he continued. "You have kindly warned me of my danger: let me give you a word of advice in my turn. I'm going to fight you; if I can, I'm going to beat you. Anything that may happen to me is part of the game. But if anything happens to Miss Benton during the course of operations, then, as surely as there is a God above, Peterson, I'll get at you somehow and murder you with my own hands."

For a few moments there was silence, and then with a short laugh Drummond turned away.

"Quite melodramatic," he remarked lightly. "And very bad for the digestion so early in the morning. My regards to your charming daughter, also to him of the broken jaw. Shall we meet again soon?" He paused at the door and looked back.

Peterson was still standing by the table, his face expresionless.

"Very soon indeed, young man," he said quietly. "Very soon indeed."

Hugh stepped out into the warm sunshine and spoke to his chauffeur.

"Take her out into the main road, Jenkins," he said, "and wait for me outside the entrance to the next house. I shan't be long."

Then he strolled through the garden towards the little wicket-gate that led to The Larches. Phyllis! The thought of her was singing in his heart to the exclusion of everything else. Just a few minutes with her; just the touch of her hand, the faint smell of the scent she used—and then back to the game.

He had almost reached the gate, when, with a sudden crashing in the undergrowth, Jem Smith blundered out into the path. His naturally ruddy face was white, and he stared round fearfuly.

"Gawd! sir," he cried, "mind out. 'Ave yer seen it?"

"Seen what, Jem?" asked Drummond.

"That there brute. 'E's escaped; and if 'e meets a stranger——" He left the sentence unfinished, and stood listening. From somewhere behind the house came a deep-throated, snarling roar; then the clang of a padlock shooting home in metal, followed by a series of heavy thuds as if some big animal was hurling itself against the bars of a cage.

"They've got it," muttered Jem, mopping his brow.

TO-DAY'S NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

RATEPAYERS TO HOLD MEETING

WILL DISCUSS LAKEFIELD MUNICIPAL ISSUES — BOARD OF TRADE MEETING.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 9. — The Board of Trade met on Monday evening last in the town hall and several matters of business were discussed. The question of a local subscription or canvass for the Muskoka Free Hospital Emergency Fund was taken up and thoroughly discussed and it was decided, in view of the fact that the year is closing and that people are all taxed to the utmost, to leave the matter till the annual January meeting. The cause had the fullest sympathy of those present and it is expected that Lakefield will do her share. The method of collection will be decided on in January.

It was decided to take the question of electric lights at the station up with the G.T.R. as it is one of the great needs.

Ratepayers Meet.

On December 19th there will be a public meeting of ratepayers to discuss public questions and to allow the citizens to air their views regarding the conduct of affairs by the Council, School Board or Hydro Electric Commission.

Christmas Fair.

The Ladies' Guild of the Presbyterian church held a very successful Christmas Fair in the Memorial Hall on Wednesday afternoon and evening. During the afternoon tea was dispensed and from six to eight o'clock a hot pork and beans supper was served. A concert followed in the evening. The hall was prettily decorated with flags, pennants and greens and the booths were trimmed with Christmas colors and greens. A bewildering array of things useful and ornamental met the eye on entering the hall and tempted one to purchase the dainty things offered.

The home cooking table was in charge of Mrs. Braden, Miss McKibbin, Mrs. W. A. Fairbairn and Miss E. Blewett, who sold pies and cakes, and home-made bread to many ready customers..

The fish pond was in the capable hands of Misses Clara Kidd, Agnes Millar and Miss Nicholls and was a busy spot.

The candy table which was, as usual, extremely popular with both old and young, was served by Mrs. R. H. Knox, Mrs. B. Garbutt, Mrs. A. Miller and Miss Mary Adams.

The fancy work table was in charge of Mrs. B. Hunter, Mrs. H. J. Sutton, Mrs. R. Johnson, Mrs. Hirsch and Miss Fitzgerald.

Miss Morrison, Miss Preston, Miss Adams and Mrs. Blakeley had a table where all kinds of vegetables were sold and did a thriving business.

The Committee.

Mrs. Chas. Thomson, Mrs. James Walton and Mrs. W. J. Charlton were a capable tea committee and had a bevy of pretty young girls, who served, the latter were Misses Mollie Thomson, Elsie Kidd, Doris Burgess, Edna Braden, Mary Campbell, Isabelle Johnson and Cora Freeburn.

During the afternoon music was furnished by the young ladies. The concert, which took place after the pork and beans supper, was in charge of Mrs. E. W. Bailey and was extremely good. Rev. P. L. Jull occupied the chair and made a happy little speech expressing the gratification of the Ladies' Aid for the splendid patronage they had received and also the substantial finan-

MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT NEWS

MILLBROOK, Dec. 9. — The W. M. S. of the Methodist Church held their December meeting at the Parsonage on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The president, Mrs. Tucker, occupied the chair, and Mrs. Stinson read the Scripture lesson from the second chapter of Luke's gospel, this being the Christmas passage chosen for this meeting

The following Herald's responded with items of news from the "Watch Tower", Mrs. Mullen, Mrs. Seabrook, Mrs. B. R. Raper, Misses Nellie and Stella Hetherington and Miss Burnham. The latter read a very interesting letter just received from Miss Elizabeth Elderkin, of Jenshow, China, a W.M.S. missionary under whose supervision the little Chinese girl for whose education the Mission Circle girls are paying each year, was chosen.

Rev. S. T. Tucker led in the opening prayer and also sang a solo, "Drifting", the accompaniment for which was played by his daughter, Miss Gladys Tucker, the number being an unusual one and very much enjoyed.

A synopsis of the Chapter on "The New Day in China" from the study book, "Canada's share in the World Tasks" was given by Mrs. B. R. Raper and Miss Pearl Burnham.

A pleasant surprise to the other members but especially to the recipient of the gift was a cheque for a life membership ($25), for Miss Emma Krieger from a personal friend. It was decided to pack the bale beng sent to the South Oshawa Mission on Friday afternoon and donations were asked to be sent in before that date.

A special offering for the "Rest Fund" for ill, or retired, missionaries, was taken up and liberally responded to. After the benediction refreshments were served by Mrs. Tucker and all remained for a very pleasant social hour. The auxiliay now has a total of nine life members three new ones being added last year.

Canadian Girls.

The Canadian Girls in Training held their usual meeting on Tuesday evening in the S. S. Room of Grace Presbyterian Church, with their leader, Miss Brown, presiding. Rev. G. S Gervan, pastor of the church, gave an interesting talk on the importance and efficiency of the aims of the organisation. The special missionary programme which had been prepared for Tuesday's meeting was postponed till a later date on account of the excitement incident to election night, which would greatly affect the attendance.

After discussion it was decided to ask the 'teen age girls of the Anglican and Methodist Churches to join the C. G. I. T. in forming an interchurch hockey club similar to that already organised by the boys, with a view to a good winter's sport.

After the singing of a hymn, the meeting closed with the benediction.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement is announced of Marian Elizabeth Dixon, of Toronto, only daughter of Mrs. L. Dixon, to J. Arthur Rorke, of Brantford, son of the Rev. S. G. and Mrs. Rorke, of Cavan. The marriage will take place quietly toward the end of this month.

Mr. Went Gray received the sad news on Wednesday of the death of his third sister, Mrs. Dorsey, of Hamilton, following an attack of pneumonia. Mr. Gray attended the funeral, which was held on Friday.

Rev. Dr. E. J. Pratt, of Toronto will preach in the Methodist church, Millbrook, on Sunday, 11th December, in the interests of the educational work of the Church.

The Women's Institute will hold their December meeting on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. J. H. Armstrong, to make the final arrangements for their sale of home-made baking, rummage sale, and afternoon tea, to be held in Mr. W. E. Ball's store on Saturday afternoon, 10th December, beginning about three o'clock.

Miss Dixon, of Toronto, who has been for several weeks a guest of Mrs. Westmacott, returned to the city on Thursday.

Personal Mention.

The local I.O.D.E. have issued invitations for a social evening in connection with the opening of their new rooms in the post office block, on Thursday, December 15th, at 8 p.m.

Mr. Robert Doak, Jr., of the Bank of Toronto staff, is home on sick leave but expects to resume his duties shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Cunliffe of Toronto, their daughter, Dorothy, and baby boy, are guests at the home of Mr. J. J. Clarke

Rev. Mr. Gervan of Grace Presbyterion church, who has been ill with an attack of flu, is now recovered, and will resume his pastoral duties on Sunday

The Sunshine Mission Band of the Methodist church, who have been preparing a Christmas box to be sent to Miss E. C. Hawken, a W.M.S. missionary at Kolokreeka, Alta., under the supervision of their supt., Miss F. P. Byam, finished packing it on Thursday, and it will immediately be expressed to its destination. The box contained personal gifts for Miss Hawken and a variety of other things for the Ruthenian children in the boarding school, who are Miss Hawken's pupils. A Christmas tree is always prepared at the school and the gifts to put on it are provided out of the bores sent at this season by the mission bands, circles, etc., from various parts of Canada, who are interested in the Ruthenian work being so efficiently carried on at Kolokreeka ,under the joint supervision of Miss Hawken, Miss Armstrong and Miss Chisholm.

Mrs. Perrin of Peterboro, was the guest of her sister in law, Mrs. Jas. Dawson, this week.

The Methodist Sunday School intend holding their usual entertainment on Monday, Jan. 2nd, 1922, the programme to be given by the members of the school. Practices are now well under way in preparation for the event.

In the account of the Hutchinson inquest published on Thursday, through a regrettable error on the part of the correspondent, the fact that Mr. A. A. Smith of Millbrook, was the lawyer retained by the family, was not so stated. The item published was unfortunately to the effect that the members of the Hutchinson family did not employ legal counsel to represent their interests in the case.

APSLEY DEBATE ON PROTECTION

REV. W. HALL HANDLED THE SITUATION FOR BOTH SIDES WITH GOOD EFFECT—APSLEY NEWS

APSLEY, December 9. — Anything that savours of politics will draw a crowd these days, and a good sized audience gathered in the Parish Room on Saturday evening to hear the A.Y.P.A. debate "Is Protection Better Than Free-trade for the Dominion of Canada?"

Debaters, however, were scarce, those attending the meeting evidently coming to learn and not to teach, and none could be induced to take the negative side. To save the situation, Rev. W. Hall argued for both sides, and to such good effect that one of the judges declared the honours even. Besides Mr. Hall, who is an experienced debater, Rev. C. Spence, Mr. E. L. Blackwell, Mrs. Spence, and Mrs. Stanley Windsor spoke for the affirmative.

The next meeting of the A.Y.P.A. on Saturday, 10th December, will be of a social and musical nature.

Election Day.

Election Day brought out a good number of voters, 100 out of 144 on the polling list for this station casting their ballot. Of this number, about 50 were women voters, who seem to evince more interest in the result of the election than the men.

G.W.V.A. Branch.

Efforts are being made to organise a branch of the G.W.V.A. here, and a meeting to discuss the matter will be held in the Parish Room on Friday evening next, when it is hoped every returned man in the district will attend.

A musical evening was held in the Christ Church basement by the A.Y.P.A. on Monday last. There was a good attendance, and some lively community singing was indulged in. A paper on Music was also given, which was followed by a Musical Romance—the latter causing much amusement, everyone taking part.

Next wek there will be no meeting on account of the bazaar on Tuesday.

VALERA IS TO OPPOSE IRISH PEACE TREATY

OPINIONS OF SINN FEIN CABINET DIVIDED AND MEETING OF DAIL EIREANN CALLED FOR WEDNESDAY.

EXPECT RATIFICATION

DUBLIN, December 9. Canadian Press. — Eamon de Valera last night issued a statement saying that he could not recommend the peace treaty with Great Brtain to the Dail Eireann or to the country, and that in this attitude he is supported by the "Ministers of Defence and of Home Affairs."

A public meeting of the Dail Eireann has been fixed for Wednesday.

The third session of the Dail Eireann cabinet ended last night a few minutes after 9 o'clock. The opinion of the members of the Cabinet regarding the peace agreement were divided and the question will be left to the decision of the Dail Eireann.

Following is the text of Eamon de Valera's message to the Irish people issued at 11:30 o'clock last night:

"You have seen in the public press the text of the proposed treaty with Great Britain. The terms of this agreement are in violent conflict with the wishes of the majority of the nation as expressed freely at successive elections in the past three years.

"I feel it my duty to inform you immediately that I cannot recommend the acceptance of this treaty, either to the Dail Eireann or to the country. In this attitude I am supported by the Ministers of Home Affairs and Defence.

"A public session of the Dail Eireann is being summoned for Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock.

"I admonish the people in the meantime to maintain the same discipline as heretofore. The members of the cabinet are prepared to carry on business as usual. The army, as such, of course, is not affected by political conditions.

"The greatest trial of our people has come; let us face bravely, without bitterness, and above all, without recriminations. There is a definite constitutional way of resolving our political differences. Let us not depart from it and let the conduct of the aCbinet in this matter be an example to the whole nation."

EXPECT RATIFICATION.

LONDON, December 9. Canadian Press. — It is stated unofficially in Belfast that the Ulster Cabinet intends to concentrate on demands for powers regarding taxation and finance identical with those given to South Ireland.

Dublin despatches report that while large crowds assembled in front of the Mansion House yesterday to cheer the members of the Dail Cabinet arriving for their meeting, Eamon de Valera escaped attention by motoring up two hours in advance of the meeting to receive a deputation from Ulster, consisting of Sinn Fein and Nationalist members of public bodies, who were introduced by John Milroy, a member of the Dail Parliament.

Great eagerness is being expressed not only in Dublin, but in London regarding Mr. De Valera's views on the peace terms, but whatever his position may be regarding them the British Government officials express themselves as confident that the terms will be ratified by the Dail.

Their view is however that the extremist element of the Sinn Fein will register vigorous disapproval of the Irish delegates' decision to abandon the struggle for a Republic and to accept the status fixed by the agreement.

This view seems to be borne out by guarded expressions from several members of the Sinn Fein delegation to London, who stated they saw in the settlement no cause for rejoicing, as the terms fell far short of the Sinn Fein's declared aims and they personally would refuse to countenance any popular demonstrations on the part of the Irish people.

One feature of the announcement of the peace terms has been to ease the tension among the combatants in Belfast, where it was announced last night that the nine o'clock curfew which has been effective for several weeks in the Ballymacarret and York street areas, has been withdrawn. The 11:30 o'clock curfew order for the whole city, however, remains in effect

CABINET TO BE GREAT PROBLEM FOR LIBERALS

REPRESENTATION OF RETURNED SOLDIERS AND LABOR PRESENTS SERIOUS DIFFICULTY TO KING

MAY REDUCE CABINET

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—(By Canadian Press).—Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, the Premier-elect, is not likely to issue any formal statement as to the election result. Speaking to Canadian Press on the matter last evening, the Premier-elect said he had not prepared any, nor did he expect to have one. What the country expected now, Hon. Mr. King, said, was constructive action rather than further speeches or statements.

There had been an abundance of talk and statements during the election campaign, said Hon. Mr. King, and at its close the people by their vote had shown that they were in favor of getting back to strong, representative government, without coaltions or compromise.

Hon. Mr. King held many interviews during the day with prominent men and many more are on the tapis for the coming week. That there will be any developments with in the next few days, is unlikely, for until the resignation of Right Hon. Mr. Meighen and his Government, there will be no offical talk as to the incoming cabinet and that is the big question in the offing at present.

In the meantime, the Liberal leader continues to be showered with congratulations from all sources, necessitating the employment of extra stenographers to acknowledge all the expressions of good-will which are coming in.

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—(By Canadian Press). — Premier Meighen is still silent in regard to his own future movements. It is undertood that the Prime Minister proposes to take his own time in deciding whether to accept the invitation of some of his followers and contest a seat which supported a Conservative candidate in the recent election, or to return to private life. The demand that he continue in public life as leader of the Conservative group in the House of Commons is said to be insistent and strong and a number of seats have been offered to him. The first offer came from Brig-Gen. Clark, member-elect for Burrard.

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—(By Canadian Press).—Considerable interest attaches to the possible representation in the next Cabinet of two particular classes of Canadians, viz; returned soldiers and labor men, and also as to the likelihood of the number of Cabinet portfolios.

HOWARD BAPTIE'S BARN DESTROYED

SMITH FARMER SUFFERS LOSS OF HIS WHOLE CROP

On returning home from Peterborough yesterday evening, Howard Baptie, of lot 26, con. 5, Smith, found that in his absence his barn had been completely destroyed by fire. The whole of Mr. Baptie's crop was burned, but fortunately his cattle, which were not in the building at the time, escaped injury.

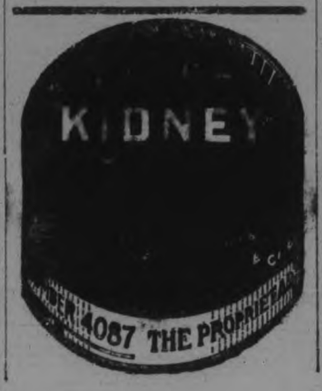
The fire, when noticed by Mr. and Mrs. Baptie, Sr., the only persons in the farm dwelling that afternoon, had gained too fierce a headway for willing neighbors to give other help than to protect the home from catching fire from the myriads of flying sparks.

The destroyed barn was a large new, modern structure, with substantial stables beneath, erected on a cement foundation. A considerable amount of good harness was also burned.

The origin of the fire, which started at about 2 o'clock, is unknown. Mr. Baptie carried but a small amount of insurance, and his loss is very heavy.

GRIFFITH SUPPORTS IRISH PEACE TREATY

DUBLIN, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Prss.)— Arthur Griffith, in a statement issued last night said that he had signed the treaty between Ireland and Great Britain and he believed it would lay the foundation of peace and friendship between the two nations. "What I have signed I will stand by," he emphasized, "in the belief that the conflict of centuries is at an end."



UNIONISTS REQUIRED TO TURN SCALE IN DAIL

DUBLIN, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press.)—It is stated that the votes of the four Unionist members of the Southern Parliament from Dublin University may be required to turn the scale of voting in the Dail in favour of the Treaty.

EXPERT ENDORSEMENT OF PEACE BY DAIL

LONDON, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press.)—Eamon De Valera's action in opposing the treaty between Britain and Ireland was not entirely unexpected, the conclusion having been drawn that his silence indicated that the terms did not meet with his approval. Whether he objects or not, the important fact is that the delegates who signed the treaty are standing to their agreement and it is very probable that they will receive hearty endorsement when the full Dail assembles next Wednesday, when the Imperial Parliament also meets.

CO-ORDINATION NEEDED

The Examiner in attempting to bring about a co-ordination of relief work in Peterboro has no thought of discouraging any of the efforts that are being made by the various orantgzations on behalf of the victims of the present industrial depression. The motives of these societies are most worthy and there is no doubt that the enthusiam and zeal and unwillingness of all are needed. But it does seem that there is considerable working at cross purposes and much unnecessary expenditure of energy, and that there are no safeguards ogainst overlapping nor assurances that the field is being thoroughly covered. There is room for all the workers but the situation is too serious for organied work. The establishment of some form of clearing house to which reports could be made and from which details as to particular cases and what was being done in connection with them could be received, would seem to be logical and desirable. In no other way can relief work be carried on smoothly and effectively and we are sure that if the orginizations could be brought together for a conference a basis for the co-operative handling of this most vital work could be arranged without difficulty.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

Usually when you want to see a moving picture show to the best advantage you go early enough to secure a good seat knowing quite well that a late arrival will find the best locations in the theatre all appropriated. Why this sensible custom should not be followed in the matter of buyng Christmas gifts is a mystery that the merchants each year have tried unsuccessfully to solve. The principle in each case is the same. The shopper who visits the stores early has a great advantage over the tardy purchaser. There is a wider range to select from, the goods are more immaculate, the clerks are not fatigued and they have time in which to pay attention to their customers needs. By shopping early the purchaser, the working staff and the merchants themselves are all benefitted. On the other hand those who leave their gift buying until the last day or two find everywhere the goods have been picked over, and there is difficulty in making a selection and in securing services of the sales force. Christmas is little more than two weeks away, and the Examiner would respectfully suggest that they do as much of their shopping early next week as it is practicable.

THE EAST'S LAST FIGHT

So far as the Federal field is concerned it seems altogether probable that the constituency of East Petrboro has seen its last general election. There is every reason to believe that when re-distribution takes place the East Rding will disappear from the political frays. What will become of the constituescy is not quite clear. One plan that has been mooted is that the City of Peterboro will be made a separate riding while the rural part of West Peterboro and the whole of East Peterboro would be combined to make another. Unless Peterboro makes a phenomenal gain in population in the next couple of year, however, there would not seem to be any chance of the City electing a member on its own account. A more likely possibility is that the two ridings as they exist will be thrown into one. At all events there is not the slightest doubt that East Peterboro's last member unless there should be a by-election or an unexpected crisis in the House that would precipitate another appeal to the county before re-distribution could be affected, will be G. A. Brethren the Progressive standard-bearer who was elected on Tuesday.

A PRESSING PROBLEM

There are many departments of the Government which are important enough to require at their head the very best men that are available, and the country is anxiously waiting to see the selections that will be made by the Premier elect. Among all the departments there are not many that should rank higher under the conditions that exist today than that of Trade and Commerce, and yet under previous administrations for many years back it has never received the attention that its importance should have demanded. And there never was a greater need for a capable energetic wide-awake Minister of Trade and Commerce than exists just now. Our industries and our producers are suffering frbm the lack of markets. The United States by reason of the Fordney bill is closed against our farm products and most of Europe is too impoverished as a result of the war to be in a position to buy from us. We must develop new markets if we are to escape from the pesent slump. Where are we to find them? That is one of the most vital problems that confronts new Government, and it is to be hoped that its seriousness will be recognized and that the task of finding a solution will be entrusted to a live qualified business man who will seek out and open up new avenues of trade for Canada. Trade that will furnish new life blood to our manufacturers and producers. It is no position for the average Parliamentarian. If services have to be recognized let it be in departments where ability on the part of the Minister is not so essential.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO NEWSPAPERS.

Ontario's Lieutenant-Governor Col. Henry Cockshutt, hmself an outstanding success as a business man, paid a sincere tribute to the business newspapers of Canada, when, speaking at a luncreon in connection with the annual meeting of the Canadias Newspapers and Periodicals Association at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, he said:

"I am especially glad to be with you today because I believe that the influence of the business press will be one of the most important factors in re-establishing business conditions in Canada on a safe and sane basis. I make a distinction between the business newspapers and the daily press because of the greater confidence your readers have in them. People read the daily newspapers to keep abreast of the general news of the day. They are interested in what is happening around them and they read to satisfy their desire for excitement or interest or entertainmen. What they read in the daily newspapers today is forgotten tomorrow.

"But this is not the case of the business newspapers. Business men need the service of these papers in the conduct of their everyday business life. I have noted that they usually have a business paper or two in their pocket when the go home Saturday night. I do not say that the read them Sunday; that I do not know, but I do know that they study them carefully, and that a greater number of your readers will come to their business on Monday moning with some clipping from your paper in their pockets. They will say to their associates: "This is the situation, I can show it to you in this clipping." For that reason gentlemen, I say that yours is the greater obligation because you are leaders; because you are helping to build up the business fabric of the country.

"You should be very careful that eveything that appears in your columns bears the imprint of the truth. You must be sure that the news you give is correct beyond question, because there are thousands of your readers ready to set their business course by the infomation and advice you give them.

"I am familiar with a good many of your publications, and I can personally attest to their high character. It is of vital importance that this high character should be maintained and that no effort should be spared to give in your columns the maximum of service.

"In these days when there is disorganization, dissension, disruption in all walks—business, politics and religion—there is a great place for the business paper to bring out more complete information, to assist in making us all realize we must work for a common cause—the upholding of our country.

"The business men of this country need your assistance. They are looking to you for information and advice, and are expecting it. On your shoulders, therefore, perhaps more than on the shoulders of any other single agency, rests the obligation to meet the needs of these trying days, by a sane and sound presentation of the case as it exists at the present time, a pesentation free from private bias, or the desire to serve a popular demand.

"You can, and I believe will, be one of the largest factors in helping to bring about a satisfactory readjustment of the business conditions of this country."

FRENCH AND BRITISH CONFER ON REPARATIONS

LONDON, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press.)— With the Irish agreement reached, Mr. Lloyd George quickly turned his attention yesterday to the question of German reparations. He held a conference last night at Chequers Court, his country estate, with Louis Loucheur, French Minister of Devastated Regions, who arrived in London yesterday morning to take up the question of Germany's payment of war indemnities.

During the day M. Loucheur conferred with Sir Robert Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir John Bredbury, Joint Permanent Secretary of the Treasury, and other Treasury officials. It was understood he explained the French point of view concerning the recent Loucheur-Rathenau agreement signed at Wiesbaden, under which Germany is to make reparations in kind to the French Government over a period of years.

Later the French officials followed the Premier to his country home, where he was expected to spend the night, returning to London this morning, there to remain for several days.

It was said that M. Loucheur expects to confer with Herr Rathenau, former German Minister of Reconstruction, who also is in London.

Miss Lewis, of Fairview, made a good impression on this, her first appearance on a Lakefield stage. She had a sweet, clear voice and her numbers were well chosen.

Miss Lewis was not the only newcomer, as two new stars made their appearance in the persons of Lulu and Douglas Smith. These young people are well known, but this was their first appearance at a concert and judging from the reception they received it will not be their last. The sweet childish voices, singing of that other child born in Bethlehem long ago, brought tears to many eyes. The other performers are all well known, and received a hearty reception.

CROP REPORT

Following is the summary of reports made by the agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

A number of farmers all over the Province have taken advantage of the favourable weather of the past week to do more fall ploughing.

Grain is being marketed rather slowly. Most of the wheat is going around $1.00 a bushel—some a little over, and some a little below.

Hay is selling at from $16.00 to $20.00 in Western Ontario, and ranges from $25.00 to $30.00 in Eastern Ontario and the Northern districts.

The Waterloo representative says that the Dumfries Farmers' Club brought in a car of corn last week which cost them 68 cents a bushel freight. Some oats have also been brought in which have cost from 58 cents to 62 cents a bushel.

The Grey representative has the following to say about wormy apples:

"The apple crop this year was very small. In the apple district the crop was attacked by codling moth to some extent. In the remainder of the county 95 per cent. of the apples were destroyed by this moth. At the fall fairs apple exhibits were very disappointing. An effort must be made to prevent this state of affairs."

The premature mellowing of some of the leading varieties of winter apples is also attracting attention. Peterborough remarks:

"There is a good deal of complaint of apples rotting, and many people say that Spies are in the condition now that they would be ordinarily in midwinter."

Many farmers all over the country are culling their stock, and are selling the poorer animals at almost any price, in order to carry over their better ones in good condition. This in part explains the low figures paid for many exchanges of live stock.

Cattle are selling at from 3 cents to 5 cents a pound in Lennox and Addington.

Carleton reports the shipment of seven carloads of live stock during the previous week, with advanced prices over previous shipments.

Port Arthur says that the demand for fresh cows and springers is good. Some farmers are paying from $75.00 to $100.00 for good ones.

Leeds reports a steady demand for springers, prices ranging from $40.00 to $50.00 for grades. Ordinary pure-breds are selling at from $60.00 to $80.00.

The Napanee Creamery is now making about 3,000 pounds of butter a week.

Bedding for cattle is said to be very scarce in Dundas County. A good deal of baled shavings is being bought.

Renfrew reports a pure-breed sheep owner offering ram lambs for $10.00.

Hogs are going at from $8.00 to $8.75 a cwt. Small pigs are selling in Frontenac at from $6.00 to $10.00 a pair up to eight weeks old.

Approximately ninety tons of fowl have been shipped from Napanee as a result of the Turkey Day campaign. Sales are said to have reached $50,000. One big turkey brought $18.00.

Backache

Backache is the outstanding symptom of kidney disease. Women often make the mistake of attributing other causes and overlook the derangement of the kidneys until serious developments have made it difficult to obtain permanent relief.

This letter points to a treatment which has been so thoroughly tried and proven so effective in the great majority of cases that you cannot afford to overlook it when cause arises for its use.

Mrs. Albert Brunet, R.R. No. 1, Ottawa, Ont., writes:

"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the past two months, having been afflicted with kidney trouble. I used two doctors' medicine previous to this, without any good results. A friend told me to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the second box made me feel a good deal better. I have now used about six or eight boxes, and am completely relieved."

A room in the tower was hastily converted into an examination chamber, Dr. Lorenz recommended some changes in the brace the child was wearing, and the grateful father murmured his thanks.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 115.

Forced to Borrow.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

IT hurt me more than I said to have Mary think so much of painting lessons and "At Home" days when she knew well enough that I could not afford it. It hurt me that she did not realize how steadily we were drifting behind in our domestic book-keeping. The instalments on the new furniture were left unpaid—agents began to call with disconcerting frequency, and Mary was very much upset.

"He—he comes nearly every day," said Mary, "that furniture man. Oh, Peter, what will the neighbors say?"

"I don't care what the neighbors say," I admitted. "My chief thought is how to stop his visits in a wholly agreeable way."

"Can't you send him a check?"

"I'd like to," said I. "But a check's only good when it stands for something. I can't overdraw."

"I—I don't see why it is," said Mary tearfully.

I said nothing. Why waste words? Either Mary could not or would not understand that we were living extravagantly, that the fault was wholly hers, that she could put her shoulder to the wheel and help me economize.

"I—I don't understand financial things," she would insist when I tried to make her understand. "You know I don't, Peter. I never had to think of money at home."

"And that was a mighty bad beginning," I said pointedly.

"I don't think so," said Mary. "I don't see why women have to worry about that side. Their side is home-keeping."

"Homekeeping needs financial oil to keep the machine in order," I said.

I do not think Mary always means to be extravagant. Money slips from her fingers like rain drops from a paddle. She literally does not know where her money goes.

I gave her money for the furniture instalment—money that I saved with the most rigid economy—and it got away from her—she didn't know where.

We had a scene. I interviewed the furniture man and he refused to wait. We faced the disgrace of having our furniture taken away from us.

Mary did nothing but cry, and how in heaven's name can you reason with a crying woman. If you shoot logical facts at her when she's crying—she'll cry harder. If you shoot them when she stops crying—she'll cry again.

Mary uses her tears for a weapon. I know of no better one.

"There is only one way left," I said. "I'll ask father to go on my note at his bank."

I went to Dad and told him the facts, saving Mary as much as I could.

Dad looked grave.

"You're welcome to the money, son," he said, laying his hand on my shoulder, "but aren't you and Mary living pretty fashionably for your salary? You're travelling with a crowd that has more money—you're living up to every penny—aren't you?"

"Living one beyond the last penny," said I bitterly.

"And," said Dad, "notes are bad things. You've got to pay sooner or later, of course. It's merely postponing the day of reckoning."

I spoke of the furniture bill.

"Well, well," said Dad, "that's too bad. Let's clear up that furniture bill once for all. I'll give you a note for $250, Peter, and you'd better pay it in full."

I had only meant to ask Dad for $50—just sufficient to tide over one or two instalments. But two hundred and fifty I figured would put me safely on my feet. I thought hard for a minute and took it. Dad's eyes were very kind.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

THE scientific housekeeper plans to so order her house during the hot weather that the work of cooking is reduced to a minimum. Electricity, gas, the fireless cooker have materially helped in the solution of the summer problem.

But in arranging household affairs so heat and work shall both be minimized, the housewife must not forget that there are certain food elements that must be incorporated in each meal, else the health and happiness of the family will suffer. Food must be selected that will furnish the needed heat and energy to accomplish the daily work of the individuals comprising the family, and supply the material for growth and repair. The work of feeding a family is not a haphazard task. There is accurately defined science in nutrition.

Perhaps there has been more progress in selecting food in the past 10 years than in the 20 previous years. And in no one way has this improvement been more marked than in the choice of the dessert which ends the dinner or luncheon.

The rich pastries and heavy puddings which once were every day factors in the average menu are practically forgotten by the modern cook. Fruits, ices, custards, lighter and more nutritious concoctions have superseded them.

Gelatine proves the foundation of so many delicious and useful desserts it has earned a well defined place in the consideration of the summer cook. It is sometimes overrated as nutriment, but it has many qualities of worth.

One ounce of gelatine will make one quart of jelly. The same rule of procedure in preparation obtains, no matter what kind of gelatine dessert is to be made. The gelatine is soaked in cold water, using half a cup of water to each ounce of gelatine until it is soft, and then dissolved in boiling water. The proportion of boiling water to be used depends upon what other liquid may be used in the flavoring.

Snow pudding is easily made and delicious.

The simplest rule calls for two tablespoonsful of granulated gelatine soaked in two tablespoonfuls of cold water. Dissolve in half a cup of boiling water. Add one cup of sugar and a third of a cup of lemon juice. When the mixture begins to thicken as it is stirred, add the beaten whites of three eggs and beat with an egg beater until stiff enough to drop.

This may be molded in individual molds or in one form. It should be served with a custard sauce, made with a pint of scalded milk poured over the beaten yolks of three eggs and a third of a cup of sugar cooked two or three minutes in a double boiler. Add a pinch of salt to the milk and flavor with vanilla.

Neapolitan pudding is made as follows:

Soak half a box of gelatine in a cup of cold water and dissolve it in a pint of boiling water. Add the juices of a lemon and an orange, half a cup of sugar and pour it over a pint of preserved berries, strawberries or raspberries. When mixed, strain a portion of the clear juice into a separate dish, and when it begins to stiffen add the beaten whites of two eggs and beat as you would the snow pudding. Pour this over the other mixture, which should be allowed to harden in a mold. Whipped cream may be served, but is not essential.

Those who like the flavor of bananas should try banana cantaloupe.

Soak two tablespoonsful of gelatine in a quarter of a cup of cold water, and dissolve it in a cup of scalded cream. Add one cup of sugar, whites of three eggs, pulp of six bananas and a quarter-cup of lemon juice. As it thickens fold in a cup of whipped cream. Line a mold with lady fingers, add the mixture, chill and serve with whipped cream garnished with cherries.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have been going with a fellow over a year now. He has never told me he loved me, but has written to me telling me how much he cares, and he kisses me when he comes in and goes out.

But I have always distrusted him. I have thought he was not as true as he should be, and just lately I found out I was right. He goes to see another girl sometimes once a week. For two weeks he never went at all. When I told him I found out, he was awfully mad. He said he would do as he liked; it was time enough for me to tell him what to do when we were married. And then he wouldn't even be bossed by his wife. But I love him, and he says I should not distrust him so. If I loved him I wouldn't.

Do you think he is true? Would you believe in him? I think he loves me dearly—he is so good sometimes. Do you think he would go to see this girl knowing how much it hurts me? Please let me know soon.

SORROW.

WELL, little Sorrow, you have chosen your name with discretion. You will have nothing but sorrow if you stick to this man who has caused you so many tears. He is a selfish, cold-blooded brute, and he does not love you.

No man who loves a girl will treat her as you say this man treats you. Get rid of him—get rid of him now.

It won't be half so hard as you think. The world is full of nice, decent chaps who are just hungry for some nice girl to love them deeply and sincerely. Don't waste your love on such a worthless object.

Don't try to make him over, you might as well attempt to fashion a fine cloak for Sunday wear out of a worn, old, potato sack. Let the man go to some one who will make him suffer as he makes you suffer now.

And some day, when you are married to the right man, at the right time, you will want to sing a song of thanksgiving every time you think what a narrow escape you had.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

CHORUS GIRL TYPE IS CHANGING

FACE AND FIGURE GIVING WAY TO CLEVERNESS

By ELEANOR AMES

THERE are ever-changing styles in everything, clothes, jewels, motor cars, Chorus Girls. Especially in Chorus Girls. There is more difference between the Chorus Girl of today and her sister of ten years ago than there is between motor cars representing models of the same periods.

The old style Chorus Girl is nearly extinct. Her too golden hair, excessively pink cheeks, duskily shadowed eyes, pronounced curves, colorful gowns, gorgeous and flamboyant hats and scintillating jewels, exist only in memory.

In her place is a girl who might be just out of school, as she often is, or enjoying her first year in society, or earning her living in some of the arts or professions so open to well educated women.

The old style Chorus Girl was unmistakable. The new style Chorus Girl is natural. The old style girl emphasized her shape. The new girl cultivates her head.

Every little while some theatrical wiseacre, not actively in business, declares the girl has had her day, and must retire from the stage, until there is another change in the drama which will make her necessary. And, to refute such statement, some very busy manager puts on a show made up of girls. And such girls! Beautiful, clever, witty, wise, graceful, and NICE. For the Chorus Girl of today is more often NICE in the accepted meaning of the term than not.

She is just a sweet, sensible sort of girl, who has a lovely face and an attractive figure, who can dance and sing and wear clothes, and chooses the stage as the best place to have her talents appreciated. Frequently she has had a high school education. Often she has ambitions. She may want to be a leading lady, or a prima donna, and she knows that there are unexpected chances, and the best policy is to be ready to nab one, if it comes her way.

Some of the Chorus Girls who look the most stunning from the house go home after the performance and take care of the baby, and do the mending for Friend Husband.

The fact is that brains play a very important part in the career of the new type of girl. It is an everyday remark that some girl, who is asking for a chance, is "pretty enough and good figure, but she has no brains."

Speak her name as lightly as you please, and allot her a place in the froth of life, but the fact remains, when you know facts, that the Chorus Girl, in the modern play which needs her talents, has to have a lot of ability—has to be an all-round, clever, active and intelligent young person.

An inventory of one of the big Broadway successes this past season proved that one-third of the chorus girls were studying for some profession. One was taking a course in architecture. Another was studying dress designing. Several were working hard to cultivate their voices, and had dreams of going abroad to try for grand opera. Two were making a specialty of interior decorating, and one had several commissions for fitting up small apartments in an apartment hotel. Half of them were studying languages, French, German, Spanish and Italian.

The old style girl was conspicuous. The new type of girl is dignified and reserved and natural and spontaneous.

Neither one is perfect, as there is no perfection in this world, but if, when the old order changes, as change it will, it is always as much for the better as in the style of Chorus Girls, the world will not deteriorate.

Great Novels in a Nutshell

GEORGE ELIOT'S
"THE MILL ON THE FLOSS"

CONDENSED BY AUGUSTA SHELBY

CLOSE to the town of St. Oggs, where the Ripple flows into the Floss, stands Doricote Mill. On the green banks, by the never resting wheel, Maggie Tulliver loved to wait for Brother Tom, her hero and "big sweetheart."

Maggie was very lonesome when Tom went away to school, and she often went to visit him. There she met Philip Wakem, puny, white-faced and hunch-backed, and learned to like him. She did not love him, how could she, when she did not know what love was? But Philip loved Maggie with all his heart.

It had taken all their father's ready money to send Tom to this good school, and soon he became involved in a law suit that threatened to take even the mill away. Pivart, who had lands higher up the river, was taking water to irrigate them, and Mr. Tulliver went to law to stop him. Philip's father was Mr. Pivart's lawyer. Consequently, out of their fathers' quarrels there developed a keen antagonism between Tom and Philip.

It made Maggie doubly sad when her father commanded her not to see Philip again, or to speak to him when she went to tell Tom that he must leave school—for leave school Tom must. The blow had fallen on their father. The law suit had been decided against him, and he had lost Doricote Mill, the land and everything. Nothing was left.

That night, when Tom and Maggie got home, they found the sheriff in possession of the house, and there was a debt against my father, besides, for $3,750. Tom bravely took the debt upon himself, and vowed to earn the money to clear his father's name. Against his will, Mr. Tulliver remained as Mr. Wakem's manager at the mill.

In the long months that followed Maggie sometimes met Philip on her walks through the lovely fields. He asked Maggie to marry him; she refused, and they parted, but Maggie had learned that she really loved Philip—and she told him so. It was only their father's quarrel that kept them from happiness.

In a few years Tom had paid his father's debt, but that was only the silver lining that lightened the black cloud that hung over the family. One day Mr. Tulliver met Mr. Wakem and they came to blows. Mr. Tulliver threw his rival from his horse, but the excitement ruptured his heart, and, in a few hours, he was dead.

Five years passed in Maggie's troubled life. She had grown into a beautiful girl. Philip still loved her, but worshipped from a distance, and then Stephen Guest came upon the scene. Guest was one of Philip's young employers, who now owned Doricote Mill, and was also an engaged man, but he fell in love with Maggie.

Maggie learned to love young Guest, but she would not marry him. She felt that his engagement kept them apart, equally with her promise to Philip. And yet Maggie and Stephen often met.

One day they went rowing on the Floss, and Stephen let the boat drift so far below the mill that they could not get home that night. He pleaded his love so ardently that Maggie listened, and, together they took ship to Scotland, to be married. But, when dawn came, Maggie declared she could never marry Stephen, and, despite his heart-broken pleadings, she left him, and returned to her own home.

It was a sad home coming. Tom would not let her return to his house, and so Maggie, under the blackest cloud a woman can know, took up her residence in a boarding house in the town. Though all the world turned against Maggie, her mother and Philip still remained true to their love for her. A few months of bitter suffering and penitence came to Maggie, and then the end of it all.

One night, in her bedroom, while reading a letter from Philip, she heard the sound of rushing waters. The Floss had broken its banks. An empty rowboat, crashing against the shutters, gave Maggie her chance of escape.

Climbing into the boat she pulled across the waste of waters to try and rescue her mother and her brother Tom. Her mother had gone away for the night, and so was safe, but Maggie got Tom into the boat. They were together once more.

Half-way to safety a vast mass of wreckage, that spanned the stream, closed in upon them and crushed their boat. In each other's arms, forgiven and forgiving, Maggie and Tom disappeared under the yellow flood.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why You Rest the Best Sleeping on the Right Side

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

SLEEP has through the ages been one of the greatest mysteries of life. It has been sought by the worried, wooed by the wicked, studied by the scientists, encouraged by poisons, hypnotism and unnatural practices, and investigated by everybody.

Almost all investigators are agreed that rhythmic movements of the circulation and respiration are essential to sound sleep. Disturbed, restless slumber is indicated, if not often caused, by irregular breathing, palpitation and spasmodic muscular movements. Of the many physical misdemeanors liable to unsettle a sound sleeper, none is more frequent than turning on the "wrong side" or resting on the back. Children, until they are 12 or 14, are able with comfort to sleep on either side, but from 70 to 80 per cent. of their elders sleep best on their right sides.

Why is this so? How is it you are more refreshed and contented after seven or eight hours of oblivion on your right side, than an equal period of restlessness on your back or your left side? The answer is a complex one, and includes hypotheses as well as facts.

Except in some 10 or more per cent. of individuals, sleeping on the right side means rest on the divan-like, soft, billowy pad of muscles, always thicker on that side in right-handed people than on the back or left side. Sleep on the right side removes pressure on the diaphragm of nature's true liver pad; it obviates all interference with the stomach sadly filled with late hour rarebits from the gilded lobster palaces of the pale White Way, and of not the least moment is the remoteness of any obfuscation of the heart action—a not uncommon sense of discomfort to many persons when lying on the left side.

What a Snore Is.

A snore is nothing more nor less than a form of stertor or noisy breathing. As the rhythmical inspiration and expiration take place through the open mouth, snoring may be prevented by gluing a bit of sticking plaster or fly paper over the closed lips.

In snoring, the moving waves of air impinge upon the soft palate and the little finger of flesh called the uvula, connected with the roof of the mouth and cause the muscles to vibrate. This rate of tremulo vibration is sufficient to cause a snore.

To lie on the back is more or less conducive to snoring. The reason is not far to seek. When the body is relaxed and symmetrically placed, the soft tissues of the cheeks become, if possible, even more flabby than when you sleep on the side. The part played by the bellows-like cheeks in causing snores has been generally overlooked. To put it mildly and modestly, I believe I am the first observer to call attention to the important role taken by the cheeks in snoring.

Any one who has witnessed as many instances of stentorous breathing, and the accompanying blowing in and out of the paralyzed cheek in cases of apoplexy as I have, cannot but conclude that snores are caused as much by the relaxed cheek muscles as by other factors. True enough, any sort of nasal obstruction such as adenoids, thickened bones and membranes, overinfected tonsils and such abnormalities, all tend to incite the bugle calls of the wee sma' hours. But the intrinsic cause of the snore is, nevertheless, a complete relaxation of the cheeks, glottis, uvula and soft palate.

How to Cure Snoring.

Now, though a man may be immunized against most diseases, by the proper methods of health building, and an insomniac may by physical exercises be made to sleep, what can be done to prevent snoring? Well, much may be done. The solution can be read from the explanation of its cause. If lack of muscular tone has as much to do with snoring as other causes, such as resting upon the back, a cure may be effected by the simple procedure of neutralizing the one cause and removing the other. Thus by certain muscular gymnastics, such as blowing exercises, slapping the cheeks, rolling large marbles or licorice candies in the mouth, gargling and vocal training, the soft parts of the mouth become greatly raised in tonicity. Thus there is little chance for snoring, even though the mouth remains open.

What Back Sleeping Is.

Too much cannot be said in praise of breathing movements or physical culture gymnastics that cause deep respirations. Complete oxidation of the blood means proper tension in the muscles. Lots of breathing space in the nose and throat preclude the gaping-jaw habit. Close your mouth and lengthen your life, as well as save your neighbor's peace of mind.

Sleep is a defensive mechanism for the conservation of bodily resources. Reciprocally, automatically and vicariously, the poisons that accumulate in the tissues during waking hours produce in the living cells certain antagonistic juices or anti-fatigue toxins which lull to repose while destroying, like Mrs. Shelley's Frankenstein, the very things that created them.

As for back sleeping, it is not much better than backbiting, and backsliding. Strengthening the good right arm, the mighty biceps, the hamstrings, and the Olympic right side will soon rid your relatively sensitive back from being the body's goat. If it does not, smear a bit of mustard on it a few nights, and I'll wager a can of sardines you will have no more sleeping on your back.

Some doctors recommend that some hard substance be fastened at the small of the back—for instance, say a towel with a large knot tied so as to be in the middle of the back when one turns over, or some similar device will have a tendency to prevent sleeping on the back. There is a story of a young man who fastened his good mother's biscuit cutter to his back, by means of a towel placed around his waist, and no further reports were received from him.

The Empty Boat—By VERNON MERRY

IN the very long ago, when Evil still appeared upon the earth in person, a rich man went up to his treasury and, as he closed the door, something knocked, not on the door, but upon his heart. A voice spoke: "Have you been good to the poor; have you fed the hungry? Or are you content with your life and want more gold?"

The rich man had no time to answer, for there came another knock, this time on the door. He shouted, "Come in," and there stood a poor neighbor, who had come to him as a last and hopeless resort. All of the poor man's family were starving and he pleaded with the rich man to lend him four quarts of corn. The rich man refused to lend, but offered to give him eight quarts if he would promise to spend three nights beside his grave, when he was dead. The poor man did not like this, but he had to have the corn, so he promised.

The very next day the rich man died and was buried. The poor man found it hard for him to go and spend the night beside the rich man's grave, but he had promised and so he went. He spent that night without anything happening, and the second night passed in the same quiet way.

The third night, as he was sitting there by the rich man's grave, a soldier came into the graveyard. He frightened the poor man at first, but, when he had told the soldier why he was watching there, the soldier agreed to keep him company. Everything passed safely until the church clock boomed the stroke of twelve, and then there came a rushing through the grass.

The poor man and the soldier looked up and there stood the Evil One himself. "Get off that grave," he ordered, "I have come for my friend the hard-hearted rich man."

But the comrades would not rise. Whereupon the Evil One offered them a purse of gold, but they refused. At last the soldier agreed to get up if he was given enough gold to fill his boot. The Evil One agreed, but, not having enough gold with him, went away to get it. Then the soldier cut off the sole of his boot and hung the boot on a grave with the foot in the grass.

When the Evil One came back he poured the gold into the boot, but it did not fill it; he had to go back for more. But the more he put in the less full seemed that boot—all the gold fell through into the grass. At last the Evil One grew tired and threatened them with bodily injury, but, just as he was about to strike, the first faint rays of dawn appeared in the sky and he was forced to fly back whence he came.

Whereupon the poor man and the soldier took the gold from out the grass and divided it into two equal parts. Half they gave to the poor. Upon the remainder they lived together in happiness all the rest of their lives.

Canada's Position Reviewed; Corrective Policy Outlined at Bank of Montreal Annual

Sir Vincent Meredith, the President, Deals with the Manner in Which Canada Has Withstood Shock of Deflation and Readjustment—Railway Problem Must Have Attention—Necessity of Vigorous Policy of Immigration Strongly Urged.

Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, the General Manager, in Report to Shareholders, Pointed Out That Even After a Difficult Year the Position of the Bank Was Stronger Than Ever—Canada Must Turn Experience of the Past to the Advantage of the Future.

The annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal attracted very special attention, owing to the exceptional conditions Canada is passing through, as a result of the deflation that is occuring throughout the world. The meeting of the Bank of Montreal is the first of the larger banks to be held and Sir Vincent Meredith, the President, and Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, the General Manager dealt not only with conditiones that had actually arisen within the country, but the important influences of developments in outside centres. Special emphasis was also laid on the course that Canada should follow to work out of some of the difficulties that now beset the country.

Referring to the principal problems of the Dominion and how to deal with them, Sir Vincent pointed out that in his opinion they were represented by the necessity of dealing with the railway situation and by establishing an aggressive policy of immigration. Touching on the railway situation, Sir Vincent made it clear that it had been his consistent practice to avoid anything savoring of politics and if he did allude to the railway question it was only because it related inimately to public finances, to taxation and so to the daily business of the country which was already bearing heavy imposts to sustain the public credit.

Conditions in Canada

In dealing with conditions in Canada and the manner in which many of the difficulties might be overcome, Sir Vincent said:—

"In the most propitious circumstances of trade, prophecy is rash, and in the complicated conditions that now beset us, I will refrain from the risk of forecast. What we do know is that Canada has withstood the shock of deflation and readjustment in a manner which has afforded gratification to our own people and has caused much favorable comment abroad, but a return to pre-war standards cannot be expected at once and probably not for a considerable time to come.

"The position is still full of difficulties and the way to sustained improvement is not yet clear. While there has been a revival in some lines of business, in others deflation has not yet run its course and stocks are being carried which possibly may have to be written down to lower replacement values.

"The revival now being experienced, possibly based upon a demand in consequence of depleted stocks, has given a temporary spurt to buying. In any event, I look for a period of rises and falls as demand exceeds supply or otherwise.

"A return to normality will be hastened if and when labor realize that war deflation wages cannot be continued and that the changed conditions necessitate more efficiency and greater production if we are to complete successfully in the world's markets. Increased production will without doubt be followed by a lowering of prices, larger consumption and fuller employment.'

Washington Conference

In conclusion, Sir Vincent expressed the opinion that there was reason to expect very beneficial results from the Washingtoa conference on the limitation of armaments. In summing up the results of the conference, Sir Vincent said:—

"Though the utmost hopes may not be fulfilled geat gain will come from the reduction of expenditure on armaments and the lessened taxation thereby possible. In no small measure the restoration of normal trade depends upon the outcome of the conference. A happy issue will give that confidence which creates abridging the period of liquidation and reconstruction."

General Manager's Address.

Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor the General Manager, in his address to the shareholders, referred more particularly to the affairs of the Bank and the manner in which the various developments of the year had been met.

Sir Frederick also touched interestingly on the relations between the United States and Canada and the large discount at which the Canadian dollar was still quoted. In this connection, Sir Frederick sad:

"The premium on New York funds is still with us with little prospect of departure in the near future. The rate is 8⅞ p.c. today, as compared with 15 p.c. on the 5th December 1920. The fact that Canadians have become accustomed to the penalty of dong business abroad with our inferior domestic dollar does not alter the fact that Canada is at a very serious disadvantage indeed in its monetary dealings with the United States of America.

"I shall not go into the matter, as it has been dealt with in my previous reports, except to say that the premium on New York funds will not disappear until we buy many millions less of goods and materials abroad or increase our exports.

"The premium would have been higher had it not been that Canada as stated elsewhere, has borrowed in the United States this year $144,000,000, which sum, as far as exchasge is concerned, must be added to our exports or deducted from our imports.

"Every Canadian should understated, however, that this is merely alleviation, not cure. Economically it would be far better that we should borrow within our borders. By borrowing abroad we add steadily to the already great sum of interest on our foreign obligations annually sent out of the country, the capital amount aggreating nearly $3,500,000,000. Canada still maintains its excellent credit position in the New York market, and no difficulty has been experienced in floating such loans as have been offered."

Reviewing the general conditions in the country, Sir Frederick pointed out the necessity of paying the penalty of having mortgaged our future in the building of superfluous railways and other extravagances. Summing up the situation in this regard, Sir Frederick said in part:—

"As regards the outlook in Canada and the prospect as affecting Canadian business generally, I have no desire to join the list of oracles who predict the date when normal conditions will be restored. For one thing, values are out of joint. Our main dependence is on our natural resources, and at present the purchasing power of the products thereof is at the lowest level reached for several years past. On the other hand, we still have with us high prices in other directions, while retail prices generally are conspicuously out of line.

"The cause of this anomaly is still mainly the cost of labor. Unemployment is the natural corrective though painful and regretted by everyone.

'Apart from this, I cannot see how we can count upon improved conditions concurrently with trade revival in the United Statest. Conditions are similar in many respects as everyone knows, but our liabilities and our mistakes are our very own. Aside from the cost of the war, we must pay the penalty of having mortgaged our future in the building of superfluous railways and in other extravagances.

"It is all very well to talk about our vast resources, but we as a people have pledged those resources and wasted our substance to an extent only now being realized. Evidence of this is, first, in the great sum of nearly two hundred million dollars annually sent abroad to meet the interest on your debts; and second, that our dollar is at a serious discount in the United States, with which country we trade so heavily.

"The Canadian resources that remain intact are the manhood of the Dominion and the industry and ambition of our citizens. In these respects Canada is still rich, and having learned our lesson from that inexorable teacher, stern experience, we shall emerge from our difficulties in time a wiser nation and then proceed to the full development of a great inheritance on a sound and sure basis, turning the experience of the past to the advantage of the future."

Toronto, Ont.—"As a tonic and builder I can highly recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to tired and run-down women. I am the mother of eight children and have frequently had need of such a tonic but did not know what to take until my sister gave me some of the 'Favorite Prescription,' which she herself had found to be good. It was exactly the tonic my system required and one bottle did wonders for me, so I take pleasure in telling others, hoping that they will give the 'Prescription' a trial and be benefited just as I have been."—Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, 261 Ontario St.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid somach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they an go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretions or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia.

Theer is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquor, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

MAN BOUND TO CHAIR LEFT TO DIE BY THIEF

Drags Himself to Stoop, But Object in Dark Frightens Passers-By—Wife Rescues Him.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—When Otto Schmidt, proprietor of a stationery store at 944 Third Avenue entered his shop after midnight his foot sank into a hole cut in the floor just inside the dor and a voice in the dark cried: "Throw up your hands."

The burglar, whom he had surprised at work, then bound Schmidt tightly to a chair and robbed the cash register of $35.

Schmidt pleaded with the robbers not to leave him bound as he would freeze to death before daylight The thief promised to send the first person he met on the street back to the store. Two hours after his departure, Schmidt wormed the chair outside of the door to the stoop. No one would answer his cries for help.

Men and women hurrying homeward in the dark heard feeble cries as they passed the store, but most of them shivered and hurried onward. One man, more courageous, approached. When he saw a man sitting bot upright and bound in a chair on the stoop, exposed to the full blast of the cold wind, he cast a frightened look at the queer sight, and took to his heels.

Then a woman rushed up. She loosed the rope and led the man away. She was Frieda Schmidt, 162 East Fifty-sixth street, wife of Otto, who worried, began a search for him. Schmidt was almost dead from cold and the bleeding from an artery in his left leg, which had been punctured when his foot slipped through the hole in the floor.

CLUB STOPS "HAREM PARTIES."

Moral Delinquency of Chicago's Gilded Youth Disclosed.

CHICAGO, December 8. — That women, very prominent in society, had carried liquor into the Casino Club, exclusive meeting place of the "Gold Coast" Society, in violation of State and Federal laws, was the substance of reports made to-day by Federal investigations.

This club, whose roster carries the names of men and women known all over the country and in European capitals, is endeavouring to purge itself of "harem parties" and similar debauchery at which liquor flows freely. Three members have been expelled for staging these affairs.

In connection with the disclosures in the Casino Club, an officer of Lake Forest to-day told Prohibition directors of the mad doings of sons and daughters of the very wealthy North Shore residents.

He related in particular, a beach party last summer in which a large number of bathers disported themselves in the lake minus bathing suits. This affair created a great sensation in staid Lake Forest, and was hushed up with difficulty.

The same official said some of the members of this bathing party spent their spare time doing settlement work in the Chicago slums.

ADVERSITY'S SCHOOL.

Mrs. A. F. Calder.

On life's toilsome, travelworn, rugged highway,
Weather beaten and hoary, with age grim and grey,
It stands amid shadows, dark, gloomy and drear,
And chill, uninviting, its portals appear.

Where, befitting full well that desolate place,
A tutor presides, of most forbidding face,
Who bears rule despotic, with iron-rod sway,
Enforcing instructions which all must obey.

Yet despite homely visage, we own the while
That his dark frown oft covers, a kindly smile,
Though seeming severe, filling but duty's part,
And beats in that rude form, soft, tender heart.

From his teaching we gain, e'en if dearly bought,
A knowledge not elsewhere in this wide-world taught,
Forsooth, by his clear, illum'ing lore,
We may pause, and well ponder, life's problems o'er.

Our eyes from the thick scales of worldliness free,
With clear, cloudless vision our frailities we see,
Doubtless find, to our faults and follies we owe
Those chastenings, the Master is wont to bestow.

This truth he inculcates that mortals below,
A harvest must reap, the self-same as they sow;
Who sows tares, tares will reap, and to his cost find
The mills of the gods soon beginning to grind.

And though slow they may grind as is meet and just,
They will grind out the grist to powdery dust;
Ah, hazardous, hard and thorny's the way,
They must tread, who wander from virtue astray.

Who ere at that school, e'en a brief term attend,
Will learn without fail, to know his true friends;
And find what he foolishly deemed sterling gold
Was but base alloy of light, valueless mould.

If the final exams. we with honors would pass,
And win high promotion to the great ransomed class,
We must suffer Adversity's rigorous rule,
Till fitted to enter the heavenly school.

DON'T NEGLECT BRONCHITIS

The principal symptom of bronchitis is a cough which is dry, harsh and hacking, accompanied with rapid wheezing, and a feeling of tightness through the chest.

There is a raising of phlegm, especially in the morning after rising from bed. This phelg.n is at first light color, but as the trouble progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color and is sometimes streaked with blodd.

In

you will find a remedy that will stimulate the weakened bronchial organs, subdue the inflammation, soothe the irritated parts, loosen the phlegm and mucous, and help nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulation.

Mr. John H. Root, 40 Maple Ave., Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with bronchitis and I had a very bad cough. I had it so long I was beginning to get afraid of other developments. I tried all kinds of cough remedies without relief. I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Wood's Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle, and it convinced me to believe that I had at last gotten the right medicine. I used several bottles and am practically well. I have recommended it to others since, and good results followed."

ST. PIERRE, MIQUELON, RUM-RUNNING SOURCE

French Islands Off Newfoundland Said to be Smuggling Base.

HALIFAX, N.S. Dec. 9.—St. Pierre annd Miquelon, the French islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, ten miles off the coast of Newfoundland, have figured rather frequently in press despatches of late, as the alleged source of the liquor supply of smugglers who have been operating during the past summer on the coasts of the Maritime provinces and New England. These two islands the remnant of the once extensive dominions of France in the new world, have an area of 91 square miles. They are rough and hilly with extensive out-croppings of barren rock, and the population of something over 4,000 is mainly centered in the town of St. Pierre on the smaller island. St. Pierre has a good harbour and for generations has been the headquarters of the Atlantic Fisheries of France. Twenty years ago 500 sail of vessels, including those from old France, Fitted out for fisheries at St. Pierre, and by 1912 the fleet had increased to 800 sail, but since then theh big local fleet of sailing vessels, schooners brigs, brigantines and barques, has dwindled, and most of the inhabitants use motor boats in the fishing. The Metropolitan fleet from France has also been reduced, and the old sailing vessels have been largely replaced by steam trawlers.

St. Pierre has had a stormy history. Occupied by the French in 1660; was captured by the British in 1702 and held by them until 1763, when it was restored to France as a fishing station. In 1778 it was again destroyed by the British, and in 1783 again restored to France. Ten years later and it was again captured and depopulated by the British, and in 1802 it was recovered by the French, only to be recaptured by the British in the following year. In 1814 it was recovered by France, and since then has been a French possession.

For years St. Pierre has been a resort for fishing vessels of New England, Nova Scotia, Spain and Portugal. In the old days most American and Canadian deep sea fishermen, after filling up with fish on the banks, called in St. Pierre to secure a supply of liquor for a carousal on the passage home. Not a few vessels leaving St. Pierre with full fares and full crews, failed to reach their home ports.

As a source of supply for liquor smugglers, St. Pierre has long worried officers of Canada and the Atlantic seaboard of the United States. All types of craft from steam yacht to fishing lugger have been engaged in smuggling operations from St. Pierre, though the natives have confined their enterprise to supplying the booze. Some years ago the French authoritoes by drastic measures had managed to restrict the supply of liquors available for smuggling to Canada and the United States, new methods of evading the stringent export regulations of the colony have been discovered and the activities of smugglers have caused revenue officers in neighboring countries much loss of sleep.

Since the war the Government of France has formulated some rather grandiose projects for the development of its fisheries, and has constructed a huge cold storage plant at St. Pierre and established a refrigerator steamship service with the colony. A few weeks ago the French Government sent out a "governor", a functionary of importance in the French colonial system, to take the place of the 'administrator' who has been head of the colony since 1896. This change in the political establishment is regarded as significant as an indication of the French Government's new interest in the development of the fisheries and of its determination to make the most of the strategic position of the islands, which are in proximity to Banquerean and St. Pierre banks, and within forty-eight hours sail of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland.

Apart from the traditional and sentimental importance which attaches to the office of governor, such functionary brings new dignity and prestige to the islands and introduces a new element in their relations to the governments of Canada and Newfoundland.

AN INSIDE BATH MAKES YOU LOOK AND FEEL FRESH

Says a glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast keeps illness away.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, declaring this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the alimentary canal before eating more food.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others have bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to show the value of inside bathing.

WAS BADLY SHOCKED BY HYDRO AT PORT HOPE

Sudden Return of Power Wednesday, Responsible For Near Electrocution.

PORT HOPE, Dec. 8.— William Mercer narrowly escaped electrocution at the Hydro sub-station here Wednesday. The power had been off all morning and Mercer took advantage of that fact to do some cleaning up to some of the machines. Shortly after twelve o'clock the power was turned on and Mercer received a very severe electric shock. His feet, legs, right shoulder and arm are badly burned and in addition he received a severe shaking up in the fall. He managed to crawl along the floor to the door and his cries for help were heard by Mr. James Sinnott, who summoned a doctor. The injured man has no recollection of just how the accident occurred.

TRAPPING IN NORTH NOW IN FULL SWING

THE PAS, Man., Dec. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Trapping, the big business of the north country for the next few months, is in full swing and many trappers are well established on their trap lines again. Muskrat trapping has been going along briskly and it is expected that 100,000 pelts will be marketed in The Pas. Reports state that the catch is good everywhere. Local traders and buyers have been paying over a $1 for muskrat skins, while one buyer figures that a muskrat is worth more than a bushel of wheat and worth about as much as four bushels of oats.

Recently a number of fur buyers, with a sum of $30,000 in cash between them, left here for the north to buy furs along the Hudson Bay Railway. The train stops at each trading post station for only a few minutes and in this brief period the fur buyers must rush upon the trader or trapper if any are about to make an offer for their furs. This manner of trading contains the element of chance as time prohibits close examination of the pelts, and the buyers can only hastily scan them and make their offer. This method of buying has been in vogue for many years. Ione buyers have been known to return here with as high as $40,000 worth of pelts.

35,000,000 PEOPLE DIE OF STARVATION

This is Gorky's Prediction in Russia.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press).—Maxim Gorky, Russian novelist and formerly head of the Russian Relief Commission, told The Associated Press correspondent when he passed through this city on his way to Berlin that he believed the deaths from starvation in Russia would aggregate 35,000,000.

He heartily praised the support which the American people were giving to the starving people of Russia but said the only way out of the serious situation would be through the establishment of international relief founded on the American plan, broad, efficient, complete and well-controlled.

He doubted, however, whether the necesary relief would arrive in time to avert disaster.

He expressed the opinion that Mr. Hoover's relief was somewhat imperfect and lacked organization because sufficient safeguards were not taken to prevent the stealing of the food by gangs or Soviet officials, from the time the commodities rived in Petrograd until they are consumed.

M. Gorky and Mr. Hoover had placed too much confidence in the Soviet.

He deplored the passivity of France and excused Germany for not coming to the support of Russia. Sweden's contribution to the famine he thought was but a drop in the ocean.

On the question of Russian interior politics, Gorky said "unrest is as common as dinner is here, but nobody takes any notice. Quite recently there was a fierce riot in Petrograd which was only quelled after much bloodshed."

BOGUS DRY AGENTS STEAL LOAD OF WINE

Six Men "Arrest" Driver, but Let Him 'Phone, Then they Make Off With Truck

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Six men impersonating Federal prohibition agents yesterday held up a truck of the Continental Distributing Company, 110 Bowery, loaded with eighty-one cases of wine and while the driver was telephoning to the Company the men made off wth the truck and its contents. No trace of them had been found late last night.

The hold-up took place n West Sixty-first Street, at a point not disclosed by the Federal officials. The men flashed shields and drew their pistols. "We will just take you and this load of wine to the Federal Court," said the leader.

The driver asked permission to telephone his employers. This was willingly granted. When he returned the truck and wine had disappeared.

Leo. A. Williams, a negro, was arrested by a prohibition agent in Sixth Avenue, near Twenty-seventh Street, after he refused to give any information concerning a barrel of wine on his truck. When the negro was taken to prohibition headquarters, just around the corner, R. Merrick, Assistant Chief Prohibition Agent, found that the man's mother had been a cook in his family in Greenville, S.C.

Two stills blew up in this vicinity yesterday both starting fires. Seven persons were hurt and hundreds of window panes shattered in the explosion of a still in the cellar of a three-storey building at 630 Fortieth street, Brooklyn. The ground for some distance shook like an earthquake had taken place, it was said, after hundreds of families were routed from their apartments. Fire whch followed the explosion caused damage of about 3,000

Joseph Edelman of 131 Cator Avenue, Jersey City, was held in $2,000 bail yesterday by United States Commissioner Charles E. Hendrickson in Jersey City on a charge of violating the Volstead act The police said that after an explosion and fire in the cellar of his house they found a still there.

Four more stills and a barrel of whisky, said to have been found in the basement under the grocery store of G. Del Guidice, 101-3 Thompson Street, following a fire in the store which did but little damage.

INDORSES FORD'S PLAN

FLORENCE, Ala, Dec. 8.—Thomas A. Edison has given his indorsement to Henry Ford's plan for converting the lower Tenessee River into an industrial community centering at Muscle Shoals. After the wizards of Wenlo Park and Dearborn had spent another day inspecting dams and power plants and discussing prices and horsepowers and ways of stopping wars, the inventor put his O.K. on Mr. Ford's entire program.

"It'll go," he said.

Mr. Edison expressed his approval of the Ford idea of displacing gold with energy as the standard of value. He said he felt that gold was an insecure basis for currency because a sudden change might come and destroy its value. He thought Mr. Ford's idea for measuring dollars in energy rather than in gold feasible, but he did not seem to believe that it would be adopted because bankers wouldn't make any profits under an energy-currency system. As for Mr. Ford himself he said he didn't want to discuss the energy idea any further until the first principles had sunk in.

Mr. Edison said he believed Mr. Ford's estimate that it would take 30,000,000 energy-dollars to complete the Muscle Shoals project was correct.

Arriving here yesterday with Thomas A. Edison for a three days' inspection of the Muscle Shoals nitrate and waterpower projects, Henry Ford told for the first time the reason why he wishes to lease and operate the great plant.

"From the operation of this plant," he said, "many great things are possible, greater power production than this country has yet known, greater motor production, the production of aluminum and nitrates in quantities which will make undreamed-of changes in many industrial fields and in American farming. But so far as I am concerned, all those things which I see in Muscle Shoals is an opportunity to eliminate war from the world."

Mr. Ford was asked how this was possible.

"Just this way," he replied. "It is very simple when you analyze it. The cause of wars is gold. We shall demonstrate to the world through Muscle Shoals, first the practicability, second the desirability of displacing gold as the basis of currency and substituting in its place the world's imperishable natural wealth."

BROTHERS McKEE DIED SAME WEEK.

Charles in Peterboro Suddenly, and John in Ireland, of Pneumonia.

Died in Ireland, two days before his brother Charles McKee, 213 King street, expired suddenly when wheelin out to Smith on November 23d, was the sad news received here on Wednesday morning, by Charles McKee's widow.

The above information was despatched to the late Charles McKee by his brother, Rev. Pheniece McKee, a Presbyterian minister at Tullyard, Lisburn, Ireland, who wrote in sorrow that their younger brother John had passed to the Great Beyond on November 21st, his death occurring in Tullyard, due to pneumonia.

The two letters, each carrying their death message to and from the Old Land must have crossed each other en route.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH FOR EIGHT YEARS

The cause of this trouble is the fermentation of food in the stomach which generates a gas that is very frequently belched up. There is also a rumbling of the bowels and a discharge of gas therefrom, there is a constant retching, and the meals are frequently vomited. There is a burning pain in the stomach, the appetite is fickle, the tongue coated, the breath bad, constipation is genealy present and the sufferer becomes weak, nervous, depressed and exceedingly miserable.

The blame lies with a sluggish liver, as it holds back the bile which is so necessary to promote the movement of the bowels, and when the bile gets into the blood a badly disordered condition of the stomach, liver and bowels will surely follow.

Keep your liver active and you will always enjoy good health.

Mrs. Agnes Gallant, Reserve Mines, N.S., writes:—"I had been a great sufferer for eight years, from catarrh of the stomach. I tried several, so-called, catarrh remedies without relief until a friend advised me to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills which I did, and four vials completely relieved me. That was six yea s ago, and I have had no return of my old trouble."

Price, 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

No woman was ever known to attribute her husband's loss of appetite to her own cooking.

HEALTH AND UNEMPLOYMENT

Lack of Work Has a Disastrous Effect, as Shown by Boston Figures.

The ill-effects of unemployment upon the health of the families of wage-earners seems to be clearly indicated by the result of a survey recently completely by the Instructive District Nursing Association of Boston, where a study was made of a little more than 4,000 families. In this number 4,013 to be exact, were 466 families where wage earners were found to be unemployed.

In 249 of the 466 the health of one or more members had suffered, and, in seventy-six, the health of the entire family had been affected. One or more sick children were reported from 131 of the families. Undernourished, rickets, digestive disorders, various skin diseases, active and arrested tuberculosis, and lowered resistance to disease resulting from frequent minor ailments were reported.

A recent statistical bulletin of a metropolitan life insurance company suggests that fuller reports from other nursing centres and visiting nurse services would doubtless disclose worse conditions existing in other cities than Boston. The hope is also expressed that such organizations coming in contact with wage-earners' families will take account of the extent of unemployment and record, for future reference, observations bearing upon the effect of unemployment on the health of the wage-earner's family.

ZITA TO VISIT HER SON.

Swiss Council Will Let Her Attend Him for Appendicitis Operation.

BERNE, Dec. 8.—The Swiss Federal Council has granted permission for ex-Empress Zita to come to Switzerland to attend her son, Robert, during an operation for appendicitis. The permission, however, stipulates that she must leave the country as soon as her son is out of danger.

The former Empress, who with her husband, ex-Emperor Charles, is living in exile on the Island of Madeira, had already received the permission of the Allied Council of Ambassadors to make the trip to Switzerland. In granting his, it is understood, the Council pointed out that the decision to intern Charles applied to him alone and did not affect the other members of his family.

You never realze how brave some men are until you meet their wives.

PAINS SO BAD STAYED IN BED

Young Mrs. Beecroft Had Miserable Time Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have suffered for three years from a female trouble and consequent weakness, pain and irregularity which kept me in bed four or five days each month. I nearly went crazy with pains in my back, and for about a week at a time I could not do my work. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the Hamilton Spectator and I took it. Now I have no pain and am quite regular unless I overwork or stay on my feet from early morning until late at night. I keep house and do all my own work without any trouble. I have recommended the Compound to several friends."—Mrs. EMILY BEECROFT, 269 Victoria Ave. N. Hamilton, Ontario.

For forty years women have been telling how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female ills. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It is made from native roots and herbs and contains no narcotics or harmful drugs.

For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN.

Lawn tennis has recently become a craze among girls and young women in China.

Mrs. E. H. Harriman, widow of the railroad magnate, has given $10,000 to the Red Cross.

GRANTED LEAVE OF ABSENCE

DETROIT, Dec 7.—A leave of absence until June has been granted to the Rev. J. O. Leslie Spracklin pastor of the Sandwch Methodist Church, by his board of trustees The reason assigned was the nervous condition of Mr. Spracklin.

Mr. Spracklin himself has said that since he shot and killed Beverly (Babe) Trumble, while raidng the Chappell House more than a year ago, he has never known when or how his enemies would attack him. He was tried for the slaying and acquitted on the plea of self defense. The shooting was the culmination of the minister's career as active enemy of rum-runners. In his capacity as license inspector he raided their haunts, armed and assisted by deputies.

Charges Discussed

Some time ago charges were made that the conduct of Mr. Spracklin was much as to be determintal to the welfare of his church. Several informal meetings of the trustees were held, at which conditions were discussed, but no definte action was taken. Witnesses, men and women were questioned.

But last night, with the Rev. Edwin A. Pearson, pastor of the Lincoln Road Methodist Church, Walkerville, presiding Mr. Spracklin was granted leave of absence. The board acted unanimously. The term of Mr. Spracklin as pastor of the Sandwich church expires in June, when the London Methodist Conference will take up his case.

To Go Into Business

In the meantime, he will not preach, but expects to engage in commercial pursuits.

"It is not correct to say that the minsterial career of Mr. Spracklin is ended," said Mr. Pearson. "He may not re-enter the ministry in June, it is true, but we have plans for him that will keep him in the church as pastor. No charges, in a legal sense, were made against Mr. Spracklin, much less proved. We hope his health, particularly his nervous condition, which is now abnormal, will improve."

Answers to Correspondents:

MARY MARY—Red hands, especially if they are inclined to chap, are very distressing. The best preventative I can recommend to you is CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM. Rub it thoroughly into your hands every night and morning and particularly after each washing of your hands, because it is the continuous washing incident to housework that makes them chapped and get red. CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM will prevent both chapping and redness, and you will do well to use it. You will also be well advised to massage your face with it night and morning. You can buy CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM at any Druggist. 40c a large bottle. MARGARET.

RUSSIAN AFFAIRS TAKE A CHANGE

By Dr. J. V. Hessen.

Events in Russia have again arrested universal attention by the seemingly unexpected turn they have taken. But yesterday all discussions were limited as to whether it was advisable or not to conclude trade treaties with the Bolsheviki and whether the country that lagged behind would be the loser. In his connection there were numerous disputes concerning the chasm between Lenin and Totzky and people wondered which of them would win and what would happn if one or the other should be victorious. Now nobody is interested in all this any longer. All these discussions have been relegated to the past, covered with a certain misty, bloody curtain. Now it is no longer a question of how to save the Russian people from terrible starvation.

All these dicussions, washed away by the new wave, testify to our profound lack of respect for that old lady, History. She has shed rivers of blood, toyed with empires, reshaped all the maps, in order to convince us that something unprecedented is happening, that new pages are being opened in the fate of mankind, while we were arguing as to whether Lenin would arrest Trotzky, or whether Trotzky would arrest Lenin, and what the result would be. We may hold entirely different views on the role of personalities in history, and yet it is hardly permissible to think that the future of Russia during this elemental epoch could be changed by the manner in whcih the relations of Trotzky and Lenin would be adjusted. This quarrel reminds one of the incident when, on the eve of the collapse of the czarist regime, the Grand Dukes turned to Nicholas II. eve of the collapse of the czarist regime, and urged him to change the course of his policies in order to save the dynasty, but Nicholas remained deaf to their appeal.

Now, the tragedy of Bolshevism consists of the fact that in their sharp disagreement both Trotzky and Lenin are right. Lenin is right when he thinks that it is impossible to go any further along the road which he entered four years ago, and this viewpoint has been confirmed by the present unprecedented catastrophe. But Trotzky, too, is right when he thinks that the Bolsheviki cannot change their policy, because the only justification of their existence consists communistic experiment.

They have actually renounced all their communistic principles; they have restored piece work, the premium system; they have abolished all sorts of committees, the eight-hour day, but if they now also formally announce that they have abandoned all their slogans and that they are restoring the capitalist system upon the ruins of their own foundation, would this not mean that they are signing their own death warrant?

Trotzky had already begun to waver, even as the Czar in his time, and was about to make certain concessions to "the spirit of the times"; but before the conflict was ended it was liquidated by the terrible famine.

Bolsheviki's Terrible Responsibility.

"How are we to blame? Have we deliberately caused the drought?" the Bolsheviki cry. It is hardly necessary to prove that there is not a single country with a normal Government where the catastrophe could have assumed such proportions, and where the Government would find itself in such a helpless condition. But even if the Bolsheviki were actually not to blame, the responsibility nevertheless rests upon them, and they realize it. In Berlin there is published on the means of the starving peasants in Russia one of the numerous communist organs. It has on its staff a man who says he is not a communist, who describes himself as a former "Octobrist," that is, one who belongs to the party that was servile to Stolypin. He openly declares now that the famine has created an impossible position for the Bolsheviki. If they accept the aid that is offered by foreign countries, people will say: "The Bolsheviki have brought on the famine in Russia and foreigners are helping you"; if the Bolsheviki refuse this aid, it will be still worse, as people will say that help was close at hand, but the Bolsheviki rejected it to protect their own interests.

This renegade has correctly estimated the situation of the Bolshevist Government. There was a time when Trotzky haughtily declared that if the Bolsheviki should be compelled to quit they would close the door with such a bang that the whole world would shudder. It may be that the whole world will have to shudder when they do. This is shown even now by the manner in which they have pacified the hunger and cholera riots that have broken out here and there. The well-known public man, Dr. Kreinin, who has just come out of Russia, has confirmed my views as to the effect that panic is giving rise to madness in the population, and in this madness the masses are manifesting outbursts of wild all-destroying hatred, first of all directed against the Jews.

How tragically strange all this is! The profoundest impression was created by the impassioned appeal of Gorky, who was frightened by the sufferings of the Russian people. Only a year ago, singing the praises of Lenin, this same Gorky said: "I was against the Bolsheviki, but I have convinced myself that the Russian people can suffer better than they can work, and I sing again the praise of the madness of the brave." But it has turned out that the Bolsheviki have succeeded in breaking even the endurance of the Russian people, and that the "madness of the brave" has yielded its results. Gorky is calling upon the world to save the Russian people.

Red Regime Powerless Before Famine.

On this bloody background the question about the departure of the Bolsheviki has lost its acuteness. They have succeeded in driving their experiment to such a degree that their continuation could no longer arouse any particular interest. But the situation has become actually impossible, and the Bolsheviki themselves feel that they are unable to survive this misfortune. Let us recall that the famine of 1891 dealt the Russian autocracy a blow from which it could not recover, for that year marked the actual beginning of the emancipation movement. But even the Bolsheviki themselves know that the catastrophe of 1891 cannot be compared with the present catastrophe, which has no equal in history. The catastrophe has only revealed its terrible face, and the Bolshevist Government is already confused and is hiding behind the names of well-known people who have not yet rotted away in Bolshevist prisons. The Bolshevist Government even emphasizes that in the committee to save the starving people there are members of the Czar's Cabinet. Whatever the fate of the Bolsheviki may be it is no longer a question of the Bolsheviki. It is clear that now they are no longer able—to cope with the situation. They themselves cannot even relieve the misfortune in the slightest way.

No matter what is being written about Russia however graphically people are trying to depict the situation in Russia is actually going on there now. If at the present time after the harvest has just been gathered people are tossing about there in real madness; if the peasantry is running about besieging cities without knowing why; if the cholera and the plague are raging on all roads claiming innumerable victims what question can there be as to the fate of the Bolsheviki? The question is now of the break-down of the entire social structure of the decay of the entire State. Upon the burned and withered fields Death will reap an unprecedented harvest and there will be many who in their despair will end in suicide.

But however gloomy this picture is it is still more dreadful to think of those who will survive. While I was in Russia during the reign of the Bolsheviki I was amazed at the comparatively small number of suicides not withstanding that the changed system had turned everything upside down. Since then two years have elapsed. Yesterday I received a letter from Moscow from a well-known engineer who after describing all the horrors of present existence there saying "We are starving in the actual sense of the word" concluded his message as follows: "There are strong words such as death for instance but human beings here still live and do not want to die. Honestly in spite of it all I do not want to die!"

I shall never forget the words of a remarkable youth who was killed in the war. After reading Merezhkovsky's book he wrote in his notebook the following lines: "Perhaps there will come again some one greater than Peter the Great and will blow into this part of the world a sense of life and define its direction; but it may be that the formless masses like overspreading swamps will drown proud Europe without creating a new God. That would be the end of the present world."

That which is happening in Russia today is replete with the most alarming dangers and is casting a gloomy shadow over the whole of Europe over the entire civilized world. Europe must regard the misfortune and must exert all her efforts to relieve it. With the proportions which the catastrophe has assumed the help can be real only if it is rendered upon a huge scale.

But what is more important than the scope of the relief is the degree of sympathy which the world will show Russia. It is essential to impress the people there that they have not been abandoned to their cruel fate and that there is genuine sympathy for their misfortune that they are not forsaken and neglected. Otherwise the common human language will be forgotten for a long time to come and the poisonous feelings which have been nourished by the cruel struggle for a hungry existence in Russia will shake the rest and peace of the world for many years to come.

CAMEL WALK GETS THE STUDENTS IN BAD.

New Jersey School Board Will Investigate Dance's Dangers.

JERSEY CITY, December 8. — The Nutley, N.J., School Board will engage a professional dancer to determine whether the camel walk and other dancing movements alleged to be indulged in by high school students are proper. The Board decided on this action after hearing a protest by Mrs. Arthur B. Proal, president of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Perley A. Prior, wife of a Manhattan broker. Both are School Board members. At the meeting Mrs. Prior said:

"The first time I noticed the undignified and improper dancing by the students was at the freshman class reception last week. I did not know what the dance was called, but the pupils later agreed that it was the camel walk. The girls rested their chins on their partners' right shoulders and apparently went to sleep. At least they seemed to dose off, for they scarcely moved, and their eyes were closed."

Mrs. Prior said

"So much criticism was heard at the dance that Mrs. Prior and I ordered the music stopped and instructed a student who was in charge of the affair to request those who were dancing improperly to discontinue. The talk, however, had little effect on the dancers. I think the students have gone to extremes in terpsichorean movements."

For the Bow-Wows.

George M. Gottfried, another Board member, said he had heard considerable comment on the dancing in the school, and he believed the students were headed for the "demnition bow-wows."

Edgar Sargeant, another Board member, would not enter into the discussion because "we are such old fossils on the subject and so far behind the times that we do not understand the dances."

A girl senior said after the Board's action became known:

"This high school is getting to be the limit. They teach us folk dancing in school, and if we danced that way after we left school we would be arrested. The School Board members only know of the old-fashioned waltz, and George Washington knew how to do that. If they want to be up-to-date they should abandon the high brow idea and come down to earth."

The Board is considering a suggestion by Mrs. Prior to hold all functions in the afternoon. Such action, she said, would eliminate the formality of evening dress, and lend a more refined atmosphere to the affair.

POOR JOHN D. HAS TO BORROW CLOTHES.

Didn't Take One to Japan, Where It Was Needed at Imperial Garden Party.

NEW YORK, December 9.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., one of the world's richest men, has confessed he had to appear before the Empress and the Crown Prinie of Japan in a borrowed frock coat that fitted him only "pretty well."

Mr. Rockefeller, who has just returned from a tour of the Orient, said he had been invited to an Imperial garden party in Tokio, but found he could not gain admittance without a frock coat, a bit of impediment which had not seemed worth while to take along.

All the Rorkefeller millions failed to produce the necessary garment. Finally Charles B. Warren, the American Ambassador, vounteered to lend him one.

HUNTING IS REVIVED IN FRANCE GRADUALLY

PARIS, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press).—Hunting is gradually being revived in France. In the forest of Rambouillet a few day ago there was seen for the first time since the war one of the most ancient customs of France. The hounds of the Dowager Duchess of Uzes assembled at La Celle, the hunting grounds of the Bourbons. Six priests, blessed the hounds while huntsmen blew music on their horn, and the hunting season was officially open. A large number of huntsmen were present.

The ceremony was held on the anniversary of St. Hubert, apostle of the Ardennes and patron saint of the hunting field. It was at the same point in the forest that St. Hubert son of the duke of Aquitaine, saved his father from being gored to death Since then the clergy of the district have assembled each year to bless the hounds in memory of the courageous act of the saint.

In 1914 there were 11,800 hounds 12,000 huntsmen and 285 packs in France. These figures were greatly reduced by the war.

COST OF THE RAT TO U. S.

It is $750,000,000 a Year, or More Than $7 Per Person, for His Food.

While the cost of living may have come down somewhat, the upkeep of rats hasn't. On the contrary, it has soared from a rate of $1.80 per person per year to a trifle over $7 per person, according to the last figures for the United States.

The amount covers only the feeding of the country's rats and does not make any allowance for losses by fire for which they are responsible. The Fire Prevention Committee of the Building Managers' and Owners' Association is calling the attention of its members to the depredations of the rats in a bulletin just issued, which says:

"The upkeep of rats has gone up. A year or so ago some one figured that it costs us $1.80 per person to feed the rats in the United States. Recent figures compiled by a British expert place this cost in the United States at $750,000,000 a year, which is a triffe over $7 per person. This is simply for food consumed and destroyed and has nothing whatever to do with the very considerable fire loss they cause.

"Needless to say, we are urged as an economic measure to exterminate the rats; also you will recall what Dr. Copeland had to say to us along this line last winter as pertaining to public health. Viewed from all angles, they are a menace."

PUT BAN ON ANCASTER

No Corn or Corn Products Allowede to Leave Township

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 8.—Word was received by the Ontario Department of Agriculture's offices here today that the corn and corn products of the township of Ancaster in the County of Wentworth have been placed under ban until further notice on account of the corn borer pest. Last summer this insidous insect was noticed in numbers enough to be alarming, but the full realization of its destructive prevalence was realized when corn stored in the township was inspected and found to be in a pretty bad way. Inspector Simpson, of the Department of Agriculture left Toronto for Hamilton this afternoon where he will investigate.

17,000 RUSSIANS STARVE IN CONSTANINOPLE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 9.—(Canadian Press).The Constantinople Relief Fund, which has taken over a large part of the charity work hitherto done by the American Red Cross, had addressed an urgent plea to the people of Constantinople in behalf of the destitute Russian refugees.

The Committee points out that there are more than 17,000 Russians within the city who are literally starving and that to abandon them would be an act of the basest inhumanity. The Committee explains that the present constitutes the final phase of Russian refugee relief. Of the enormous number of refugees—totalling in all about 200,000—who have passed through the hands of Allied authorities, there now remain some 35,000. Even those it is hoped to dispose of satifactorily in the near future.

PINNED IN TREE FORK, HIS CRIES BRING HELP

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. Dec. 9.—While a boy named Win Stanley of Milville was out alone in the forest gathering beech nuts, a breaking branch caught and pinned him in the fork of a tree. A high wind was blowing and every movement of the tree caused the little fellow great agony. His cries were heard by two young girls, who on their way to school had wandered into the woods in search of nuts. Alarmed, they ran to the nearest house that of Mrs. Robert Jessome, who soon located the source of the cries and managed to extricate the frightened boy from the trap of the beech tree. If the little girls had not wandered from their usual school course young Stanley might hav perished from exposure or starved to death.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, December 9. Canadian Press. — The tone of the cash grain market was stronger here today in sympathy with the renewed strength in other centres. A better feeling prevailed in the local flour market, with however no change in prices. A good business continues to be done in all lines of mill feed and prices for rolled oats were 5c a bag higher. There is nothing new in the baled hay market. The undertone to the egg market is very firm and the prices for all grades are fully maintained. The potato market is quiet. A firm feeling continues in the butter and cheese markets.

HUGE CELEBRATION IN FENELON FALLS.

FENELON FALLS, Dec. 9. — Never before in the history of this village was there such public jubilation and excitement as on Wednesday night, when a huge reception was tendered Mr. J. J. CABINET MATERIAL.

MONTREAL, December 9. Canadian Press. — Advices were received here yesterday that Joseph Archambault, Liberal member-elect for Chambly-Vercheres riding, had been summoned to Ottawa by Hon W. L. Mackenzie King.

Mr. Archambault refused to make any comment when telephoned to, but he is spoken of as one of the Quebec members slated for a Cabinet position, which may possibly be that of Secretary of State.

To Revise Rules House of Commons For Woman M.P.?

MISS M'PHAIL'S ADVENT INTO PARLIAMENT RAISES QUESTION

OTTAWA,, Dec. 9.— (By Canadian Press.)—"Will the advent of Miss A. C. McPhail, M.P.-elect, into Parliamentary debates necessitate a revision of the rules of the House of Commons?" That is a question which has arisen in the minds of some of the parliamentarians, who are at present in Ottawa, for Miss McPhail has the honor of being the first woman elected to a place in the Canadian Parliament.

The "rules of the House" make no provision for women members. At the time they were compiled there was no thought of women sitting for constituencies, and the precedents which they lay down to be followed are based on British Parliamentary conditions previous to 1867, when, also there were no women legislators in the Mother of Parliaments.

It appears to be Miss McPhail's hat which raises the necessity for revising the rules.

Rule 16, of Rules of Debate, taken from Bourinot, says:

"Every member desiring to speak is to rise in his place, uncovered, and address hiself to Mr. Speaker." On the other hand ,it is pointed out that the scriptural injunction to woman was that they must not uncover the head in public.

Among the men the general opinion is that Lady Astor, when speaking in the British House of Commons, wears her hat, so presumably the necessary steps will be taken for Miss McPhail, M.P.-elect, to follow her example, but the rules which refer in places only to "he" and "his" will need to be revised to keep abreast of the times.

HAMILTON WOMAN ADVISES MOTHERS

MRS. SELLMAN FEELS IT HER DUTY TO TELL THEM HOW TANLAC HAS RESTORED HER DAUGHTERS.

"My two daughters have been so wonderfully built up and made so strong and healthy by taking Tanlac I feel it is my duty to let other mothers know about my experience," said Mrs. Arthur Sellman, 134 Ferguson Ave., North Hamilton Ont.

"My oldest daughter, Amy, was in a run down condition for three years. She had a very poor appetite and what little she did eat did her more harm than good. She was pale, weak and easily tired. Three bottles of Tanlac made her well and strong. Her appetite returned, her sleep became restful and her cheeks got rosy. In fact, she is the very picture of health.

"My daughter Ida's case was almost identical, except her condition wasn't quite as serious. Just two bottles put her in the best of health. Every time I look at my girls now and see them enjoying such splendid health, I realize what a blessing Tanlac has been to our home, and I feel it my duty to talk out and let people know about this grand medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists.

STRENGTH SUFFICIENT.

The burden of to-morrow?"
Sufficient for the day the care,

Strength sufficient for the day.

HUMANE SOCIETY IN PETERBOROUGH

PUBLIC MEETING IN JANUARY FOR PURPOSE OF ORGANIZATION

'We speak for those who cannot speak for themselve". Such is the motto evidenced by a meeting of twenty citizens, ladies and gentlemen Wednesday evening in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms, when consideration was given to the formation of a Humane Society in the city.

Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D. who was elected temporary chairman spoke of the desire of citizens for the formation of such a society for the prevention of cruelt yto animals and referred to the resolution passed by the Local Council of Women last May, to that effect

Chief of Police Newhall was present by special invitation, and cited a number of cases of cruelty to animals, and explained how it was possible for a Humane Society to assist the Police Force in the better care and treatment of dumb animals.

After due consideration, on motion of Mr. S. E. Martin, Manager of the Bank of Montreal, seconded by Mrs. S. T. Medd, the following resolution was unanimously adopted, that a Humane Society be formed in Peterboro, and that a public meeting be called for this purpose during the second week of January.

With this end in view, the following nominating committee was appointed by the Chairman, to bring in recommendations at the public meeting for the following officers and Executive Committe:—President Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer and Executive Committee of seven. The officers of the Society may be either ladies or gentlmen, or both.

Committee—Mrs. J. W. Fraser, Mrs. S. T. Medd, E. S. Martin, J. E. A. Fitzgerald and W. R. Morris, Chairman.

The following committee was also appointed to arrange for time and place of the public meeting and advertise accordingly—Chairman, C. E. Jamieson, J. E. Fowler, Leon Frazer.

The objects of the Society will be the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals by all proper means, to assist in the enforcement of all laws which are now or may hereafter be enacted for the protection of animals, and to secure the punishment of all persons violating such laws, and to create and sustain a general interest in Humane Work and Humane Education by means of literature and public addresses.

WARSAW NEWS

WARSAW, Dec. 8.—Mr. Fred Crowe is the chosen competitor from this district to attend the swine judging competition in Peterborough the last three days of this week at the Canadian Packing Co's plant.

On Tuesday night the town hall was packed from 6.30 till 10 p.m. during which hours the election results were announced. Many ladies were present. During the evening an orchestra contributed several numbers. On the whole, arangements were far more pleasant than heretofore, when election results had to be gleaned at the stores, where all stood in uncomfortable crowds.

Old Home Week.

Bro. R. Starr and H. Beal were appointed to act as the representatives of the society on the "Booster committee" in connection with the Peterborough Old Home week to be held next summer.

Outlook Bright.

The outlook for the Lodge at the present moment is very encouraging. Five new members were initiated last month and eight more will be initiated at the next meeting, Monday, Dec. 19th. The club room is proving an unqualified success; every evening during the week sees a large number of members present enjoying the billiard table and other privileges there afforded.

Indoor Sport.

On Friday of this week the Caledonians are sending a team of six billiard players and 8 carpet ball players who will try and take the measure of a similar number of Englishmen. A large crowd is expected that evening.

The club billiard tournament has reached its final stage, Bros. H. Freeman, R. Starr and R. G. Long alone remaining to decide who shall secure the prize, a tournament billiard cue. The club expects to enter the city billiard league, and will do its best to promote a good, clean, healthy competition amongst the clubs and players of the city.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GREY HAIR

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.

The voters in Madison township just outside Portsmouth, Ohio, as a joke wrote in the names of two women on the ballot in the recent election and their joke went far enough to elect the women constables by a large majority.

COUNTY COUNCIL INDIGNANT AT $9 FOR READING EXAMINATIONS

BILL OF EXPENSES FOR ENTRANCE EXAMS. GRATES UPON MEN WHO SAY FARMERS DIDN'T MAKE A DOLLAR A DAY THIS YEAR.

"After I've paid off everything this year I don't think I'll have a dollar a day for my wages on the year's work," said one of the members of the County Council this morning.

"You'll be lucky if you do," remarked another, "for there are lots of them that won't have that much."

"I know farmers who have to borrow the money to pay their taxes," a third Reeve contributed to the gloomy story of a lean year on the farms.

In spite of this drab background the County Council's usual mood of seriousness lightened with occasional intervals of humour presides over the closing sessions of the year now in progress at the Court House.

Were Indignant.

Perhaps it was the recollection of the financial set-back the farmers have suffered this year that evoked expressions of indignation on Thursday afternoon when the Finance committee, with Reeve Eason of Otonabee in the chair, turned up an account of $554.49 for expenses in connection with the Entrance examinations last June.

While farmers considered themselves lucky to get one dollar a day, more or less, this year for their labour, this account showed that the presiding teachers at the examinations received nine dollars a day.

"Ridiculous," exclaimed Reeve Curtis, of Havelock, who told of the examination fees, school taxes and the money for writing paper and some other incidentals which, he said, the parents of these young candidates have to pay for. Then on top of that a bill of more than $500 which most of the members felt was duplicated by the salaries of these teachers and the Inspector.

People Should Know.

"The people have a right to know where their money is going," said Reeve McIntosh, and Warden Griffiths' opinion of this account was indicated by his proposal of a resolution that it be published in the local and district papers.

"Let the public see that we are not to blame for accounts like that," said another member.

Some of the Reeves were doubtful that a protest of any kind would amount to anything. They might urge other municipalities to co-operate in a petition to the Government to relieve the county of these examination expenses. Other members remarked that the position of these teachers presiding at examinations was an important one and they should be well paid, but the majority of the Council considered nine dollars a day and expenses exorbitant.

Inspector's Demand.

Failing to think of any solution in this matter, the Council decided to refer to their immediate successors a bill of $500 from School Inspector Lees for his expenses in travelling to the schools of his inspectoral district. The Council had offered him $400, but he replied that unless $500 were forthcoming he would submit the case to Judge Huycke, and would show that travelling had cost him $800 last yar.

Ask For Statement.

Reeve Shaw pointed out that the Council had not yet seen an itemized statement of Mr. Lees' expenditure. He considerd that such a statement should be produced before the Council made any payment.

A motion by Mr. Shaw asks for a detailed statement from Mr. Lees to be presented to the 1922 Council in January.

The bill of expenses for the rural examinations that roused the ire of many of the Councillors follows:

—Announced On Our Back Page on Saturday—

DO NOT APPROVE PLANS INTENDED STABILIZE POUND

LONDON, Dec. 99.—Suggestions advanced by certain economic theorists to stabilize the value of the English pound at, say 15 shillings gold, thereby reducing the American exchange from $4.86 to a new parity of $3.65 to the pound and creating a gold premium of 33 per cent., do not meet with the approval of practical British bankers.

Sir Charles Addis, president of the Institute of Bankers, in an inaugural address to that body, made a strong plea for continued efforts to restore the gold standard.

He said that a return to pre-war parity could not be accomplished unless new and unexpected inflation should take place in America without a considerable amount of farther deflation in Great Britain.

Devaluation propsals, he declared were premature, inopportune and inexpedient. He refused to believe that the British people "could be induced to trample on their monetary past and to relinquish the dearly purchased gold standard, which they believed to be bound up with the prestige of their national credit and their supremacy in international finance."

Sir Felix Schuster, another prominent banker, observed that in the last two years Britain had repaid 200,000,000 pounds of foreign debts, 100,000,000 pounds of which were paid to America. He thought that the question of repaying the balance due to America, if the period of repayment were spread over 30 40 or 50 years, could be faced with courage. If Britain showed its firm determination to get back to old gold standard, he said, confidence would return with an unshaken belief of the whole world in the pound sterling.

The Financial News, in an editorial, compares the process of devaluation to Mark Twain's cigar limit, which he never exceeded, meeting all temptations to do so by the simple expedient of raising the limit.

FRANCE EXPECTED TO ACCEPT PLANS FOR PACIFIC PACT

PARIS, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press).—France's acceptance of the quadruple agreement for the Pacific is considered certain in official circles here. The press receives the proposals with much satisfaction.

APPLICATION REQUIRED

FROM O. H. A. PLAYERS WHO CHANGE RESIDENCE

The attention of hockey players is called to a special rule of the O.H.A. which provides that players who have changed their residence since January 1, 1921, and wish to play hockey this winter, must make application to the O.H.A. by Tuesday, December 20. Players affected by this rule who do not make application by December 20 will have to wait until January 20, 1922, for consideration of their cases.

It is suggested that hockey players who come under this rule, communicate with Walter Smaill, who will be glad to give his assistance.

Here is the rule: "All players who have changed their clubs or place of residence since January 1, 1921, must send in written application through their clubs, to the O.H.A. Executive, by Tuesday, Dec. 20, in conjunction with their playing certificates, if they desire to play this coming season. Each application must contain complete and definite information and reasons for changing residence. Each application must be accompanied by an affidavit from the player concerned covering the O.H.A. amateur rule. No application received after December 20 will be considered until January 20, except in the case of junior players."

CHEQUE ARTISTS PLEADED GUILTY

Neither Kenneth Morton, of Sutton, nor his alleged acccomplice, Harry Allard, of Oshawa, received sentence from Magistrate D. W. Dumble to-day. Morton, who had pleaded guilty to half a dozen charges of forgery, and attempted forgery, was remanded for sentence till December 16, and Harry Allard was committed for trial.

D. A. J. Swanson, of Oshawa, represented Allard. Kenneth Morton gave evidence against Allard, alias Harry Wager. He told, with no diffidence, how he obtained money from local grocers and from James Lewis, Hunter Street barber. The cheque cashed by Mr. Lewis was signed by himself, on the Yonge Street branch of the Bank of Montreal. All the others purported to be signed by A. Dinsdale, and payable to Ray Wager. He bought a few dollars worth of groceries, for instance, securing at J. Speer's grocery in East City, a pound of butter and half a pound of cheese, for which he tendered a $21.50 forged cheque. He pocketed the difference, and sought a new victim in J. S. Black, George Street. It was finally Robert Goheen, Aylmer Street, who put the police on the trail.

U. S. RAILROADS PLAN MORE CUTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Schedules proposing wage cuts of from ten to thirty per cent. for train service, shop and maintenance of way employes of railroad lines north of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi were formulated to-day at a conference of managers and supervising officials. The reductions, which would take effect late this month, must be submitted to the Railroad Labor Board for rejection or approval. Officials said the roads would begin separate conferences with their employes early next week on the proposed pay cuts.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

The 5½ per cent. opening rate for demand loans acted as a check upon operations for long accounts during the morning. Coppers were active and strong, however, at gains of one to two points. Some of the popular Oils and Food issues also improved with various secondary specialties. Selling pressure again was most persistent in Motors, Shippings and Tobaccos. Chandler, Bosch Magneto, Stromberg, Mercantile Marine Preferred, United Fruit, American Tobacco and Sumatra Tobacco re-acted one to three points. Occasional dealings in Rails were mostly at moderate concessions. The irregular tone of the bond list was attributed to further realizing sales.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press).—Initial wheat quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 5-8c higher, with May 1.14 to 1.14¾ and July 1.03¾ to 1.03⅞, were followed by moderate gains all around, and then by set-backs to below yesterday's finish.

Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. After opening a shade off to ½c higher, May 54¾ to 54⅞, the corn market hardened a little more, but later showed slight losses.

Oats started at 1-8c decline to a like advance, May 38 3-8 to 38½, and then became easier for all deliveries.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Dec. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Nothing worth mentioning occurred on the local Stock Exchange during the first half-hour this morning, and only a few odd lots of the principal issues were registered. Riordon went down half a point to 5, as did also Steel of Canada to 61¼. Laurentide strengthened a quarter to 74 3-4.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press).—A good steady undertone marked trading on the local Stock Exchange this morning. Advances were made by Brazilian, Steamship Preferred and General Electric. Maple Leaf retained all of the gain it made yesterday, and Dominion Steel was unchanged. Bonds were quiet, as were also Oil stocks in the listed department.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange steady; demand, Great Britain, 4.09 11-16; Canadian exchange 8¼ per cent. discount.

WORKERS ON FARM IN EUROPE SUFFER

GENEVA, Dec. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Some idea of the misery and primitiveness of agricultural labor conditions in some parts of Europe was given the International Federation of Working Women during its recent congress here, by the Italian delegate, Signoria Casartlli.

She indicated the low standard of living by suggesting as a program of improvement four recommendations: That agricultural laborers must not sleep in stables, that each worker should have a separate bed, and that beds should be aired and rooms heated if necessary and that men and women must have separate quarters under sanitary conditions.

LIQUOR SMUGGLING BY WHOLESALE.

Operations of the Largest Smuggling Combine Are Being Exposed.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 8.—(United Press).—Operations of an international rum smuggling combine, said by Federal investigators to be the largest ever engaged in liquor smuggling, were disclosed here by Federal officials.

Charles H. Scandalis, of this city, was brought up for hearing before United States Commissioner Hall here and held in $20,000 bail, charged with landing 1,000 cases in March, 1921, from the schooner Henry L. Marshall, said to be the famous "phantom ship" which haunted the New Jersey coast during the summer. The warrant further charged the landing of 2,410 cases in June and 4,500 in July. The schooners and motorboats engaged in these operations have already been seized, by Federal agents, it was said.

According to officials four of five other men of the syndicate are under arrest. The "big chief" was expected to be arrested shortly. With the arrest of this last-named man, Federal officers were expected to disclose the details of rum-running operations of startling proportions.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

It is said that forty-four thousand volts passed through Mercer's body in a shock that was recorded in Trenton power house forty miles away.

SENATOR WATSON CREATES SCENE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(Canadian Press.)—Senator Watson, Georgia, created a scene here to-day at the Senate committee's investigation of his charges regarding execution of United States soldiers overseas when he threatened "to slap the face" of an officer.

Senator Watson walked up close to Major George D. Cocheu, and shaking his finger in his face, exclaimed: "For two pennies I would slap your face."

"If he looks at me again that way I will slap his jaw," the Georgia Senator declared, adding that he woul not remain with the committee to be "bulldozed by this bull-jawed brute."

The Major had been called as a witness and had been seated awaiting his turn to testify. He had not said a word. The Senator said he had been insulted by the way the officer looked at him.

FRISCH'S GREAT SEASON'S RECORD

Giant Player Starred in Every Department

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Frank Frisch, third baseman of the Giants, established a unique playing record during the recent pennant campaign. This was revealed by the official National league batting averages, which have just been released.

He was one of the six players in the league who made more than 200 hits. He slammed out 211 and finished second in this respect to Rogers Hornsby. He was one of the eight players who made at least 100 runs. He tied for second place with his team mate, Dave Bancroft with 121. He was one of the six who took part in every game played by their respective clubs. He was one of the nine players who made five hits in one game. He was one of the ten players who scored four runs in one game. He outdistanced the base runners with 49 stolen bases.

With the exception of Emil Meusel, who was not with the Giants during the entire season, Frisch led the world's champions in batting, with an average of .341.

In addition he established a record in the world's series by making four hits in as many times at bat in the first game.

NO MODIFICATION "SELECTED PLAYER" RULE AT MEETING

BUFALO, December 9 (Canadian Press). — What the minors have as a measure of protection against the raids of the majors upon their players, they will hold. That was the freely expressed opinion among the delegates at the close of the twenty-first annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues here yesterday.

No modification of the "selected player rule" was possible at the minors' convention here, because it is a part of their agreement with the majors that can be changed only at a major-minor coniab, and the next one opens in New York next week. If the mater was discussed in today's executive session, the minors kept their own counsel about it.

Attitude of Minors.

The only reaction from the advances of the majors and the appeal of Commissioner K. M. Landis to Organised Baseball to find a way out of the woods on the draft question, therefore, can be found in the known attitude of the personnel of the committee of minors named to go to the New York joint meeting. Neither President T. J. Hickey, of the American Association, nor President H. W. McCarthy, of the Pacific Coast League takes kindly to the idea of letting down the bars again to the majors.

President J. C. Toole, of the International, is of the same mind, but there is said to be some difference of opinion among the members of that organisation, and the question will be threshed out at the League's annual meeting which takes place before the major-minor conference.

Secretary Farrell, the fourth ember of the committee, goes in an advisory capacity, and is expressing no opinion.

New Fundamental Laws.

This does not mean that the minors will go to New York dead set against an amendment to the agreement, which, by the way, was made for the lifetime of the Association. They are as anxious as anyone in the game to find what Commissioner Landis termed "a new fundamental law that would compose the differences in Organised Baseball." But they are not willing to go back to the conditions covering the draft prior to 1921, it was declared.

The members of the new Board of Arbitration were elected at the closing session to-day, and it was announced that players listed as "reserve jumpers" as distinct from the "contract jumper" may be reinstated on application to the Secretary paying $200.00. This applies to all players on the voluntary retired list playing with or against clubs containing ineligible players. They must return to the clubs from which they deserted.

Salary Limits.

The Association made no changes in the salary limits, but in line with the recommendations of President Michael H. Sexton, of Rock Island, Ill., increased the fines to be levied against clubs violating existing rules.

Louisville won next year's convention, the vote standing: Louisville, 21; Hamilton (Ont.), 4; San Francisco, 1.

Lee in turn would translate the instructions into Spanish for Diavalida and Romerlo. Two other members of the Lafayette team, Lin and Garrot, come from China.

THE GREAT IMPERSONATION

Something rather unusual in the picture line is the feature "The Great Impersonation", at the Capitol Theatre for the week-end. A dramatic production with war and love, mystery and crime weaving about the central figure of Everard Dominey, the man surrounded by an atmosphere of doubt and uncertainty until the final thrilling denouement, with a background of African jungle, German diplomacy and English society life, the tale works out to a happy ending, through mazes of extraordinarily interesting situations. Is the hero a German spy or an English patriot? Is he Leopold or Everard? The Duke of Oxford doubts him, his beautiful, half-crazed wife doubts and loves him at the same time, and his German confreres place implicit confidence in him. It is an interesting tale, with a Hungarian princess and a ghost who calls beneath the window to lend dramatic color to the narrative and the final scene, with the Kaiser against the windmills of Doorn, gives a last piquant touch to an unusual and very interesting production.

There is a double comedy bill, a Mack Sennett and Harold Lloyd, excellent as always, and Al and Flo Cooper, artists and entertainers, present a review of songs and pictures, a bright novelty. Al is the lightning cartoonist who draws a picture a minute, Indians and darkies and pretty girl faces, and Flo sings as he works, song that harmonize with the subject on the drawing-board.

A big five-act bill of local vaudeville with some of the very best of Peterboro' talent, has been prepared for to-night, and should attract a bumper crowd. The Capitol orchestra renders some of the best selections in fine style, and provides music for the Saturday matinee as well as in the evening.—Jeannette.

AT THE GRAND.

"THE THREE MUSKETEERS."

Like a glimpse into another age is the dramatization of "The Three Musketeers" at the Grand Opera House this week. A time when the blood of men ran red, a swashbuckling, fighting era of hard living and hard riding, a time when women were content to sew and paint and cook the rough and ready meals of the day, to sit in latticed bowers and dream of gallants who were ready to risk their lives for a lady's smile, the forgotten manners of a bygone age live again in the delighful tale of "The Three Musketeers." Here are the trim, laced bodices, the careful curls and enormous ruffs of the gentle women, spinning in their golden cages the webs of intrigue and passion, here are the rough, cobbled pavements and narrow streets of an older Paris, the blazing hearths and roasting spits of a rougher, heartier fashion, the laces and velvets and plumed chapeaux of of the roistering, fighting men, the whole-hearted devotion and loyalty to the King and his cause, and the scheming ambition of powerful courtiers.

D'Artagnan dominates the scene, the Gascon lad who fights at the drop of the hat, embroils himself in three duels "behind the Luxembourg at one o'clock" on his first day in Paris, exchanges his buttercup nag for a plumed velvet hat, and rides to England on a mad adveputre which leads him through the mazes of the Cardinal's intrigues, and finds him the final victor with the Queen's diamond buckle returned to her safe keeping.

The Cardinal, with his thin, working fingers, his pet white cats, his web of fine machinations, his final triumph with a generous impulse which surprises the audience, is a very real figure, and the three whose motto is "all for one, one for all," Athos, Porthos and Aramis, are likeable rufflers, and fit companions for the hero. The quartette, with their daredevel feats, their skill with the rapier, their happy-go-lucky outlook, their readiness to risk everything at a moment's notice, are superb actors in a picture whose every detail is carried out to perfection, and whose atmosphere holds no jarring note in its minute representation of the life and manners, the loves and fears, the passions and intrigues of another day, the picture of the life of Paris under His Gracious Majesty, Louis 13th of France, his queen, Anne of Austria, and the powerful Cardinal Richelieu.—Jeannette.

REX STOCK COMPANY.

Clyde Fitch was one of the cleverest of younger American dramatists. He enjoyed a decided vogue among society people, and the first night of one of his plays brought out an extremely fashionable audience. Ethel Barrymore, Maxine Eliott and many others of the best American actresses will long be remembered for their work in the clever, well-written Fitch comedies. In England the distinguished playwright was also most successful. He evoked much criticism—most of it favorable—and held for several seasons the first rank among contemporary writers.

It is with very great pleasure, therefore, that I announce Mr. Snelgrove's next offering. The name is— Oh, but I almost gave the secret away. It simply wouldn't do to spoil anyone's pleasure or to deprive anyone of the prize offered for the best title. I am so anxious to see the ever-popular Rex and charming Miss Vaughn in this society play that I han hardly wait for Mcnday night . The rush for seats will no doubt cause many to book theirs ahead. It will be a good scheme, because, added to the usual demand, there will be great anxiety to see a Clyde Fitch comedy, and people love so to "guess." Whoever wins the big prize will assuredly be satisfied with the evening's amusement. Laura.

AT THE ROYAL.

At yesterday's re-opening of the Royal Theatre, that local veteran of the motion picture business, Mr. M. Pappas, demonstrated by his selection of films that he has his finger on the pulse of public opinion and knows what a Peterborough audience, one of the most critical, demands. The fifteen first run reels showed a carefully selected assortment of subjects. The comedy was of a most amusing description, and would extract laughter from an Egyptian mummy or chase the blues from a fellow whose best girl had turned him down. The Great Western picture is based on the magnificent work done by Canada's splendid North-West Mounted Police. There are too many pictures to devote space to each, but all are, without exception, of the best. The wonderful feature picture shows charming Princella Dean in "Reputation." Every incident in this unusually strong drama vibrates with human interest, and as the plot unfolds the spectators' attention is held intent. The story, in the fewest possible words, is that of an actress, who, after a brief but unhappy married life, goes on the stage. In London she creates a sensation, but gets dissipated to the extent of frequenting opium dens. She learns that another young actress, taking her name, is making a big theatrical hit in New York. Returning to New York, she plots to have her young rival, acting under her name, arrested for murder and succeeds. However, as the play proceeds, the younger woman, whom the older jealous actress discovers to be her own daughter, proves her innocence. A reconciliation is affected, and the younger actress soon steps in time to that grand old wedding march from Lohengrin. This splendid programme will be repeated to-night.

STRONG PICTURE MADE FROM LEVIN NOVEL

"Reputation" is Name of Latest Priscilla Dean Photoplay.

SHOWS WOMAN VS. WOMAN

Priscilla Dean's widely heralded Universal super-feature, "Reputation" shown for the first time locally at the Royal Theatre.

The story is based on "False Colors," Edwin Levin's sensational novel, and was adapted to the screen by Lucien Hubbard, scenario editor at Universal City in collaboration with Doris Schroeder.

In no story, even including "Outside the Law" has the star done such remarkable dramatic work. She reaches the heights of human emotions and sinks into the profoundest depths of misery.

Revolving around a dual role, the theme of "Reputation' concerns a famous actress who dissipates until success falls away from her. She is in London, and a New York theatrical magnate is waiting for her to arrive to star on Broadway. When she doesn't come, her daughter—ignorant of the relationship—impersonates her and makes a sensational hit in her mother's guise. Then back to New York comes the wretched woman who, a year before was the brightest jewel in the diadem of the drama. A tremendous climax follows.

Stuart Paton directed "Reputation" at Universal City with an especially selected cast, including Niles Welch, Mae Giraci, Henry Van Meter, Harry Carter, William Welsh, Spottiswoode Aitken, Rex de Rosell, Madge Hunt, Al Garcia, James McLaughin, Kathleen Myers, Joy McCreery, Alice H. Smith, Francois Dumas and Joe Ray.

Lulu Mayfield, 1220 pounds, the grand champion of the International Livestock Show, at Chicago, was sold for $1.10 a pound.

AMERICAN LEAGUE NEEDS MUCH NEW MATERIAL FOR 1922 SEASON

EVERY CLUB NEEDS PATCHING AND TRADES WILL FEATURE THE COMING MEETING

It wouldn't be at all surprising if some big trades were put over at the coming meeting of the American League.

Every club in the Johnson organization is in the field for material. Not a club is content to stand pat on its line-up of last season.

The St. Louis Browns could use a star second baseman to advantage. The loss of Gedeon killed the Brown' chances. McManus, on his fall showing, has chance to come through. Pitchers could also be used.

Connie Mack says he is satisfied with only Second Baseman Jimmy Dykes, and his catcher, Ralph Perkins. He says he must rebuild the rest of his club.

Clarke Griffith, at Washington, must have a shortstop if he is to get anywhere. No ball club can get along without a shortstop. That is the plight at Washington.

New York, it seems, must have its pitching strength. A star outfield would also help.

Boston needs only a little bolstering here and there to make it a mighty good ball club. The outfield is the weakest point.

Detroit unless it gets a shortstop and second baseman, is going to have a rocky road. No ball club can hope for success without good men at those two positions. It is possible Pep Young may do a comeback and fill the bill at second.

Chicago needs more pitching. Kerr and Faber can't carry the entire burden. Another infielder would help The outfield also could stand some changes.

Cleveland was a strong contender last year but it is understood that Speaker has a number of changes that he may put through before the opening of the season.

BREAKS COUNT IN EVERY GAME

In every sport, the team that gets the breaks invariably wins. Very often the winning team makes the break in the game by pressing an early advantage.

In the world series, the New York Yankees won the first two games because the break in luck favored the American League team. Willingness on the part of the Yankee players to take a chance, assisted greatly in getting the break. The theft of home by Mike McNally in the first game, and a repetition of the play by Bob Meusel in the second contest are two examples. Successful steals of home are something of a rarity in world series games.

In the third game, the Yankees with a three-run lead overpressed their advantage, and really caused the break of the game to revert back to the Giants. With three runs over the plate, and runners on first and third, no one out, and three balls and one strike on the batter, the runner on first for some reason essayed a steal of second.

That runner was Babe Ruth. He was an easy out. Bob Meusel walked on the next ball. Had not Ruth tried to steal, the bases would have been filled and no one out. There is no telling how many runs the Yankees would have made. That play setadied Barnes, and he retired the side with only one run crossing the plate. That play was the turning point in the series. The Giants did come back in the third game, but in reality that play brought them back.

In the recent football game between Penn State and Georgia Tech, the southerners scored the first touchdown of the game in a most impressive fashion. Georgie seemed to outclass Penn. That score may have made the Georgia team careless. Anyway, on the kickoff after the touchdown, Killinger of Penn State ran the ball back 95 yards for a touchdown. That was the break of the game. That extraordinary run spelled defeat for Georgia. It seemed to break the spirit of the eleven. Penn won 28 to 7.

GOLF HAS TEN COMMANDMENTS

Golf is admittedly the hardest of all games to master.

From mere observation one might not get that impression, but truer words were never written.

The golfer whether he be the novice or the polished professional is constantly having his ups and downs. Often it seems as thought the downs predominate.

In base ball the star player suffers from slumps just as much as the ordinary individual. The great hitters like obb, Hornsby, Sisler, Speaker and the rest have periods during the season when most any old kind of pitching seems to puzzle them. It is the same in golf. Walter Hagen, Jock Hutchison, Jim Barnes, Jesse Guilford, Francis Ouimet and Chick Evans(all have their slumps.

"Why is golf so hard for the beginner to master "

In order to get the best possible answer to that conundrum, I put the query to a score of the country's leading players. Here is the consensus, an even dozen reasons.

A desire to play before really learning how to swing the club. The same theory as trying to run before learning to walk.

Golfers Like to Drive.

Seventf-five per cent. of the "grown-ups" who take up golf, never really learn the proper swing because of a preference for actual play rather than practice.

A desire to attain distance rather than accuracy in driving from the tee. Most golfers like the long drive as much as the ball player loves his base hits.

Failure to continue their course of instruction under some competent professional, because they feel they have reached a stage where they have absorbed all the golf knowledge possible. It is at such a time the golfer needs instruction most.

A desire to employ a lot of unnecessary movements, as getting on the toes, swaying the body, bracing the muscles and constantly shifting the feet. Every good "pro" player has a certain fixed set of movements and never varies them.

Allowing the desire to hit the ball to get the better of one's judgment, which causes the player to hurry the swing after reaching the top.

Fooling oneself by playing even with golfers who have a nedge and thereby spoiling one's game to a certain extent by "pressing" it, in an effort to keep pace with your superiors.

Player Must Concentrate.

A tendency to release the hold on the club. While it is not necessary to hold the shaft of the club in a death-like grip, it must be held firmly to get the best results.

A forced pivoting rather than a natural one, which tends to take the "punch" out of the swing.

A preference for the iron rather than the wooden club from the tee, causing the beginner to neglect the driver and brassie for so long he never really conquers them.

Failure to improve one's score is very often due to the preference for driving, over all other departments of the game. Golf is not a one-strike game. The desire to hit them hard often makes a player neglect his short game.

Lack of concentration is the greatest fault of all golf players, whether the beginner or the finished professional. The mind cannot wander to other fields and get results. When playing golf business and social interests must be sidetracked.

1. Keep you eye on the ball.
2. Don't hurry the swing, the club will eventually reach the ball.
3. Practice rather than competitive play, perfects the swing.
4. Remember that accuracy is as essential as distance.
5. Don't get the impression that it is possible for one person to absorb all the golf knowledge. Briefly, don't get chesty.
6. Never prevaricate in order to retain your prestige. You are only fooling yourself.
7. Remember that most of the great players make but ltle fuss about their game.
8. Don't neglect your short game. Remember that many a match is decided on the greens.
9. Don't lose your poise and temper when things break badly. Any one can be a fair weather sailor.

Stomach Off? Try This.

LIVELY CARD FOR BIG INDOOR MEET AT RINK MONDAY NIGHT NEXT

SCHOLES OF TORONTO AND ALBERT SMOKE AS HEADLINER IN FIVE MILE RACE.

With Scholes and Smoke in a five mile race, as a headliner, the P.A.A.A. are building up a splendid programme of events for the indoor meet at the Brock street rink next Monday night. Industrial concerns are showing considerable interest in the tug-of-war and they will be well represented in this event. Entries are coming in well for the other events.

Scholes' appearance here is certain to be popular, because of his clever performance in the Hamilton Herald race. The five-mile run is more to his liking, and with the Indian runner for an opponent, the Toronto boy will be out to show his wares.

Reserved seats go on sale at Bond's drug store to-morrow morning at 50 cents, with the reserved section confined to the theatre seats. The general admission will be 25 cents.

The decorations at the rink will be removed so that the crowd may have an unobstructed view of the events from all parts of the rink.

Entries are being received by Walter Smaill at the Y.M.C.A. up to noon on Monday. The entry fee carries with it admittance to the rink.

A band will be in attendance and the Dugan Brothers also will assist in entertaining the crowd.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Peterborough Dec. 9

Dear Sir,—Re Mr. Burnham's majority in 1917 I notice Mr. "Impartial", who ever he is, quoted Mr. Burnham's majority in 1917 as almost double that of Mr. Gordon's two elections namely February 1921 and December 1921. Now I would like to point out that in 1917 there was a war on. The boundaries of West Peterborough extended at that time over the Atlantic Ocean and away into France and Russia. Again I would like to say, only the women folk of Soldiers, were allowed to vote, one half the people in Canada were disfranchised. No doubt if the voting had been confined to West Peterborough proper Mr. Burnham would not have got as many votes as he did majority. Men voted in France, but did not give a toss who got in so long as we got the war finished I was over there at the time and I know what I am talking about. I for one did not care a rap about the Government, I knew the thing I wanted was to finish the Job we had on hand. We had plenty to think of. If a wildcat or anything else had been put up he would have got in with the same majority. So I don't think that Mr. Burnham has any credit coming on that score.

Thanking you Mr. Editor, for this space in your valuable paper.

Your truly,

Ex-Sergt. Major.

COMING TO PETERBOROUGH GETS PRESENTATION.

A number of friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Hutchinson, at Birdsalls, recently on the eve of their removal to Peterborough, and presented them with a handsome sofa, accompanied by a eulogistic farewell address, read by Miss Davidson. The presentation was made by Mr. Gerald Adamson. In a happy reply, Mr. Hutchinson assured the company that he could look back to his old friends in Birdsalls and Villiers with the warmest feelings, and he invited them to visit him at his new home n Peterborough. A jolly evennig was spent in dancing and games.

USEFUL CHRISTMAS GIFTS WERE SOLD AT BAZAAR.

The Boethian Girls' Club of George Street Methodist Church held a small bazaar yesterday afternoon and evening in Mr. P. Connal's George Street store. The decorations were tastefully carried out in pale lemon lattice work arrangements over the various tables, with effective imitation floral embellishments. Gramophone music was supplied, and the several tables were covered with various useful and fancy Christmas gifts of the daintiest variety, with one corner devoted to some appetising-looking home-made cooking.

The sale, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the new Sunday School project, was very successful. Mrs. Mabel Gardner was convenor, the Misses Mae McKim and Marjorie Bridge had charge of the candy and home-made cooking; Misses Eva Outram and Flossie Stewart of the fancy articles; and dolls and babies' wear were sold by Misses Elsie Taylor and Hazel Brown.

COUNTY COURT BELEAGURED

LEGAL FORCES HAVE THROWN UP RAMPARTS OF TABLES TOPPED WITH BRIEFS, BRIEF BAGS, AND MOUNDS OF NOTES AND REFERENCES.

A feature of the legal battle involving a highly technical case that has been in progress at the Court House for three days is not so much the galaxy of lawyers, and that aspect is really notable, as is the manner in which they have dug themselves in. When the County Council restored the Court room after the fire the equipment of tables, all long and heavy solid oak structures, seemed lavish, and usually there has been table room to spare. But in this case the opposing legal battalions have literally exhausted the supply. Piles of papers, exhibits, notes, references of all kinds are strewn along the polished oak tops, showing the lawyers up to their necks in the impedimenta of their profession. Each lawyer appears to have pre-empted a table about as long and shiny as the bars of other and ancient memory, and the arrangement of them before the Judge's dias suggests some queer maze, a barricade hemming in Walter Wood, the court crier, and the lady stenographer, or some such grouping you might expect to find after a lot of children had played house in the court room, if you can imagine children ever romping within the precincts of dignity where justice also presides. The tables present the outer fringe of the court within which the lawyers in turn shuttle carelessly back and forth from this table or that to the witness box. This case saw one witness on the stand for a day and a half, and it was intimated that it would continue until ten o'clock to-night and probably be still going strong on Monday. That's just what the zigzagging tables set end on end suggest, a state of seige, but it will have to be raised for the December sessions of the County Court on Tuesday.

The neutral who views the scene unconcerned about the result, may be inclined to urge the burly policemen to rescue the helpless lady in the centre of the stockade or to lend a friendly hand to W. Wood when it comes time to extricate himself and get home for lunch or bed.

TO SUPPORT IRISH PEACE SETTLEMENT

VARIOUS GROUPS IN IRELAND OPPOSE ATTITUDE TAKEN BY DE VALERA—LEADER WILL RESIGN

THE IRISH SITUATION

BELFAST, December 10. — Canadain Press. — The Irish Independent announces the opinions of the most prominent Bishops of the Roman Catholic Church in Ireland on the Irish treaty and shows beyond doubt that they are steadfastly opposed to the attitude taken by De Valera. With one voice they approve the peace treaty and call for its ratification by the Dail Eireann.

Cardinal Logue says De Valera has acted unfairly and declares that he will call a meeting of the Irish Bishops next week.

WILL SUPPORT TREATY

LODON, December 10. Canadian Press. — Despatches published in the morning newspapers from Irish correspondents confirm the views already expressed that the majority of the members in the Southern Irish Parliament will support an Irish treaty and that as a result De Valera will resign as head of the Dail Government and will be succeeded by Arthur Griffith.

AWAIT DEVELOPMENTS.

ROME, December 10. Canadian Press. — The Pope has decided to await further developments in the Irish situation before making pronouncement on the treaty.

Yesterday he received Count de Salis, the British minister to the Vatican, to learn the exact position.

TOMORROW NIGHT'S SERVICE AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

THE MINISTER'S "TALKS" TO YOUNG PEOPLE DRAWING LARGE AUDIENCES — VERY SPECIAL MUSIC.

The service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church to-morrow night will undoubtedly draw a very large audience to hear the continuation of the talks to young people by the pastor, Rev. Jas. Rollins. The minister has been calling his evening addresses "Talks," but they are strong, forceful, attention-compelling discussions of qualities, the presence of which make and the absence of which mar young life. It is not surprising that young people look forward to an evening in St. Andrew's as to a time that will help them to their best.

The musical numbers for tomorrow night should appeal very strongly. There will be an unaccompanied anthem, in which the Imperial Male Quartette will take the quartette part. A duet, "Night Hymn at Sea," by Mrs. Maurice Park and Mr. R. A. Brown, and a mixed quartette, "Nailed to the Cross," by Mrs. Maurice Park, Mrs. Ford Turner and Messrs. Humpage and Smith.

Seats free and a hearty welcome given to all strangers.

DECLARES TASK OF NEW GOVERNMENT CALLS FOR SYMPATHY AND FAITH IN THE PEOPLE.

HALIFAX, Dec. 10.—(Canadian Press). —In the House of Assembly which knew him as the provincial premier 25 years ago, Hon. W. S. Fielding was welcomed by the electors of Halifax, members of Provincial Government and Stalwart Liberals of Nova Scotia last night After dwelling on the greatness of the Liberal victory Mr. Fielding declared that the task of the new government called for sympathy, but he was not preaching the gospel of despair. Rather one of faith in the people and he expected in reasonable time that the country would recover the prosperity it had enjoyed under Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

THE MARKETEERS

ALL THE ARTICLES OFFERED TO-DAY ON LOCAL MARKET DID NOT COME OUT OF THE TOP SIX INCHES

There is no apparent scarcity of fowl this year, judging by the overabundance in the basket market today. Fowl overflowed the tables, and was impromptly located on chairs, window sills and in every corner that would accommodate a bird. Besides the great quantities upstairs, there were quite a few birds sold on the open market. To-day's market had all the earmarks of the Christmas turmoil, but prices were below last year's level by far. Buyers to-day must have been foreseeing Christmas, however, for a good many fowl were changing hands, and no wonder, for there were some fine birds offered. Housewives seemed to be getting in before the rush of next Saturday and Christmas Saturday, when the selections will not be as good.

Turkeys, 45 Cents.

For those who wanted turkeys there seemed to be a plentiful supply, and the prices could not be complained of. Some were sold at 40 cents, most of them, however, at 45 and 50. Farmers' wives said the turkey has to be delicately nurtured, and the prices they were asking were only fair. Pocketbooks not fat enough for the King of Birds, found goose at 30 cents a pound within their limit and chicken at 25, a more satisfactory substitute for turkey for evident financial reasons. Ducks were offered in large numbers at 30 and 35 cents a pound.

Dairy Market.

Eggs were just nicely dodging the $1 mark. There did not seem to be any difference, but some asked only 90, and some demanded 95. As long as the 90 cent supply held out, city people dodged the 95 centers. Butter was unchanged from its steady beat around 45 cents.

Business went on as usual in the open market. Sales seemed slow, and the farmers not too busy to exchange wise cracks about the election. Potatoes were down 15 cents to $1.60. Meat was in greater quantity than ever, and the prices were at rock bottom. Beef was 8c and 9c, pork 15c and 17c, and mutton 10c and 12c. At these prices it is hardly necessary to say the farmers do not bring it in in Packards. Onions were up to 80 cents a peck.

Apples were none too plentiful. Spys sold at 60 cents and Russets 50 cents; Russets were $2 a bag.

Christmas Trees.

A couple of boys were selling Christmas trees on the market to-day at 25 cents each. They were slender spruces. "We can't get any big ones. They're all cut down now. The only way you can get them is to take the top off a big tree," the boys declared. If nice full trees are getting scarce now, where is the future supply to come from? Some enterprising person had better go in for raising Christmas trees.

All the things sold on the market do not come out of the ground. A man to-day offered for sale some plaster works of art (?) that he was asking from $2 to $8 for. Some were in the form of lamps, but there were animals and other tiny men. He said they were cheaper than uptown. Another man was selling wickerwork baskets, and another willow baskets, and another axe handles. Certainly all the commodities sold to-day did not come out of J. J. Morrison's top six inches of the soil.

GIRLS' AUXILIARY AT ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

The Girls' Auxilary of All Saints' Church held a well-attended meeting in the Primary Room last evening, presided over by Miss Sisson, president of the society. The bale which the girls send annually to the Yukon was exhibited, and came in for much admiring comment. A child in this far northern territory is cloth ed throughout the year by these young ladies, and annually, they send her a complete outfit of wear for all season, with bedding supplies included. The various articles, both serviceable and ornamental were a great credit to the painstaking care and effort of the girls who made them.

The meeting was welcomed by Rev. Mr. Grobb, and was briefly addressed by Mr. W. R. Courage on missionary work, and the ideas animating its workers.

The girls of the Junior W. A. led by Mrs. H. E. Connelly, rendered several vocal numbers, and refreshments were served.

SKATING ON RICE LAKE DUCKS WENT THIS WEEK

Fred Simpson of Hiawatha told the Examiner this morning that Rice Lake froze over early this week, and that since then some of the young people living along the shore have skated across it. Fred Anderson crossed on Thursday morning from Rainy Point to Curtis's, and it was learned afterwards that on the previous evening part of the route that he covered had been wide open.

The Rainy Point duck hunters lived up to their resolve to remain until the last ducks had gone, and this week their camp goods were drawn on sleighs up the lake to Gore's Landing. Most of this party are from Toronto and other outside places.

The Rice Lake season is definitely ended with the coming of the ice and the departure of the ducks, a few of which may stay all winter in the open water stretches near the Hastings rapids.

EARL READING
Viceroy of India who has announced that firmer measures will be taken in dealing with rebels and preachers of sedition

COPY OF TENTATIVE AGREEMENT SUBMITTED TO THE RAILWAY COMMITTEE OF THE CITY COUNCIL—WILL ARRANGE CONFERENCE.

CROSSING PROTECTION

Negotiations between the city, the C.P.R., and the G.T.R., for the construction of a union station in the city that have been under way for some time have begun to bear fruit. The G.T.R. have given their approval of the scheme, and the three interested parties have agreed that the "diamond" near the corner of Townsend and Bethuse Streets is the only suitable situation for the proposed station.

The C.P.R., who have led in the agitation for a union station, last night submitted to the Railway Committee a draft agreement for the consideration of the Council. It is a very lengthy document, comprising clauses covering 15 closely typewritten sheets.

Recommend Conference.

The Railway Committee discussed only the first three Thursday eve, on Ald. J. J. Turner's suggestion, and the only action taken was to recommend that a copy of the agreement be sent to Vice-President W. D. Robb of the G.T.R., who has not yet seen the agreement, for his consideration, and recommend that Mayor McIntyre arrange conference with A. D. MacTier, Vice-President of the C.P.R., as soon as convenient to discuss the clauses of the agreement which affect the city.

Vice-President Sends Agreement.

In a letter accompanying the draft agreement, Vice-President MacTier said:

I enclose herewith a memorandum of the agreement which, subject, of course, to the aproval of the Grand Trunk Railway, and also subject to our right to make such further changes as conditions might possibly appear to warrant, is submitted for the consideration of the city.

You will note the various clauses covering the question of when the work shall begin, but we are not at the moment prepared, in view of the general conditions, to bind ourselves to any particular time.

You will recollect that it was at the suggestion of Mr. Robb, of the Grand Trunk, that this company has been asked to draw up a draft agreement.

The agreement with the first three clauses that effect the City and which were discussed briefly last night as follows:—

Memorandum of Agreement made this——day of——in the year of——, Between The Corporation Of The City of Peterborough, hereinafter called "the City"; of the First Part.

The Grand Trunk Railway Company Of Canada, hereinafter called "the Grand Trunk"; of the second part.

—And—

The Canadian Pacific Railway Of Canada, hereinafter called "the Canadian Pacific"; of the Third Part.

WHEREAS the Grand Trunk now has an exclusive passenger station in the vicinity of Charlotte street in the City of Peterborough; the Canadian Pacific now has an exclusive passenger station in the vicinity of George Street in the said City;

AND WHEREAS the City desires to provide, maintain and operate such a joint passenger station;

AND WHEREAS the Candian Pacific is willing to provide, maintain and operate such a joint passenger station;

AND WHEREAS the Grand

REPORT PRESENTED TO THE COUNTY COUNCIL — REEVE SHAW HAD BRIDGE PROBLEM OF HIS OWN—MICA IN GRAVEL MADE CONCRETE UNADHESIVE

SALARY CUT COMING

'Bob" Shaw, Reeve of Harvey Township, had a little bridge problem of his own this year, which he explained to the County Council Friday afternoon. It was, in fact is, for it has not yet been completed, on the North Squaw River and was estimated at $3,200. The abutments have been built at a cost of $2,277, an amount that struck Reeve Eason as rather high when he obtained for information purposes a statement of the special bridge expenditures this year.

"We are paying for the bridges but of the revenue and without issuing debentures," said Mr. Eason, "and I wanted to know what the cost has been."

Mica in Gravel.

"If the gravel had been all right we wouldn't have had any trouble," said Mr. Shaw. "We drew fifty loads of gravel from a pit close by, but when the construction work got under way we found the cement wouldn't bind. It turned out that there was mica with the gravel in that pit and it wouldn't hold together."

County Clerk Elliott added that the engineer didn't know what was wrong, so he took a sample of the gravel to Toronto. The mica was discovered in a labratory test.

This unforeseen obstacle upset the plans for the building of the bridge, which was still unfinished. The abutments, Mr. Shaw said, were good, and the defective gravel would be used to fill in the approaches.

Reinforcing steel and lumber that had been bought for the job would be sold and charged to the credit of this bridge account. Originally the bridge was intended to be reinforced concrete throughout, but although the piers and abutments were satisfactory to the engineer he wouldn't sanction a concrete top because of the faulty gravel.

It is now proposed to complete the work by laying a wooden top or steel girders. Mr. Shaw said he expected the work would not cost finally more than the appropriation.

Get Out Floats.

Reeves Holland, Nicholls and Shaw were authorized to procure whatever new floats are needed for the Chemong and Gannon's Narrows bridges.

Suburban Roads Report.

The Suburban Roads Commission, composed of Ald. F. Whitehouse (Chairman), Ernest Devell (Otonabee) and Wm. Brown (Smith), presented the report of their work during the present year. Ald. Whitehouse gave the following statement of expenditure:

Chemong road	$ 982.45
Lakefield road	4,806.95
Warsaw road	5,185.27
Norwood road	3.60
Sherbrooke street west	1,170.52
Hale's Bridge road	4,198.45
Keene road	25.20
Park street south	330.05
Machinery, etc.	6,387.34
	$23,107.83

Covers 26 Miles of Roads.

The commission has now charge of the following mileage: Four miles on each of the Chemong, Lakefield and Warsaw roads, three on Norwood and Hale's Bridge roads, two on Keene road and three miles in North Monaghan.

Move to Cut Salaries.

Reeve Coughlin of Douro broached the suggestion of reducing the salaries of the public officials in the pay of the county.

During the war increases had been made to meet the higher cost of living, but conditions were almost back to normal, and the ratepayers of the county expected the Council to make some revision of the salary list.

"Some of us may not be back next year, so I would like to leave things as good as I can," said Mr. Coughlin. "We can start with ourselves and put the allowance back to $5 a day, instead of the $6 we have been paid this year. I don't think we are worth more than our predecessors' salaries."

Mr. Lawrie, Deputy-Reeve of Otonabee, seconded Mr. Coughlin's motion, that "the Council be paid the same as they received prior to the raise made ths year and that other officials having received a raise have their salaries reduced to former amounts, except the Clerk and Treasurer and the Superintendent and Matron of the House of Refuge, such changes to take place on and after January 1st, 1922."

This was the wording of the motion after several alterations suggested in the discussion. In its original, Mr. Coughlin made a proviso that any official who sought exemption from a wage cut could present their case to the Council.

Mr. Wilson said that the incoming Council should be left free to deal with these questions.

Mr. Shaw objected to any reduction of salary of E. M. Elliott, County Clerk and Treasurer. It was also felt that the Superintendent and Matron of the House of Refuge were giving splendid service and earning the $850 they are paid.

Mr. Eason agreed with the general idea in the motion, but contended that some officials were worth all they were receiving.

Reeve Nicholls of Smith was willing to revert to the former stipend for Councillors, and also favored retrenchment in some salaries.

Mr. Middleton proposed that this question be referred to the incoming Council, but Reeve Curtis took the position that "it is our duty to clean it up now."

The motion carried.

In his report to the Roads and Bridges Committee of which is Chairman Reeve Clark of Galway included tre following details:

I might say that instead of rebuilding Union Creek Boundary Bridge the Victoria members with myself decided to repair the same and I believe that the bridge is now in a safe condition for at least ten years, for somewhere in the neighborhood of $308.00 to this country.

Molyneaux Salmon Creek Bridges have been attended to in accordance with authority vested in me by your standing committee.

Burleigh and other representatives where some Bridge repairing was carried out will report verbally to you, and no doubt be to your entire satisfaction.

Mr. Holland will kindly report to you what has been done re Pidgeon Creek Bridge.

You are all aware of the action taken re assistance to Havelock Bridge on the Provincial Highway and Mr. Curtis will verify tre expenditure.

Messrs Shaw Scott and Eason have every reason to be proud of the Bridges, constructed under their supervision this year and will no doubt verbally report under the same.

FACTORIES CONVERTED.

OTTAWA, December 10 (Canadian Press). — That factories and workshops in Germany in which war materials were being manufactured, have since been converted to more peaceful purposes, was stated in a letter received by F. A. Acland, Deputy Minister of Labour, from Gerald H. Brown, Assistant Deputy Minister, and who was one of the Dominion Government delegates to the Third International Labour Conference recently held at Geneva.

Mr. Brown is at present travelling in Germany with British, French, Italian, Swedish, and Japanese delegates to the conference for the purpose of inspecting former munition plants and economic conditions generally. The party is travelling by special car placed at its disposal by the German Government.

FIRE DESTROYED A HOME IN CAVAN

EIGHT THOUSAND DOLLAR HOME OF HERBERT BIGELOW WENT UP IN SMOKE.

BETHANY, Dec. 10..—A fire of unknown origin destroyed the fine $8,000 home of Herbert Bigelow, two miles south-east of Bethany, early this morning. It is believed the fire broke out in the summer kitchen about midnight and spread slowly through the kitchen, woodshed and into the upper storey of the house. It was some time later that the family were awakened by the flames and when they left the house the woodshed and kitchen were almost compfetely destroyed.

A telephone call to Bethany for assistance was received at a party that was just breaking up and the young men and some of the neighbors responded, arriving in time to save most of the furniture. The car, gasoline engine and entire contents of summer kitchen were destroyed.

The house, which was of white brick construction, was totally destroyed, as well as the garage and adjoining buildings. Although the barns are near the house they were never in danger, as the strong southwest wind veered the flames in the opposite direction. The cause of th fire was not known to-day.

The response of the neighbors and villagers was appreciated by Mr. Bigelow and had they not responded with such a spirit the loss would have been much greater. The house was valued at betwen $7,000 and $8,000 and had only been erected a short time. It was said to be one of the finest homes in the township of Cavan. It is understood the loss was partly covered by insurance.

Last night's fire adds another to the list of disastrous fires that have occurred near Peterborough during the autumn and early winter.

CONFERENCE DELEGATES OPTIMISTIC

PLENARY SESSION OF WASHINGTON CONFERENCE TO BE HELD THIS MORNING — THE FOUR-POWER AGREEMENT.

FAR EAST QUESTIONS

WASHINGTON, December 10 (Canadian Press). — A plenary session of the Washington Conference will be held at eleven o'clock to-day, M. Viviani, head of the French delegation, said last night after returning from a conference with members of other delegations. It was indicated that Far Eastern questions, and presumably the four-power agreement for the Pacific, would be considered at that time.

CRITICAL STAGE REACHED.

WASHINGTON, December 10 (Canadian Press). — The critical stage of the Shantung conversations between the Chinese and Japanese delegations was reached late yesterday when it was agreed to take up to-day the question of the Kiao-Chow-Tsninanfu Railway, now under Japanese control.

On the question of whether Japan will agree to China's having complete, undivided authority over the railroad, depends the success or the failure of the Washington Conference, so far as China is concerned, according to the Chinese delegation.

AN AGREEMENT REACHED.

WASHINGTON, December 10 (Canadian Press). — An agreement was reached late yesterday by the Chinese and Japanese delegates for the return to China of all public properties in the Kiao-Chow leasehold, subject to confirmation by Tokio of of one feature of the agreement.

Japan will be allowed to retain such institutions as schools, shrines, and cemeteries, which are exclusively Japanese in character.

China, on her part, agrees to refund all moneys spent on public properties developed during the Japanese occupation.

A FAVOURABLE REPLY.

WASHINGTON, December 10 (Canadian Press). — A favourable reply was received last night from Paris by the French delegation to the Washington Conference on the four-power proposal for the Pacific. It was said that France stood ready to enter with Great Britain, Japan, and the United States into such an agreement.

"ACT OF GRACE" BY THE TRIBUNAL

A NOVEL RECOMMENDATION OF INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION BOARD.

WASHINGTON, December 10. Canadian Press. — A recommendation novel in the history of international arbitration was made here by the United States and British claims tribunal in disposing of the case of the United States fishing schooner David J. Adams, which was seized in the territortorial waters of Canada, on May 6th, 1886, and declared forfeited to the British crown, together with its cargo, by a Vice-Admiralty Court at Halifax on a charge of illegal entry into Canadian waters.

Although the evidence submitted indicated that the owner of the vessel, Jesse Lewis, of Gloucester, Mass., had lost his ship through violation of treaty provisions, and was not entitled to an award of the $8,037.96, which he claimed, the tribunal urged upon the British and Canadian Government, an allowance as a act of grace to the said Jesse Lewis," whose means of livelihood had been lost when the ship was seized.

"BOB" ROGERS ON ELECTIONS

BLAMES PRESENT DEFEAT OF CONSERVATI E PARTY ON "HYBRID" UNION OF 1917.

WINNIPEG, December 10. Canadian Press. — Hon. Robert Rogers, who was defeated by a Progressive in Lisgar in Tuesday's election, last night issued a statement in which he seeks to lay on the Union Government the responsibility for the present condition of the Conservative party.

"The result of this election," said Mr. Rogers, "makes abundantly clear what the fact is: that the Conservatiev party have certainly paid the full penalty for the hybrid union of 1917—a union that came of illegitimate birth, a union that lived as it came, a union that disappeared as it lived, a union that will eternally live as the most disgraceful blot on any page of the history of supposed Conservative direction in Canada.

"The Liberals of Canada are entitled to congratulations in that they have been successful in leading our party back to party government. Party Government may have had its defects but we must never forget its many virtues. It was serious party competition in the past that made Canada what it is to-day."

REPUDIATES SETTLEMENT PROPOSALS

ARTHUR GRIFFITH IS EXPECTED TO GET EFFECTIVE MAJORITY FOR THE IRISH TREATY.

PRESS COMMENT

LONDON, Dec. 10..— (Canadian Press.)—After the first surprise occasioned by Eamon De Valera's repudiation of the proposition for creating the Irish Free State, officials in both London and Dublin were occupied yesterday mainly in canvassing the prospects for ratification of the Anglo-Irish Treaty when it comes before the meeting of the Dail Eireann next Wednesday.

The balance of opinion in both cities appeared to be that Arthur Griffith, as sponsor for the treaty, will otbain an effective majority, although it was admitted here that Mr. De Valera possesses a strong following and that the voting, therefore, may possibly be very close. If Mr. De Valera should be defeated in his figt against ratification, it is thought here that he may resign his position as head of the Sinn Fein.

Calm Prevails.

DUBLIN, Dec. 10. — (Canadian Press.)— The sensation following the revelation of a split in the Dail Eireann Cabinet over ratification of the Anglo-Irish Treaty yielded to a more calm attitude here last night. There seems to be ground for the belief that Arthur Griffth, who headed the delegation which signed the agreement in London, will have a sufficient following at the meeting of the Sinn Fein Parliament next Wednesday evening to insure ratification of the agreement by a substantial majority.

Press Comment.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The British weekly reviews are practically unanimous in welcoming the Anglo-Irish Treaty.

The 'Nation' calls it "the first great repudiation of force since the war."

The Saturday Review considers that neither Sinn Fein or Ulster emerges from the articles of the agreement with much plunder.

Most of the editorials enlarge upon the importance of the agreement in the light of its effect upon Anglo-American relations. The Spectator, which, throughout the deliberations, has been opposed to the Government's policy of what it calls yielding to Sinn Fein, says it is now the duty of all good citizens to give the proposed settlement every chance of

A SOURCE OF DANGER.

The people of Toronto are to vote on January 1st on the question of whether or not all vehicles using the public streets should carry lights after sundown. The submitting of such a by-law to city voters emphasizes the desirability of a general regulation of this nature. If it is considered necessary that vehicles in a well-lighted city like Toronto should carry lights, how much more desirable it is that on the dark country roads the same precaution should be taken? One of the greatest menaces to public safety is the horse-drawn vehicle, which without any illumination is invisible except at close range, and which on that account invites disaster every time a motor car approaches. The Ontario Motor League, it is hoped, will bring this matter before the Ontario Government at the next session, and every effort should be made to ensure the passing of legislation that will in this respect at least make travelling at night on the public highway safer than it can possibly be under present conditions.

THE END OF SPOTTERS.

It is announced that the regulations of the Provincial Police Force are to be amended so that the administration of the Ontario Temperance Act will as far as possible be carried on without the employment of "spotters." General Elliott in this connection declares that "the department is willing to lose a case rather than utilize questionable means to secure a conviction." With this policy the people of the Province will be thoroughly in accord. The general use of unreliable spotters, many of them men with criminal reputations and whose veracity has been questioned on their every appearance in court, has been a practice of which the average citizen had nothing favourable to say. Many magistrates have refused to register a conviction when the only evidence offered was the testimony of these questionable witnesses, and the public in general has heartily condemned the system built up around the use of such despicable agents. The work of administering the Temperance Act will be carried on by duly sworn-in Provincial constables, and the spotter will be dropped from the machinery of the department. His passing will be regretted by no one.

THE NEW CABINET.

The Premier-elect is at least not suffering from a lack of advice. Newspapers of all political shades have been telling him what the country requires and what is expected of him. The Examiner has no desire to add to this flood of suggestion and recommendation, but will confine itself to the hope that the very best material available for Cabinet purposes will be selected by Hon. Mr. King. The situation seems to be that for that section of Canada lying east of the Ottawa River the Premier has a wealth of Cabinet timber from which to make his choice, while for the balance of the Dominion his selection is confined to a comparatively small Parliamentary group, unless he follows the course that was so successfully adopted by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who did not hesitate to go outside of the ranks of his elected supporters to find men of the desired calibre to head the departments of his Government. Mr. King may be guided by this precedent in choosing his Cabinet, but at all events he is not likely to lose sight of the fact that the great problems with which Canada is confronted necessitate the services of the biggest men that can be secured. If it is necessary to go outside for such men there may be some disappointment among elected members, but the country would welcome the action as an unmistakable indication of Mr. King's promise, that if elected his Government would not be a one-man affair, but would be made up of the best men that could be pressed into service.

THE "UNKNOWN" SOLDIER.

With the change in Government at Ottawa the plan announced some time ago by the Meighen administration of bringing an unknown soldier from the western front for burial at Ottawa may be abandoned. The Examiner was opposed to the project when it was first mooted, but when it was definitely decided upon, urged the Canadian people to forget their differences of opinion on the question and to unite in making the ceremony worthy of the occasion. Now, however, the situation is different. The new Government is under no obligation to carry out the proposal of its predecessors, and The Examiner hopes that it will not do so. We agree with the Grand Army of United Veterans, who in opposing the plan declare that it is in their opinion "a travesty on the solemn ceremony of Nov. 11, 1920, at Westminster Abbey." The burial of the unknown British soldier on that occasion was accepted by the British people everywhere as representative of the Empire. There is no necessity of an imitation of that wonderful ceremony on Canadian soil. Our dead are represented in the soldier who is enshrined in the historic old abbey in the heart of the Empire. He might have been, in fact, a Canadian; at least his tomb honors every British hero who died for the cause of freedom. That should be enough.

CHRISTMAS IS COMING.

It is just sixteen days until Christmas. "There is nothing very new or startling in that statement," says the cynic, and goes his way. "Is it possible " say fathers and mothers as they begin to plan in earnest for the surprises and the enjoyment of the youngsters. "We know it," say the little ones as another day is crossed off the calendar of joyous expectation.

The fact is that the turmoil of elections has occupied our minds so completely during the last two months that the tinkle of Santa Claus' reindeer harness has been drowned. This is a misfortune, for Christmas is not a festival that can be lightly approached without plan or preparation. The essence of Christmas does not lie in the interchanging of gifts, but in the unselfishness that prompts their giving. Presents that are purchased by the dozen for haphazard distribution among friends and acquaintances are not real Christmas presents. The gift is the outward token of the kindliness, the thoughtfulness and the discernment of the giver.

It is for this reason that Christmas plans must be laid far ahead, and that is the reason for the reminder that Christmas Day is only sixteen days ahead, for there is a lot to be done before the twenty-fifth. In the first place we must win back what for want of a better term is called the "Christmas Spirit," the spirit of Bob Cratchitt and Tiny Tim. It is a tragic commentary on our civilization that this spirit does not persist all the year round, but it is an excellent thing for ourselves and for our happiness that Christmas comes round once a year to remind us of how far we have drifted from the Cratchitt spirit.

We who are grown up have a responsibility in the matter towards the younger ones. Childish hopes and childish happiness are of the buoyant kind that take a good deal of immersion in the cold waters of disillusionment before they are quenched. But the grown-ups are the dynamo of the Christmas machinery. All the light and the motion and the brilliancy of the Christmas season belong to the children, but the motive power must be supplied by the elders.

The time for the lifting of the Christmas curtain is almost here, and we haven't yet begun to tune up the orchestra. It isn't fair to the little ones, it isn't fair to ourselves, it isn't fair to Canada.

Let us forget politics for a time and let us get ready for Christmas. Let us don our motley and our paper caps, for the children's sake—and for our own.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

REQUESTS KING TO PICK GORDON

COUNTY COUNCIL ASK THAT HE BE APPOINTED TO CABINET

A formal resolution requesting the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King to select G. N. Gordon, M.P., as a Minister of his Government was unanimously passed by the County Council on Friday afternoon with a standing vote. It was moved by Reeve G. B. Nicholls of Smith township and seconded by Reeve Robert Shaw of Harvey township.

Mr. Nicholls, on account of a severe cold, simply introduced the resolution, disavowing any political motive, but urging it in the interests of Peterborough county and the entire district of Central Ontario.

"We have never had a representative in the Cabinet," said Mr. Shaw. "I consider Mr. Gordon worthy of a position in the new Cabinet, and it would certainly be an honour and an advantage to Peterborough county as a hole if Mr. Gordon were named by Mr. King."

Reeve McIntosh of North Monaghan and Reeve Curtis of Havelock, indorsed the resolution, which was adopted with applause.

LITERARY GEMS

Before Elections.

'Tis the glad hand I'll be gettin'
Just before election day,
And its pretty even bettin'
That the candidate will say
In a voice as full and hearty
As the moon-day dinner bell,
"How's the boy today, McCarty,
Is the missus keepin' well?"

After Elections.

Now the candidate is singin'
To another sort of tune,
Very diff'rent to the ringin'
Of the dinner bell at noon,
He's elected—and his party
Is in power for a spell,
So it's "Damn your eyes, McCarty,"
Or "McCarty go to hell."

—J. R. Bissette.

GOOD ROADS SCHEME FAILS SOME OF THE TOWNSHIPS IN PETERBORO'

BELMONT, FOR EXAMPLE, DISSATISFIED WITH SMALL REVENUE PROVIDED — WARDEN GRIFFITH SAYS DESIGNATED ROAD IMPROVEMENT WILL NEVER BE COMPLETED AT PRESENT RATE.

SEEKING TOWNSHIP SYSTEM

Several of the Peterborough townships that formed the good roads group two years ago and adopted the Ontario Highway Department's policy are now clamoring for their freedom or for a change in the regulations that will fit the special problems they have encountered. In the County Council this week Warden Griffith thumped his desk and vehemently declared that things could not go on as they are. Two years ago the Reeve of Belmont was an ardent advocate of the provincial system mainly for the reason that it held out financial aid in road-building. He and many other Peterborough farmers had concluded that their municipalities should be getting a share of the government's grants. To-day Warden Griffith's attitude towards the Highways Act and its provisions has swung from the warmth of approval through the stage of coolness and out again to the warmth of dissatisfaction. And it is not directed so much at the Act itself as at the way it is operating in this county.

A county provincial road was designated from Peterborough straight east through Norwood to the border of Hastings county where it picked up its extension and continued easterly to the Marmora territory. In this county it traversed the townships of Otonabee, Asphodel, Douro and Belmont. In fact it is popularly known as the Norwood road and marks the dividing line between Douro and Otonabee townships.

Road Tax Common.

The southern block of good roads townships in this county decided this year to fix a flat rate of three mills for the programme of improvement on the designated roads. And right there Warden Griffith lodges his big complaint. Choosing approximate round numbers to illustrate his point he showed that a three mill road tax in Belmont on their equalized assessment of $347,000 yields only $1,041, and the government's grant of 40 per cent. adds $416.40 for a total of $1,457. On the other side Otonabee, with an assessment of $2,000,000, raises a tax of $6,000 and receives $2,400 from the Government.

Wants Variable Rate.

With those figures as the basis of his contention, Warden Griffith asserts that his $1,457 is altogether inadequate for the work to be done in Belmont, yet Otonabee with the same rate secures enough work for its road programme. He therefore agues that each township should be permitted under the Act to fix its own rate and not be bound by the flat rate fixed for all the townships in the county system.

"At the rate we're going we'll never live to see the work we have laid out fisished," said Mr. Griffiths. "We're getting nowhere, and it has just come to this that there must be a change of some kind. Let us gt back to the old township system or change the regulations so we can provide something like enough money to get our road work done."

Revenue Too Small.

The Warden emphasized the fact that an exceedingly long link of the county provincial road reaches across Belmont, and for that reason it would never be finished if only $1,457 a year was available. According to the arrangement made by the Peterborough townships when they adopted the system it was agreed that the money raised in each township by the flat rate tax should be spent respectively in those townships.

Should Follow Act.

If the Highways Act were strictly adhered to in Peterborough county, said Mr. Griffith, the revenue for a county provincial road would be spent on it without any distinction between the townships. Under that system Otonabee's $8,400 would be pooled with Belmont's $1,457, and so on, and the road construction would be carried out as designated, in this case, from Peterborough easterly to the Hastings county boundary.

Bound By Agreement.

Dummer and Ennismore townships are likewise dissatisfied with the existing arrangement, and for that reason a resolution was passed this week requesting the Highways Department to permit any township in the good roads block to revert to the old township system of road management. In other words some of them desire to "get out from under" to cancel the agreement entered into with the Department. But by that agreement the townships bound themselves to carry on until the designated roads were finished. Such is the dilemna in which Belmont for example, finds itself and their position Warden Griffiths, who is Reeve of Belmont, declares to be intolerable because the experience of two seasons has proved it impracticable. The impracticability of the present arrangement, he says, lies in the fact that the progress of the work in that township is altogether too slow.

Otonabee Seems Satisfied.

Otonaebe appears to be quite content with the scheme. It raises the money required for its share of the programme, and the roads that are being improved are of direct benefit to its ratepayers. If Belmont is permitted to withdraw the county provincial road east of Peterborough would end at the boundary between Asphodel and Belmont townships.

WINNIPEG MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, December 10 (Canadian Press). — Yesterday's receipts were 450 cattle and calves, 310 hogs, and 245 sheep.

A few good killing cattle on offer were absorbed under a liberal inquiry at firm prices, but the demand for medium butcher stuff was slow, with buyers bidding generally weak. Handy weight killing steers, fair to good, $4.25 to $5.00, with a few odd sales reaching $6.00. Desirable butcher cows ranged from $4.00 to $4.25.

MONTREAL, December 10 (Canadian Press). — There was no important change in the condition of the local market for cash grain, the prices being steady. The condition of the flour market is unchanged. Prices yesterday for mill feed advanced $1.0 a ton, attributed to the urgent demand and much smaller offerings. The baled hay market was quiet. A fairly active trade is passing in eggs. There is nothing new in the potato situation. In a wholesale jobbing way a fair trade is reported in butter. Business in cheese is dull.

OTTAWA, December 10 (Canadian Press). — The market situation generally remains unchanged. Letters from London, England, dated 26th November, report a slow demand and an accumulation of stock. Arrivals of medium quality continue large and prices lower. A better business is anticipated when the effect of the lower quotations is felt. Eggs are now arriving in England from the following countries: Ireland, Denmark, Holland, Lithuania ,Styria, Roumania, Hungary Canada, the United States, Argentine, South Africa, Australia, Morocco, and China.

THE FOOTBALL TOUR.

MONTREAL, December 10 (Canadian Press). — Characterising as "idiotic" the statement recently appearing in a Montreal paper that $10,000 had been deposited with a Glasgow bank for payment to the Scottish International soccer players before they entrained for their tour of Canada last summer, David W. Roy, secretary of the Dominion Football Association, writing to the soccer editor of the Montreal Herald, says that so far from such being the case, the facts are that the Association had no money for that or any other purpose, and was actually in debt prior to the tour. Mr. Roy adds that he hopes to have a full statement of the Scottish tour ready at an early date.

COMPLETELY FREE OF CONSTIPATION

Tried for Years to Find Relief

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" GAVE IT

Chronic Constipation or insufficient action of the bowels, is one of the great causes of disease. Some authorities even claim that Constipation cannot be permanently corrected. This is a great mistake, because here is the proof that constipation can be cured and the bowels made to act regularly and naturally.

YARMOUTH, N.S.

"For years, I was troubled with Constipation, and had to take laxatives and purgatives all the time. If I neglected to take these, the bowels would refuse to do their work.

About two years ago, a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives", which I did. The first box helped me so much that I obtained further supplies of the remedy and continued the treatment. After using about eight boxes, my bowels were able to perform their particular function without aid.

The relief in my case has been lasting, as up to date, I have never had any further trouble. I can recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to all suffering as I did and I am sure they will derive equal benefit".

A. W. FRANKLIN.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c., or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

The Prizes

The fifteen prizes ranging from $15 to $1 will later be awarded by the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture under whose supervision the competition was held. W. D. The competition was for singles, pair and 6's and marks were given 50 per cent for placing and 50 per cent. for reasons.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

CAMPBELLFORD, December 10—Rev. M. L. Hinton, of Hastings, was in town yesterday.

Mr. William Runnells was in Peterborough on Wednesday visiting his brother-in-law, who is ill.

There passed away at Hilton, on Monday, a most highly esteemed resident of Brighton Township, in the person of William Little, at an advanced age. The late Mr. Little was also well known in Seymour Township and in Campbellford, having at one time resided in the Township of Seymour. The funeral was held on Wednesday, and was largely attended. Some of those from town who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Diamond, Mr. Diamond, Sr., Mr. Charles Lawrence, and Mr. John Johnston.

Mr. T. L. Diamond, our busy real estate dealer, yesterday effected the sale of the farm belonging to Mr. Lewis W. Locke, Seymour West, to Mr. Bert Third, also of Seymour Township.

Mrs. T. L. Diamond returned on Monday after having spent the week-end in Toronto with her daughter, Miss Ruth Diamond.

Mr. A. A. Willis, Second Street, will dispose of his household effects by auction on Saturday, 17th December. Mr. G. A. Hay will be the auctioneer.

High School Commencement.

The High School commencement exercises will be held in the Opera House on Thursday, 22nd December. There will be Indian club and wand drills under the direction of the staff, and choruses under the leadership of Mr. R. T. Cowell. There will be presentation of prizes, diplomas, and certificates. Short addresses will be given by Mrs. J. P. Archer, Rev. Father Phelan, Mayor Meyers, Mr. S. A. Maguire, and the members of the Board. Frank Oldfield, baritone, of Toronto, has been secured, and will delight the audience with his numbers. These exercises no doubt will attract a full house.

HAPPENINGS IN MILLBROOK

THE MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION HELD A MEETING—PERSONALS

MILLBROOK, December 10. — The Ministerial Association held their meeting on Monday, at 9.30 a. m., in the Methodist chuch, the following members being in attendance: Rev. G. I. Craw, of Springville; Rev. G. S. Rorke, of Cavan; Revs. Canon Allen, C. R. Spencer, S. T. Tucker and G. S. Gervan of Millbrook. Rev. S. H. Pickup of Toronto, who has been preaching anniversary sermons here the previous Sunday, was also present.

Rev. Canon Allen gave an excellent paper on "The Pastoral Epistles," written by the apostle Paul, namely, First and Second Timothy, Titus and Philemon. Rev. Mr. Craw led the discussion in which all took part and during which some interesting points in relation to church union, pastoral visitation, etc., were developed.

At the January meetin the election of officers will be held, and Rev. C. R. Spencer will give the illustrated talk on "Westminster Abbey,' which on account of his unavoidable absence at the time, was postponed from the October meeting.

"The Tuxis Boys."

"The Tuxis Boys," who form the senior organization in connection with the C.S.E.T. movement, met in the Methodist church after the League on Monday evening. The chief feature of the gathering, in addition to the regular programme, was an interesting talk on the S. S. lesson for December 11, given by the pastor. The members found this so helpful it is expected that they will request Mr. Tucker to continue to give a similar talk each week during the winter months.

DIED—In Brunswick, on Thursday, December 8th, Mrs.Adam Hamilton, in her 79th year. The funeral will take place from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. L. Patterson, on Saturday, December 10, at 1 p.m. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

The dance held in the town hall, Millbrook, on Thursday evening, under the auspices of Carmel L.O.L. No 421, was a very successful and well-attended affair. Mr.and Mrs. Armstrong furnished good music with violin and piano; Mr. L. Morton made an excellent floor manager, and the entire evening proved to be thoroughly enjoyable. An appetizing supper provided by the ladies, was served about midnight. The total receipts were $100 and the committee are to be congratulated on the success of the undertaking.

The A.Y.P.A. Local Council for the Peterboro district, met in St. Thomas S. S. Hall on Thursday evening with 85 members in attendance, over 40 of whom came from outside points, namely, Peterboro, Lakefield, and Omemee. This was the first time the Young People's Association of the latter place had joined with the district.

Rev. Canon Allen, rector of the parish, gave the address of welcome, and Miss Jean Horsfield, of Peterboro, the district president, occupied the chair. In the absence of the secretary, Mr. Elmir Brown, also of Peterboro, Miss Blanche Davidson of Lakefield, the district treasurer, discharged the duties of his office for the evening. Amongst the items of business under discussion was the "debate tournament" to be held between the various Association in the district during the year, the prize to be competed for being a silver cup, donated by some unknown friend who is deeply interested in A.Y.P.A. work. The cup was displayed at the recent Dominion Conference in Peterborough. There are now six associations in the district—St. John's and St. Mark's at Peterborough, one at Lakefield, Millbrook, Omemee, and Warsaw. Mr. Simpson, of Lakefield, and Rev. C. R. Spencer, of Millbrook, were appointed a committee to arrange the subjects for debate, dates, etc . Plans were also made for holding an A.Y.P.A. Sunday in each parish, when the local members would attend service in a body, and the clergyman in charge would preach a sermon specially suited to the occasion.

The singing of the A.Y.P.A. songs formed an enjoyable part of the evening's programme. Refreshments were served, and a social hour thoroughly enjoyed before the guests left for home—all agreed that this was the most successful Council meeting ever held on the district, the enthusiasm and interest gained at the Dominion Conference having evidently not yet evaporated, but is finding expression in increased activity, growth in members, and a determination to make the work done tell for the good of the members in every possible way.

The many friends of Mrs. Hansman will be glad to learn that she is recovering nicely from her recent Hansman, of Toronto, is now the guest of his mother and sisters, Miss Hansman and Mrs. Harry Johnston. Another sister, who about a year ago had spent several months in Millbrook, died recently while on a visit in the West.

Mrs. James Dawson returned on Friday evening after spending a few days visiting friends in Peterborough.

Little Miss Dorothy Bailey, who was adopted a few months ago by Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Janes, has, at the urgent request of her mother, been again taken by the latter, who is now living in Toronto, and who found herself unwilling, after all, to give the child up, even though she knew that Dorothy had a good home and the best of care with her adopted parents. But mother love prevailed, and Mr. and Mrs. Janes, though not legally compelled to relinquish their claim, would not refuse to give her up when it was the child's mother who was anxiously requesting to have her in her own care once more.

The Sunshine Mission Band held their meeting on Friday evening, with twenty-two members present. The superintendent, Miss Byam, gave a most interesting talk on the life of that splendid missionary, John G. Paton. The programme was shortened to allow those taking part in the Junior League entertainment on Friday evening next, to practise the dialogue, choruses, etc., for that event.

Mrs. (Rev.) George S. Gervan will receive on the first and third Wednesdays of each month from 3.30 to 5.30 p.m.

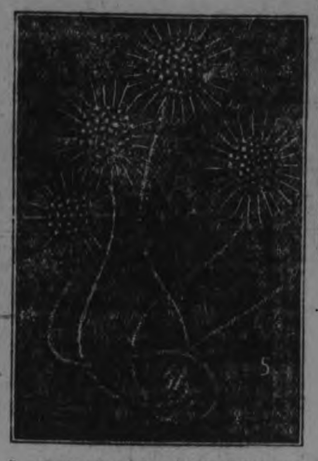
New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

The Strange Creatures That Dwell in a Drop of Water

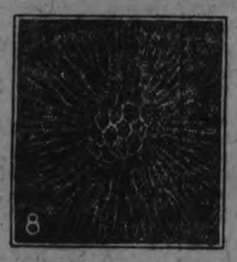


5—Anthophysa Is a Stalked Colony-Forming Animal. About Sixty Are Sometimes Found Bunched Together.

2—Bosnia, a Small Flesh-Colored Crustacean, Is the Main Food Supply for the Young Fish.

3—Pompholyxophrys Is a Spherical Animal with Radiating Rays.

7—The Green Thread-like Algae Are Always Found in the Waters Infested with These Animals.



8—Clathrulina; the Skeleton of This Organism Is Situated on a Stalk.

4—The Paramecium, or Slipper Animal, Is One of the Most Common of Organisms.

6—Arcella Is a Brown Colored Fungus-like Root-Footed Animacula.

1—A Small Colony of Vorticella Which Has Attached Itself to a Green Algae. These Animals Are Glassy-White.

WITHIN a drop of water lives a world of the most beautiful animate objects whose existence can be disclosed only by the most high-powered microscopes. Scientists have found some of these infinitesimal creatures to be of so low an organization that both the botanist and the zoologist claim them for their own, although neither is absolutely certain whether the specimen before them is plant or animal. Every pond, puddle and pool shelters these curious organizations, and an especially rich harvest may be gathered from all those woodland lakes which are far from the haunts of man. Here the water-lily covers the entire surface of the water as if it would protect the tiny microscopic life beneath their leaves from profane touches.

How surprisingly far-reaching and divergent in their range are these diminutive objects is revealed in an interesting account in Science and Invention, written by Dr. Ernest Bade, who tells how this sea of the smallest becomes deeper and deeper as its mystic depths are penetrated, for newer, still smaller worlds border upon those just conquered.

"If, after a heavy thunder shower," says Dr. Bade, "the depressions of the ground have become filled with water, and if the sun has played upon the water, many and various forms have sprung to life under its influence. Such a shower gives life to thousands of organisms which, before the rain, have slept the sleep of the dead. Sparks and signs of life are found everywhere, but the necessary conditions of life are not favorable in every place. The rain water gives life to all those things which have been lying dormant during the dry seasons of the year. In these pools everything comes to life so that each puddle is microcosmic in character. Rain water, after it has stood in the puddle for some time, becomes cloudy, and this cloudiness, which is due to a process of decomposition, becomes more intense from day to day. As the first bacteria disappear and decay, others make their appearance. The newer and more recent varieties, which take the place of the older, assimilate the carbon dioxide. All these bacteria are tiny, one or more celled plants. When under the microscope, a drop of water shows us these little plants in lively commotion, as life pulsates through their tiny forms. Some tremble upon one and the same spot, while others rush and chase about in the wanton joy of a happy life, for bacteria possess whiplike threads which enable them to move rapidly through the water.

"As time goes on, the water again becomes clear, but before this is entirely accomplished, delicate green algae (plant structures) appear, covering the entire bottom, while wonderfully beautiful diatoms grow in the greatest profusion. Some of them have such fine and delicate shell markings that not even the most powerful microscope has, as yet, been able to show us with any degree of accuracy and fidelity their more than minute wonders. The silicious shell-like cell membrane of these algae are divided into two halves which fit snugly together, not at all unlike a box with its lid.

"All diatoms living free in the water show a peculiar gliding motion when passing over other things. But this is purely mechanical and cannot be connected in any manner with an expression of will power.

"The beautiful Desmidiaceae have no silicious cell membrane. These algae are the inhabitants of only the clearest of water, even a slight pollution causing their death. Higher representatives of the algae family are the green algae. The best known forms of these plants develop fine green threads, others branch out profusely, either clinging to some foreign substance or floating about in the water where they develop into dense, thick masses, interweaving themselves not unlike felt, while still others resemble dainty networks of gauze.

"The propagation of these algae is very interesting indeed, for many resemblances to the propagation of the lower animals may be noticed. One of the asexual methods of propagation is accomplished through swarm spores possessing their own motion of locality. When one of these spores suddenly bursts, a protoplasmic green ball having a crown of long lashes, escapes from the cell in a state of living development. The lashes begin thrashing the water, thus setting the ball revolving about its own axis. In this manner it travels through the water animated with life which seems to change this plant into a lively little animal. At the expiration of a few hours this motion ceases, whereupon the ball lodges in some convenient nook or cranny, draws the lashes in and slowly grows into a thread algae.

"The plant and animal kingdoms merge imperceptibly into one another, so that it often happens that plants are confused with animals and animals with plants, as is the case of Volvox globatus. On sunny days these animals can often be seen in quiet inlets and tiny bays, as green balls dancing about in the water."

HOW MAN Became the "BIG BOSS"

HOW did man become the superior animal? Diet, adaptation, aspiration, and evolution all played a part. Some authorities talk glibly of earth changes fifty million years ago, but it is sufficient to cover the very early ages under the general term of prehistoric, when man was thought to be pretty much on level terms with all the animal kingdom.

Probably man should have remained stationary, like all forms of vegetable life; but he did not, because he had not been provided with roots with which to take necessary nourishment from the soil.

In common with his kind, according to anthropologists, man at first had four limbs for support and transport purposes, because he had to pick up a living instead of the light helping him to draw it from the earth.

Diet had a direct influence on man's destiny. He was a ruminating animal with a fancy for change of food. While some of his relatives were satisfied to go on all-fours and develop their necks by feeding from the ground, man had other aspirations.

Adaptation to circumstances led to man's rising on his hind limbs. From ground vegetation he passed on to fruit. Then he tasted some shellfish. The first fish course was oysters, and man has retained them in the forefront of his meals ever since.

Next he pined for a change from fish, and wondered whether birds were good to eat. By this time he had become bipedal. His legs lengthened, fore limbs shortened, and fingers developed.

One of the early uses he made of his pliant fingers was to construct darts for bringing down birds and catching fishes.

The increasing use of the fingers had its share in the development of man's brains. The use of the hand compelled thought. Weapons of offence and defence became more elaborate, and helped to give man the mastery of those animals content to remain quadrupedal.

Some of these were good to eat. Man killed and consumed them; and now was there a complete menu of fish, flesh, fowl and fruit.

Most of the creatures who started level with man, accepted the situation. A glance at the chins and foreheads, say, of the sheep and goat, will show how they lagged behind to browse while the march of intellect was in progress.

Some rebelled. Compare the heads of the lion and tiger with those of the rabbit and cow. The former resented the mastery of man, but instead of carrying on the combat by strategy, they adopted force, and brain versus brute strength can only have one result.

Man had the first move. He rose from four legs to two; his curved spine straightened; his legs, hands, and brain developed. So he became "boss."

Suppose the horse had taken the first step. Picture that gentle creature with straightened hindquarters, forelegs evolved as arms and hands, without the mouth development caused by the method of using him, attired in suitable raiment, and driving four spanking young men on all-fours round a circus-ring.

For audience, there might be an assembly of equally developed pigs, dogs, and others. See that learned man trained to pick out letters, to the amusement of the equine, bovine, and canine juveniles.

That is what might have been.

An Easy Way to Take Bitter Medicine

MEDICINE that is disagreeable to take can be swallowed with a minimum of unpleasantness by using the simple apparatus described in Popular Science Monthly and shown in the accompanying illustration.

A piece of glass tubing, corked in one end, is suspended by a wire in an ordinary glass. Water is placed in the glass and the medicine in the tube. Then the patient drinks the water, and the medicine pours into it as it goes down, and is hardly tasted.

The Wire Holds the Tube of Medicine in the Glass. Upon Tipping the Glass, the Medicine Flows Down Your Throat with the Water.

Any clean wire may be used for the purpose, but for sanitary reasons it is preferable to use silver or nickel wire, which resists corrosion.

Where BOOZE Is a TEMPERANCE Drink in a DRY NATION

BOOZE" is a temperance drink. Surprising as the fact may seem, it is an indisputable fact of obvious pertinence. For a long, long time "booze" has been used as a sort of generic name for intoxicating drinks, all the way from beer to champagne. Indeed, the dictionary so defines it, also defining the verb "to booze" as "to drink to excess," the noun "boozer" as one who tipples, and the adjective "boozy" as "a little intoxicated; somewhat elevated or excited with liquor." There is "boozing-ken," too, meaning a drinking shop. And for such use of these terms such high authorities are given as Kingsley and Macaulay. The derivation is given as from the Dutch "buizen" and the German "busen," derived in turn from "buechse," a box; though what a good, honest wooden box has to do with strong drink does not appear.

The popular use of the word "booze" has been considerably perverted. It is pure Turkish and is the name of a widely used drink that is regarded as so far from intoxicating that its use is not only permitted but strongly recommended to the followers of the Prophet whose religion makes them teetotallers.

For centuries the Turks and other Mohammedans have made and drunk a liquor fermented from barley called "booza." It has been especially consumed by warriors because while it does not intoxicate like wine, "it gives heat and strength to the body and does away with hunger." Excess in drinking it often leads to gout and dropsy, so that the habitual booza drinker generally carries a cane or staff. For this reason there has long been a Turkish saying that "the boozer is no friend of dogs," the reference being, of course, to his readiness to strike with his stick any dog that uninvited fawned upon him. For centuries booza makers were an essential addendum to every camp of Mohammedan soldiers. They were generally Tartar gypsies, who were most skilful in the brewing of the drink.

There was also a sweet booza made not from barley but from the unripe seeds of millet, which was more a jelly than a liquid, so that it could be carried in a handkerchief. This was made in large tubs and there rose to the surface of the mass a sort of cream which was especially prized. It was reputed to give to the drinker new vigor and life without intoxicating him and without causing colic or any such disturbance, the latter quality being perhaps due to its containing a considerable admixture of cinnamon, cloves and ginger. This sweet booza used to be a favorite drink of women who were about to become mothers in the belief that it assured stout, healthy children and enabled the mothers to nourish their infants abundantly.

What Are DREAMS and DELUSIONS?

DREAMS appear to be a safety valve for repressed emotions, desires or imaginings. According to Freud, dreams and delusions spring from the same source, the repressed.

"Before the repressed has become strong enough to push itself up into the waking life as a delusion, it may easily have won its first success under the more favorable circumstances of sleep in the form of a dream," says the Medical Record in summarizing an article by Dr. S. T. Rucker of New Orleans. "During sleep, with the diminution of psychic activity, there enters a slackening of the strength of resistance, which the conscious psychic process offers to the repressed. The slackening is what makes dream formation possible. Therefore the dream becomes for us the best means of approach to knowledge of the unconscious psyche. Only the dream usually passes rapidly with the revival of waking life and the ground won by the unconscious is again vacated.

In Rucker's study of abnormal psychology he has noticed a striking analogy between delusion and dream. The difference appears to be that a dream is acted out during the unconscious or sleep state and abandons the field when consciousness is recorded; while delusion holds sway over the mind during the conscious or waking state and disappears during sleep. Now, if, as Freud contends, a dream is the physiological delusion of the normal human being, may not a delusion be the pathological dream of the abnormal human being? Rucker's observations have been that persons who dream have no delusions, and those who are dominated by delusions have no dreams. Therefore dreams may perform an important function in maintaining mental balance by letting the "repressed" find a physiological exit during sleep, instead of pushing itself up into the waking life as a delusion.

SEED of the SUNFLOWER as FOOD

THE sunflower, although it originated in America, in the great plains, is not used here so extensively as in some other countries, especially Russia in normal times. It is a long time since the plant first delighted the eyes of Europeans, being then cultivated in the gardens of Madrid. The early Spanish explorers had found it in this country and taken it home with them.

The plant was utilized by the American Indians long before the day of Columbus. When Champlain visited the Georgian bay in 1615 he found the natives growing it and using the oil for their hair. It was raised chiefly, however, for the food afforded by the seeds.

In Russia the seeds have always been eaten in immense quantities, raw or roasted, as peanuts are in this country, and the oil obtained by pressing the seeds is an important article of diet. The frequent religious fast days in that country restrict the use of meat and lead to the consumption of vegetable oil, and in normal times the manufacture of sunflower oil is always of considerable dimensions. The best seeds yield an oil which compares favorably with olive oil.

The seeds of the larger and finer flowers are held to be quite equal to most nuts in respect of palatability and wholesomeness. The stalks and dried leaves are highly prized for fuel, being in some parts of Russia almost the only available substitute for wood. An acre of sunflowers will yield many cords of good fuel.

The oil appears to possess more of the general properties of olive oil than any other known vegetable oil. It takes about a bushel of seeds to make a gallon of oil, and fifty bushels of seeds can be grown on one acre of land. As the oil sells for more than $1 a gallon the profit is large.

Of late years purified sunflower oil has been used extensively in the adulteration of olive oil. It is of a pale yellowish color and decidedly palatable. In a crude state it is used by painters to some extent, but it is inferior to linseed oil for use in paint.

In addition to the oil from the seeds the stalks, when green, and the oil cake, make excellent fodder. The fibre of the stalks, which is fine, silky and very strong, also has a value. In China it is woven into beautiful fabrics.

How the AIR PROTECTS the EARTH

THE many layers of air that constitute the atmosphere surrounding the earth act just like the bumper at the end of a railroad track and save the inhabitants many times each day from terrible injury if not instant death, according to Dr. W. W. Campbell, the noted astronomer who heads Lick Observatory, which stands at the summit of Mt. Hamilton, near San Francisco.

The accompanying illustration shows how the earth's atmosphere serves as a buffer to cause the 20,000,000 foreign bodies which daily hurl themselves at the earth to bound and rebound in space, finally disappearing amid the brilliance of their burning, caused by the terrific friction of their impact.

Are MEN More SUPERSTITIOUS Than WOMEN?

PROF. CONKLIN, a well-known English mind expert, has just finished a series of inquiries among hundreds of educated men and women with a view to discovering how many were superstitious and what their pet superstitions were.

One would imagine that the better educated a person the less superstitious he would be, but the facts do not bear this out.

The most common superstition is "touching wood." Over a third of the people asked admitted that if they didn't "touch wood" they were unlucky! The next favorite superstition on the list, both for men and women, is the belief in the luck brought by finding a four-leaf clover.

After that come in order, lucky dreams, bad luck brought about by the number 13, bad luck from opening an umbrella in the house and belief in fortune telling.

Twice as many men as women worried over having 13 guests at a table, but nearly four times as many women as men believed it bad luck to open an umbrella in the house.

Out of all the inquiries made among men by Prof. Conklin not one believed it was lucky to sleep with a piece of wedding cake under the pillow, while most women believed in it!

Not a single man either believed in pulling a wishbone for luck, or that opals were unlucky, or that a knife cuts friendship. Women believed in all these things.

Curiously enough the things one might expect to be popular are apparently believed in by a few people only. Only one person out of every hundred, for instance, has any belief that horseshoes are lucky, and only one man in fifty is superstitious about lighting the third cigarette with the same match.

Prof. Conklin found that picking up pins for luck, walking under ladders for bad luck, breaking mirrors, and the bad luck of seeing the moon through trees, were all popular beliefs among educated men and women.

PEARLS in PLANTS

IT is not generally known that there are such things as vegetable pearls. Yet, now and again, in certain tropical plants curious hard round substances are found which one may properly call pearls, seeing that their composition is almost identical with the product of the oyster. For instance, occasionally in Java these substances are discovered in the joints of bamboos. On analysis the bodies are found to consist of almost pure carbonate of lime—the same substance which goes to the make-up of the pearl of the oyster.

Now and again similar bodies are found in the endosperm of the cocoanut while these plant pearls are known to occur in the wood of the pomegranite and teak trees. These vegetable pearls are sometimes as large as a hazel-nut, although as a rule they are somewhat smaller.

Exactly how the vegetable pearls arise is not fully known. They are generally believed, according to The Scientific American, to be due to an excess of calcareous and silicious matter in the plant. The plant petals are rarely seen apart from the East Indian islands for they are highly valued as charms. The owner will not part with one for any figure, seeing that as long as he holds the pearl he considers that he will be immune from the ills which assail mankind.

They held up and robbed the Molsons Bank here last August, and are also wanted in Hamilton for bank robberies.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

To Relieve Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness, or who are growing hard of hearing and have head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected complete relief after other treatments have failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. Therefore, if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are nearly always quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form, or distressing rumbling, hissing sounds in their ears, should give this recipe a trial.

COUNTY COUNCIL CONCLUDED WORK

FINAL SESSION OF THE YEAR WAS WOUND UP THIS MORNING—WARDEN THANKS THE MEMBERS

At the conclusion of the County Council's final sessions this morning Warden Griffith thanked the members for the courtesy they had shown him during the year and for the unfailing co-operation they had given in the performance of the county's business. He hoped that their ratepayers would likewise regard their work with satisfaction and re-elect them next year. As for himself, the Warden said he would return if the Belmont people wanted him, otherwise he intended to retire, and with that prospect before him he bade farewell to the men with whom he has been associated for years.

After a further discussion with School Inspector R. Lees this morning in regard to the allowance for his travelling expenses, the Council decided to abide by their previous decision and let this dispute be settled by Judge Huycke.

No action was taken, with the request of Reeve Montgomery of Norwood that the county assume or assist the village in assuming the costs of hospital treatment for a woman who needed attention.

In the earlier discussion of the county's road work it was concluded that the superintendent, Mr. D. Macfarlane, wouldn't require an assistant. The organization is gradually being developed and will be working more smoothly than ever next season with the patrol men, who supervise district work while the superintendent is in other sections, more experienced and accustomed to the methods.

S.O.E. AND CALEDONIANS IN BALL AND BILLIARDS.

Jolly Sportive Evening Spent in S.O.E. Hall.

Last night, at the Sons of England Hall, the Sons of England met the Caledonians in a friendly game of billiards and carpet-ball. A large representation from both societies was present, the games were contested with keenness and enthusiasm. The billiard games resulted in a win for the English by four to two, the winners for the Sons of England being Messrs. G. F. Collis, A. Fielder, F. Heafield and F. Joyes. The Caledonian players were Messrs. A. Dick, R. French, R. Hannah and J. Brown.

In the carpet-ball games, the Sons of England rinks were skipped by Messrs. C. Wood and R. Rathbone, and the Caledonian rinks by Messrs. J. Wyllie and R. Veitch. Four games were played, the Sons of England winning three and the Caledonians one, the total score being: Sons of England 46, Caledonians 29.

After the games, the Sons of England and their guests gathered around the canteen and indulged in a rivalry to see who would spend the most money. Contrary to reputation, the English were badly beaten. Before the meeting dispersed, Mr. A. Dick, on behalf of the Caledonians, thanked the Sons of England for the enjoyable evening, Mr. G. F. Collis replying on behalf of their hosts, and assuring the Scotchmen of their welcome for further games in the future.

NOVEL STUNT NIGHT PUT ON

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS AND BOYS ENJOY THEMSELVES AT THE "Y"

The boys and girls of the Collegiate Club had an enjoyable theatre party at the Grand Opera House last night, followed by a stunt night at the Y.M.C.A., the latter event being under the direction of Mr. Walter Smaill. After seeing Douglas Fairbanks in "The Three Musketeers," the party returned to the 'Y' and had a great time carrying out the programme which the director of athletics of the P.A.A.A. had arranged.

The prize-winners in the Hidden Bird contest were Miss G. Hall and H. Cowan, in the hidden flowers contest, Miss Langdon and A. Johnston, and in the twisted fish competition, Miss D. Clegg and Doug. Young. Miss C. Sollett and Stan. Stacey won the test of smell and taste competition and Miss H. Lamb and J. McClelland the observation test.

After these events there was an indoor meet. In the shot putting contest a small dry sponge was used, while the hammer throw had to be done with a blown-up paper bag attached to a yard of string. In the 100 yards dash the contestant found a lump of sugar attached to a 100 inches of string, the sugar to be gathered into the mouth without the aid of the hands. The running broad jump was in reality a competition to see which could grin the widest.

It was a novel programme and the young people had an enjoyable time.

ANNOUNCE THE PRIZE-WINNERS NEXT WEEK

The results of the judging and grading of the carcasses of hogs judged on foot yesterday in connection with the educational course at the Canadian Packing Company will not be known until next week, when F. C. McRae, Norwood, Ontario Department of Agriculture representative, will be able to announce the prize-winners.

W. D. Jackson, of the Department of Agriculture, left at noon to-day for Toronto with the judges' decision in his pocket, and through him the results, when compiled, will be announced.

With this competition the course concluded this morning. Its success exceeded all expectations, and it is almost sure to become an annual affair. The judges this morning were George Blackwell, general manager of the Canadian Packing Company; A. E. McLaurin, Live Stock Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa; and J. Helston, Wm. Davies Company grader.

Prizes in this competition, from $15.00 to $1.00, are offered by the Industrial and Development Council of Canadian Meat Packers.

REGAINS HER HEALTH BY INTERNAL BATHS

Mrs. Robert Gordon, 422 Cadillac Street, Montreal, Que., writes:

"I cannot speak too highly of the J. B. L. Cascade. It has saved my life. I have been troubled with constipation, piles and ulceration of the bowels for years, have only been using the Cascade for three months, and am happy to be doing my own work again after having been laid up for many months. I would not take one hundred dollars for my Cascade if I could not procure another.

Auto-intoxication (or self poisoning- results from the accumulation of waste matter in the lower intestine. Its ill effects may be manifested in many ways, commonly in headaches, indigestion, piles, impure blood, or sleeplessness, and particularly in those dreaded diseases, hardening of the arteries and heart trouble.

Internal bathing is the one sure means for cleansing the intestinal tract, and keeping the system in the state which perfect health demands. Medicines only force nature, while internal bathing gently assists her.

The J.B.L. Cascade is the only perfect appliance for Internal Bathing. It is shown and explained at Warne Drug Co., Peterboro, Ont.

ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHTY AT CHURCH BANQUET.

One of the Most Enjoyable Events of the Season.

One of the most enjoyable church banquets of the season was enjoyed by nearly 180 men and boy members of St. Paul's Church on Thursday evening last, when this number sat down to a bountiful supper provided by the Ladies' Aid Society, and presided over by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, chairman and toastmaster. Mr. Kenner opened the entertainment with a brief, well-worded address on the subject of charity.

The toast to the Fathers was proposed by Mr. Herb. Mason, and responded to by Mr. James Connal; to the Sons by Mr. H. B. Cowan, answered by Mr. Alex. Donnelly; and to the Church by Mr. Wm. Madill, acknowledged by Rev Mr. Pogue.

At ten o'clock the gathering dispersed, with the consciousness of having spent one of the most enjoyable evenings in the history of the church.

CHOIR CONCERT ST. JAMES' CHURCH

The choir of St. James' Methodist church provided an interesting programme last evening in the church. A large number of people attended, for an evening of excellent musical entertainment.

The programme was as follows: Glee by the choir, "Onward Christian Soldiers"; Trio from "Il Trovatore," by violin, 'cello and piano; Mrs. Hoyland, Messrs. Farthing and Nicholls; Vocal solo, "The Skipper's Dream," by Mr. F. Pratt, responded to by an encore; saxaphone duet, Messrs. Worrall and Pratt; vocal, Tosti's "Good-bye" and "Absent," Mr. Cutmore; readings, Mrs. F. McNeely; Glee by the choir, "In This Hour of Softened Splendor"; Violin solos, Mrs. B. After the concert the choir and those responsible for the programme were entertained at supper.

Much of the success of the excellent programme rendered is due to Mr. A. Nicholls, the organist of the church, who spared no personal effort to make the evening a musical treat.

LOCAL UNITED FARM YOUNG PEOPLE MET

On Monday evening of this week, the local branch of the United Farm Young People held a well-attended meeting in their Simcoe Street rooms. Games and music, with an excellent debate, formed the programme of the evening.

The resolution: "That the present protective tariff is a benefit to the labour man," was won by the negative side, upheld by Messrs. Stanley and George Whitfield, the affirmative being taken by Mr. Harold Archer.

The president, Mr. Vivian Milburn, spoke on the practical winter course for young men to be held in Peterborough from 24th January to 24th February, under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture, on stock judging, veterinary work, and feeding. The Peterborough branch of the U.F.Y.P.O. will provide accommodation for these lectures during the month.

Mr. Milburn also mentioned the short course for farm people which will be held in Toronto at the Toronto University buildings from 14th to 28th February, 1922, taking up literature, Canadian history, and architecture.

A few young people from Peterborough attended this course last year, and Mr. Milburn recommended a further attendance for this season.

Projected Concert.

A projected concert, to be held in February, with local and country talent taking part, was also discussed and the debate for the next meeting, on 3rd January, was decided on, the subject to be: "Resolved, That agriculture has brought greater benefit to Canada than manufactures."

Messrs. Stanley Cann and Harry McKee will have the affirmative side, and Messrs. Ray Wood and William Steinkrauss the negative.

Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets. They are mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach, and thus drive out constipation, colic, indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and make the baby healthy and happy. They relieved my little girl from constipation when nothing else would and I can strongly recommend them to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ROTARY CLUB SPEAKER COMING

(By F. H. DOBBIN)

Two weeks ago and at the time of the visit to the local Rotary Club arrangements were made by Rotarian Hart Seeley, Governor of District No. 4, (in which Peterborough Club is situated) to have come to Peterborough, Dr. Charles E. Barker, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, to address the people of the city in very important topics affecting the moral, physical and personal status of the community.

It is expected that the event will take place at end of March or beginning of April next. Dr. Barker's engagements are booked so far ahead that it was with difficulty that Peterborough could get a place on the list.

So far as the public is concerned the opportunity to hear Dr. Barker will be entirely free. The largest auditorjum in the city will be secured and at that we are assured that it will not afford room. It is proposed to have three sessions, or hearings, during the day of his visit.

During the morning he will address the school children, including the students at the Normal School and Institute. His address is one that engages and holds the attention of the juniors and is in line with the best ideals of home life and better citizenship of the future. No doubt the local Board of Education, which will be consulted, will agree for the occasion, and the principal of the Normal School will be besought to arrange.

In the afternoon (hour to be announced) he will address a meeting, wholly for women. The subject will be "A Mother's Relation to her Daughter". In the evening the hall, or church, will be open to men only, and the subject will be "A Father's Responsibility to His Son". No admission fees, no collection.

Dr. Barker is a notable man and a power in the cities of the United States. A skilled physician and surgeon, up to the time that he engaged to work under Rotary he devoted his winters to lecturing to the general public on health for the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A., and in the summer months he was at the Redpath Chautauqua platform, and noted as the leading health lecturer. During these years he delivered over 3,000 addresses and addressed over 1,500,000 persons.

K', Barker is the only man in public who is working under the auspices of Rotary. Thousands have endeavored to come in under the Rotary banner and auspices. Such recognizance has steadily been refused, with the exception of Dr. Barker. Requests from Rotary Clubs all over the continent are made so numerously that he is in the harness day and night.

This announcement is only preliminary and will be extended further on. As the date approaches the public will be advised fully as to time and opportunity. With Rotary behind the movement and the object in sight our citizens cannot fail to take advantage to hear the foremost exponent in his line of talk and argument now before the public.

NOW CHIEF POWER IN KU KLUX KLAN.

Simmons, Away "For His Health," Puts Clarke in His Place Until Christmas.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 9.—In the bitter internal war which has split the Ku Klux Klan over the question of the retention or dismissal of Edward Young Clarke, Imperial Klaliff and Kleagle, and his business and personal associate, Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, a decisive success was scored by Clarke last week, when it became known that William Joseph Simmons, nominal head of the order, left Atlanta on Thursday to be absent until Christmas, leaving a brief note putting Clarke in supreme charge of Klan affairs during his absence.

According to a statement obtained from his wife, "Col." Simmons has obeyed the advice of his physician and gone to the mountains in North Caroline "for his health."

Simmons' sudden departure caused a sensation in Atlanta, already excited over Klan affairs. Harry B. Terrell, one of the four Grand Goblins who came here a week ago to tell the Imperial Wizard of the crumbling condition of the Klan, made strongly denunciatory charges against Clarke before the Kloncilium or supreme governing body of the order and was dimissed in consequence, charged in a statement given to the press that Clarke had ordered Simmons out of Atlanta as part of a scheme concocted by himself and Mrs. Tyler to gain absolute control of the order's "fast tottering" affairs.

"We were fired," said Terrell, "because we came to Atlanta to demand certain changes to give the Klan a fighting chance for its life. I can't for the life of me understand the executive action."

NEW PUBLICATIONS APPEAR ON BORDER

FLATTER WOMEN WITH HIGH-SOUNDING MOCK EPITAPHS.

LAREDO, Tex., Dec. 10.—The present season brings one class of publications unknown elsewhere, but which are indigenous to the Mexican border. They are the "Calaveras," or mock epitaphs written for the young folks—and some of the older ones who are still in the land of the living.

Those relating to young women are the most flowery. One roughly translated, reads:

"She was an angel of beautiful nobility,
Like an iris pure and crystal white;
She left flowers strewed in her pathway,
And in heaven she is resplendent and bright."

One such publication has an entire page devoted to the young woman school teachers, headed, "In a Little Blue Corner of Heaven."

According to the authors, the men all went in the other direction from heaven and their epitaphs give occasion for laughter. Sly digs at the idiosyncracies of their friends—and enemies—are relished by the readers and an occasional real tribute to some man is received with pleasure because of his genuine worth or his wide popularity.

These publications are very popular and in the case of some belle receiving a particularly pleasing tribute, her admirers buy many copies and send them to their friends.

SAY DUDLEY F. MALONE TO WED DORIS STEVENS.

Announcement Follows Granting of Divorce Decree in Paris From First Wife.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Dudley Field Malone, widely known attorney and former collector of the port of New York, is to marry Miss Doris Stevens, a suffraget leader, within the next few days, according to a report from competent authority.

Malone's divorce from his wife, a daughter of former United States Senator O'Gorman, became absolute a few days ago.

"I should prefer for any statement on the matter to come from Mr. Malone," said Miss Stevens, when she was asked concerning the report.

Malone's divorce from his first wife was granted in Paris in August, under the new French statute which admits divorce on grounds on incompatibility when both parties are agreed on the separation.

Mrs. Malone is now in Paris with her father.

White House Picket.

Miss Stevens has long been associated with the suffrage movement in the United States, and was one of the first leaders of militant suffragist activities here. She was associated with Mrs. O. H. R. Belmont in the formation of the Women's Party.

When the militant division of the suffragists picketed the White House during President Wilson's administration, Miss Stevens was a picket leader. She went to jail with other suffragists and joined in their hunger strike.

Malone, then collector of the port, went to Washington as advisory counsel for her during the militant struggle.

During the Malone divorce suit Miss Stevens was in Paris as the guest of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont.

Interest in the divorce is accentuated because of the mystery surrounding the action and the fact that boh Mr. Malone and his divorced wife are adherents of the Roman Catholic faith, which does not recognize divorce.

A member of the Catholic clergy said that it is entirely within the church's law for the Catholic church to grant a separation, but he explained that a separation is never granted where mere incompatibility is the cause for seeking it. The grounds must be of a serious nature, he said, or else the Catholic church cannot recognize them.

There was nothing to prevent either the wife or the husband from obtaining a legal separation or divorce through the courts, however, he added, except that the church could not recognize the divorce, and as for the separation, it would have to have the concordance of the church before it could be recognized.

DEIGHTS IN LONDON FOG.

"Never saw City Look So Beautiful," says Russian Artist; "Could Not See Four Feet."

LONDON, December 9. — When Bakst, the famous Russian artist, was asked what he thought of London in a fog, he answered:

"I never saw London look so beautiful—you could not see four feet beyond your nose."

This ambiguous complimenet is still bring gravely pordered over as to whether Bakst is engaged in some subtle sort of Bolshevist propaganda.

As a statement of actual fact Bakst was correct as can be believed when it is said that a chemical analysis established that for three days every cubic inch of London air contained 350,000 soot particles and that the fog lying over the metropolitan area weighed 900,000 tons.

From Jan. 1, 1916, to Nov. 1, 1921, there were 3785 men killed in the anthracite coal mines of Pennsylvania.

HOSPITAL WORK IN NENANA, HEART OF CENTRAL ALASKA

SERVES A DISTRICT OF EIGHT HUNDRED MILES THAT WAS PRACTICALLY WITHOUT DOCTORS—SPLENDID RECORD FOR GOVERNMENT HOSPITAL.

EMPIRE IN THE MAKING

(By HECTOR J. NEIL)

Since I stated in my first article that it was chiefly strong and hardy men who responded to the call of the North, many of my readers will probably wonder why it is necessary for the Government to maintain a large hospital in the town of Nenana, the heart of Central Alaska.

There is a good reason however, for this hospital, a reason ample, imperative, and all-powerful. Reaching as it does the farthermost corners of the country, the benefits resulting from the establishment of this hospital came as a revelation to the people of the interior of Alaska. To be more explicit, in the days of '98 when men of every description swarmed to this great Northern country, numbering in their hosts, miners, adventurers, gamblers dreamers, men of every kind, the normal percentage of representatives of certain vocations was not maintained. Particularly is this true of some classes of professional men, doctors, surgeons, and dentists. Professions such as these do not lend themselves easily to frontier conditions. So that as the years rolled on and the inherent health of the toilers ebbed, squandered in the spendthrift manner of the pioneer the world over, changes almost unnoticed crept in the robust, hardy, and healthy man became the exception rather than the rule. Time was taking its toll. In the cabins on the creeks dwelt men sometimes marred and showing the ceaseless drain that the rugged life was exacting. A finger or two gone there; several toes missing from frostbite not properly tended; superfluous growths requiring the surgeon's knife; pains in the intestines lightly dismissed as stomach-ache, but that steadily added to the unmarked mounds on the lonely hillsides. The cases in point were innumerable. And there was no place to go for a remedy.

A Vast Place

The interior of Alaska is a vast place, thinly settled and offering at best small inducements to professional men to set up in business. From Nome, or Bering straits where dwelt reliable doctors, to Tanana, at the mouth of the Tanana river, is a stretch of approximately eight hundred miles of territ[illegible]t was practically without doctors. But this fact never kept the prospector from pushing onward into the hills. From Tanana to Fairbanks, nearly three hundred miles, the prospectors and miners were steadily at the mercy of disease, unless they were in a position to undertake a long hazardous journey by dog-team or afoot. To the north, in the Koyukuk, medical attention was almost unknown; southward through the Kuskokwim, the Idarod, the Innoko, clear down to the coast range and to the east and west no man knew where to turn to secure the attention of a doctor or surgeon whose ability could be vouched for. Accidents that disabled for life were accepted as part of the lot of the pioneer. Such institutions as hospitals, doctors, and surgeons were, to the far-flung prospectors, in the same category as New York's chorus girls or California's bathing beauties.

Good Hospital

Then in the spring of 1916 a rumor started to drift slowly over the country. It was said that the Government had opened a good hospital at the new town of Nenana. It is hard to say just how this news spread to the more distant camps, but probably, to a great extent, by word of mouth. And with the rumor began almost at once a quiet, hardly noticeable migration headed always in one direction, toward Nenana. It is well within the memory of many men in the territory that incidents like the following occurred.

Men living beside the most traveled trails, and therefore subject to frequent visits from wayfarers, had visitors to spend the night. Invariably the two leading questions that all men on the trail were asked, were:

"Where are you from?"

"Been mining in the Iditarod?"

"Going far?"

"Nenana. I hear the Government has opened a good hospital there. Been having trouble with my back for years.'

Or:

"Going to the States?"

"No; just came down from Dime creek, Nome country. Headed for Nenana. A guy hit camp last month, just in from there. Said they have a surgeon there who is a wizard with a knife."

Let the record of the Government hospital during its five years of service speak for itself: The first operating room was a tent. The first ward likewise a tent adjoining a canvas-covered kitchen where meal sfor the sick and convalescent were prepared. But from the first the quarters were overcrowded. While the completion of the first permanent building was being rushed, patients from different parts of the interior came seeking admission. In October, 1916, the hospital was moved into the permanent quarters, which seemed ample at the time. However, during the fall of 1917 a large addition had to be added on to the first structure. As now constituted, the hospital is a modern three-story building and contains operating and X-ray rooms, dispensary, doctors' office, three large wards, several private rooms, a dining room, kitchen, electrically equipped laundry, etc. It is in itself a completely functioning plant. The present staff consists of a chief surgeon, assistant surgeon, anaesthetist, matron, three other graduate nurses, three male nurses, cook and assistant, and laundress.

Value to Alaskans

From statistics printed in the regular report issued by the hospital authorities the item alone covering surgical operations shows the true value of the institution to Alaskans. For a period of nine months ending May 27th, 1918, (I have been unable to get later statistics) 249 surgical operations were performed, a surprising percentage of which were major operations. During this time was also 752 patients treated, 744 of which were recorded as cures, two as improvements, and six as deaths.

If it is true that the real worth of any institution can be gauged by the esteem in which the people of a community hold that institution, then without any degree of doubt is the big Government hospital at Nenana a great benefit to the surrounding country. Its popularity can be measured best by the regard in which it is spoken of where ever one goes in the territory of Alaska.

SORES SPREAD ALL OVER FACES AND HANDS

Mrs. Howard Houlette, Waskatenau, Sask., writes:—"I wish to tell you of the benefit we have received by using your valuable medicine Burdock Blood Bitters.

My children started to break out on their faces in small white pimples which kept getting larger each day. Pus would form under the scabs and they would come off, and each time the sores would be larger; some were as large as a twenty-five cent piece and would spread all over their bodies. I was nearly in despair and sent to the village for a bottle of good blood medicine. The druggist sent me a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, which I commenced giving them at once.

In about ten days I saw an improvement and they grew steadily better each day, and in one month the sores had all disappeared."

All blood and skin diseases are caused by bad blood, and to get it pure and keep it pure you must remove every trace of the impure and morbid matter from the system by a blood cleansing medicine such as a remedy that has been on the market for the past forty-five years, and one without an equal for all diseases and disorders of the blood.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND
BY "SAPPER"
(CYRIL McNEILE)

"You seem to haev a nice little crowd of pets about the house," remarked Drummond, putting a hand on the man's arm as he was about to move off. "What was that docile creature we've just heard calling to its young?"

The ex-pugilist looked at him sullenly.

"Never you mind, sir; it ain't no business of yours. An' if I was you, I wouldn't make it your business to find out."

A moment later he had disapeared into the bushes and Drummond was left alone. Assuredly a cheerful household he reflected; just the spot for a rest-cure. Then he saw a figure on the lawn of the next house which banished everything else from his mind, and opening the gate he walked eagerly towards Phyllis Benton.

IV.

"I heard you were down here," she said gravely, holding out her hand to him. "I've been sick with anxiety ever since father told me he had seen you."

Hugh imprisonede the little hand in his own huge ones and smiled at the girl.

"I call that just sweet of you," he answered. "Just sweet.....Having people worry about me is not much in my line but I rather like it."

"You're the most impossible person," she remarked, releasing her htnd. "What sort of a night did you have?"

"Somewhat particoloured," returned Hugh lightly. "Like the hoary old curate's egg—calm in parts."

"But why did you go at all?" she cried, beating her hands together. "Don't you realise that if anything happens to you, I shall never forgive myself?"

The soldier smiled reassuringly.

"Don't worry little girl," he said. "Years ago I was told by an old gipsy that I should die in my bed of old age and excessive consumption of invalid port. . . . As a matter of fact, the cause of my visit was rather humorous. They abducted me in the middle of the night, with an ex-soldier of my old battalion, who was, I regret to state, sleeping off the effects of much indifferent liquor in my rooms."

"What are you talking about?" she demanded.

"They thought he was your American millionaire cove, and the wretched Mullings was too drunk to deny it. In fact, I don't think they ever asked his opinion at all." Hugh grinned reminiscently. "A pathetic spectacle."

"Oh! but splendid," cried the girl a little breathlessly. "And where was the American?"

"Next door—safe with a very dear old friend of mine, Peter Darrell. You must meet Peter some day—you'll like him." He looked at her thoughtfully "No," he added, "on second thoughts I'm not at all sure that I shall let you meet Peter. You might like him too much; and he's a dirty dog."

"Don't be ridiculous," she cried with a faint blush. "Tell me, where is the American now?"

"Many miles out of London," an wered Hugh. "I think we'll leave it at that. The less you know, Miss Benton, at the moment—the better."

"Have you found out anything?" she demanded eagerly.

Hugh shook his head.

"Not a thing. Except tha onr neighbors are as pretty a bun h of scoundrels as I ever want to meet."

"But you'll let me know if you do." She laid a hand beseechingly on his arm. "You know what's at stake for me, don't you? Father, and—oh! but you know."

"I know," he answered gravely. "I know, old thing. I promise I'll let you know anything I find out. And in the meantime I want you to keep an eye fixed on what goes on nex door, and let me know anything of importance by letter to the Junior Sports Club." He lit a cigarette thoughtfully. "I have an idea that they feel so absolutely confident in their own power, that they are going to make the fatal mistake of underrating their opponents. We shall see." He turned to her with a twinkle in his eye.

"Anyway, our Mr. Lakington will see that you don't come to any harm."

"The brute!" she cried, very low. "How I hate him!" Then with a sudden change of tone, she looked up at Drummond. "I don't know whether it's worth mentioning," she said slowly, "but yesterday afternoon four men came at different times to The Elms. They were the sort of type one sees tub-thumping in Hyde Park, all except one, who looked like a respectable workingman."

Hugh shook his head.

"Don't seem to help much, does it? Still, one never knows. Let me know an thing like that in future at the Club."

"Good morning, Miss Benton." Peterson's voice behind them made Drummond swing round with a smothered curse. "Our inestimable friend Captain Drummond brought such a nice young fellow to see me last night, and then left him lying about the house this morning."

Hugh bit his lip with annoyance; until that moment he had clean forgotten that Mullings was still in The Elms.

Millions Who Are Sick Need This Medicine

Will Be a Revelation to Suffering Humanity—Cleans Liver in a Few Minutes—Symptoms of Liver Trouble are: Sallow Complexion, Bad Taste in Mouth on Rising, Tired, Out of Sorts, Etc.

This new drug is called Tanated Calomel. It acts only on the Liver, which immediately relieves many troubles, as Rheumatism, Constipation, Boils, Kidney Pains, etc. No Salts, Seidlitz, are necessary after taking, because it is self-eliminating. It does not have a nauseating sickening feeling the next day, like so many similar drugs. You, no doubt, have been taking all sorts of laxatives, Salts, castor oil, etc., with only temporary results. The reason is that some of these draw liquid from the blood and tissues, causing a great flush. What you need is something like Tanated Calomel, which causes the Bile to be excreted from the Liver into the Bowel, causing a natural elimination of the waste. You know waste allowed to remain in the system causes a multitude of troubles. I can venture to say that 90 per cent. of all sickness is due directly to this very thing. What is generally the first thing your doctor does when you are sick? He gets your Bowels operating so as to eliminate wastes in your Bowels, which are poisoning your system. Now, in order to be happy, healthy, vigorous, vivacious bright, alert, keen to observe and understand, you must first keep your Liver clean, or you are coaxing all sorts of trouble upon yourself. Doctors recommend that you take a tablet before eating and one at bedtime. Just get some of these, and I feel assured that you will feel as if you had a new lease of life.

These Tanated Calomel Tablets are for sale by F. C. Webber, Charlotte street.

The Solution of the Milk Problem

What Is The Solution of The Milk Problem?

INSPECTION and PASTEURIZATION, hence a milk supply that is both supervised and pasteurized, is the only solution of the problem.

You will notice that there is absolutely no sediment in the bottom of any bottle of milk or cream that you receive from us. This is because we CLARIFY all milk so that every bit of sediment is removed. Every bottle is washed by live steam and rinsed in clear cold water.

Our milk is all bottled by modern and sanitary fillers, perfectly HYGIENIC, so that at no time is the milk touched by human hands.

Are You a Milk Bottle Hoarder?

Do you realize that every milk bottle you keep, when empty, helps boost the price of milk?

Glass, and particularly bottle glass, has increased in price by bounds.

Every breakage, every bottle you use for convenience around the house—in fact, every bottle you do not return promptly—means added expense to the dairy.

The thoughtful housewife is co-operating to keep the price of milk as low as possible, by sending back all milk bottles as quickly as they are empty.

It doesn't matter which dairy they belong to—they will be returned to the proper owner. But put them out tomorrow morning.

CELEBRATED THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

MR. AND MRS. R. HANBIDGE OF OTONABEE MARRIED 50 YEARS

(Contributed).

On Tuesday evening last, at their home in Otonabee, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hanbidge celebrated their golden wedding. Social joy, happy reminiscences, youth and age mingling together in mirth and music, filled an evening long to be remembered. Throughout all the proceedings there was a conspicuous absense of all formality. A splendid programme, in which nearly everybody joined, was a delightful feature of the evening. This intellectual menu did not consist of a few special items, but was as varied as the colored landscape, when it puts its garb of glory on, to thrill every emotion of the soul. From the solos by little Miss Barbara Dawson and her brother, right through to the duet by Mr. Samuel Deyell and Mrs. John Deyell, of this city, it was a genuine "mixed programme." Mr. George Hanbidge and his sister, Mrs. Taylor, gave a number of selections on the organ and piano, the Sargent sisters of Peterborough sang a trio to the pleasure of the audience, while Rev. and Mrs. Ross, of Mark Street, sang, by request, two duets, entitled "His Love Can Never Fail" and "Rock of Ages."

This programme followed a sumptuous repast, served in splendid style, in the beautifully decorated dining hall, which was adorned with 'mums and ferns. After the wedding dinner had right royally discharged every duty, the pastor was called to the chair to take charge of one of the most unique social functions in the memory of the oldest guest. It was the fiftieth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. R. Hanbidge, the fifth anniversary of the marriage of their son George, and the birthday anniversary of a grand-daughter, who was present. Another happy feature of the occasion was the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Deyell, of this city, both present, were the groomsman and bridesmaid of fifty years ago. Well-merited compliments and congratulations were paid to the worthy couple, whose noble Christian life and godly example had done so much to mold and fashion the character, not only of their own family, but of the whole community. Samuel Deyell, Thos. Sargent, Herbert Taylor, and Mr. Ross spoke feelingly of the splendid sterling qualities of the happy pair, while the whole company joined in a well-directed and much deserved eulogy of Miss Hanbidge, whose devotion to home and parents had caused her to place every personal interest on the altar of a deep and Christ-like devotion. Mr. Robert Hanbidge spoke words of appreciation for himself and his bride, while Miss Hanbidge replied in her own happy way. The joyous event closed with prayer.

The following is a list of the guests: Rev. and Mrs. Geo. E. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Deyell, Mr. and Mrs. John Hanbidge, Mr. and Mrs. James Ruth, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. E. Sargent, Miss Mary Deyell, Miss Florence Sargent, Miss Bertha Sargent, Miss Lulu Sargent, Miss Grace Sargent, all of Peterborough; Mrs. John Deyell, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hanbidge and baby, Mr. and Mrs. William Dawson, Master Stewart Dawson, little Miss Barbara Dawson, of Otonabee; Miss Myrtle Sargent, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Welford Dawson, Mr. Harold Dawson, South Monaghan.

51, TRAPPED IN SUBMARINE, TELL OF MIRACLE ESCAPE

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Fifty-one members of the crew of the submarine S-48, who escaped through torpedo tubes after their craft had made a nose dive off Bridgeport harbor and stuck to the bottom, told a remarkable story of rescue on their arrival today at the navy yard.

According to a report made to the commandant, they lightened one end of the submarine until it appeared above the surface and then sat perched on this pinnacle for more than 10 hours, until after darkness had fallen. Then, by lighting matches, they attracted the attention of a passing tanker, which picked them up and brought them here.

Several of the men, as well as Lieut. Francis Adams Smith, were found to be suffering from the effects of chlorine gas, created by salt water flooding storage batteries.

After examination, however, only three were detained at the hospital.

The submarine left Bridgeport at 10.28 a.m. on a trial trip. About one mile off the entrance to the harbor, after making a nose dive, she failed to come up, and her commander reported that the presumption was one of her hatch covers not having been properly fastened, allowing water to seep in.

Salvaging operations already have been started. The submarine is believed not to have been seriously damaged.

SAYS RESOLUTION NOT NECESSARY.

Victoria County Council has passed and forwarded to Hon. Mr. Biggs a resolution favoring the suspension of building that portion of the Whitby to Lindsay highway north of Sunderland for five years. The Council pointed out that the present road north of Sunderland is in such fit condition, that it is good for that period. Did anybody ever think that this road would be built before another five years without such resolution? At the rate Government roads have been built in North Ontario it would be nearer ten years before we get what some other counties have already built. — Uxbridge Journal.

DOG SAVES GIRL OF 7, BECOMES SHIP HERO

Child Had Tried to Rescue Her Doll.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Thyras, a shaggy police dog from Poland, is a hero, acclaimed by the 16 passengers of the steamship Gdansk, which docked in Brooklyn, after buffeting its way across the Atlantic through storms that more than once threatened to carry youthful members of the ship's company over the rail and into the sea.

Capt. A. H. Peterson, who said it was the roughest voyage of his lifetime as a skipper, told the story of Thyras' exploit in saving Zeata Zaborowski, youngest of a family of five children on their way from Danzig to join relatives in the United States.

Zeata dropped her doll over the rail and it caught on a nail on the side of the ship, he said.

A heavy sea was running, but Zeata, who is 7 years old, started to climb after the doll. Just as she was going over the side, up dashed Thyras, who seized her dress and hung on. The girl screamed and the purser ran up and dragged her to safety. After that, Thyras and his two companions, Tolf and Nellie, were masters-at-arms and practically took care of the children.

Council of Women May Organize Local Branch Of the Humane Society

One virtuous and pure in heart did pray;
"Since none I wronged in deed or word today,
From whom should I crave pardon? Master, say".
A voice replied:
"From the sad child whose joy thou hast not planned;
The goaded beast whose friend thou dist not stand,
The rose that died for water from thy hand."

To many of those who have been agitating for some time for the formation of a society in Peterboro for preventon of cruelty to animals, the contemplated public meeting for such a purpose in January will be a welcome anouncement. The local Council of Women have been working towards this end for some time past, and passed a resolution on the subject last May. Co-operation with other committees interested in the seems to be forthcoming.

"What Constitutes Cruelty to Dumb Animals?" is a question often asked. The reply, given in a little pamphlet issued by the Toronto Humane Society, which is affiliated with the Ontario society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, is interesting: "Whatever inflicts upon them, or causes them to suffer, unnecessary pain—To be specific we should say, for example, that whoever drives a horse or works him when his condition is such that he cannot be driven or worked without suffering is guilty of cruelty. To use a horse with a part of the harness rubbing on a galled or sore spot, or when he is lame, or to drive him over a hard pavement unshod, or over icy and slippery pavements so shod that he cannot get no footing; to leave him standing unblanketed in cold or stormy weather; to use a bridle on him when the blinders crowd in upon his eyes, or to use the check rein when it is drawn tight enough to distress him, or the bit tortures him; to use a collar so small that it chokes him, or so large that it plays about his neck—these are some of the things the general statue is designed to prevent as cruelty.'

Big Sisterhood Plans Local Relief Project

LOCAL ORGANIZATION GETS UNDER WAY WITH A SUBSTANTIAL PROGRAMME—AIMS OF THE ASSOCIATION

The new local reorganization of feminine charitable workers, who have taken the name of the Big Sisterhood, wish to say that their society is not a new project, by any means. The members have been doing this sort of relief work for years, but, realizing the need this winter for greater efficiency in their work, organized for the sole object of having charitable work in the city done according to some sort of systematic procedure. Heretofore, cases have been encountered where more than one society was interested, and the work overlapped, while on the other hand, there are many instances on record of deserving people getting no help whatever, on account of a lack of system in the work of charitable aid. The hearty co-operation of every charitable society in the city was asked for in the endeavor to centralize calls for help and the ladies realize that in this way only can success be attained.

A room where supplies may be received and distributed has been secured over the Peterboro Milk Products establishment on Aylmer street, through the kindness of Mr. A. A. Gillespie, and here all kinds of food and clothing may be left at any time.

The new society, which has the welfare of those in need of help and sympathy as its main object, extends a cordial invitation to representatives of all local charitable organizations to co-operate with them in their aim of attaining the best methods of helping the poor and needy of the city.

Already, the ladies of North Monaghan and Springville have responded with a very generous donation of mattresses, pillows, quilts and good clothing, and cash donations have been received in several instances. A list will be published later.

Among the wealthy families in China it is improper for widows to remarry.

Got No Sleep

But now the neuritis has gone, the pains have ceased, the nervous system is restored and the writer of this letter pays a grateful tribute to the medicine which made him well.

Mr. John Woodward, P.T.O., Lucan, Ont., writes:

"It gives me much pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's medicines, especially the Nerve Food. I was a sufferer from neuritis for several years, and tried all kinds of remedies, yet never seemed to get any better. At last my nerves and whole system seemed to give way through not being able to get any rest or sleep at nights for pain, which mostly used to take me in all parts of the limbs and feet. My nerves would twitch till my whole body would seem to jerk right up as I lay in bed. Almost at the point of despair, I decided I would get Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which I did, and after taking twenty boxes I believe myself almost normal again. I also keep a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills on hand, and for the past year I seem to enjoy my usual health."

RECIPES

Damson Gin.

Into a two-gallon jar put three quarts of picked, dry and sound damsons three-quarters pound of brown sugar candy (or loaf sugar) pounded, half ounce of bitter almonds or damson kernels. Put over this one gallon of gin. Let the jar be well shaken occasionally. Be careful that the corks are airtight.

Orange Souffle Pie.

One cup of orange juice and grated rind, one lemon and grated rind, three-quarters cup sugar, four tablespoons corn starch or flour, three eggs, separated.

Heat orange and lemon juice and grated rind in a double boiler. Mix three-quarters cup of sugar and flour until well blended; add to hot juice and cook until thick. Beat egg yolks, add to hot mixture and cook five minutes. Beat egg whites until stiff, add one-quarter cup sugar. Fold into hot mixture and pour into a baked pastry shell. Place in a slow oven and bake until the top is a delicate brown, about eight minutes. This last may be omitted if wished. Cool thoroughly before serving.

Baked Lamb Chops.

Two lamb chops, one-third cup cracker crumbs, one tablespoon egg, one teaspoon salt, three tablespoons fat, three tablespoons water, one tablespoon green ppeper.

Roll the chops in the crumbs, egg and again in the crumbs; place in a small baking pan, well buttered; add the salt, green pepper, fat and water, cover with lid and bake in a moderate oven for 40 minutes. Baste frequently.

Lentil and Onion Croquettes.

Soak overnight one large cupful of dried lentils (or dried peas if preferred). In the morning drain, adding two cupfuls of water, a stalk of celery, a small carrot sliced and two or tree sprigs of chopped parsley; cook until soft, then remove the seasoning and rub through a sieve, stirring in a cupful of thick onion puree, one cupful of soft bread crumbs, salt and pepper to taste. An egg will help in the molding of the croquettes. Form with floured hands into small pyramids; placing in the ice-chest for at least an hour before serving; then egg and bread crumb, cooking in deep fat to a golden brown. Serve garnished with bunches of crisp cress.

Onion Loaf.

Here is a real substitute for meat and potatoes, and one which the majority of people will relish.

Put through the meat-chopper sufficient nut-meat to fill a coffee-cup, any preferred variety being permissible. Meanwhile moisten very slightly a portion of a loaf of stale bread and with a fork remove the crust, leaving small flaky pieces; now add to the bread the nuts, half a teaspoonful of powered mixed herbs, half a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of paprika, a small cupful of finely chopped onion, mixing to a paste with two tablespoonfuls of butter dissolved in about half a cupful of hot cream. Work well with the hands, forming into a small loaf, and after laying on a buttered baking-pan, bake for about an hour in a moderate oven, basting occasionally with melted butter. Serve hot with a cream sauce or sliced cold accompanied with mayonnaise dressing. With this may be served to advantage a green salad.

Potatoes With Cheese.

Split Irish potatoes which have been baked and sprinkle with grated cheese, return to oven long enough for the cheese to melt. Serve hot. Before baking and after potatoes have been thoroughly washed, roll them in salt. This adds gently to the flavor of the potato.

Egg Cutlets.

Boil three eggs twenty minutes; when cold remove the shell and chop them very fine; put one cupful of milk in the double boiler; mix one tablespoonful of butter and two of flour; add it to the scalding milk and cook until it is a smooth, thick paste; add to the chopped eggs a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one tablesoonful of salt, a few drops of onion-juice and a pinch of pepper; mix well and turn out to cool; then shape in small flat balls, dip in egg, then in bread crumbs and fry in hot, deep fat; remove, drain on paper and stick a small piece of parsley in the end of each ball; have ready a cream sauce, to which you have added a cup of peas; arrange the cutlets on a hot platter, pour around them the cream sauce. This recipe will serve at least three people.

Salmon Patties.

These make a good dish for luncheon or dinner whether served hot or cold. Mince freshly boiled or canned salmon fine and season well with salt, pepper, cayenne and a grating of nutmeg. Rub in a small quantity of butter and bind with the beaten yolk of an egg. Line tartlins with pie-crust, if you have it on hand, fill with the salmon mixture, cover each with cover of crust, trim round the edges, moisten and press together. Or use a small dish without the pie-crust. Bake in a hot oven.

This is a rich dish, heartier than meat and potatoes, and may be served with a green vegetable and a fruit dessert.

Boiled Samp.

Samp is a coarse hominy available almost everywhere and very palatable. It is most nutritious. Soak two cupfuls overnight in cold water. In the morning wash thoroughly, cover with boiling water and simmer gently all day. Do not stir, as that tends to make it "mushy," but shake the pot frequently. As the water boils away, add more, but not enough to make much liquid. About half an hour before serving add a cupful of rich milk, a tablespoonful of butter, and salt to season. Let this boil up once and serve hot.

SANTA CLAUS COMING HERE

A meeting of the Caledonian Club and Ladies' Auxiliary was held on Wednesday of this week at the W. O.W. hall when arrangements were made for the annual Christmas treat of the Club to the children of the Club and the Ladies' Auxiliary, on the Saturday before Christmas.

Santa marched down George street to the tune of the pipers' skirling, accompanied by hundreds of jubilant children.

This year, the celebration will start with a childrens' party in the W.O.W. rooms at 4 o'clock and continue right through the evening, with a supper for the kiddies, and a program arranged and put on by the children themselves, of songs recitations and Highland dances. Santa will arrive at 7 o'clock and entertain for the rest of the evening. There will also be a tree in the hall.

The ladies of the auxiliary are helping also with the arrangements for the annual Caledonian dance, to take place this year on December 30th.

WHEN NERVES ARE NEAR EXHAUSTION

A TONIC SHOULD BE TAKEN TO ENRICH THE BLOOD

When you become so exhausted after a day's work that you cannot sleep, or sleep fails to refresh you, it is time to look after your health. Failure to act at once means a steady drain on your health reserve, which can result, in but one thing—a nervous breakdown.

Do not wait for a breakdown. The treatment is simple enough if you do not let your condition become too far advanced. The treatment is one of nutrition of the nerve cells, requiring an effective tonic. As the nerves have to be nourished by the blood, the vital fluid must be built up. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood, and with proper regulation of the diet have proved of the greatest benefit in nervous troubles.

Mrs. Mary McAdam, Sydney Mines, N.S., is one of the many who has proved this tonic treatment. She says: "Last winter my health completely gave out. I was all run down and my nervous system in a condition that greatly alarmed me. often had nervous headaches, and at times severe pains in the region of my heart. I felt as though I would never be well again. My husband got me a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and before the second box was finished I began to improve and under a further use of the pills I felt as well as ever. I would advise all weak and nervous women to give this medicine a trial."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HER CONSCIENCE

By MRS. J. E. LESLIE

Heard a story the other day about the man who odered a five-pound box for his wife. After he had gone out the salesgirl reflected that he was either newly married or had done something.

The story was told as a joke, but the girl had the right idea. She knew the workings of the masculine conscience.

There probably isn't a married woman or one dealing with any man who doesn't recognize the truth of the girl's observation.

When a man has done something that he knows he shouldn't have done, and his conscience won't give him any peace he casts about in his mind for some way to compensate that will quiet the nagging of the still, small voice.

If he had left the house in a grouchy mood, with only an apology for the parting kiss, he can't rest easy and racks his brain all the way downtown for some excuse to call Wife up and make peace or at least see how the land lies.

When he has had about time to reach the office, the home phone rings. Wife smiles to herself. She knows who is at the other end of the line and why he is there and wonders what the excuse will be for calling her. If she is still unforgiving she refuses to answer. A little later it rings and again and again till she can no longer resist the plea it is ringing or thinks "He" has suffered eough for his dereliction and answers.

"That you, dearie?" comes the anxiously cheerful reply to her "Hello." The chance meeting of an acquaintaince, or a bit of office gossip that he has cudgeled his brains to resurrect, offers excuse for the call.

She answers him according to her degree of forgiveness, and sends him back to his work, happy, in a sense of duty performed and the reign of domestic peace; or depressed with conscience redoubled in its accusations.

Then maybe he orders the candy or the flowers or something wanted that he has long neglected to acquire.

He opens the door at night with an expectant, anxious smile, eager to see how the peace offering has worked. It is a hard-hearted wife who can refuse or chill the offered kiss and tell him how much she is pleased with the candy or posies or whatever form his masculine taste has taken to smooth over the hurt he left in the morning.

The business woman has the same experience with her masculine associate only his penitence takes a different form with her. When he has conciously erred, he is very particular to wish her "Good morning," or Good night,' to talk matters that otherwise he would not have time to bother about; or to ask her to do something for him; or any little device that will assuage his guilty conscience till he feels that she has forgiven him and he forgets all about it till the next time.

The are very transparent—these grown-up boys, though they thnk we don't see through them at all.

WIFE'S CANDOR PUTS JIM BACK INTO JAIL

Wanted To Aid Him, She Said,—"But Such Lies!"—

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Ada Thompson started down-town to qualify for the title of helpmate. She really wanted to help her husband, James, out of his difficulties. How she succeeded is hereby narrated:

James was before Judge Pliny W. Marsh, charged with having been drunk.

"I am a reputable citizen, Your Honor," explained James to Judge Marsh. "I have a nice little wife, whom I dearly love and with whom I live."

"Why, Jimmie, how can you tell such a lie!" spoke up Mrs. Thompson. "You know perfectly well you haven't lived with me for two years. I came here to help you, but I don't think you ought to lie like that."

Judge Marsh opined that a 30-day sentence to the House of Correction about fitted Mr. Thompson's case.

Next came Dilliam Pilkington, charged with the same offense.

'Why were you drunk?" asked Judge Marsh.

"I was celebrating the freedom of Ireland," responded Mr. Pilkington.

"Are you Irish?" asked the Judge.

"No," responded Mr. Pilkington.

"Ten dollars fine," said the Judge.

PROFITEERING IN WAR ORPHANS IS EXPOSED

Relatives in Europe Hides Boy and Pockets Relief Money.

NEW YORK, December 9. — Profiteering in war orphans is one of the newest industries in Europe, according to the Jewish Relief Committee, which has announced that it has nipped in the bud one such case by bringing the orphan to America. Abraham Levine, 11 years old, was left with his mother in Poland in 1913, when his father came to America to make a home for the family. The outbreak of the war prevented them from following and then the mother died.

A relative assumed custody of the lad, but according to the relief committee dressed him in rags and then underfed him while he pocketed the sent by Abraham's father for his support. The committee experienced difficulty in tracing the boy as the relative regarded him as such a good asset that he kept him carefully concealed.

EDUCATION AT MOST ANY COST

By MRS. J. E. LESLIE

Statistics show thousands of children out of school in the United States. One wonders how that can be with such strict school laws. There are various reasons why there are so many educational slackers. Financial shortage in the family exchequer is the prime reason, maybe. There is a big family, bigger than father and mother can support to pay nothing of educating them. The children must be taken out of school to go to work to make up the financial deficiency—or if they are too small to work; there isn't money enough to buy them proper clothes for school wear—or maybe they are kept at home to help Mother in her overworked condition.

Maybe the parents haven't learned the values of education and deliberately take their children out of school and put them to work.

Maybe the children themselves do not want to go to school and are allowed to stay away by over-indulgent parents who do not care to make the exertion to find out where the trouble lies and remedy it.

That the responsibility of the children's education lies with mother and father there is no question—that in future years the children will blame them for their lack, there is no doubt, even though they refused themselves to go to school.

If children don't like to go to school it is in 9 cases out of 10 because the child is behind in his work—that somewhere along his grade course there was some fundamental that he did not understand—consequently failed to make good in all that depended on that fundamental ever after. No pupil who is discouraged will enjoy his school work. If a parent or teacher would take active means to find out where the trouble lies, as soon as they notice a lack of interest in a student, there would not be as many thousands of children evading the school laws.

If it is a matter of clothes that keeps the embryo man or woman from wanting to go to school, it is up to the mother and father to supply the deficiency somehow. There is always some one in the world appeal to. Ont can't blame the child — it is a matter of pride with him. He sees his little class mate better dressed than he is. It hurts and he isn't old enough to be philosophical about it—in fact there are not many humans who are whatever our age.

Education means so much in these days and is growing more all the time that it seems as if every parent and child of understanding age should appreciate it. If everyone can be convinced of its mental, moral, physical and commercial worth there will be no need of enforced laws for schooling.

Mentally it means the trained mind that can see the good, the true and the beautiful and mold a life in accordance, also it means the ability to think and do, that gives a man value in the commercial world.

Morally it means just so much more good in the world—just so many more who are fine and true, because they understand.

Physically, it means healthy bodies and correspondingly clear minds, because the educated know how to take care of themselves and recognize the value and beauty of physical wholesomeness.

Commercially it means that the owners of an education have something that nothing can take away from them and that in time of need they always have something to fall back upon that will not fail them.

ANOTHER CHAPTER IN NEGOTIATIONS FOR UNION STATION FOR PETERBORO'

Trunk and the Canadian Pacific are willing to abandon their present exclusive passenger stations and to use a joint passenger station as their sole passenger station in the City of Peterborough for handling passenger, baggage, mail and express business;

NOW THEREFORE THIS AGREEMENT WITNESSETH that the practice here to respectively covenant, promise and agree each with the other as follows:

1. This City will pass such By-laws and take such proceedings as may be necessary to enable it to grant unto the Railway Campanies parties hereto, the sum of ——, by way of bonus to assist in defraying the cost of the acquisition of land of the Union Station herein provided for, and any subways or other works by way of highway grade separation that may be found expedient in connecton therewith, together with any lands that may hereafter be acquired or set apart for the purposes thereof for a period of twenty-five (25) years commencing on the date of the final confirmation; of the By-law providing for such exemption; and the City will thereafter pay to the Canadian Pacific the said sum of——, to be credited to the Capital Account hereinafter provided for.

2. Upon the final passage and confirmation of the By-laws hereinbefore provided for, and upon the payment to it of the said bonus of——, the Canadian Pacific will forthwith proceed to acquire or set aside such lands as may be mutually agreed upon between the parties hereto to be necessary for the construction, maintenance, operation and use of and adequate joint passenger station in the immediate vicinity of and north-easterly from the crossing of the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific main tracks in the vicinity of the intersection of Townsend Street and Bethune Street in the said City of Peterborough: such to be shown on a plan which shall be signed by the Engineers of the parties hereto and made part of this Agreement.

3. The City will, at its own cost and expense, pass such By-laws and take such proceedings as may be necessary to close such portions of existing lanes, streets or highways as the Canadian Pacific is to acquire under the provisions of Paragraph two (2) hereof and will convey the same together with any other lands owned by it which are to be acquired by the Canadian Pacific under the provisions of Paragraph two (2) hereof to the Canadian Pacific for the nominal sum of One Dollar ($1.00).

$50,000 Grant

In the discussion Thursday night Ald. Turner estimated the cost of the cost of the land which the city is to acquire by the draft agreement at $25,000 as a grant towards the construction of required subway at Aylmer street. Ald. Joseph Crowe balked a this total suggested grant of $50,000 and declared the people would never stand for it "in these hard times". Other members spoke discouragingly of the reception it would likely received from ratepayers and it was thought best to have Mayor McIntyre meet Vice-president MacTier and discuss the proposals and determine more exactly what the C.P.R. expected from the city in the way of a grant. The proposals of the G.T.R. are also desired. In discussing the proposed subway City engineer R. H. Parsons predicted difficulties in adequate drainage and also pointed out that from its pecular situation it would be difficult to give the adjoining properties ingress and egress and it would also interfere with the city's sewer system

Late Hours For Guards

The Railway Committee passed a recommendation to the C.P.R. that the guards at the C.P.R. crossing at Aylmer street be on duty from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. the year round instead of 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. as at present. In a letter dated some time back W. Dodds, agent of the C.P.R. asked if the city did not consider the protection sufficient and what suggestions they had to offer. At first the Committee was only going to ask to have the recommended hours in force in the summer but it was finally thought satisfactory for the entire year. Ten o'clock was unanimously declared to be too early to cease protection but it was thought an hour could be taken off in the morning as there is little traffic before seven.

Commend the G.T.R.

A. D. Cartwright, Secretary of the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada wrote asking if the city desired to file any reply to an application by the G.T.R. providing protection at Argylle street. There was nothing but commendation for the interest of the G.T.R. in this matter and it was considered that the wigwag system to be installed there will adequately fill the need.

Railway Nuisance

In view of the progress being made towards the establishment of a union station here a letter from Mr. J. D. McMillan, District Superintendent of the G.T.R. in reply to an insistent complaint by the residents of Bethune street on the noise of shunting engines at night and suggesting the removal of the engine house was received with no comment. Mr. McMillan wrote as follows:

"I can assure you I regret very much that the residents of Bethune street have been inconvenienced or annoyed in any way on account of the noises of our locomotives but I think you will agree with me it is almost impossible to eliminate this noise entirely. There is no doubt that the volume of business that has been passing through there for the past few weeks has greatly advanced this annoyance. This matter has been taken up with our engineeres and trainmen, and instructions re-issued that everything possible must be done to eliminate unnecessary noise.

Regarding removal of the engine-house, this is a question that has been up for some time. We would be most pleased to move this eyesore from its present location if we were able to find a suitable location elsewhere. As you are aware at the present time this company has under consideration a joint station proposition in Peterboro, and all concerned will agree that the moving of the engine house should be left in abeyance, until the matter of a union station is definitely decided".

Too Bad Peter Robinson Couldn't See It.

Ald. J. J. Turner fathered a recommendation that will improve the appearance of Robinson's Island recently acquired by the city. This island which is about 500 feet long to 70 feet wide and about two and one-half miles below Rye's Boathouse is according to early traditions the spot on which the Robinson settlers first landed in their tedious progress up the Otonabee. Ald. Turner reported that the underbrush needed cleaning out and dead trees removed and be intimated that David Johnston whose property adjoins would undertake this cleaning up process if given the wood and would also act as a supervisor. By motion of the city solicitor was instructed to prepare an agreement to this effect between Mr. Johnston and the city.

Another Offer.

Chairman Ald. Gainey said that J. E. Ellis offered to sell his property required for the park for $10,500 and J. H. Bettes his property for $7,300. As every cent is needed of the land it was decide to make an offer of $8,500 to J. E. Ellis and an offer of $7,000 to J.H.Bettes without prejudice and for the costs of avoiding arbitration, subject to both offers being accepted within ten days

It was felt that Mr. Ellis should receive greater compensation than Mr. Bettes because the former did not have access to his business while the latter was only cut off from access to his home. It is a case of one man having a business but being unable to get at it, in the other case there is a man with a business being unable to get a this home. The committee decided the business was the most important.

COULDN'T DO HOUSEWORK HEART WAS SO BAD

Many women get weak and run down and unable to look after their household duties owing to the heart action becoming impaired or the nervous system unstrung.

Nature intended women to be strong, healthy and happy instead of sick and wretched. But how can a woman be strong and healthy when day in and day out she has to go through the same routine of work sweeping, dusting, cooking, washing, etc. Is it any wonder that the heart becomes effected and nervous, has hot flushes, faint and dizzy spells, smothering and sinking spells and can't sleep at night.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

are the best remedy to tone up the system and strengthen the weakened organs.

Mrs. Daniel Bezanson, Loganville, N.S., writes:—"As I was troubled with a weak heart for nearly two years I am writing to tell you what your great remedy, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, has done for me.

"My heart was so bad at night I could not sleep, I would take smothering spells, and was so weak I could not do my housework. I tried two doctors, but no results. A friend advised me to try your pills. I used six boxes and am completely relieved. I think they are the best remedy for heart trouble there is."

DOPE ON DUDS, HATS FROM N. Y.

Al. Advises You To Get a Girdle, Atomizer, Feather Slippers, Etc.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Be sure that these items are on your Christmas shopping list:

Metal girdle.
Atomizer.
Feather slippers.
Muff.
Cashmere muffler, polka-dotted.

New York's fleeting obsessions are many and of brief duration, but while they prevail, there is no denying them.

The girdles are of gold and silver, of platimum and of brass, of nickel and steel, set with precious, semi-precious and worthless stones, mined or manufactured in colors that contrast pleasantly with the frock they encircle.

The atomizer is not the useful article that squirts tired tonsils. It is the danity boudoir tool, the device that sprays perfume into the air, the hair and the clothing, and it is sold in a variety of styles to suit every taste and almost every purse. Some of them hold about a good hooker of Fleur de Cabbage; others are quart containers.

Some Other Odors.

Judging by the odor which permeates most of Gotham's cabarets, one may well believe that the girls and boys are not sprinkling themselves only with the perfumes extracted from flowers. Not infrequently one catches a scent that originated in the grain or the grape or even the lowly juniper berry.

The feather slippers are not merely slippers made of feathers. They are slippers made from the feathers of the peacock or his wife, the peahen; from the bird of paradise and the lyre bird; from the algret and the lovely umfallulu bird, imported at great expense from the Filbert Islands. It was Mercury, a speedy man-about-town, well known in the speakeasies of Athens, who started this fad.

The muffs are just muffs—the round kind, preferably of moleskin and worn, if convenient, with a moleskin coat and a sassy toque of the same.

Why They're High.

By the way, Ada Lewis explains in "Good Morning, Dearie," the high cost of Moleskins, declaring that a coat consists of 800 skins, each one of which once sheltered a mole who playfully dug his way through an expensive lawn. So, when you buy a coat, you must pay also for 800 ruined lawns.

The cashmere mufflers are for the snappy dressers of the paying sex. Every third chappy on Broadway and the Avenue wears one. The doggiest are white with large polka dots plentifully polka-dotted about the back of the neck.

A few minor items may be mentioned here for the benefit of my readers who look to this reporter for hot dope on duds. Hats must have a sweep of feathers or something dangling. Pompoms are good, too.

Good news for the manufacturer of ear rings, whose plant has been shut down for seven years, is contained in the news that ears are peeping forth timidly again and always are set with pendants of pear or diamond and platinum or jet.

Black satin slippers twinkle along with flashing red heels.

Garters Peep Forth.

The girls aren't wearing wool hose much, remaining true to the old-fashioned well-filled silk stocking. The garters are sound, are worn just below the knee and are often visible without at all annoying either wearer or spectator.

Take it from one whose faulty eyesight is a sore trial, that skirts are not being worn longer, no matter what Paris says on the subject.

The hem, completely estranged from the ankle, has been drawn to the knee to which it clings with affecting devotion as impressive as the liking of the prodigal son for the fatted calf.

No one, apparently, protests. The exhibitors throng the streets, never lacking an audience. And there is no particularly desirable vantage point from which to watch the parade. The line of march is the length of this silly island of Manhattan.

New York certainly is attractive these beautifully, windy December days.

WALL STAEET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(Canadian Press.)—With a few exceptions the usual leaders were ignored in early trading on the stock exchange today. Mexican Petroleum opened unchanged, but soon rose one point. Corn Products, Pittsburg Coal and Northern Pacific also were firm to strong. California Packing was the only issue to show acute weakness, declining 1 1-2 points. Prices steadied within the first half hour, however, buying of Canadian Pacific, Royal Dutch and some of the prominent equipments and shippings contributing a better tone.

ASTOUNDINGS SETTINGS THE FEATURE OF GEORGE MELFORD'S BEAUTIFUL PARAMOUNT PRODUCTION "THE SHEIK."

One of the most impressive features of "The Sheik", George Melford's latest production for Paramount, which comes to the Capitol Theatre next Monday, are the many magnificent and spectacular settings in which the various scenes are enacted. These include:

A remarkable conception of a public section of the ancient City of Carthage under Roman rule; a birds eye shot of the City of Biskra, the Monte Carlo of the Algerian Sahara, taken from a minaret with an Arab praying in the foreground; fifteen actual shots about the city of Biskra, especially made for the picture by a representative from Paramount's London Studio; la picturesque African oasis, especially constructed on the desert site near Hollywood; a complete Arabian village—the stronghold of the bandit chieftain, Omair; and beautiful, exotic interiors, such as the interior of the Sheik's tent, and the desert palace of Omair.

In the Carthage episode, which is a vision in the picture, a very unusual effect is presented. Agnes Ayres, playing the principal feminine role, is shown as the haughty queen who rules the city under Roman domination. When the scene first opens, it shows the proud English girl, later to be captured by the Sheik, encamped at night among the ruins of Roman splendor in the ancient city. There are broken pillars and crumbling ruins.

Then the girl becomes a Carthaginian queen, the architecture is restored and the scenes of splendor peopled with the royal court, flower girls, harp girls slaves, centurions and Roman soldiers follow. The vision establishes the haughty, dominant character of the girl, who insists upon taking a journey into the desert, despite her brother's objections.

The role of the Sheik is played by Rudolph Valentino, the popular "Julio" of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." The cast further includes Lucien Littlefield, Adolphe Menjou, George Waggner, Ruth Miller, Walter Long and E. R. Butler.

Besides this remarkable 8 reel production the Capitol has arranged a special lot of very excellent short reel subjects and comedies. It's a dollar show at the usual Capitol prices, and as this wonderful picture has broken all attendance records everywhere, it should pack 'em at every performance in this city.

Added to their excellent picture and vaudeville programme for last evening, the Capitol had three acts of local talent, which were much enjoyed. Mr. W. Thompson gave a good imitation of Harry Lauder, in real Scotch make-up; M. Willard and K. Cullen were two jazzy boy entertainers with a loudy-encored singing, pianoforte and Hawaiian guitar number, and a thrice-recalled little trio, composed of the Misses G. and D. Donley and J. Nazimok completed the programme, with sweet vocal, piano and violin selections.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, Manager Abbey has a fine vaudeville programme. Little 7 year old Dorothy Waters, a picture star in "Black Beauty," will be here, in a singing and dancing act. The little lady is one of the cleverest child entertainers in America, and has appeared on the screen with Charles Ray and Wallace Reid. She will be here in person next week, in company with Jaxon, the king of white and gold accordeon.

—FAN—FAN

AT THE GRAND.

REX STOCK COMPANY.

Instead of having enough of our permanent stock company, the Rex players seem to become more popular every week. The demand for next week has caused the box office staff to work over-time. The credulous may say: "Oh, yes! the guessing contest! There's the reason." Apparently it is only partially the reason. Personally I think it is the announcement of a Clyde Fitch comedy. You know, farces and plays by more or less well-known authors are all very well in their way, but a playwright like Clyde Fitch always assures a fashionable audience. So the Grand on Monday night will probably present a gala appearance. Rex's following is so large that one wonders sometimes if it would be possible to add extra seating accommodations.

Without saying anything to divuuge the name of next week's play or even to suggest it, I would like to say that the characters are all so likeable, so thoroughly human, the dialogue is so clever that from beginning to end there is not a dull moment. A certain phase of human nature, a pretty general failing is traced from father to daughter. It is not a very serious fault, and no great harm is done; but, oh, what funny complications ensue, what intriguing situations occur! The people, nearly all of them, are society folk. They speak and act like well-bred people usually do. Yet there is that little frailty in one of the principals. A charming, loving young wife really adores her husband, but she cannot help being just like father, and to accomplish a good act for her friend, she gets herself in quite wrong with friend husband. The difficulty is only temporary though, and it all ends happily. The Rex Company offers you a great treat on Monday evening, Dec. 12th.

"REPUTATION"

That's Everything—Says Priscilla InHer NewPicture, at The Royal Theatre

"Reputation," the newest Universal Jewel super-feature, starring Priscilla Dean at the Royal Theatre last time today is heralded as a dramatic thunderbolt of tremendous power. After her two recent successes. "The Virgin of Stamboul" and "Outside the Law", Universal realized it would require a photoplay of extraordinay strength to complete the dramatic trinity. From all accounts, "Reputation" not only proves its right to follow the first two, but many reviewers have declared it to be by far the most powerful drama projected on the screen in many months.

The most interesting feature of "Reputation" is the fact that it permits Priscilla Dean to play a dual role—a mother and daughter—both possessing marked histronic genius, but differing in every other characteristic. The mother is a woman who has violated social code and sunk to moral depths in inverse ratio to her rise in fame and popularity. The daughter, on the other hand, blooms like a violet in a swamp, and grows up to pure and charming young womanhood. The mother has forgotten's the daughter' existence while the child has never known the mother's indentity. Fate brings the two together under circumstances that try their souls and make for big dramatic situations.

The story under the title of "False Colors" first appeared in a magazine as the work of Edwina Levin, Lucien Hubbard and Doris Schroeder adapted it to the screen. It was directed by Stuart Paton, with a cast that includes Niles Welch, Spottiswoode Aitken, Harry Van Meter, Rex de Roseli, Harry Carter, William Welsh, Mae Giraci, Kathleen Meyers and many others.

THE ROYAL THEATRE

For Monday's program the Royal Peterboro's leading moving picture house has been fortunate enough to secure the eight reel million dollar spectacular production entitled "The Son of Wallingford. This wonderful production required the presence of three thousand actors of all grades. Over 10,000 toy baloons and two tons of confetti were required for the street pageant. The entire town of Whittier, California was turned over to the producers for six days to get this picture. Every reader of the Cosmopolitan magazine is, through its columns, acquainted with that loveable and wealthy rascal "Get Rich Quck Wallingford" and his partner Blackie Dawe. To-day's picture introduces this pair of expert crooks whilst they are making every effort to conceal from their respective sons the unlawful source of their wealth. They are bound that their boys at least shall grow up honest. In addition to this unusual feature, there are seven other reels of specially selected subjects all interesting and all first seen goods.

PEARL WHITE COMING IN A CLEVER STORY

Miss Pearl White, who as "serial queen," was long known in more theatres the world over than any other motion picture actress, will be at the Reegnt Theatre next Monday in her new William Fox feature, "Beyond Price."

Miss White has done some fine work for William Fox since she abandoned serial work.

In "Beyond Price" she has a story that at times is as thrilling as any serial, though essentially a high-class comedy. The story is of a neglected wife who in her despair wishes she were the wife of a millionaire, that she were a famous woman, and that she might feel the clasp of baby arms. Before the picture is finished alll these wishes are granted to her.

J. Searle Dawley directed "Beyond Price," for which Paul H. Sloane supplied the story.

SMOKE-SCHOLES RACE FEATURE OF BIG MEET

GREAT PROGRAMME FOR MONDAY NIGHT'S ATHLETIC NIGHT UNDER AUSFICES OF THE PETERBOROUGH A. A. A.

With a five mile race between Albert Smoke, winner of the Hamilton Herald Race and Art Scholes of the Gladstone Athletic Club, Ontario, five mile champion as the feature event, the Athletic night under the auspices of the Peterboro Amateur Athletic Club on Monday night promises to be the most interesting event of its kind since Long boat, Goulding, Bobby Kerr, Archibald and other members of the Canadian-Olympic team visited Brock street rink one memorable evening.

Scholes is not only the five mile champion but he has won 21 races at one mile this summer and altogether this season has competed in 52 race from 440 yard to 25 miles and has always been well up to the front. A matched race between Smoke and Scholes should be in itself enough to fill the rink.

But there are a lot of other good events as well including a roller hockey match between the P.A. A.A. and Arena teams a tug of war completion in which the Quaker Oats, C. G. E. and Wm. Hamilton A. A. have already entered teams and in which either the police or Fire Department will also be represented and a High School boy shuttle relay with the Peterboro Collegiate, Normal School and St. Peter's competing. Two other relay races are also on the card one for industrial concerns in which the entries already include the C. G. E. Canadian Woollens and the Brinton Carpet Company and a open relay in which the Y.W.C.A., Windsor, A. C. and the P.A.A.A. are entered. The Windsor Club's team will include Smoke, Stevens and Johnston while the P.A.A.A. will have Scholes, Tingley, Dugan, and Stacey.

A boys' sack race and several roller skating races including one for girls are also on the bill. The entries are coming in fast.

The officals will be:—

Referee—Dr. A. W. McPherson.

Starter—Walter Smaill.

Judges—Alex. Kay, Dr. Sutton, R. C. Flitton, Ed. Wright Art. Johnston.

Clerk of the Course — Doug. Loomis.

Scores— H. T. Theobald, F. D. Craig.

Timers—Gordon Miller, A. Cranfield.

BASKET BALL

The Peterborough Y.M.C.A. basketball team, intermediate champions of Ontario, got away to a good start in their second bid for provincial honours last night in the 'Y' gym, when they defeated the Cobourg Athletic Club's team in the first O. A.B.A. game of the season by 42 points to 24. The champs were ahead 16 to 8 at half time and were never seriously menaced, although the Horse Show town boys, headed by no less a personage than "Ty" Tyson, the manager and peppery catcher of Cobourg's Central League ball club, tried from whistle to whistle and gave the homesters little opportunity to relax.

The Peterborough team have, since last season, lost their two sharp-shooting forwards, Tom Pogue and "Chip" Seeley, both of whom are out of the city, but they have been very fortunate in having available two splendid players in Angie McLeod and Charlie Elliott. As all the rest of last year's champion outfit are still with the team, the crew should, barring accidents, be close at hand when the championship is being handed out at the end of the season. They looked very "sweet" in last night's game, although they have had not had enough practice yet to perfect their team play or to round them into the smooth-working machine they should be later on in the season.

They had a much more effective team play than the visitors and a much greater facility for slipping their checks. On top of this they did some fine shooting at all angles, with McLeod leading the parade with six field baskets and two fouls. Degraw and Elliott each tossed in four baskets from the field and all the rest of the team were represented in the scoring column. McLeod did not get a basket in the first half, but he came in great style after the rest, hanging up a rapid string of baskets from the field. Elliott got the first six points for his team, and is a most promising acquisition, while the old guard of last year's championship outfit all were in fine fettle. Claire Stuart was on the casalty list, and although in uniform, did not break into the game.

For the Cobourg team, Tyson was easily the star. He is an elusive forward with the ability to shoot from any position and was responsible for nearly half of his team's points last night. Allen and Alexander also gave a good account of themselves. The teams showed lots of pep and enthusiasm and will improve. Walter Smaill handled the game to the satisfaction of both teams. The interest that last year's success has created in basketball was shown by the good attendance last night. The line-ups:

Cobourg—Forwards, Tyson (11), Allen (5); centre, Jacobs; guards, Delanty, Rooeny (2). Subs, Alexander (6), Kerr.

Peterborough — Forwards, McLeod (14), Jobbitt (2); centre, Elliott (); guards, Degraw (8), Pogue (4). Subs, Darling (6), Stuart.

Cobourg could not seem to locate the basket at all at the beginning of the game and the local squad ran up the score to 10 to 0 before the visitors annexed a basket. Elliott three times in succession tossed in baskets on nice shots and after Jobbitt had tallied after a snappy piece of combination, Degraw made it 10 to 0. Then Tyson started the visitors off with a pretty shot from well out. Degraw came right back with another and Elliott changed the figures to 14 to 2 before Tyson got another opening, which he used to the best advantage. Darling slipped down the floor and scored neatly, bringing the Peterborough total to 16. The last two baskets of the period went to Cobourg, Tyson getting the first one and Alexander the final one—a luck basket, by the way, for the Cobourg sub batted the ball from a scrimmage and it dropped into the ring.

Cobourg started the second half with a rush and when Tyson scored a pretty basket in the first minute, making the score 16-10, it looked as if the game might tighten up considerably. Degraw, however, soon got that one back, and McLeod started his row of baskets by slipping away from his check and scoring on a quick shot from the side. Allen retaliated for Cobourg, making it 20 to 12, and then McLeod broke loose on a scoring carnival. Three times within two minutes he tossed the ball in, running the fires up to 26 to 12. Tyson stopped the rout for a moment by scoring from a foul, but the Petes came right back with four field baskets, Darling getting the first, McLeod the next pair and Degraw the fourth. Once more Tyson put on the brakes by a long shot, only to have Pogue and Darling each to reigster a field score after which McLeod scored from a foul. Allen evened that single up by making the best use of a foul throw a moment after. McLeod again registered from a foul, leaving the score 40-16. Cobourg rallied at this stage and in the last few minutes of the game outscored the champs. Aleaxnder made it 40 to 18 and after Pogue had added two points to the Petes' total, Roonely, Allen and Alexander scored in succession for the visitors, the last basket coming after time was up, but before the timers could attract Referee Smaill's attention.

THE GIRLS' GAME.

As a preliminary, the Y.W.C.A. team met the Normal School girls and won after a hard fought and exciting game by 12 points to 10. These girls have scorned the code of playing rules laid down for basketball among women and use the same rules as the men. They stick to their checks like glue last night and were not in the least backward about mixing it.

There was little to choose between the two teams. The girls led by 5 to 4 at half time and early in the second half ran their score up to 8 to 4. Then the Normalites rallied and Miss Bird and Miss McPherson each scored from the field, tying the count. Then Miss Pherson put her team ahead by counting from a foul. Miss Bulmer, the scoring ace for the Y.W.C.A., found the basket with an accurate shot, making the score 10 to 9 in favour of the Y and Miss McPherson promptly evened things up by another single from a foul. Miss Bulmer broke the tie and won the game for the "Y" by a pretty shot.

The respective stars were Miss Bulmer who was responsible for nine of the Y's twelve points, and Miss McPherson, who scored six for the Normal school. The teams:

Y.W.C.A.— Forwards, Miss Bulmer (9), Miss Paxman (1); centre, Mss Kirn (2); guards, Miss Coon and Miss Wade. Sub, Miss Park.

Normal — Forwards, Miss Bird (2), Miss Middleton (2); centre, Miss McPherson (6); guards, Miss Saunders, Miss Warne. Subs, Miss Pammett, Miss Milburn.

Referee, Walter Smaill.

CHALLENGE FOR LOCAL TEAMS

TIME HANGS HEAVILY ON HANDS OF VARSITY HOCKEY PLAYERS

An Examiner man has received a letter from a P.C.I. graduate, now at Varsity, who is anxious to arrange some hockey fixtures between a team representing Old P.C.I. boys and Varsity undergraduates and a P.C.I. outfit, or any other teams that would like to enter the arena.

The Toronto boys evidently fear a dull time during the Christmas vacation, and they want to arrange through The Examiner one game at least to wile away the time.

"Put a challenge in the paper to the P.C.I. boys," the bunch at Varsity write. "Ask for a quick reply, so we can know before we go home a week from Friday," continues the communication.

The tenor of the challenge is altogether very brisk, and in defence of the sporting traditions of the P.C.I. it seems that the challenge should be answered in no hesitating manner. There must be good material at the Collegiate. Bernard Parks is captain of the P.C.I. Alumni bunch, and his on his line-up Don. Fitzgerald, Bill Mowat, Reg. Dixon, Reg. Huff, and others who starred for the Collegiate several years ago.

The challenge said Parks, who played Junior O.H.A. here, is beating them into shape in full confidence of their challenge being taken up. If P.C.I. wants a fast game during the Christmas holidays, this all-star ex-P.C.I. outfit offers them a real battle.

This open challenge is made through the sport columns, at the Toronto boys' request, and if any local teams are ready to pick up the glove, the challengers would be glad of an immediate reply through the same medium.

BILLIARD LEAGUE.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Peterborough City Billiard League will be held in the G.W.V.A. Hall on Tuesday evening, December 13th, 1921.

Everybody interested in billiards are specially requested to attend this meeting. All entries must be handed in not later than Tuesday evening netx to the Secretary of the G.W. V.A.

LADIES' HOCKEY LEAGUE FORMED

WALTER SMAILL WILL MANAGE THE NEW ORGANIZATION

At a meeting held in the Y.W.C. A. yesterday the Peterborough Ladies' Hockey Association was formed. Four teams, the Y.W.C.A., P.C. I., Normal School and Westclox, have already decided to enter the League and any other girls' clubs who wish to do so must send in their application before next Tuesday.

From the League it is proposed to select a team to represent Peterborough in games with outside clubs. Mr. Walter Smaill was elected manager of the League. The other officers are:

Hon. President—W. B. Warne.

President—Eva Outram.

Vice-President—Miss McLaughlin.

Sec'y-Treas.—Alice Ebbs.

Committee— Muriel Rutherford, Flossie Pammett, Maida Conner, Carrie Cruikshanks.

SPORT GOSSIP

To-night will see the opening of the battle for players to make up the City Hockey League teams. A meeting of the League will be held at the Chamber of Commerce to-night at 7:30 o'clock, when certificates and season tickets will be distributed. The meeting is the final opportunity for hockey clubs to make application for membership in the League.

Peterboro's O.A.B.A. representatives made a good start last nightt with a victory over Cobourg. But the locals can play better basketball than they put up in their opening games in the senior series. They will be well advised to take no chances in the return game at the Lakeshore town.

The Peterboro Amateur Athletic Association's card of indoor events, should draw a big crowd to the Brock street rink on Monday night. The Scholes-Smoke race of five miles is in itself a big attraction, and the other events will prove decidedly interesting. The Association is taking a forward step and encouraging all branches of sport, and the public are assured that every effort will be made to conduct sports under healthy and wholesome surroundings.

A score of hockey players, the majority of whom are eligible for the junior O.H.A. series, made up the training class at the Y.M.C.A. gym. last night. The youngsters are taking full advantage of the indoor training and are gettig along splendidly with Walter Smaill. The boys are enthusiastic and willing and all are eager for an opportunity to show their ability with a hockey stick.

Cold weather next week will see Jack Thirnbeck back on his ice-making job at the rink. Then look out for the biggest effort ever put forth in Peterboro for positions on the P. A.A.A. teams. Those players who do not make the O.H.A. teams will be able to play the great winter game in other series. There will be places found for all players who are prepared to give their best efforts.

O. H. A. GROUPS ARE ARRANGED

At a meeting of the O.H.A. executive held in Toronto last night, the various groups in the three series were arranged.

The Peterboro A.A.A. Intermediate team is grouped with Lindsay, Lakefield, Picton and Trenton, and the group will likely be divided into two sections, Lindsay Peterboro and Lakefield in one and Trenton and Picton in the other. The convenor of the group is Wm. House, Trenton, and the delegates meet at Port Hope.

In the Junior Series the Peterboro A.A.A. Juniors, the Peterboro Holy Name Society, Lakefield, Lindsay and Uxbridge form the local group. They will meet here to draw up the schedule with J. P. Bond as convenor.

The application of Jerry Coughlin for reinstatement was thrown down by the executive.

DR. LORENZ TO STAY IF HEALTH PERMITS

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—After first announcing that he would return to Austria because of the criticism of some American surgeons, Dr. Adolph Lorenz examined more than 50 crippled children in the office of Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner. Then, at the behest of Dr. Copeland, the Austrian surgeon reversed his decision and agreed to continue his work in this country.

Dr. Copleland, who is a University of Michigan graduate, explained to Dr. Lorenz that his Alma Mater was exceedingly anxious for Dr. Lorenz to visit Ann Arbor. Dr. Lorenz made no definite promise to do this as his plans are considerably upset due to his ill health, attacks of surgeons and the unfortunate incident of the impostor, "Dr. Weyman," who left Dr. Lorenz's correspondence in confusion.

After Dr. Copeland made his plea for Dr. Lorenz to continue his work the latter said:

"God giving me strength I will go on with it."

Dr. Walter I. Gallan, now Secretary to Dr. Lorenz, said the reported offer of the American Osteopathic Association to pay all Dr. Lorenz's expenses on a tour of the country had not been received, but that Dr. Lorenz would be unable to accept because he is not an osteopath.

LEADERSHIP FOR PREMIER DRURY

RUMOUR FOLLOWS IN WAKE OF THE DOMINION ELECTIONS—LABOR WING INSURGENT.

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Rumors of reapproachement between Liberals and Progressives at Ottawa have given rise to conjectures whether the followers of Hon. Mackenzie King may endeavor to induce Premier Drury to become leader of the party in Ontario, says an item in the Star to-day.

It is pointed out that Premier Drury is a former Liberal, whose outlook in politics is still Liberal in character, and it is further noted that there are signs of insurgency in the Labor wing of his party. After expressing the opinion that by-elections will further reduce the Government ranks in the Legislature, the Star says that a re-alignment of Liberal and U.F.O. forces would provide a strong working majority.

THE CALGARY VOTE.

CALGARY, December 10 (Canadian Press). — A corrected report to the candidates from the deputy returning officer at poll 34, which gives the Minister of Justice a majority of one more vote, is the only change in the figures for the West Calgary election. This correction reduces the vote of J. T. Shaw, Independent, at that poll, by one, and increases the majority of the Hon. R. B. Bennett from five to six votes.

The figures are: Bennett, 7,372: Shaw, 7,366. Majority for Bennett, 6.

COST OF PUTING BABE ON BENCH

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Sporting writers who are fond of statistics have figured that Babe Ruth's suspension will cost Messrs. Rupert and Huston, owners of the Yankees approximately $200,000. Ruth's drawing power at early games is figured at 5,000 fans a game, or approximately $166,5000 for the 37 days Ruth will be absent from the game. And on the top of this is the loss on exhibition games before the regular series.

SKIN DISEASE AND CONSTIPATION

What G. Prouton, Gordan street, Ottawa, says:

Gentlemen,—It is a great pleasure for me to recommend Dr. Henderson's Herb Treatment for constipation, having received great benefit from them in that respect, also your Hou-Tan Ointment. No family should be without out a preparation of that kind in their home.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment are two excellen preparations for all forms of skin diseases. Don't fail to give them a trial, and you like others, would not be without them in your home. They are for sale at Warne's Drug Store, Peterborough. The Herb Tablets are 25c. 50c, and $1 per box. IN LOVING MEMORY of my dear husband, Mr. William Thompson, who died December 11th, 1920—

The midnight stars are gleaming
On a lone and silent grave,
Beneath sleeps one we dearly love,
But who we could not save.
His weary hours and days of pain,
His troubled nights are past,
His ever patient worn out frame
Has found sweet rest at last.
The hapy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still,
But Death has left a vacant place
The world can never fill.

Does Sciatica Make You a Cripple?

Weekly Health Talk No. 8
By A. P. Rogers, D.C.

Uncle Ben Says:
The healthy man generally finishes what he starts and the sick man is usually a starter who don't finish.

Does sciatica make you a cripple, unable to get out of bed? Or is your case a mild one that merely makes moving around a misery and pain a constant companion? In either event you are unable to work or think, and you are making others suffer with you, for that is the law of life.

Sciatica is a form of neuritis or neuralgia of the sciatic nerve. It may be present without either liver or kidneys being inactive. In this respect it differs from rheumatism, which is always accompanied by costiveness and kidney trouble. Sciatica is caused by pressure on the sheath of the sciatic nerve and this pressure causes an inflammation and swelling of the sheath, which compresses the nerve and causes the constant pain which is the characteristic of this disease.

TWO YEARS OF SUFFERING

"For more than two years prior to consulting a chiropractor, I had been suffering with sciatic rheumatism. In August, 1919, I was suffering intense pain and it was so bad that I was unable to work, and in fact was unable to move about at all. The first chiropractic spinal adjustment brought relief but I continued through December when I was discharged. I have been shoeing horses ever since without return of the trouble."—John Schnuss, Chiropractic Research Sworn Statement, No .1283R.

Your Kidneys

Kidney disease is one of the most insidious and dangerous. Dangerous because its presence is very often not even suspected until it has attained a firm hold. The kidneys take an important part in the elimination of waste materials from the body, and the proper functioning of these organs is essential to the maintenance of health.

If the kidneys are not receiving their 100 per cent. of mental impulses or life energy from the brain, they will become weakened, will fail to do their work properly, and finally their structure will become affected. You naturally ask, "What hinders the life energy from reaching the kidneys?" Pressure upon the nerves supplying the kidneys hinders the proper transmission of mental impulses. This pressure occurs where the nerves emit between the segments of the spine, and is caused by a vertebra getting out of normal alignment. The CHIROPRACTOR examines the spine carefully to find the vertebra which is causing pressure upon these nerves. He then scientifically adjusts this vertebra back to normal alignment, frees the nerve of pressure, thus allowing the life energy to reach the kidneys and restore them to normal. The result is HEALTH. You probably say, "It seems too simple to be effective." Nevertheless CHIROPRACTIC IS EFFECTIVE. It is just common-sense mechanical principles applied to the mechanism of the human body.

IF YOU HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND WISH RELIEF, TAKE CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS.

"About 1,000 of Mr. Allen's friends filled the north entrance of the Treasury Building yesterday morning at 11 o'clock to pay their parting respects. C. J. "At the close of his address, Mr. Gates presented to Mr. Allen a gold watch, chain and knife as a testimonial of the friendship of the Department.

ILLUMINATING PAPER ON CHRISTMAS CAROLS

READ AT MEETING QUEEN MARY HOME AND SCHOOL ASSN.

A very interesting evening's entertainment was provided at the regular monthly meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association on Friday evening last, when the subject of carols was taken up. Mrs. B. L. Barns presided, and also read a very illuminating paper on the subject of "Carols," tracing their origin from the early Pagan times, when they were used as an expression of joy over the celebration of any event, to their gradual centralisation about the festival of Christmas, with the influx of Christianity. They were at their height in fifteenth century England, when they were directly encouraged by music-loving monarchs, but suffered from the gradual decline of interest until the present day, when a revival of the ancient and pretty custom of carol-singing is manifest.

The well-known Christmas carol, "Holy Night," was sung with pretty effect by sixteen of the school girls; Miss Margaret Johnson recited the poem, "The Boy with the One Gift," and Miss L. Thomas, a member of the teaching staff of the Queen Mary School, read two of the fifteenth century carols.

A discussion of the paper was followed by a general sing-song, in which everybody joined with much enthusiasm, and in which songs and old Christmas hymns were led by Messrs. McKenzie, Clark, Wagar, and McCannan.

"FRAME-UP" SAYS CHIEF OF POLICE

ORDERS MEN TO BRING GUNMAN IN DEAD OR ALIVE—OTHERS ESCAPED.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.— (Canadian Press.)— Chief of Police Fitzmorris characterizes the escape from jail of "Luck Tommy" O'Connor, gunman and killer, who was awaiting hanging Thursday, as a "frame-up," and has ordered his men to bring him in "dead or alive." It is said all jail rules were violated in handling prisoners and three guards have been suspended. Four other prisoners escaped with O'Connor.

Police are using tear gas bombs in an attempt to dislodge escaped gunman and killer O'Connor from a house in south side, where they believe he is hiding.

When the police arrived they found the tip false and Bishop Charles Anderson inside the door of the house.

Chief of Police Fitzmorris has promised promotion to the policeman who brings in O'Connor's dead body and threatens to suspend any one who tries to capture the gunman alive.

MEDICAL OFFICER OF HEALTH PRESENTS REPORT AT MEETING HELD THIS MORNING—WORK DURING THE YEAR.

EPIDEMICS COST MONEY

At the December meeting of the Board of Health, held this morning, Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H., was unable to personally attend, but his written report for the year ending November, 1921, was read. During the past year 339 contagious cases were reported as follows:

Scarlet fever	183
Diphtheria	141
Chicken pox	1
Smallpox	8
Measles	3
Typhoid fever	2
Mumps	1

Cases Treated.

Two hundred and nine cases were treated in Queen Mary Hospital as follows:

Diphtheria	83
Scarlet fever	123
Measles	1
Sleeping sickness	1
Mumps	1
Deaths in hospital	7

Cases that resulted in deaths were described as follows:

One scarlet fever with infection of streptocci; scarlet fever and diphtheria combined; diphtheria, unconscious when admitted; one diphtheria died in five days; one diphtheria with Bright's disease; one diphtheria with disease of lungs; one diphtheria with chronic diabetes, died 5 hours after admittance; one diphtheria died 16 hours after admittance.

Training School.

There are four now in training; we connection with this hospital a training school for nurses who, under certain conditions, graduate from same. There are four now in training who have not been able to carry out the painting, etc., which your Board recommends, on account of the number of patients this fall.

I would strongly advise sewer connection for this hospital. I am sorry to report that two nurses contracted contagions —one diphtheria and the other scarlet fever.

Filtration Plant.

The city filtration plant is rapidly nearing completion. Pending this the water has received chlorination all summer. The milk supply of the city is good and monthly tests show it to be up to government standard re fats.

The city is now starting the construction of a sewage disposal plant of large dimensions, which will be of untold advantage. The Provincial Board of Health this month just completed the establishment of a branch laboratory at a very considerable cost. This is a most valuable asset to not only the city but the district. It is in charge of an experienced director. All kinds of tests can be made with the least possible delay, which is extremely valuable to the public from health and diagnostic standpoints.

Many houses have been connected with sewer but many more are yet to be done.

Dr. Young's report was received and a copy will be forwarded according to custom to the Provincial Board of Health.

Queen Mary Hospital.

The report of the Queen Mary Hospital for November showed that 55 contagious cases were treated during November. On Nov. 1 there were 19 scarlet fever cases and 14 diphtheria cases in the hospital and during the month 11 scarlet fever and 11 diphtehria admitted. Of these 7 were from out of the city.

During the month 28 patients were discharged and one death occurred. On Dec. 1 there were 26 cases in the hospital, 7 less than on Nov. 1.

Fees taken in at the hospital during November were $261.25.

Upkeep of the hospital for November was $1,722.62. Expenditures during the previous 10 months were $11,920.96, making the year's total $13,693.58. The expenditure was swelled by a long list of salaries for extra help, because of the contagious diseases rampant in the city. Salaries for five special nurses totalled $575.00. Total salaries were $848.92.

Groceries and provisions for November amounted to $580.45.

It was revealed that the Board of Health has now overdrawn its appropriation of $9,000 by several thou-

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND

BY "SAPPER"
(CYRIL McNEILE)

"I have sent him along to your car," continued Peterson suavely, "which I trust was the correct procedure. Or did you want to give him to me as a pet?"

"From a rapid survey, Mr. Peterson, I should think you have quite enough already," said Hugh. "I trust you paid him the money you owe him."

"I will allot it to him in my will," remarked Peterson. "If you do the same in yours, doubtless he will get it from one of us sooner or later. In the meantime, Miss Benton, is your father up?"

The girl frowned.

"No—not yet."

"Then I will go and see him in bed. For the present, au revoir." He walked towards the house, and they watched him go in silence. It was as he opened the drawing-room window that Hugh called after him:

"Do you like the horse Elliman's or the ordinary brand?" he asked. "I'll send you a bottle for that stiff neck of yours."

Very deliberately Peterson turned round.

"Don't trouble, thank you, Captain Drummond. I have my own remedies, which are far more efficacious."

CHAPTER V

In Which There is Trouble at Goring

"Did you have a good night, Mullings?" remarked Hugh as he got into his car.

The man grinned sheepishly.

"I dunno what the game was, sir, but I ain't for many more of them. They're about the ugliest crowd of blackguards in that there 'ouse that I ever wants to see again."

"How many did you see altogether?" asked Drummond.

"I saw six actual like sir; but I 'eard others talking."

The car slowed up before the post office and Hugh got out. There were one or two things he proposed to do in London before going to Goring, and it struck him that a wire to Peter Darrell might allay that gentleman's uneasiness if he was late in getting down. So new was he to the tortuous ways of crime, that the foolishness of the proceeding never entered his head: up to date in his life, if he had wished to send a wire he had sent one. And so it may be deemed a sheer fluke on his part, that a man dawdling by the counter aroused his suspicions. He was a perfectly ordinary man, chatting casually with the girl on the other side; but it chanced that just as Hugh was holding the post office pencil up, and gazing at its so-called point with an air of resigned anguish, the perfectly ordinary man ceased chatting and looked at him. Hugh caught his eye for a fleeting second; then the conversation continued. And as he turned to pull out the pad of forms, it struck him that the man had looked away just a trifle too quickly.

A grin spread slowly over his face, and after a moment's hesitation he proceeded to compose a short wire. He wrote it in block letters for additional clearness; he also pressed his hardest as befitted a blunt pencil. Then with the form in his hand he advanced to the counter.

"How long will it take to deliver in London?" he asked the girl. . . .

The girl was not helpful. It depended, he gathered, on a variety of circumstances, of which not the least was the perfectly ordinary man who talked so charmingly. She did not say so, in so many words, but Hugh respected her none the less for her maidenly reticence.

"I don't think I'll bother then," he said, thrusting the wire into his pocket. "Good morning. . . ."

He walked to the door, and shortly afterwards his car rolled down the street. He would have liked to remain and see the finish of this little jest, but, as is so often the case, imagination is better than reality. Certain it is that he chuckled consumedly the whole way up to London, whereas the actual finish was tame.

With what the girl considered peculiar abruptness, the perfectly ordinary man concluded his conversation with her, and decided that he too would send a wire. And then, after a long and thoughtful pause at the writing-bench, she distinctly heard an unmistakable "Damn." Then he walked out, and she saw him no more.

Moreover, it is to be regretted that the perfectly ordinary man told a lie a little later in the day, when giving his report to someone whose neck apparently inconvenienced him greatly. But then a lie is frequently more tactful than the truth and to have announced that the sole result of his morning's labours had been to decipher a wire addressed to The Elms which contained the cryptic remark "Stung again stiff neck stung again" would not have been tactful. So he lied as has been stated thereby showing his wisdom. . . .

But though Drummond chuckled to himself as the car rushed through the fresh morning air once or twice a gleam that was not altogeher amusement shone in his eyes. For four years he had played one game where no mistakes were allowed; the little incident of the post office had helped to bring to his mind the certainty that he had now embarked on another where the conditions were much the same. That he had scored up to date was luck rather than good management and he was far too shrewd not to realise it. Now he was marked and luck with a marked man cannot be tempted too far.

Alone and practically unguarded he had challenged a gang of international criminals; a gang not only utterly unscrupulous but controlled by a master-mind. Of its power as yet he had no clear idea; of its size and immediate object he had even less. Perhaps it was as well. Had he realised even dimly the immensity of the issues he was up against had he had but an inkling of the magnitude of the plot conceived in the sinister brain of his host of the previous evening then cheery optimist though he was even Hugh Drummond might have wavered. But he had no such inkling and so the gleam in his eyes was but transitory the chuckle that succeeded it more whole-hearted than before. Was it not sport in a land flowing with strikes and profiteers; sport such as his soul loved?

"I am afraid Mullings" he said as the car stopped in front of his club "that the kindly gentleman with whom we spent last night was repudiated his obligations. He refuses to meet the bill I gave him for your services. Just wait here a moment."

He went inside returning in a few moments with a folded cheque.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

HYDRO DANCE WAS A BIG SOCIAL SUCCESS—PERSONAL MENTION

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 12. — As was anticipated, the dance given on Friday, December 9th, by the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, Ranney Falls Development in the Opera House, Campbellford, was one of the smartest and jolliest social events of the season. The patronesses who received were: Mrs. W. E. Burgar, Miss H. M. Campbell, Mrs. (Dr.) Haig, Mrs. A. J. Meyers, Mrs. J. P. Archer and Mrs. J. T. Kennedy. The decoratons so artistically arranged were most effective an suggestive, the walls being hung with blue prints, and views of the various developments. The centre decorations of white and red caught in a bell effect at the centre, together with other decorations of flags and the soft light produced by the cleverly-arranged, shaded lights, gave the hall a most cosy inviting appearance. The stage too was a dream, and the exquisite music furnished by the Novelty Sextette of Mosher's Arcadia, Toronto, left nothing more to be desired.

During the luncheon hour, Mr. Harold Rich delighted the guests with a couple of vocal numbers, rendered in very fine voice and Mr. Harry Cohen, dancing violinist, (both members of the orchestra), pleasingly entertained with exhibitions of his skill. F. F. Long Ltd., catered in their usual efficient manner, to the large numbers of guests present. Mr. F. A. Burgar and his staff are to be congratulated upon the grand success of this most pleasurable event. Some of those noticed were Mayor and Mrs. Meyers, Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lowry, Mrs. (Dr.) H. O. Richardson, Mrs. F. J. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Malcolm, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Glover, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Dolman, Mrs. C. L. Owen, Mrs. F. W. THE TRIALS OF A HOUSEWIFE

How They Have Been Endured and How Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Experience of a Providence Woman

Providence, R. I.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a female trouble and backache. It began just after my baby was born, and I did the best I could about getting my work done, but I had awful bearing-down pains so I could not stand on my feet. I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the good it was doing other women, and I have got dandy results from it and will always recommend it. You can use these facts as a testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. HERBERT L. CASSEN, 18 Meni Court, Providence, R. I.

Ohio woman for three years could hardly keep about and do her housework she was so ill. Made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound:

Fayette, O.—"For about three years I was very nervous and had backache, sideache, dragging-down pains, could not sleep at night, and had no appetite. At times I could hardly do my housework. I got medicine from the doctor but it did not help me. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in a newspaper and took it with good results, and am now able to do my housework. I recommend your medicine to my friends and you may publish my testimonial."—Mrs. CHESTER A. BALL, R. 15, Fayette, Ohio.

An Illinois woman relates her experience:

Bloomington, Ill.—"I was never very strong and female trouble kept me so weak I had no interest in my housework. I had such a backache I could not cook a meal or sweep a room without raging with pain. Rubbing my back with alcohol sometimes eased the pain for a few hours, but did not stop it. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and six bottles of it have made me as strong and healthy as any woman; and I give my thanks to it for my health."—Mrs. J. A. McQUITTY, 610 W. Walnut St., Bloomington, Ill.

The conditions described by Mrs. Cassen, Mrs. Ball, and Mrs. McQuitty will appeal to many women who struggle on with their daily tasks in just such conditions—in fact, it is said that the tragedy in the lives of some women is almost beyond belief. Day in and day out they slave in their homes for their families—and beside the daily routine of housework, often make clothes for themselves and for their children, or work in their gardens, all the while suffering from those awful bearing-down pains, backache, headaches, nervousness, the blues, and troubles which sap the very foundation of life until there comes a time when nature gives out and an operation seems inevitable. If such women would only profit by the experience of these three women, and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the natural restorative for such conditions it may save them years of suffering and unhappiness.

There is hardly a neighborhood in any town or hamlet in the United States wherein some woman does not reside who has been restored to health by this famous medicine. Therefore ask your neighbor, and you will find in a great many cases that at some time or other she, too, has been benefited by taking it, and will recommend it to you. For more than forty years this old-fashioned root and herb medicine hasbeen restoring suffering women to health and strength.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

CENTREVILLE

CENTREVILLE, Dec. 12. — In the Municipal Hall on Friday night, under the auspices of the U.F.O., a very interesting gathering took place. The first part of the programme consisted of speeches. Mr. Jos. White occupied the chair and called upon the Rev. A. H. McConnachie for the first address. He was followed by Arch. Wilson of Lakehurst. Ex-Mayor Duffus of Peterborough, was the next speaker and he showed himself a past master in the art.

The first address was given by Mr. J. C. Campbell, who was at his best form. A debate followed on the subject, "Resolved, that the tractor is profitable to the average farmer." Clifford Hall and Roy Rutherford took the affirmative, while George Berry and Walter Lord took the negative. The subject was well handled and strong points made for and against. The debate was thoroughly enjoyed and will be followed by others in the course of the winter.

A large audience was left to form its own judgment on the merits or demerits of the tractor. The debate was followed by a dance. Altogether it is evident that the local U.F.O. club is a live institution. The ladies provided lunch in their usual generous way.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

SPECIAL SERVICE AT THE MILLBROOK METHODIST CHURCH

MILLBROOK, Dec. 12.—Rev. R. S. Hosking, B.A., of Victoria University, preached in the interests of the Educational Society in the Methodist church on Sunday, December 11th, in the absence of Dr. J. E. Pratt, who had been expected, but account of serious illness in his family, was unable to be present. However, Mr. Hosking proved an excellent substitute, delighting the congregations with his thoughtful and eloquent discourses both morning and evening.

For the morning service the text was taken from Paul's second letter to Timothy, the second chapter and fifteenth verse, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth"; and the speaker went on to show that while it is foolish for a raw recruit to give advice to a veteran, yet when a soldier like Paul who had been tested and tried in almost every conceivable form of Christian warfare, so that he could say, "I bear in my body the marks of Christ Jesus," gives advice to those young men in the faith, we all do well to give heed to his words.

Paul always spoke from personal knowledge and when he says Christians should rejoice in hope, be patient in tribulations, and continue instant in prayer, he is really taking a leaf out of the note book of his own rich experience. The apostle is writing to Timothy, his "dearly beloved son," because the latter was in trouble and needed counsel. He had been put in charge of the church at Ephesus, and had tried to do certain things which he was unable to carry through for lack of experience and knowledge, and Paul, who was himself a university man with a well-trained mind, gives the advice, study, improve your mind, develop your workmanship, and you won't be ashamed of the results you achieve. And this advice applies to every Christian, but more especially to those going into the ministry.

Timothy had a splendid educational advantage in being associated with Paul, and fellowship with those of strong Christian personality is a much-needed element in the education of leaders for our church today, and to meet this need is one reason why the Education Society was formed. The objection is sometimes made that ministers with the best education make the poorest preachers, and there is undoubtedly an element of truth in the assertion. One of the educational leaders of the day says: "You cannot take a piece of punk pine and, with any amount of polishing, give it the finish of quartered oak. But give us a student with native preaching ability ,and let us add a college education, then there is sent out a first class preacher."

This twentieth century is one of study and mental culture, and if reporters for the daily press are establishing and attending schools of journalism, the better to discharge the duties of their calling, surely ministers of the gospel need the finest possible educational advantages, for the public nowdays would refuse to listen to an uneducated man in the pulpit. Hence, too, the day is rapidly approaching when Sunday school teachers must have a special course in training if they are to succeed in their task, for the pupils who have, in Public schools, the finest trained teachers, soon notice the difference in the Sunday's instruction, and the consequence is a lack of attention, respect for, and interest in, the Sabbath school.

For some reason, Mr. Hosking said, the missionary fund has always been more popular than that of the educational society, and yet without education, missions are doomed, since it is always from the students

WILL EXAMINE WITNESSES IN STILLMAN CASE

MRS. STILLMAN'S COUNSEL CLAIMS SEVERAL WITNESSES WERE BRIBED--FRESH COUNTER ATTACK.

GUIDES ACCUSED

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Dec. 12.— (Canadian Press.) —Accusations that two Canadians had been bribed to testify against Mrs. Anne U. Stillman and that agents for James Stillman attempted to corrupt eleven others into giving false testimony opened a fresh counter-attack Saturday upon the banker, revelation of whose divorce suit last March created a stir in financial and social circles.

The charges were made in an open court before Supreme Court Justice Morschauser, by John F. Brennan, chief of Mrs. Stillman's counsel and John E. Mack, guardian ad litem for her three year old son, Guy Stillman, whose legitimacy the banker impugned.

The charges in connection with which the charges were made was that Mrs. Stillman violated her marriage vow in her conduct with Fred Beauvais, the Indian guide accused of being the father of little Guy.

The affidavit named Joseph and Ferdinand Page, both of La Tuque, Quebec, as the two who were bribed.

Both Ferdinand and Joseph Page will be cross-examined, said the affidavit—Ferdinand, "for the particular purpuose of questioning him regarding payments to him and promises made by agents of Jas A. Stillman of considerable sums of money, which induced his testimony of December 1920. He was promised money nesses who peeped at Mrs. Stillman fore he went to New York to testify."

The affidavit submitted the names of others whose testimony it declared, would strive to shatter that given by "key-hole and ladder" witnesses who peeped at Mrs. Stillman at her summer camp in Grand Anse, Quebec, and elsewhere along the St. Maurice river. Other witnesses are expected to swear there was no scaffolding on the house at her summer camp in June and July, 1919, where her husband's witnesses said they stood on scaffolds and ladders to peer in the windows at Beauvais and Mrs. Stillman. Others, it is stated, would testify the conduct of the Indian and the banker's wife "was exemplary."

The issues involve, the affidavit continued, whether Mrs. Stillman had been "living sinfully" with Beauvais, "ever since the first of May, 1917, at Grand Anse, Grand Piles, and at other places along and near the St. Maurice River, at hotels in Montreal and in the Pocantico Hills."

VANCOUVER HOTELS SELLING REAL BEER

ARE DOING A RUSHING BUSINESS IN AN EFFORT TO TEST OUT THE LAW.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 12. — (Canadian Press).—To bring the beer question to a show-down, a number of hotels in Vancouver have re-opened their bars for the sale of malt liquors, and are doing a rushing business.

The increase in the number of clubs obtaining charters is said by hotel men to be the cause of their decision to force matters to an issue.

Hotel proprietors claim that the clubs have little or no investment at stake, while they have thousands of dollars tied up in first-class buildings.

Local police authorities met in session here Saturday to discuss the situation, and decided that there was nothing they could do until February 1, when, by virtue of new charter powers, the City of Vancouver assumes "control and regulation" of all clubs within the municipality. Some eighteen hotel bars holding incorporation rights as clubs, which opened for the sale of beer to members at ten cents a membership, appear to have a clear field of operation, in the opinion of police officials.

AUCTION SALE.

Auction sale of Mr. Howard Baptie, lot 26, concession 5 of Smith, 6 miles from Peterborough, on the Lakefield road, on Tuesday, December 13th. The following stock will be sold:

ANGLO-JAPANESE ALLIANCE REPLACED BY NEW TREATY

"HOME RULE" FOR LONDON, ENGLAND

LONDON, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press). — "Home Rule for London" was the subject of a serious discussion Saturday at the annual conference of the London Labor Party.

Secretary Morrison moved a resolution advocating a London and Home Counties Parliament with local autonomy rather than a new enlargement of the county council area as recommended by the Commission which is investigating the administration of the London Metropolitan district. London is sprawled out without plan or system, said Mr. Morrison, and unless control is exercised the time would come when Southend, Brighton and Hitchin would be linked up with the Metropolis. The resolution was carried.

The party also decided to ask to be allowed to give evidence and express their views before the Commission appointed to enquire the government of London.

BANDIT HELD UP A C.P.R. TRAIN

CUT OPEN THE SAFE AFTER DISARMING THE MESSENGER—POSSE IN PURSUIT.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Dec. 12. — (Canadian Press).—An attempt was made by a lone bandit to hold up Canadian Pacific train No. 2, a few minutes after it left here Saturday night. There was nothing of value in the express car, and the bandit jumped off the train just after it had passed Pasqua Station. The train was going about 30 miles an hour. A search is being made for the bandit by a posse.

When the train left Moose Jaw, Messenger Gray, in charge of the express car, was confronted by an armed man, who fired a shot from his revolver and ordered Gray to hold up his hands. The bandit disarmed Gray of his Colt revolver, and took the sawed-off shotgun and threw it from the train. It was found yesterday morning about two miles east of Moose Jaw. Gray tried to assure the bandit that there were no valuables in the car. After opening the outside door of the express safe, Gray told the masked man that he did not know the combination of the inner door, whereupon the robber cut the combination and knob from the inside door with an axe. Finding nothing of value, he jumped from the train. Gray immediately pulled the signal cord and the train stopped. The country south of Pasqua has been scoured, but nothing has been found of the bandit.

HOLIDAY TRADE ON THE BRISK SIDE.

But Wholesalers in the West Find Business Quiet.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 12.—(By Canadina Press).—Business was disrupted last week by the federal election. Reports from various centers indicate that conditions throughout Canada have quieted down somewhat, this being usual just before Christmas, states the weekly trade report of the Credit Men's Trust Association.

Montreal and Quebec advices indicates a general quieting down in wholesale circles, this extending to almost very line. Retail trade is on the brisk side mostly in holiday lines. Collections generally fair to slow.

Boot Trade Good

Toronto and Ontario reports are somewhat along the same lines, with slightly better business in boots and shoes, small dry goods, furniture and men's and women's wear. Retail trading shows that usual improvement noticeable for the season.

Winnipeg wholesalers find trade on the quiet side. The very mild weather experienced in the West up to date, may, it is thought, have some bearing on this, also the election which has occupied the arena most of this week. Retail trade is fairly brisk. The larger departmental stores are now open late evenings and Saturdays with crowds of buyers in evidence. Collections a little better but still too slow.

Wholesalers Quiet

Regina and Saskatchewan advices say wholesalers find business not so brisk as last week. Practically no demand exists for boots and shoes and heavy wear, owing to unusually mild weather. The increase in volume of retail trade is generally attributed to commencement of Christmas buying. Collections are not nearly so good as at this time of 1920. Many farmers holding grain and not meeting accounts, has a general bearing all around, but loosening up and better business is expected after the holidays.

OFF TO CONVENTION.

OTTAWA, Dec. 12. —(By Canadian Press.)— R. B. Maxwell, Dominion President of the Great War Veterans, left last night for Calgary to attend the Alberta Provincial Convention of the G.W.V.A.

SIR ROBERT BORDEN ISSUES STATEMENT ON THE RESULT —A JOINT CONFERENCE TO BE MEDIUM OF SETTLING DISPUTES

THE NAVAL RATIO

WASHINGTON, December 12.—Canadian Press.—The Anglo-Japanese Alliance has passed into history and in its place has come a wider and better compact ,a document written in the new spirit of international accord, and one which marks the first great step taken by Washington conference towards its goal. The new treaty embraces two new powers, France and the United States, united with the British Empire and Japan, in a solemn agreement, which it is hoped may eliminate for all time the possibility of armed conflict over wide and scattered interests of these nations in the Pacific.

WASHINGTON, December 12. —Canadan Press. — With the four-power treaty in final form and an agreement on naval ratio regarded as practically assured, the arms conference goes into its fifth week with its principals confident that they can wind up all their major duties by the end of the year.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(By Ben Deacon, staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press).—Sir Robert Borden, Canadian delegate to the Washington Conference, has issued the following statement in regard to the new treaty which is to replace the Anglo-Japanese Alliance:

"Four great nations have solemnly agreed that every controversy between any of them arising out of a Pacific question and capable of settlement by diplomatic methods shall be bought to a joint conference of all four powers and shall be there considered and adjusted.

"The purpose is to create the custom and establish the practice of conferences for peaceful settlment of international differences.

"Out of such custom and practice whether under this or any like treaty, will be developed that public opinion among the nations which alone can ensure the enthronement of public right and maintenance of the world's peace.

"This treaty in terms relates only to the Pacific, but as the convention of 1817, although applicable only to the Great Lakes, extended in spirit and practice to the entire boundary between Canada and the United States, so we may confidently trust that the spirit of this treaty will govern all controversy between the four powers. I hail its acceptance as a notable step toward the assurance of peace."

Sir Robert, who has been suffering from a severe cold, was reported to be in a somewhat improved condition this evening. He is still under the doctor's orders to remain in his suite at the Lafayette, however, and it will likely be several days before he is able to resume his conference work.

The Naval Ratio

WASHINGTON Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Instructions from Tokio regarding the decision of the Japanese Government on the naval ratio qusstion are in the hands of the Japanese delegation. The nature of the communication was not made known, but it was indicated to-night that further meetings of the "Big Three" probably will be necessary before Japan's stand on the "5-5-3" capital ship ratio will be announced definitely.

T. W. CROTHERS DIED SUDDENLY

WAS FORMER MINISTER OF LABOR IN THE BORDEN CABINET

OTTAWA, Dec. 12.— (By Canadian Press.)—Hon. T. W. Crothers, former Minister of Labor, in the Borden Cabinet, and who was appointed to the Senate about two months ago, died suddenly at his home on Carling Avenue, Ottawa, on Saturday evening. The late Mr. Crothers who was 71 years of age, had been ailing for some time, but not until a couple of weeks ago had his condition given rise to any serious fears. On Saturday, however, the deceased senator appeared brighter than he had been for some days past and during the afternoon he went to his room with the intention of having a rest. When his wife went to call him to meet an old friend who had called at the house, she found he had died in his sleep.

The late Senator Crothers was born on the first of January, 1850, at Northport, Prince Edward county.

A TRAVESTY OF JUSTICE.

The statement that young Howard, sentenced to a year in jail, on a charge of manslaughter, having run down and killed with his car a Toronto milk driver, has been released on an order from the Department of Justice at Ottawa, has caused some sharp criticism. The young man had served only twenty-three days of his sentence when Ottawa, in response to a largely signed petition, ordered his release. The fact that on the same day that Howard was sentenced, another man convicted of the same offence, was given a term of three years in the penitentiary, emphasizes the travesty of freeing Howard with only a small fraction of his sentence completed. The public, rightly, has confidence in the administration of justice in Canada, but many affairs of this kind may have the effect of testing that confidence to the breaking point. It must never be said in this country that there is one law for the rich and another for the poor, but when a wealthy young offender only gets a year in jail, and serves but twenty-three days of it, while another man has to spend three years in the penitentiary on the same charge, it is enough to cause a demand for an investigation of the circumstances.

AN ORDERLY ELECTION.

Canadians are not all of one mind as to the result of last week's election, but at least the people of the Dominion can unite in congratulating themselves upon the very evident regard for law and order that characterized the contest. Here was an election with a fight in every one of the 235 ridings, with a three-cornered battle in many constituencies, with a sharp cleavage between city and urban dwellers; with an evident solid French-Canadian vote favoring one of these parties, with, in fact, every incentive to bitterness of feeling, and yet the election passed as quietly as a Sunday afternoon in a country village. There were no riots, no fights, no disturbances of any kind. The victors had their celebrations everywhere, and the losers accepted the verdict philosophically. And next morning everybody went back to work—at least those who had any to go to—or to business as usual. There are few charges of irregularities or of corrupt methods; there is no aftermath of unhealthy rumours, nor signs of rankling bitterness. Canada has changed her board of directors, ousted from office one administration, and selected another, and has done it all quietly and amicably, with no broken heads, or damaged property. And for that losers and winners alike deserve congratulations.

MORE CARE IS NEEDED.

Complaints are reaching the Examiner, and they are substantiated by personal observation, that there is too much reckless driving of cars in Peterboro—especially in the down town sections, where it is particularly dangerous. The trouble seems to be that many drivers think they are quite within their rights so long as they do not exceed the legal speed limit. They ignore the fact that while they are not violating that particular regulation, they are nevertheless laying themselves open to a charge of driving in a reckless manner, if they operate their cars at a speed that is dangerous, having regard to the traffic and road conditions. Ten miles an hour may be too fast at this time of the year, when the pavements are wet and slippery, and a car is liable to skid at any time. Yet scores of drivers exceed that speed on George street every day, and they are a continual menace to the public safety. It is all very well to say that pedestrians should not cross the streets in the middle of a block. They do cross there, and the fact that they do, and that any moment a child is liable to run across the road should be a cause for greater care on the part of motorists. A learned judge has declared that one mile an hour might, under certain conditions, be a dangerous speed—in other words the careful driver will always have his car well under control at all times, and especially in places where he may be called upon to stop suddenly to avoid accidents.

TOMMY CHURCH.

In Toronto on New Year's night, the question that the newspapers will have to answer to thousands of inquirers will be "Who is the new Mayor?" instead of "How big was Church's majority?" which has been the query on election night for the past seven years. The inimitable Tommy has at last decided that he has served long enough in the Chief Magistrate's chair, and his new toy, a seat in the Dominion Parliament, will entertain him for the next two or three years. It is reported that when he announced to the Toronto Council his intention of retiring he was greeted with cheers—probably the heartiest from those for whom his dropping out opens the way to the position he has so long filled. Tommy Church has his critics and no doubt his faults, but any man who could hold the regard and the support of the majority of people in a city like Toronto for so long as he has must have something more than bluff, and the reputation of being a good "mixer." It is certain that no Mayor in any community approaching the size of the Queen City ever knew as many of the citizens as does Mayor Church. He was never absent when any big event was going on, and no visiting sporting organization could be in Toronto more than an hour or two without a handshake all around from His Worship. Toronto may, and doubtless will get other Mayors with more business ability, but it is a certainty that she will never have another Chief Magistrate who will be as well known to the people as is the redoubtable Tommy Church, campaigner extraordinary and now a member of His Majesty's Parliament of Canada.

CANADA'S WHEAT.

Canada has taken second place among the wheat producing countries of the world. With an expected yield this year of 288,493,000 bushels, the International Institute of Agriculture is authority for the statement that in production Canada is surpassed only by the United States.

Figures are dull and uninspiring as a rule, but there is a glorious epic written by the statistics that show the ever-increasing production of the Prairie Provinces of Canada! In the year before the war Canada took fifth place among the wheat producing countries. Russia stood at the top of the list with an aggregate of 934 million bushels, the United States was second with 763 million, then France with 319 millions, and India with 312 millions.

In the first year of the war, production in France was cut in tow by the invasion of the Hun, but Canada, in spite of this, dropped into sixth place, the Argentine and Italy both surpassing the Dominion. Many suns have risen since that time and much history has been written, while new ground was being broken and better methods of cultivation were being installed on those rich plains. It is no idle boast to-day that Canada is the "Granary of the Empire," for the grain growers of Western Canada are going a long way towards feeding the people of the entire world.

Canadian wheat and wheat flour has been exported this fall to the United Kingdom, Belgium, British West Indies, France, United States, Italy, Roumania, Sweden, Turkey, Cuba, Denmark, Norway, Panama, and a score of other countries. Ships carried our wheat from Canadian ports to Dutch Guiana and Gibraltar, to Bermuda, and the Gold Coast.

Some day a Canadian uthor will be inspired to write the saga of Canadian wheat. He will trace the history of its production when the lonely men ploughed their single furrows in the face of discouragement and disappointment to the latter days of the motor tractors and their serried ranks of machine-driven drillers, cutters, and binders. He will trace the growth of the agricultural industry from the days when the settler hitched up the old farm horse to carry his few bushels to the village down to our own times when powerful motor trucks haul hundreds of thousands of bushels to the million dollar elevators.

The population of Canada has trebled since the days of Confederation, but the value of her field crops has increased twelve-fold, while her wheat harvest to-day is twenty-five times larger than it was half a century ago. Great cities have sprung up, built and maintained from the profits of successive harvests, and the men of the cities who laughed at the farmers who had faith in the virgin soil of the Prairie have learned wisdom.

Only a few years have passed since the day when so many people said that the prairie could not grow wheat, but to-day Canada is second among the nations of the world in the quantity she produces and first in quality. Russia has toyed with Communism and has fallen back to seventh place. Canada has kept on working, and the goal of world leadership is even now in sight.—Montreal Star.

A FIRE ALARM FOR LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 12.—One of the pressing needs of the village is a modern fire alarm, which will be situated at the Fire Hall, and will sound the alarm promptly and without the delay of racing up the street to pull St. John's Church bell. In order to spare the village this outlay at this time, when expenses are so heavy, the fire brigade is making a valiant effort to raise the necessary funds by means of a series of concerts and dances. So far they have not received the support which their enterprise deserves, but as the season is still young, it is hoped that the public will rise to their appeal. The fire alarm will be purchased, and if the present voluntary effort fails, the money will be secured by direct taxation.

Young People Meet.

A meeting of the Lakefield U.F.Y.P.O. was held on Tuesday, Dec. 6th, in the Veterans' Hall. A large number of the young people were present. After the singing of "Oh Canada," plans were discussed for the next meeting to be held on Jan. 3rd. Arrangements were made for a debate, "Resolved that the Farmer's Wife Should Hold the Purse Strings." Following this a program consisting of a recitation by Mr. Ivan Crowe, a reading by Miss Lillie Charlton, a recitation by Miss Muriel Boyce, and a recitation by Mr. Richard Graham was very much enjoyed. An interesting feature of the programme, also, was a Chinese spelling match. A social hour was then spent in playing games. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

The Kidneys

The office man and the outdoor worker suffer alike from derangements of the kidneys.

Backaches and headaches are among the symptoms. In some cases Bright's disease soon develops, others suffer from high blood pressure until hardening of the arteries sets in.

In order to forestall painful and fatal diseases prompt action should be taken at the first sign of trouble.

Mr. A. D. MacKinnon, Kirkwood, Inverness county, N.S., writes:

"I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to all suffering from weak kidneys. I suffered from kidney disease for a long time. I may also say that for three years I was nearly always troubled with headaches, and no treatment seemed to do more than afford temporary relief. I was finally told of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using a few boxes was completely relieved. I have also used Dr. Chase's Ointment with the best results, and never fail to recommend these wonderful remedies."

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. PARTY TELEPHONE DEATH TRIAL LINK

Eavesdropper Bares Conversation in Slaying Case.

COLUMBIA CITY, Ind., Dec. 10.—The State, after strenuous objection by attorneys for the defense and after three days' deliberation by Judge Biggs, has succeeded in introducing the testimony of Miss Gladys Bedford in the trial of Fred Decker, charged with killing Leroy Lovett.

Miss Bedford, a neighbor of the defendant, said her telephone is on the same line as that at the Fred Decker home and that on March 12, she listened to a conversation. The witness said she heard a woman's voice say, "Are you ready," and heard Virgil Decker, at the Decker home, reply, "Yes, I am all dressed up in my best clothes." The conversation, she said, occurred only a half hour before the body of Lovett, dressed in Virgil Decker's old clothes, was struck by a freight train at a crossing near Atwood, Ind. Virgil Decker is a brother of the defendant ,serving a life sentence, following his conviction on a murder charge in connection with the death of Lovett.

The State is attempting to prove Fred Decker entered into a conspiracy with other members of the Decker family to kill Lovett, claim the body as that of Virgil Decker, and collect on life insurance carried by the latter.

ON CANADIAN ELECTIONS.

LONDON, Dec. 12. — (Canadian Press). — The Sunday Observer prints a special article on the Canadian elections, attributing the result, not so much to principles as to the fact that Canadians had grown weary of the Government elected for the prosecution of the war, to the resignation of some of its most prominent members, to the general feeling of unrest which Canada shares, though in less degree with other countries, and to the consequent general desire for a change.

The most hopeful sign for the success of the treaty is that it is supported whole-heartedly by the hierarchy.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

in our colleges that the ranks of the missionaries are recruited, and more than one of the latter in writing home has said: "It was the spirit of 'Old Vic' that kept me going out here when home-sickness gripped me, and things looked dark and discouraging."

The fact that Victoria College gave over 600 men to the army during the war, and that 66 of these laid down their lives 'on Flanders fields,' shows the splendid spirit of self sacrifice with which its atmosphere is impregnated. The only V. C. which came to Toronto University was won by a Victoria student, and no small share of the medals and their honors were brought home by those who had gone from that institution. That the students also make good in their studies is proved by the fact that the Governor-General's medal, the highest award which comes to Toronto University, has been won nine times in eleven years by a Victoria man. The returned men, the speaker, who was himself overseas, stated, are making an excellent record since re-joining the student ranks. The college has but three sources of revenue, namely, tuition fees, interest on endowments, and subscriptions from the churches, since not one cent of the one million dollars given to Toronto University by the government comes to Victoria. It is estimated that two-thirds of the students are so situated that they must pay their own way, so no great increase in fees for tuition would be possible, nor fair; yet all must pay ten times the amount now charged if the other sources did not bring up the arrears on absolutely necessary expenses. The speaker closed with the appeal, "Help us to keep our colleges open, to take Paul's advice ,and then we shall not be ashamd of the work of our ministry."

While the offering was being taken the choir rendered the anthem, "Praise Ye the Lord," and in the evening, following the sermon, Rev. Mr. Tucker sang a solo for the first time in his own church, the number being greatly appreciated. Rev. Mr. Hosking took his text from Mark, 14.8, "She hath done what she could," developing the theme under four heads, (a) Home, (b) Service, (c) Giving, (d) Results.

The choir also sang an anthem at the evening service, the latter being well attended, as was also the morning worship.

FOG IN DEAR OLD LONDON.

An idea of what a really foggy day means in Old London can be gathered from a recent daily report. According to readings taken by Dr. J. S. Owen, honorary secretary to the advisory committee of the meteorological office on atmospheric pollution, the weight of the sooty particles suspended above the city at noon was 100 tons, and every hour 7,000,000 Londoners between them inhaled 25 pounds of them. The fog cost more than forty thousand dollars in extra lighting alone, and altogether—taking into account lost traffic receipts, lost time, and smaller items such as fog signals—probably cost the city nearly $125,000 or $1,250 for every ton of fog.

Things have come to a pretty pass—Miss Adelaide Bacardi, daughter of the man whose name used to appear on some popular bottle labels, was married to William Dorion, of Guatemala, at the Hotel Ansonia,—and what do you think the refreshments where? Lemonade and iced tea.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES.

Straw hats may be cleaned with dampened cornmeal.

Moulded salmon is delicious combined with cucumber aspic.

The cooler pastry is kept during the process of preparation the better it will be.

A tablespoon flour mixed with sugar will keep fruit pies from running over.

A taffeta underskirt will not split so soon as it otherwise would if before wearing it is dipped in water and hung up to drip until dry.

Enameled baby spoons are a choice to make in selecting a gift for a baby. They are as dainty in design as the baby himself.

When making lemonade add the sugar to the water before adding the lemon juice or ice. Your lemonade will not require so much sugar.

When no cedar chest is available and cedar trees are near, break off some of the green branches and lay in the corners of the closets. Moths will often flee the hated odor before any damage is done.

COMBINATION CURTAINS.

For taffeta bedroom curtains a lovely combination is three colors—blue, yellow and lavender in pastel shades. The blue is for the body of the curtain. Three ruffles of the colors are cut in three widths, the blue three-quarters of an inch, the yellow an inch and the lavender an inch and a quarter. These are picoted on the edge, then laid together so that each color shows a little on each side and gathered in the middle. The effect is really enchanting. The balance is made, using the same idea, but with wider strips—six, eight and ten inches, respectively. These are gathered three times in the center, an inch apart, and sewed on to the lining crinoline. Tiebacks are made the same as the curtain edging. The valance is put in place by tacking it on to a one-quarter inch valance board laid on top of the window rim with projection enough to come beyond the curtain rods. Any color combination might be as lovely.

"I'm feeling like a new man since Tanlac soothed and toned up my stomach and for the first time in forty years can eat a hearty meal and suffer no distress afterwards," was the remarkable statement of Patrick J. Haley, 107 Propect Ave., Syracuse, N. Y. a well-known iron and steel worker:

"Tnly those who have had stomach trouble in a bad form can know what I suffered during all those years. I was almost a nervous wreck, too, and for years I didn't know what it was to get a good sound sleep at night.

"I got new life and energy from each dose of Tanlac and now I'm a well and happy man instead of a sick and miserable one as I was for so many years. I'll vouch for the merit of Tanlac at any time."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

DEMAND RELEASE.

BELFAST, Dec. 12. — Unionist Labor Association has demanded the immediate release of all Protestants who are in jail charged with offences in connection with present state of Ireland.

THE EMERGENCY SHELVES

A great deal is said by modern housewives about an emergency shelf, and in most cases the contents of the shelf consist of extra staples. The real shelf, however, should contain table dainties and the things which are literally for emergency use. Most of us purchase during each season a few so-called luxuries which are too expensive perhaps to eat on other than social occasions, and in the case of unexpected company that too often finds us unprepared for visitors.

Some housekeepers say "we never do a thing extra for guests, except put on another plate," which in a way may be true, yet is well to have a canned or bottled dessert, salad or even a meat ingredient at hand to fix in case of the unexpected happening.

Among the newer and unusual dainties offered at the exclusive shops are oranges, stuffed and packed in jars, some in a rich syrup, and others in grenadine, also a syrup of French make which is a lovely deep wine color. In serving, the oranges are halved, or quartered, and they are used with ice cream, or to give a dainty air to a simple dish of plain pudding. Used in this way they are not a terribly expensive "emergency."

Then a most fascinating dish of macaroni may be served in a few minutes by using the green or red variety, which gives quite an unusual appearance to this more or less familiar dish. The green variety is dyed in the making with parsley coloring, and the red is colored with tomato juice.

Lacking a soup in a time of haste, it is easy to open a little can of filet of herring or sardine, and each box yields a dozen filets rolled like we spools. Three served on a lettuce leaf make a unique relish that is quite inexpensive, but which gives a welcome adjunct to a simple meal.

A round dozen pates, chicken, duck and game, put up with the motor party or the particular camper in mind, are worth their weight in gold when they are just where they are most wanted at the right time. All that is required when the pate is removed from the can is to steam it a few minutes in the oven, under a cloth wrung out of hot water, and, behold, a delectable dainty which one may serve to the most discerning of guests.

The French soups or potages, put up in glass, include ox tail, kangaroo tail, cray fish, Chinese birds' nest, and other unusual kinds. There are many varieties of the simpler soups also.

Among salad possibilities are the kumquats (Japanese oranges). These may be drained from their syrup, sliced onto lettuce leaves and dressed with mayonnaise or French dressing. French prunes, plumped to their full proportions, and which come in glass jars, may have their stones removed, and a flavored cheese ball tucked in their place. Topped with mayonnaise and whipped cream added, it becomes a wonderful company salad with the addition of a few fresh lettuce leaves.

Bottled and boxed cheeses from all over the world offer wide choice as to particular dainties for the salad course, or a course by themselves with a few appropriate crackers.

Speaking of crackers and biscuits, there are several varieties which are suitable for the shelf because they are so packed that they keep in perfect shape until they are used. Some are quite acceptable for dessert use. Others add distinction to the serving of a simple soup.

Of the little used relishes, one might call attention to ripe olives. Seeded olives are a wonderful addition to a fish salad. as well as to a fruit salad.

FASHIONS IN BRIEF.

Pale pink shades and metal tissues are being shown for evening use.

Taupe and gray caracul will be the popular fur trimming of the year.

Burnt orange is one of the shades which is being advocated for the coming season.

Straight line and square wrap style coats will be in the foreground of smart coats for winter.

The pros and cons connecting the circular skirt persist and give one a reason for contemplating this style for fall.

Jumper frocks are just the things for the little ones. They may be worn with a variety of style-guimpes and always look sweet and attractive.

Contrasting braid bindings are very prominent just now. This trimming is used for the sleeveless dress and for all manner of smart coats, suits and frocks.

A black chiffon gown of rather straight lines with collar and waistcoat of brilliant foulard, and also the underskirt gracefully veiled with petals of chiffon, is worthy of arny charming affair.

NUNS HEROINES IN JERSEY FIRE

Rescue Blind Trapped by Flames as Home Burns.

JERSEY CITY, Dec. 10.—One hundred inmates of St. Joseph's Home for the Blind were led from the building by attendants, firemen and policemen yesterday when fire damaged the structure.

More than 50 blind women, some of them paralyzed, were carried out. Several fainted, but were soon revived.

The blaze was discovered in the sacristy of the chapel by Rev. Cornelius McInerney, chaplain of the home, who turned n an alarm and aroused the nuns and employes. The work of removing the inmates was well under way when the firemen and police arrived.

Several women were carried down ladders by firemen from the second floor. A nun operated an elevator and brought load after load of children down from the third floor. She remained at her post until all had been removed. John Hartman, patrolman, took out three women through the smoke, but fell unconscious in the hallway while going back for another.

Father McInerney suffered an abrasion on the left arm while carrying an aged woman down the stairs. He was treated by a physician and returned to the work.

OUR CANADIAN TREES

(Copyright Reserved.)

Doris Donaldson, a young Canadian writer, and patriotic enthusiast, dedicates these verses to the home town of her childhood days, with love and regard towards, "Peterboro, Ontario, Canada."

Our Dominion's laden with butter and cheese,
Likewise, the product of the honey bees,
But of Nature's work on her land and seas,
There is naught so grand as the growth of trees.
They furnish us lumber to keep us warm—
And give the name of home its charm.

Canada is burdened with things that please,
With sweets the appetite to tease,
But of Nature's works, a simple breeze
Turns the mind to the beauty of trees.
They furnish paper, upon which we read
Of the life of the world, its joys and need.

The world is hampered by wealth and ease,
With crooks and grafters—he's and she's,
But Nature's master art one sees,
Is shown in our lofty, grand old trees.
They provide our craftsmen means to build,
That life may all the more be filled.

The world is full of religious decrees,
Aimed at some God his wrath to appease,
But Nature, in her wild surcease,
Makes worship sublime among the trees.
They give us shade in glen and glade,
And show us how wonderful things are made.

The world is changing—gone, gone its steeds,
The wheel and wing are gathered seeds,
But, Canada, with her charm doth please,
To lure the mystic 'mong the trees.
They furnish sugar, nuts and gums,
And we gather about them all good chums.

So in all our domain with its butter and cheese,
The works of man, also the bees—
There are none, including the (he's and she's)—
More loved than our grand old trees,
They shelter birds, preserve the rains,
And lend an aid to this vast domain.

The world is changing its forms and leaves—
The plains and rills, and slopes that tease,
Lead us on to peak and breeze,
There to ponder—does Heaven have trees?
If not, we halt, turn and adore:
These forest preserves on the lower floor.

And when we pass, as law decrees—
To the great beyond, above the leaves,
We'll search the books and scan their leaves,
For pictures of our grand Canadian trees.
They give us joy and peace and good,
In that land of beauty to the good.

The Little Folks Await the Coming of Christmas Morn

With Keener and Deeper Interest Than Any Other Member of the Family!

Their credulous little minds believe in a real live old fellow of a Santa Claus, and for weeks ahead, because of their innocent belief in such a mythical, jolly old fellow, they live in an enchanted land of reindeers and sleighs, and anxiously await Old Santa to sally forth on Christmas Eve and drop his packages.

If you are going to be Santa Claus to some little boy or girl, there are many things we would like to suggest. They are useful and will not detract one iota from the child's happiness. On the contrary, they will add volumes, for they are all things to wear, and even the tiniest of little folks are possessed with an inherent love for pretty apparel.

CAREER OF A FAMOUS FORGER

The announcement by the New York police authorities and court officials that Mrs. Emma Richardson Burkett, of Hillsdale, Ind., who is under arrest in that city on the charge of forging the name of Theodore Roosevelt, former president, to a note for $60,000, bore a striking resemblance to a maid servant employed by Ann O'Delia Diss De Bar, brings back the recollection of one of the most notorious women swindlers this country ever knew. Under various names Diss de Bar operated in America and Europe, posing sometimes as a Catholic, again as a spiritualist, a Methodist, Presbyterian or any creed that would bring her money.

Mrs. Burkett, when arraigned July 19, pleaded not guilty. Her trial is set for July 27.

It is not certain that Mrs. Burkett was a maid servant to Diss De Bar. The executors of the Roosevelt estate say the signature to the Roosevelt note is a forgery.

This woman Ann O'Delia Diss De Bar was born near Harrodsburg, Ky. Her father is a member of an old Kentucky family, several members of which now live in Kentucky and are highly respected. Although Diss De Bar, throughout her career of fraud, has been heavy and fat, as a girl she was beautiful, and many suitos paid her court. So far as known she had four husbands: Paul N. Messant, General Diss De Bar, W. J. McGowan and Frank D. Jackson. She has been a woman of many cults and has used them all to defraud. She practised her arts in cities all over the world, and numbered among her victims some of the wisest, shrewdest and wealthiest men.

The case that first brought Diss De Bar into notoriety and resulted in her exposure of many past crimes was that of Luther R. Marsh, a noted jurist of New York. At one time he was associated with Daniel Webster. As attorney for corporations and rich men he transacted business amounting to millions and had a reputation for legal acumen.

Had Amassed a Fortune.

Diss De Bar's first appearance in Mr. Marsh's life was shortly after the death of his wife, to whom he was ardently devoted. At that time he had amassed a fortune and lived in a fine home. His wife's death turned his thoughts to spiritualism, and just then Diss De Barr appeared in New York as Princess Editha Lalitha. She had come from Baltimore, where she had been known as Countess Landsfeldt and had accumulated a host of creditors whom she left to mourn her unheralded departure. In New York Diss De Barr said she was the daughter of King Ludwig of Bavaria and Lola Montez, the notorious dancer. She was introduced to prominent people and delivered lectures on spiritualism. She met Mr. Marsh, went into a trance, and brought him alleged messages from his wife, from Adelaide Neilson, the actress, from Daniel Webster, from the Prophet Jonah and others from whom he wished to hear.

Associated with Diss De Bar at this time was a handsome, well-dressed man called General Joseph H. Diss De Bar. The couple had two children and soon the family occupied the house of the aged lawyer, Marsh. Seances were held regularly in the "Temple of Youth," as Diss De Bar called the Marsh home, and from time to time the spirits reproduced paintings by the hands of old masters, costly bric-a-brac and marbles. Mr Marsh's bank account dwindled. Soon it became known that he had deeded to the adventuress his home, and had made over to her other property valued at $50,000.

The paintings which Diss De Bar pretended were lined by spirit hands were pronounced by those permitted to see them the veriest daubs. An exposure of the fraudulent practises as a medium led Marsh's friends to obtain her arrest, prosecution and conviction. The New York Bar Association was sponsor for the prosecution, and Diss De Bar was fined $500 and costs and sentenced to six months.

Disappeared for a Time.

After her release from Blackwells Island Diss De Bar pretended to have committed suicide on a Jersey City ferry boat and for a while disappeared from public view. In a few months she appeared as a teacher of the occult, which she said she had studied in India in the bowels of the earth with a Pythagorean brotherhood. She failed to pay her board bills, however, in Brooklyn, and essayed comic opera at Harlem, appearing as Cupid and eliciting a roar from the audience, which so wounded her vanity that she left the stage in tears. Next she said she was possessed by the spirit of Mme. Blavatsky, but this failed to day, and she disappeared once more.

It was three or four months before she came into action again. She was found in a dazed state at Cincinnati. She said she had been kidnapped by clerical enemies in Chicago, and her subsequent discovery at Cincinnati under the name of Vera P. Ava. Dis De Bar was put in jail at Geneva, Ill., on a charge of swindling Mrs. John Mitchell, of Elgin, out of $375 by the use of what she called spiritualistic slates.

She served a term in the Illinois State Prison, at Joliet, for the robbery of Mrs. Mitchell. After serving a term in New York, she went to Rome, where she was arrested and sent to prison for perpetrating a swindle on some wealthy churchmen of that city. After serving her sentence in the Italian prison, she returned to New York, and there several times was arrested and punished as a hotel deadbeat and swindler.

While in Chicago Diss De Bar continued to pose as a medium and professor of the occult and soon met and married W. J. McGowan, an aged and wealthy merchant. General Diss De Bar either died or obtained a divorce from the woman. McGowan died a short time after his marriage to Diss De Bar, and at the time she posed as a theosophist and joined the theosophical colony of Henry B. Foulke at Onset Bay.

She Meets F. D. Jackson.

While settling up the McGowan estate, Diss De Bar met Frank D. Jackson, a young Chicago real estate dealer He fell at once under her spell. He wished to found a "fruitarian" colony of converts in Florida—so did she; they both held the same views of spiritualism and platonic love. They went to Florida together and on January 1, 1899, appeared suddenly in New Orleans, Diss De Bar at that time went under the name of Howard. While in Florida, promoting the order of the Crystal Star, Diss De Bar, because of her swindling operations, had to leave the state between two days.

At New Orleans, Diss De Bar and Jackson were married in the presence of a great crowd of spiritualists, theosophists and free thinkers. She practised the clairvoyant art and soon had a clientele which included many of the most prominent women of the city. Her practices with these women were of the most fraudulent and atrocious character, and when the mayor of the city learned about them he drove Diss De Bar and her husband, Jackson out of the city. That they were not prosecuted was due solely to the high social position of many of their victims. Diss De Bar and Jackson tried to establish themselves at Bucktown, a gamblers' resort on Lake Pontchartrain, but even the hardened denizens of that place could not endure them as neighbors, and on a hint of fire and cord they disappeared. It was given out that they had gone to India to abide with the theosophists, but they only went as far as Capetown, where, after having mulcted a wealthy contractor by their usual methods, they again got out between two days and sailed for London.

In London, under the names of Laura and Theodore Hobbs, or Jackson, they established the Theocratic Unity. Diss De Bar said she was Helen of Troy and Jackson asserted he was Horos, the old Greek god, and also Christ reincarcerated. Matrimonial advertisements were inserted in the papers by the pair, and the young women who responded were initiated into the cult of the Theocratic Unity.

Under Weird Ceremonies.

The rite involved weird ceremonies and frightful and blasphemous oaths, and was celebrated by the dupes placing their money and jewels on the altar. Diss De Bar never missed a chance to sequester valuables. Finally the London police took the Theocratic Unity in charge. The trial was long and sensational, and the result was that both Diss De Bar and her husband were convicted. Jackson was sentenced to fifteen years and Diss De Bar to seven years of penal servitude, the greater part of which they served. In 1906 Diss De Bar was released from the prison in England on a ticket of leave, and during the life of this ticket of leave she was not heard of.

Then Diss De Bar popped up again as the "White Mahatma," and was found in a luxurious house in East Thirty-third street, New York. This place was known as the Temple of Truth, the school of Eternal Life. Again the police took charge of the affairs of Diss De Bar, and she appealed to President Taft for aid in keeping her Mahatma flag flying in New York city. The president, however, would not interfere, and the police finally drove her out of New York. She has not been heard of for several years.

GIRL WAS SAPED FROM DEATH IN RAGING SEA

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—When Ira Nelson Morris, United States Minister to Sweden, arrived here on the Scandinavian-American liner United States, fellow passengers told the reporters how he had saved the life of Miss Ellen Neilson, a 19-year-old Brooklyn girl in mid-ocean. The diplomat declined to discuss the incident.

Tuesday afternoon, while the liner was being buffeted by a northwest gale and an angry head sea, Miss Neilson was walking along the boat deck on the port side, when the ship lurched suddenly to the starboard. The girl went sliding across the slippery planks to the opposite side, and a rush of water caught and swept her along the deck aft toward an opening by a lifeboat, where there was no rail to prevent her from going overboard.

Mr. Morris was on the starboard side, holding to a stanchion, when he heard Miss Neilson scream. He reached the girl near the lifeboat, grabbed her by the wrists and caught hold of a stanchion until the boat came back on an even keel. Then he conducted the young woman, uninjured but soaking wet, to the saloon companionway.

In the excitement Miss Neilson dropped her handbag and it was swept overboard. She said the bag contained $200, her passport, and several important papers.

When the immigration officials boarded the liner, Mr. Morris told them Miss Neilson was an American citizen and had been visiting relatives in Denmark.

The Minister will spend four weeks in Chicago and then return to Stockholm.

LIVER TROUBLE

BAD BILIOUS ATTACKS

When your liver becomes sluggish and inactive your whole health suffers. Your bowels become constipated, the tongue coated, the breath bad, the stomach foul and sick, and bilious spells occur on account of the liver holding back the bile which is so essential to promote the movement of the bowels, and the bile gets into the blood instead of passing out through the usual channel.

The only way to keep the liver active and working properly, and thus get rid of the nasty bilious attacks, is to keep the bowels regular by using

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS.

They are purely vegetable, small and easy to take, work smoothly and gently, and there is nothing of the griping, weakening and sickening efforts of the old fashioned purgatives.

Mr. John S. Caron, Donavon, Sask., writes: "I was troubled with my liver and had severe bilious attacks. A friend advised me to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, so I took two vials and have had no more attacks."

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

are 25c a vial at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Oxygen breathed in by any person can be measured by a newly designed apparatus.

WASHINGTON AND HIS LITTLE HATCHET.

CONCEPTION AUDACIOUS, BUT TECHNICALLY SOUND

London to Capetown by Rail Without Change

PARIS, Dec. 9.—Reference has recently been made to project of linking up Europe with Africa by means of a tunnel under the sea. The tunnel would traverse the Straits of Gibraltar. Such an undertaking would be enormous in itself and still more immense in its consequence.

The French have alway regarded Mediterranean Africa as practically forming part of their own continent. A direct railroad, from Paris to Tangiers and from Tangiers to pointo to point in the African continent—probably when the various schemes now under consideration are executed and co-ordinated — to apetown, would certainly, apart from its immediate practical consequences, vividly strike the imagination.

In conjunction with a tunnel under the English Channel—which is a comparatively trivial operation— or even in conjunction with the Gibraltar tunnel would make it possible to travel or to send goods from London to Capetown without changing conveyances at any stage of the journey.

The conception is audacious, but it is technically sound. The Gibraltar tunnel would at its lowest level be 1,254 feet below the surface of the sea. In the English Channel the tunnel would be at nothing like such a depth.

Even seaweed was used for the manufacture of gas during the recent coal strike.

WHAT'S A SUIT OR SO? JUST $50 OR 30 DAYS

Sons of Sunny Mexico Are Taught Property Rights.

Philip West and Antonio Jiminez, both of whom first saw the light of day in Mexico, are somewhat hazy as to the standards of ethics now in operation this side of the Rio Grande.

Philip and Antonio were before Judge John Faust charged with pilfering two suits of clothes from a Monroe avenue clothing shop. Both seemed somewhat surprised that anyone should object to their appropriating a suit or two to their own uses. They pleaded guilty with the utmost cheerfulness.

Judge Faust decided to try what effect a $50 fine or a 30-day stay in the House of Correction would have on the Mexicans' idea as to the rights of property.

COAL FOR HIS VOTE.

On of the candidates in the South Ontario election on Tuesday tells of a man who approached him with the offer of his vote in return for a load of coal. This particular candidate says he refused, but a day or two later he learned that the man had his load of coal from other sources. Whether he was successful in getting a taker for his proposition, of course, is not to be ascertained.— Whitby Chronicle.

BISHOP O'BRIEN URGES PRAYER AS AID TO NORMALCY

ATTENDED CELEBRATION OF SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY OF CHURCH OF IMMACULATE CONCEPTION

SPEAKS OF GOODWILL

The seventh anniversary of the opening of the Church of the Immaculate Conception was celebrated on Sunday. His Lordship Bishop O'Brien sang pontificial vespers in the evening, assisted by Rev. Father Meager, of Lakefield, and Rev. Father Costello, of St. Peter's Cathedral. There were also present with Monsignor McCall, pastor of the church, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, of the Church of the Sacred Heart, and Rev. J. V. McAuley, of Ennismore, who preached the sermon. A large congregation attended, and the singing of the choir, under the direction of the new organist, Mr. John Ball, befitted the solemnity of the occasion.

Bishop O'Brien, addressing the congregation after the benediction, said he was glad of the opportunity of participating in this anniversary. It marked the closing of another year in the life of the church, and every member should be richer in God's grace than when the year began. His message was an appeal to the people to pray at this time for the restoration of those normal conditions for which the world was yearning.

"Things are upside down through the malice of men," said His Lordship, "and there is only one way by which we can get back to normalcy, to normal times, and that is by allowing the spirit of God to work in us individually and as a nation. We should do our part by prayer, by living in the grace of God, and by the example of our lives among our neighbors. Let us do this."

Grateful to People.

Bishop O'Brien thanked the people of the parish of the Immaculate Conception for their co-operation in the recent bazaar in aid of St. Joseph's Hospital. As the hospital was not for one parish alone, but for the people as a whole, so the parishes had all borne their share of the work. The result greatly exceeded his most sanguine expectations, Bishop O'Brien said, and intimated that the surplus would probably be $8,000 clear.

"I am personally most grateful to everyone who helped us, especially to the people of Peterborough, to the members of our three parishes, to those who worked and also those who patronized the bazaar," His Lordship continued. "And not only am I grateful to our Catholic people, but likewise to the great number of our non-Catholic friends who came there as a matter of goodwill and who showed their goodwill. After all, St. Joseph's Hospital is for everyone, for Catholic and non-Catholic, for Jew and for Gentile, and it is a great work to assist the hospital that God's afflicted may be helped to recover. In such efforts we must have some motive to make us rise above ourselves, to inspire us, and in this our motive has been the love of God. All this is better than money. Of course we need money for the work, but I would rather see that splendid spirit of goodwill than to have realized a thousand times as much from the bazaar. I have scarcely known anything so consoling as the spirit of unanimity that made the bazaar such a success, the willingness to co-operate and the generosity manifested during the past week."

The Sermon.

Rev. Father McAuley's sermon was an exposition of the doctrine of the Immaculate Conception. It meant, he said, that the Blessed Virgin, the mother of Jesus Christ, was conceived without sin. Not merely that she was born without sin, but that at the moment of the infusion of her soul into her body, original sin, to which mankind was heir through the fall of Adam, was withheld from her through the merits of her divine Son. Father McAuley pointed out the difference between the doctrine of the Immaculate Conception of Mary and the doctrine of the Incarnation of Christ. In the latter she occupied the relationship of spouse to the Holy Ghost and mother of the Son of God.

"In he first recorded prophecy the Blessed Virgin is shown as being associated in the work of destroying the serpent," Father McAuley continued. "God, in addressing the serpent, said: 'I will put enmity between thee and the woman, between her seed and thy seed, and in the end she shall crush thy head with her heel.' The fathers of the Church tell us that in this prophecy mother and Son are mentioned, and they are to carry on the work of fighting against the Evil One. Never for one moment are they to be under the dominion of the Evil One. We are told that the fight is to go on to the end, but in the end she shall crush his head."

Faher McAuley quoted the vision of St. John and the prophecy of Isaiah, and said that because of the special position to which Mary had been elected, the Church was glad to take up the salute of the angel at the Annunciation and acclaim her as full of grace.

ONCE-OVERS

When figuring in an automobile accident, do not talk too much. Get the time, place, names of those in the car and their adresses if you can and by all means take down the number of the license and State where issued. If there are any bystanders who saw the accident, it is well to get their names and addresses, even though the car is not badly damaged.

Some men consider not getting caught a better policy than honesty.

PROSPECTIVE ALASKANS

Owing, I suppose, to the depressed conditions now prevalent throughout the United States and Canada, and to my articles on Alaska, I have received numerous inquiries as to the advisability of going to the far North in search of profitable employment and greater opportunities. Now I would not care to assume the responsibility of advising anyone in this matter, as it is a long and rather costly trip and the chances of success, after arriving there, would of course, be uncertain. As for myself; I will admit that I was quite successful while in Alaska, and intend to go back early next spring, or at least, as soon as the ice breaks up sufficiently in the Yukon river, to permit me to navigate that stream in my small boat, which is now at White Horse, Y. T.

I might also add, for the benefit of those who may anticipate going to Alaska, that the completion of the Government railroad next year, will greatly reduce the difficulty and expense of journeying from the United States and Canada to Interior Alaska. It will also open up vast areas of mineral and agricultural lands, hitherto practically inaccessible, providing those who go to the territory the opportunity to engage in mining or farming with a reasonable assurance of success. There is no more promising field anywhere for prospectors nor more fertile soil for the cultivation of those products adapted to the Northern climate, which is as tropical in summer as many sections in the northern States.

Railroad Work

There will always be more or less railroad work going on, and in fact, it may be said that the building of the trunk line of the Government railroad from Seward, on Resurrection Bay, to the old mining town of Fairbanks, in the Tanana Valley, marks only the commencement of railroad construction in Interior Alaska. While this trunk line is needed to reduce transportation costs; branch lines and wagon road feeders will be needed to supply the tonnage necessary to insure the successful operation of the railroad.

After the major portion of the railroad work now under way has been completed, a new field of employment will have opened, owing to the new industries which will have started in the new mines which will develop gradually as the means of transportation continues to improve, and on the farms which will come into existence according as the demand for food products increases. The new employment will be permanent, the wages good, and the surroundings attractive by reason of the ever increasing activity in all lines of industry.

A Job For Every Man Prosperity For All.

Mr. Manufacturer———

IN 1918 you operated 15,365 manufacturing establishments throughout Ontario.
You employed 333,926 people. You paid them $321,160,214.
The value of the products manufactured, including raw materials, was $1,809,067,000. Part of this was war business but it shows what Ontario's manufacturers can do.

You paid 52.3 per cent. more for common factory labor than you did in 1913. You paid 46.8 per cent. more for skilled factory labor than in 1913.

The suit or overcoat that you made in 1913 to retail at $25 increased in price to the point where it sold for $65 in 1920.

It is clear that you have made reductions because that same quality suit or overcoat is offered retail to-day at approximately $43.

This is a typical example of the situation in many other lines of industry.

In a general plan of co-operation, in which all classes of the community are asked to take part, will you operate your factory so that the public will be enabled to purchase your product from the retail merchant at as great a reduction as your replacement cost of raw materials and labor will warrant, thereby enabling the retailer to order and re-order goods from the wholesaler, who, in turn, will be able to order them from you? By so doing, you may not only keep Ontario factories producing at normal speed but may possibly increase production, thus increasing employment.

This plan, successfully carried out, will help to bring about a normal adjustment in conditions, gradually and surely, and you will

Plan of Co-operation.

The Provincial Advisory Committee on Unemployment considered the industrial situation and endorses the following statement of proposals:—

1.—That Manufacturers should be asked to take a price for goods on hand equal to the cost of replacement having regard to decreased cost of raw material and of labor used in manufacture.

2.—That Wholesalers should be asked to sell goods on hand at replacement prices.

3.—That Retailers should be asked to sell at replacement prices.

4.—Knowing that the costs of building at the present time have been considerably reduced, those desiring to build should be encouraged to ask for new tenders on their proposed work; and that building contractors and builders' supply people should make a special effort to reduce prices to a minimum in order to restore this important key industry.

5.—That Banks and financial institutions should be prepared to co-operate to the utmost with all productive enterprise by allowing all reasonable credits and by decreasing rates as rapidly as conditions may allow.

6.—That Farmers should be asked to maintain reasonable production, and in the event of a proportionate reduction being reached in other lines, should be prepared to make needed improvements and betterments.

7.—That Labor shall be asked to take willingly a reduction in wages proportionate to progressive decrease in cost of living, in so far as such a reduction has not already taken place.

The above statement has been submitted to and endorsed by the following interests—manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers, building industries, agriculture, financial interests and the veterans.

DR. T. JOHNSTON CLAIMS $5,000 FOR INJURIES FROM STREET CAR

FIVE ACTIONS FOR TRIAL BY JURY AT COUNTY COURT SITTINGS BEGINNING ON TUESDAY AFTERNOON--TWO NON-JURY AND TWO MORE ON THE CRIMINAL LIST.

A docket of seven civil and two criminal cases will be presented to Judge Huycke on Tuesday ofternoon at the opening of the December sittings of the County Courtt. Five of the civil actions are for trial by jury.

Nicholls vs. Nicholls.

This is an acion in which Nathan Nicholls claims $500 and costs from Steve Nicholls for alleged slander. Both parties to the suit are farmers residing in Harvey Township.

The plaintiff in the record says that on or about March 28th, 1921, defendant to one H. A. Shearer falsely and maliciously said, "I caught the thief Nate Nicholls stealing my rate" —meaning thereby that plaintiff had committed the crime of theft.

To Harold Montgomery, Mrs. J. James and other neighbors, the defendant is alleged to have repeated this accusation.

Defendant in his reply alleges that if he did speak the words complained of, they are true in substance and in fact.

Peck, Kerr and McElderry for the plaintiff; Gordon & O'Brien for defendant.

Johnston vs. Hydro-Electric.

Dr. T. Johnston, veterinary surgeon asks $5000 damages and costs for injuries suffered on Sept. 16, 1920, when his automobile was struck by a street car on the Monaghan Road near Brown street. He alleges that the Hydro-Electric Commission's employees were negligent, and that as a result he was incapicated from carrying on his calling, and suffered a great nervous shock.

Defendants deny negligence on their part and say plaintiff was himself negligent in "recklessly attempting to cross the car tracks in front of the approaching street car.'

Peck, Kerr and McElderry, for plaintiff; W. W. Pope, Toronto, for defendants.

Hill vs. G.T.R

George W. Hill, grocer at Hastings, and his wife Ethel May Hill, are the plaintiffs in this suit for $500 damages against the G.T.R. for injury to Mrs. Hill at Hastings on May 25th, 1921, which she received in getting off a moving train. They were returning from Allendale, and when Hastings was announced attempted to leave the coach by the front door. It was locked, however, and when they reached the rear door and were getting off, the train started to move. They say that the company was negligent in failing to have some person at the front door of the coach.

Gordon & O'Brien for plaintiff; W. W. Biggar for defendants.

Malood and Harvey vs Robert H Bigelow

Plaintiffs' claim is against the defendant as maker of a promissory note for $1300 dated May 26th, 1921 payable 30 days after date which with interest amounts to $1310.47 and interest on this amount at the rate of 7 per cent until judgment or payment.

R. H. Bigelow, farmer in Cavan township replies that the note was obtained from him by fraudulent m'srepresentations of the plaintiffs that a car he purchased from them was new one, which had been travelled only a very short distance when as a matter of fact it was a used car painted over and "sold to me after dark when I had no opportunity of examining it".

C. R. Wddifield for plaintiffs; Gordon and O'Brien for defendant.

Akey vs Letellier

James Akey, liveryman, claims $390 with interest at 5% from June 1st 1921, and costs from Leger D. Letellier. Plaintiff sets out that on May 15, he sold a team of horses to one, Paul C. Dronin for $390 and received a cheque drawn on the Royal Bank. He discounted the cheque to W. J. Poulson, who on presenting it was told there was no account. Plaintiff had to refund the money to Poulson. He alleges that at the time of the sale defendant agreed to see that in any event the necessary funds would be provided for the payment of the team.

Defendant denies that at any time he promised to answer for the debt of Paul C. Dronin.

C. R. Widdifield for plaintiff; Peck, Kerr and McElderry for defendant.

Fallis vs Anderson

This is a non-jury action. Richard T. Fallis has entered action against Frederick Anderson of South Monaghan for the sum of $1057 being the balance of wages due the plaintiff as a farm labourer.

Defendant offers a detailed defense and submits a counter-statement of moneys paid to plaintiff.

Gordon & O'Brien for plaintiff, A. A. Smith, Millbrook, for defendant.

Dwyer vs Grisdale

Plaintiff, Julia Ann Dwyer, the lawful widow of Philip Crough of Smith township, who died or September 14th., 1916, claims dower in certain property in Peterboro, and in this the defendant Bridget Cecilia Grisdale joins issue.

J. R. Corkery for plaintiff; Gordon and O'Brien for defendant.

A LARGE NUMBER OF CASES, ETC.

sand dollars, allowing for receipts which have amounted to $2,028.42. An appropriation of $9,000.00 has been exceeded by over $4,000.00 already, but against this is the amount of receipts. However, the Board will be lucky if they escape with a $3,000.00 overdraft, as the City Clerk explained there are the December salaries and accounts and a large percentage of November bills to come in. Of course, there will be some receipts; in fact, Chairman George Duncan declared they must endeavour to get every cent in.

Epidemics Cost Money.

What explanation are we going to give for that? asked Mr. Lynch, referring to the overdraft.

"An epidemic in the city and the large number of people sent to the hospital," answered Mr. Duncan.

"I suppose the system established by the doctor of sending most of the cases to the hospital in order to stamp out the disease has caused the high expenditure," said Mr. E. F. Mason.

"The money is coming in better than it used to," said the chairman, noting the record collection of the matron for the month, with considerable satisfaction.

A Salary Increase.

A request from Miss A. M. Price, matron of the hospital, for an increase in salary from $70.00 to $100.00, was laid over until the next meeting. Miss Price, in a communication, pointed out that her duties have increased greatly during the last two years, and the institution of a training school has given her enlarged duties.

Members of the Board were favourably inclined to an increase, but in view of the general wage reductions in business and industry, it was thought best to discuss the matter further with Miss Price. The request was received sympathetically, however, as trained nurses now engaged are receiving $150.00 a month, and in consideration of the unpleasant surroundings in an Isolation Hospital.

The Board did not seem particularly embittered at the Council turning down the appointment of a clerk for the Health Department. Further discussion was left over till after the New Year.

Sanitary Inspector C. S. Stapleton said he did not want a clerk.

A batch of lengthy communications regarding the dispute between Dr. Young and School Inspector A. Mowat over the former's duties as Medical Officer of Health as relating to school children were discussed.

One was a letter dated 1st December, from Dr. G. W. S. McCullough, Provincial Medical Officer, stating Dr. Young's duties, another was a letter from Mr. Mowat, in which he gave his version of them, and there was a copy of a letter from Dr. McCullough to Inspector Mowat in reply to one dated 3rd December, in which he advised co-ordination of the medical forces of the school and community as in Toronto. He believed the Board of Health to secure efficiency should control school medical inspection.

Too Many Epidemics.

Mr. James Lynch considered the epidemics were a continuous performance in Peterborough.

Mr. Stapleton replied that scarlet fever was serious, but diphtheria was abating. He said to-day he was taking down five cards and putting up four. He had even been too busy to make out his annual report. There are between 67 and 100 quarantines, he said.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES FOR ALL CHILDREN IS HOPE OF WRITER

Some day, in the far, far distant future, I like to imagine the world thus—that every child will be given the self-same opportunities; that the full rigor of the law will be directed first and foremost against those abuses which have a direct or indirect influence on young lives; that the world will regard every young child not as the sole possession of its parents—especially should they deliberately fail in their parental duty—nor of the state—who so easily disregards them until they are of importance as so many human sacrifices in defence of bad old institutions—but that each child will be looked upon as a charge upon humanity. Such a reform will mean, of course, that grown-up people will be deprived of many of what they call their "liberties"; but I care not how many "liberties" grown-up people are deprived of so long as by their deprivation the children are given a fairer chance to live morally and healthfully. Such a reform will not, of course, come in my lifetime, nor in yours who read this page. We shall still see every chance of living a beautiful life given only to the children of the wealthier classes. But years hence such a reform will surely be a fact, unless God touches this earth with a star, and thus ends this mockery of Christianity and civilisation. With this emancipation of all children from the social evils indulged in by their elders will also come a new and a very real League of Nations—an era in which the exterior pomp and prosperity of princes and potentates, both figuratively and actual, will not be upheld by the money and sacrifices of the lowly; an era when, for the first time in all the long history of the world, mankind will seek to govern themselves and be governed by something approaching a love-inspired justice; an era when governments will have eyes turned towards the propitiation of the adult voter and those who supply party funds. Every social reform must start by eradicating the evil which breeds a social disease, and each social disease is first spread in the heart of the child. If the world was made for man—well, look what man has made of it! The future belongs to the children, and all political reforms should keep that aim in view steadfastly, since to lose sight of it is to lose sight of any possible chance of permanent reformation. And so I like to think that the laws of the future will be directed in defence of the young and the helpless. And if these laws deprive old people of what they call many of their "liberties," they, being adult and strong, can the better fend for themselves. The history of the world is the bloody history of old men's selfishness. The world is ripe for new influences, untainted by the prejudices, the class-distinctions, the political and diplomatic dishonesty of those who, from an age unrecorded, have called themselves the "Rulers of the World," though "ruiners" would really be a better word.

Synopsis

George Randolph Chester, internationally prominent as an author and creator of the likeable vagabond, Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingford, took many months to transfer to celluloid the great story that he had been thinking about for years—ever since he wrote the first Wallingford story and made the name of his tricky promoter a household word. He made a great picture which took many months, a small fortune and several thousand actors to produce. When he had finished he had something entirely different| Its human qualities hold. A simple love scene between Mary Curtis and Jimmy Wallingford demands as much attention as the magnificient pageant scene patterned after an old Indian durbar with its gaily comparisoned elephants and camels and thousands of costumed participants. In addition to this there are big spectacular scenes on a lake of burning oil. These are the greatest fire scenes ever filmed. Ten tanks of oil were spread upon the especially constructed lake which cost over $20,000 to produce. The blaze shot up in whirlpools hundreds of feet into the air and twice the diameter of a man's waist. It burned for ten days steadily|

Every character was selected with care and precision so that in the finished production every type would be faithfully portrayed and visualized as they had been in the original Wallingford stories. Some of the best actors before the camera were secured for the exceptionally large cast.

THE ROYAL THEATRE

To-night the bill at the Royal Theatre is of exceptional interest and one that all should see. Every reader of current fiction is acquainted with and has laughed over the adventures of that almost likeable pair of crooks "Get Rick Quick Wallingford and his partner, Blackie Daw. To-day's feature at the Royal in eight reels, is called "The Son of Wallingford and shows that the latter, even though being trained in the ways of honesty is smarter at money making than his rascal father. This film is a world beater. Amongst other incidentals it shows a rescue on a burning lake of oil containing 15,000 gallons. There are a score of beautiful girls in unusual roles. The wonderful street pageant for which a California town of 5,000 inhabitants was loaned for a week shows 8000 people with elephants and camels and in which $2,000 worth of confetti was used. In addition to the vast spectacular show the plot in his picture is a strong one that holds attention from start to finish. This picture is really the result of fifteen years preparation. To-day begins the first episode of the much talked of romantic serial entitled "Breaking Through". As this serial is exceptional interesting, the opening part should be seen to-night. There are also other reels of first run Western and Comedy pictures. Owing to present conditions we have placed our prices within the reach of all although our pictures of highest grade obtainable. Judge this for yourself.

AT THE CAPITOL.

CAPITOL PRESS COMMENT.

To-day the Capitol presents the wonderful 8-reel super-production, The Sheik, with Rudolph Valentino, hero of the 4 Horsemen.

To-night and at the matinee and evening Tuesday and Wednesday, the Capitol presents one of the big outstanding feature picture productions of this season, 'The Sheik.' It has turned people away by the thousands from the largest theatres on the continent everywhere. The big Regent and Strand theatres were too small to hold the crowds that tried to gain admittance all last week, and everywhere it has been one unbroken chain of success. New York, Chicago, Vancouver, Winnipeg, no city has been any exception to its wonderful lure and crowd attracting qualities. The story and its wonderful ever-changing scenes fascinate the audience. Hence its wonderful crowd-drawing powers.

If you want to witness a typical sandstorm of the Sahara desert in all its fury, without undergoing the discomforts of being in its path, you will find a most realistic desert tornado in "The Sheik," George Melford's new production.

In the filming of this scene, it was proven that the ingenuity of man can harness the elements and turn them loose in their wildest fury. A desert site was chosen some sixty miles from Hollywood, Calif., where the picture was produced and a big wind machine, consisting of a powerful motor and a large airplane propeller, was stationed beside the camera. As the motor revolved the propeller at a terrific speed a furious blast of air blew the sand out over the camera area, producing an effect exactly like a real Sahara sandstorm.

"It was no fun," declared Agnes Ayres, who plays the principal feminine role and Rudolph Valentino, who portrays "The Sheik," "to stand out in front of that wind and be peppered by sand, and at the same time trying to enact a scene for the picture."

The balance of this big programme has been specially selected.

The usual orchestra, under capable Mrs. Foster. Jaxon, a really marvellous accordion player and a famous picture star in person! In spite of her seven years, "dainty Dorothy Waters" is really famous. She played an exacting and difficult role in 'Black Beauty," endearing herself to countless readers of the story and patrons of the movies. She can dance and sing like a veteran vaudeville artiste—her line of work has received the greatest praise from critics and audiences. So anyone who neglects to see her will miss their first chance to see a real, live, picture star in his "own home town."

FAN-FAN.

AT THE GRAND.

THE REX STOCK COMPANY.

The comedy which will be presented for the first time in Peterborough to-night, at the Grand Theatre, by Mr. Snelgrove and the Rex Players, supporting Miss Zana Vaughn, was put on in New York and London by two casts notable for their general excellence. They would be called "all star" nowadays, and in both cities the play was an instantaneous success. It will be quite a test of judgment and intellectuality, this contest arranged by 'Rex' to provide a suitable title for the comedy. The dialogue is so well written, with such nice regard for the proprieties of stagecraft, that whosoever happens upon a name suggestive of the underlying theme will prove himself an adept at guessing or a future playwright. Perhaps it will be a mark of latent literary ability, and the fortunate young man or woman may receive, along with the $10.00 prize, the encouragement to pursue a course leading to an artistic and lucrative goal.

No doubt you've noticed that I am extremely careful about even hinting at the plot. You see, a very keen discriminating person might find the cue in an advance notice. Another might get off to a wrong start altogether. So it is quite sufficient to remind you that at 8.15 o'clock tonight the Grand Theatre should be crowded with people eager to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Snelgrove to see the attractive bill they are promised, and to have a chance to win the prize for the best title to the society drama.

SOMETHING DOING EVERY MINUTE AT THE ARENA TONIGHT

BIG PROGRAMME OF ATHLETIC EVENTS WILL KEEP CROWDS ENTERTAINED—SMOKE-SCHOLES RACE AND RELAY EVENTS WILL BE A FEATURE—ROLLER HOCKEY GAME.

Everything is ready for to-night's big athletic meet under the auspices of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association in Brock street rink, and the programme promises to be the most interesting of its kind ever held in Peterborough. From 7.30 o'clock, when the boys' sack one-mile relay race, which is the finrace gets under way, until the open al event, there will be something doing every minute, and Dr. Frank, chairman of the committee, and Walter Smaill, director of athletics, are to be congratulated for the treat they have arranged.

The greatest interest naturally centres in the five mile between Albert Smoke, the fleet-footed local Indian, and Art Scholes of the Gladstone Athletic Club, Toronto, who holds the Ontario five-mile championship. Scholes is one of those game runners who will tackle anybody at any distance, from a quarter of a mile up to a Marathon, and he is at his best at the distance he is called upon to go to-night. This race alone will be worth the admission price.

Sot far behind it in interest will be the relay race, especially the open event which will bring together the Windsor A.C., the P.A.A.A., the Y. M.C.A. and the Young Men's Club. Albert Smoke will head the Windsor quartette, Scholes will be on the P.A.A.A. team, Charlie Thorpe will lead the Y.M.C.A. into action, while the Young Men's Club willl have Ward, Bergoine, Luther and Hopkins as their team.

The roller hockey match between the Arena team and the P.A.A.A. will introduce many of the local hockey stahs and is nearly as interesting as the ice article.

The C.G.E., Canadian Woollens and Brinton Carpet Company are entered in the industrial relay. It promises to be a real battle.

Mr. Len Pitcher of the Arena Rink, will do the announcing. The schedule of events is as follows, the length of the programme requiring an early start:

7.30—Boys' sack race.
7.45—Boys' High school relay race.
8 o'clock—Ladies' roller skating race, 1 mile.
8 o'clock—Tug-of-war.
8.15—Industrial relay race.
8.30—Men's three mile roller skating race.
8.45—Five mile match race, Albert Smoke, P.A.A.A. vs. Art Scholes, Gladstone A.C., Toronto.
9.15—Roller hockey match, Arena vs. P.A.A.A
9.45—Open one mile relay race, Windsor A.C., P.A.A., Y.M.C.A., Young Men's Club.

CHANGES IN THE GOVERNMENT OF QUEBEC HOCKEY

REVISION OF CONSTITUTION AT ANNUAL MEETING OF QUEBEC AMATEUR HOCKEY ASSOCIATION SATURDAY.

MONTREAL, Dec. 12.—(By Canadian Press.)—Twelve leagues, each averaging six clubs and controlling an aggregate of over 600 players last season, were represented at the annual meeting of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, held here Saturday afternoon. Three of these leagues were from Quebec City, and the balance were local organizations.

The meeting was important since it dealt with the revision of the constitution, thus occasioning radical changes in the government of hockey in this Province. Under this revision taxation on the clubs and senior players was increased to $3 for each night's scheduled game from the senior leagues, and $1.50 from the intermediate leagues. Senior players will in future pay $50 for a player's certificate.

Another clause provides that players accept the rulings of the registration committee unless an appeal is made to the Dominion Registration comittee. Any player taking a case into the courts shall be considered guilty of ungentlemanly conduct and shall be suspended by the Association.

DR. FRANK,
Chairman of the Athletic committee of the P.A.A., which has to-night's big meet in charge.

ANNUAL POW-WOWS OF BIG AND NEAR-BIG BALL LEAGUES

MEETINGS OPENED TODAY IN NEW YORK CITY---SAID THAT WHOLESALE PURCHASES AND TRADES WILL BE ARRANGED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Moguls and near-moguls of the big and near-big leagues in baseball moved into New York Sunday for the annual league pow-wows, expected to last throughout the week and result in a number of trades and purchases affecting well-known diamond stars.

The International League held its annual meeting to-day, the National League gathering is scheduled for to-morrow; the American for Wednesday and the joint major meeting for Thursday.

Garry Herrman, president of the Cincinnati Club, and his faithful manager, Pat Moran, have been here for several days. They joined Sunday in informal discussions of the game with Stoneham, McGraw and McQuade, Heydler, Ebbets, Baker and Grant. President Navin, of the Detroits, and Fred. Mitchell, manager of the Boston Braves, came late. Raymond Cobb is expected to-day.

Among the International Leaguers in town are Dunn of Baltimore: Stallings and Hapgood, of Rochester; Landgraf, of Syracuse, and McCaffery, of Toronto. Bill Donovan, one-time manager of the Yankees and Phillies, was on deck early with a broad, contagious smile. He has hopes of managing the Reading Club of the International next year.

Big Deals.

The deals in which the New York Giants and Cincinnati Clubs figured during the minor leagues' confab at Buffalo last week were only a forerunner, it was said, of wholesale purchases and trades to be arranged here. The Philadelphia Club, President Baker said, expects to buy several players, while the Pirates, Reds and Chicago Cubs also are in the market for new talent to bolster their squads. President Veek, of the Cubs, said he had no men to trade, but that he was eager to acquire at least three new players.

Circuit Changes.

Several changes in its circuit may be considered by the International League. Montreal is making a determined effort to re-enter, as is Providence, and promoters representing syndicates in both cities are here for that purpose. They are seeking the franchise now held by Jersey City. The League probably will do little more than ponder over the suggestion by Judge Landis that the great wall built around minor league players of Class A be removed, as sentiment in the League against the draft remains strong. Only routine matters are scheduled for discussion at the meeting of the American and National Leagues, and the one interesting subject promised for their joint conference is prices asked by the minor leagues for their players.

COMMANDER J. K. L. ROSS
Famous Montreal sportsman who, it is reported; will purchase an International Baseball League franchise for Montreal.

ESTABLISHED WORLD'S RECORD.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF CURLERS TONIGHT

WILL BALLOT ON FORTY NEW MEMBERS, SELECT RINKS AND OTHERWISE GET READY FOR THE WINTER.

Every skip should be present at to-night's meeting at the curling rink. The names of forty applicants for memberhip will be ballotted the draw for the season's rinks will be made and as a final item of the evening's programme the District Cup and Tankard skips will be selected. The skips no doubt have all been informed of this business meeting and need no reminder to attend. Old and new members are displaying just as much if not more interest than ever. Last season was one of the biggest in the club's history, but the way things are shaping up just now the new season promises to set a record mark.

Angus McIntosh has assumed his duties, in fact was at the rink all last week, and is waiting only for the real turn of the weather to begin ice-making n earnest.

Reeve J. C. Strickland of Lakefield, told the Examiner the other day that the new rink in the village is all set and ready for ice. Lakefield's splendid equipment is going to have a marked effect on winter sports in the district this season. Undoubtedly Peterboro curlers will avail themselves of every chance to visit their neighbours just nine miles away, and the Lakefield club has a bonspiel in preparation that will be a new feature attraction of the season. By the way, Warkworth has a new rink that looks just about as big as anything in the district, although they purpose using only two sheets, while turning the major part of the rink to skating and hockey uses.

CHARLIE THORPE,
Well-known local runner, who will head the Y.M.C.A. relay team in the open relay at Brock street rink to-night.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY HELD A DEBATE

Members of the Holy Name Society held a very interesting debate at St. Alphonsus' Lycum yesterday afternoon, on the resolution; "That married blessedness is preferable to single blessedness". The debate was well contested, and brought out some very mirth-provoking arguments on both sides. Messrs. Wm. Scollard, Joseph Begley and F. R. J. MacPherson took the affirmative which won the decision, while the negatives was upheld by Messrs. Feeley, W. MacPherson and E. Judge. The Judges were: W. S. Merrill, H. Castner and F. O'Brien.

Mrs. E. P. Plauss of Brockton, Mass, who had her husband in court for failing to provide, proposed to go out and earn the living if Plauss would stay at home, cook and care for the three children, and the judge took her up. So did Plauss. If Plauss sticks to the housework the case against him will be dismissed.

Oshawa's license committee have under consideration a proposition that no more pool-room licenses be issued in addition to those already enjoyed. Some of the councillors take the position that pool-room licenses should not be increased beyond a point where no holder can make a living, and that such would be the effect of an application from Louis Martin, of Kingston, for a license granted.

WEDDING BELLS

SHAUGHNESSY—EDEY.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in St. Patrick's Church, Thompsonville, Conn., U.S.A., on Thursday, December 1st, by Rev. Father Connor, of Eileen Sylvia, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Edey, Peterborough, Ont., to Cecil C. Shaughnessy, formerly of Peterborough.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: In Thursday's Examiner a letter appeared drawing my attention to the fact that in 1917 Mr. Burnham's majority was 3428 or almost equal to Mr. Gordon's majority in both of his elections. When we think of the conditions and the methods used in that election I would have thought that the writer would have been ashamed to have even referred to it. That election has left a black spot on the history of Canadian politics. However, the people of Canada have waited patiently from 1917 to Dec. 6, 1921, to show what they thought of the tactics used in that election.

Mr. Burnham's majority in 1917, was 3428. His defeat in December, 1921, 2100. Quite a reverse. How does that strike Willie. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this space.

J. J. HARTLEY.

WILL SECOND ADDRESS.

LONDON, Dec. 12.— (Canadian Press.)—Right Hon. George Barges, Privy Councillor and noted Labor leader, who will second the address in reply to the speech from the Throne Wednesday, will shortly retire from public life, feeling that he needs rest.

Society

The afternoon with Shakespeare, arranged by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, and held on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Women's Art Association at their studio in the Conservatory of Music, was very successfully carried out, and provided one of the most pleasant of entertainments for about 75 of the members, who filled the association rooms to capacity. The programme was opened by Mrs. Bingham, with a brief resume of the play, "King Henry Eighth," the speaker choosing the outstanding moments of the production, and reading them in a manner that held the attention of her audience, and called forth many admiring comments. This was followed by a presentation of the third scene from the second act of the play, a unique and artistic little performance enacted against a background of old tapestry hangings, arranged by Miss Maude Rush. Mrs. J. E. Munro, in a beautiful costume of old rose brocaded velvet, with the flowing "angel" sleeves and voluminous draperies of the period, the mitred headdress and long veil, took the part of Lady Anne Bullen. Mrs. W. McKee Bingham was an old Court Lady, in bronze green silks and fluted cap, and Mrs. G. R. Langley, the Court Chamberlain, in stately, high-collared black and purple, laced with gold, and bearing a tall brazen staff. The three performers enacted their parts with entire lack of self-consciousness, clear, flexible phrasing, and an attention to detail that gave a finished charm to the pretty scene. Evidently no pains were spared to make a perfect miniature production. Incidental music was introduced by attending Court Ladies. Misses Trucie Pearson, Edwina Palmer, and Muriel Bridges, and Miss Palmer played two very pretty numbers, old English morris and shepherd dances, accompanied by Miss Agnes Logan, which were much enjoyed. Afternoon tea was served in the long music room, the table being prettily decorated with small russet 'mums, and presided over by Mrs. T. Cruikshanks and Mrs. Hodgins.

Miss Laura Belleghem is leaving to-morrow to spend the winter with her sister, Mrs. (Dr.) Prust, Edmonton.

Dr. A. Moir returned Saturday night from a two weeks' visit to the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.

Miss M. Montgomery spent the week-end at her home in Peterborough.—Lindsay Post.

OBITUARY

JAMES S. POTTER.

The death occurred yesterday afternoon at his residence, 22 Cambridge avenue, Toronto, of James S. Potter, father of Rev. James G. Potter, of Montreal, formerly pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, in this city

Mr. Potter had devoted himself for more than 53 years to the spiritual interests of sailors, as a missionary to labrador, as superintendent of the Sailors' Home in Halifax for many years, and in re-establishing the Sailors' Institute work in St. John, N.B. He was largely instrumental in the establishment of the Snug Harbor at Kingston, the Royal Arthur Institute at Port Arthur is also very largely an evidence of his fervent interest, and he took a special interest in the promotion of loan libraries for vessels, continuing his travelling, although in his 80th year, throughout Eastern Ontario and Quebec, in the interests of his work.

JOSEPH MANLEY.

Following an attack of heart disease Saturday morning, that hourly grew more intense, Joseph Manley, corner of Lock and Morrow Streets, died at his home at 6.45 p.m. Deceased was 70 years of age. He had been in good health until the last week, when his heart grew weaker, but until Saturday morning he was able to remain up. Before retiring to the city eight years ago, Mr. Manley farmed in Otonabee, where he was widely known. He lived at 56 George Street until two years ago. His many friends will regret to learn of his sudden death.

He is survived by his wife, eight sons: Wilfred, Ernest and Everett, of Midale, Saskatchewan; James, John, Thomas and Harry, of Otonabee, and Norman at home, survive. One daughter is living in the West. Two brothers, James, of Gore's Landing, and Mark, of Precious Corners, near Cobourg, survive.

The funeral will take place at 2 p.m., Wednesday, from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. J. F. Chapman, of St. James' Methodist Church, will officiate.

SENATE SITUATION WILL BE INTERESTING

A MAJORITY OF OVER 30 MEMBERS AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT OF THE DAY.

OTTAWA, Dec. 12. — (Canadian Press).—With a majority of over 30 members against the Government of the day, the situation in the next Senate will be interesting. Of the 96 members of the Senate, there only remain some 30 appointed by the Laurier Government, while the rest of the Red Chamber membership is composed of men who received their appointments through the Borden, Union and Meighen Governments, in addition to four of the seniors appointed by the MacDonald Government previous to 1896.

From their thirty the Liberals will choose a speaker, and if custom is followed the choice will probably fall on one of the English-speaking Senators, since the House of Commons in all probability be presided over by a French-speaking speaker. Senators Watson and F. P. Thompson are both being mentioned in connection with those offices.

It is presumed that Senator Bostock, who has been Opposition leader in the Senate, will in the next session lead the Government forces and also probably be the senatorial representative in the Cabinet.

The Progressives, with their lone representative, Senator J. G. Turriff, will be hopelessly out-numbered in the Upper Chamber, but their difficulty will hardly be as great under the circumstances as it would have been had the Progressives won a majority of the Commons seats, since Senator Turriff could hardly have been both Speaker and leader of the Government, and at the same time both moved and seconded the reply to the speech from the Throne, all of which duties, by custom, fall on the shoulders of Senators who are on the side of the prevailing Government.

CALLED TO OTTAWA.

THREE RIVERS, Dec. 12. — (Canadian Press.) — Hon. Jacques Bureau has been called to Ottawa by Hon. Mackenzie King.

WILSON — In loving memory of our dear daughter, Mrs. B. R. Wilson, who died Dec 14, 1920.

Oh, daughter dear, how we miss you,
If God alone can tell.
Friends may think we oft forget you
When at times they see us smile;
But they little know the sorrow
That's concealed behind that smile.
In thoughts we see your dear kind face
And kiss your tender brow,
But in our aching hearts we know
We have no daughter now.

CHANGE IN SENTIMENT

IMPORTANT MEETINGS TODAY AND TOMORROW TO DEAL WITH PHASES OF THE IRISH SITUATION.

TO RATIFY TREATY

DUBLIN, Dec. 13. — (Canadian Press).—It is believed here that a meeting to-day by Cardinal Logue with all the bishops of the Roman Catholic churches in Ireland will give a powerful impetus to the movement for ratification of the Irish treaty by the Dail Eireann to-morrow, and it is further believed that a vote of the hierarchy will be overwhelmingly in favor of the agreement. Notwithstanding the revulsion of feeling against Britain in Ulster the majority of the people are said to oppose entering under an all-Ireland Parliament. The business community is declared to be "smarting under a sense of irreparable injury." The toast to the King has been expunged from programmes of impending functions, showing the grave change in the temper of the people.

CENTRAL ONTARIO OIL FIELDS NEWS

THE NEWS FROM THE CENTRAL ONTARIO OIL FIELDS IS MOST ENCOURAGING.

The shareholders will be delighted to learn that they are actually part owners of a well with (100) one hundred feet of oil of the best petroleum, but as this well is proven by our system to be on one side of the main vein we are arranging to drill on the dome or centre of the oil pool, and are certain to find a good well running, according to our experts, from 100 to 300 barrels a day. Our electric system is unerring and can detect any known vein of oil in the Petrolea district without a miss as recently tested. The leasehold we are about to drill on is about twnty miles from Petrolea. We own 350 acres there and we will have another well in a short time. The stock at $1.00 a share with the large area of picked holdings, totaling 5,000 acres, is a cheaper and better buy than our first offering at 20 cents. Many are sorry they did not buy then but we can assure you this is the best thing in oil (and we believe in anything else) that was ever offered in Peterboro. We are not offering much at this price for as soon as the well comes in as it assuredly will, the stock if sold at all will be greatly advanced. Further information may be had from the office at 188 1-2 Charlotte street.—Advt. 1d 138 336

SIGNATURE TO TREATY

BIG POWERS WILL LIKELY SIGN DOCUMENT TO-DAY—THE NAVAL RATIO.

TO-DAY'S SESSION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—The formal signature of the Pacific treaty by delegates of the four participating Powers and another meeting of the "Big Three" to continue their consultation in the light of instructions received by the Japanese delegates from Tokio regarding the 5-5-3 naval ratio were the outstanding events scheduled for the Arms Conference to-day.

CONGRATULATE HARDING.

TOKIO, December 13 (Canadian Press). — Premier Lakasassi is quoted as saying, in discussing the Washington Conference, that President Harding must be congratulated on the grandest contribution to the cause of peace ever recorded in history. He expressed the hope that the wholesale abolition of armaments would be realised.

THE YAP TREATY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Approval of the United States was given, however, subject to a written understanding that the American-Japanese treaty regarding Yap must be consummated before a four-power arrangement is binding. The United States reservation attached to the treaty contained provision that Domestic questions of powers are not to be considered within the scope of treaty.

JUDGE DEPLORES CROWDED PRISONS

SAYS COUNTRY NEEDS RESPECT FOR LAW TO OFFSET RAMPANT CRIME.

In his address to the Grand Jury this afternoon at the opening of the December sittings of the County Court, His Honor Judge Huycke deplored the fact that the prisons and jails of this country were never so crowded as at the present time. "I do not know what the cause may be, but it is a most lamentable condition. Some people attribute this crime wave to the soldiers. Personally, I don't believe a word of it. Those men who fought for this country and who were prepared to die for it seem to me the best men we have in this country. It is a fact that crime is apparently more rampant to-day than ever before in the history of this country. If anyone can suggest or devise a remedy for it he will be a public benefactor. It seems to me a matter of education and of reverence. Each one of us should preserve and disseminate respect for the law. If it was not for our laws we would fall back to savagery. Law cannot be maintained without the respect of the people."

Applications for citizenship were made by Dorothy Mills, 21 years old, a student of the Normal School, resident in Peterborough since 1909 with her parents, who now live in Montreal. She boards at the Y. W. C. A., and to receive her Normal certificate must be a citizen of Canada.

Another application was sought by Mane Calderone, born in Italy, and for years a resident of Peterborough. He is employed here as a barber.

Judge Huycke said he would recommend both applications.

To Calderone His Honor said: "The best thing I know about you is your wife. She is a very fine woman, and any one she married seems fit for citizenship. Tell her that, won't you?"

Judge Huycke also favorably heard the request of Attilio Ciccihitti for citizenship.

These applications were presented by G. W. Hatton, K.C., J. F. Strickland, and G. N. Gordon respectively.

The very first case opened with a brush, a wild one, between Mr. Gordon and F. D. Kerr.

The Grand Jury was composed as follows: E. F. Mason (foreman), Thos. Birkell, Felix Brownscombe, Samuel Carver, A. W. Clysdale, John Dickson, J. M. Hamilton, W. J. Oke, E. G. Preston, R. H. Ross, F. L. Roy, F. W. Scott and J. C. Smith.

BACK TO FRANCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Rene Viviani of the Erfench delegation bade farewell to President Harding to-day prior to leaving for home.

TREATY SIGNED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—The new four-power treaty was signed to-day by plenipotentiaries of the United States, Britain, France and Japan. There was no formal ceremony.

THE OPTIMIST —Daily Express (London)

ROTARIANS WILL AID NEEDY FAMILIES HERE

LOCAL CASES OF HARDSHIP WILL BE IMMEDIATELY INVESTIGATED—MEETING YESTERDAY THE BEST EVER.

POOL ALL EFFORTS

(By F. H. Dobbin).

It was declared by Rotarian Chairman Killaly (who served as Deputy-Speaker) that the meeting of Rotary on Monday was the best ever. A ninety-four per cent. of the membership were present. Occasion was taken of the disclosure of the fact to ascribe the fine attendance to the efforts of Rotarian Reid Wren with his encouraging and persuasive entreaties in the weekly letter. Rotarian Wren issues this missive, and it is couched in terms that convince Rotarians of their duty to the Club and themselves. Members are keeping these letters as samples of good work, willingly undertaken.

Birthday Average.

The birthday average was well sustained. Five members came of age in December, so far. Rotarians Gillespie, Green, Linton, McElderry and Ephgrave. Relative ages were not of consequence, only the day and date. All agreed to do something for the Birthday Fund, which means Boys' Camp.

A part of the initiation reception ceremony, left over from last meeting, was given by Rotarian Kenner, who gave the address on reception, and who welcomed the incoming members, advising them that Rotary brought men together that they might know one another, and so become more useful members of the community. Rotarian manhood made for a life of service and one not for self alone. The charge contains the ethics of Rotary in a nutshell.

Rotarian Bruce Fowler had been allowed five minutes to say some nice things about Rotary, but under press of business, had to confine his remarks to two minutes, which he used to good advantage, defining Rotary as a system of education based on mutual regard and friendship with the right kind of men. To learn to expand our efficiency that we may return a better service to our fellow-men and to the community in general.

Chris. Gets Present.

A presentation followed to Rotarian Chris. Graham. Chris. has had difficulty in reaching across table to collect the fines and fees, so a few clubbed together and bought a very fine and nicely decorated frying pan, which was presented with elaborate ceremony, and appropriately, by Rotarian Roy. The ice in the pitcher that tinkled as the boy came down the hall the morning after has nothing on the resonnant rolling of the quarters as they dropped in the frying pan. When a member contributes attention is called to the fact. It is understood that the District Chairmen, Chairmen of Committees, etc., all contributed to the expense of the pan. Such is a true Christmas spirit. On behalf of all concerned, Rotarian Chris. made feeling acknowledgment.

Rugby Club Guests.

Decided, on suggestion, that the Rugby Club should be entertained next Monday as guests of Rotary. Eighteen of the Club will be taken in and enjoy a Rotary luncheon and be told things by men who like to encourage the athletic features of the civ.

Rotarian Morris gave a few minutes in expressing his conception of Ethics in Rotary, a good, pithy, sensible and helpful talk. Taken in all, Rotarian Morris expressed the idea that Rotary was a sort of spirit level that, when applied to a man's life and conduct, helped him to realize when he was getting off the square and how to get back to plumb. A moral code for conduct that it was wise to follow. A very material thing was the relations of business men one to another.

VETERANS JEWELS FOR THIRTEEN ODDFELLOWS

INTERESTING CEREMONY WAS HELD LAST NIGHT IN THE ODDFELLOWS HALL — OTONABEE LODGE IN CHARGE.

DEGREES CONFERRED

Otonabee Lodge No 13 I.O.O.F. last night celebrated its 39th anniversary with full solemnity by the presentation of 13 veteran jewels to members who have attained 25 years standing in the lodge. Those presented with jewels were: W. D. Jewett, P .G. Reeve of Cannington, E. F. Mason, W. H. Lyons, J. Sollitt, W. S. Robinson, P.G., of Toronto; P. G. Fuller J. Lewis, and R. H. Turner. A. Gaskins of Brooklyn, N. Y.; W. E. Gese of St. Catharines; F. Stinson and J. Hill of Mitchell, Ontario, and J. A. Cameron, President of the Curling Club were unable to attend to receive their jewels but sent their regrets and kind wishes.

The Oddfellows Hall was crowded for the ceremony. Besides officers and members of Otonabee Lodge there were present the officers of Peterboro Lodge No. 111, the Board of Trustees and Triple Link Club officers. Two candidates received the initiatory degree by a degree team under Degree Captain Henry Turner; Past Grand Masters R. W. Bell, M.D. and S. C. Parks of Toronto and G. A. Young of Hamilton, had charge of the presentation and gave congratulatory addreses to the recipients and spoke of the steady progress of the Lodge through steadfastness of its members. Another interesting presentation was that made by J. A. Young P.G., to James Garrow member of Pheonix Lodge, No. 22 for 43 years of a 25 year jewel on behalf of the family.

Following the presentation the Oddfellows partook of a very complete banquet arranged and catered by members of the Golden Link Rebeccah Lodge and in music and speech the notable event in the history of the lodge was concluded. Dr. Bell was chairman and gave an address. The oldest member present in length of affiliation was J. A. Brooks, who for 51 years has been connected with Corinthian Lodge, Oshawa.

The last presentation of jewels took place in 1919 and it will be several years before the ceremony will be repeated.

M'DERMID AND BEST ARE TANKARD SKIPS

CHOSEN LAST NIGHT AFTER WINNING THE DISTRICT CUP LAST WINTER--ARE TWO OF THE BEST

Winners last winter of the Ontario Curling Association's District Cup, J. W. McDermid and Ray P. Best, were last night chosen by the Peterborough curlers as skips of the local Tankard rinks for the coming season. Jas. Skinner and G. Wells Fraser were the selections as District Cup skips. McDermid and Best were District Cup finalists three times and finally brought home the trophy last season. They expressed a desire to turn the honours over to some of the other members, but the skips wouldn't listen to that suggestion. By this choice Peterborough is sending two of its most successful and experienced skips after the Ontario Tankard, and the District Cup challengers are both experienced curlers who have had plenty of service on the tee and who are expected to make a big bid to retain the cup won last winter.

RED ARROW PROGRESSING

WORK ON PLANT HAS PRACTICALLY REACHED THE FIRST FLOOR.

LAY STEEL SOON

In spite of inclement weather, work on the first unit of the plant of Red Arrow Tires on Water street north, is proceeding in accordance with schedule. In order to overcome obstacles in the use of concrete for the basement walls as specified, additional expense has been incurred by the substitution of brick. Thus the contractors, J. E. Hayes and Son, are able to proceed rapidly in spite of the cold, with a wall really better than the one originally planned.

The basement walls are now complete and the piers in place ready for the steel. When this is placed next week the shell of the building will be thrown up quickly. J. E. Jobe, representing the Standard Structural Steel Company of Welland, who have the contract for the steel, is on the job at the plant and promises that all steel for the building will be shipped to Peterborough without delay.

Construction now having practically reached the first floor of the two-storey building, it is confidently expected that the factory will be complete and the machinery and equipment installed by April, in time to turn out tires for the spring trade.

The portion of the work completed will give visitors an idea of the appearance of the finished building, which will be two storeys high, 203 feet in length and vary from 65 to 95 feet in width. This building, the first unit of Red Arrow's Peterborough factory, is being erected on the forepart of the property, room having been left for a second building of similar proportions. It is being constructed of white brick, with red pilasters, and all safety and sanitary devices will be installed in an effort to make working conditions for the 400 or 500 employees as satisfactory as possible.

WOMEN WAR ON THE COAL FIELDS

PITTSBURG, Dec. 13.— (Canadian Press.)—Sweeping down on the miners this morning militant women of the coal field wrecked automobiles, dumped dinner pails and pelted miners with stones and red pepper and prevented them from resuming work. Women totalled over two thousand and several persons were injured in the melee.

KIWANIAN GATHERING

REV. HAROLD YOUNG WAS THE SPEAKER AT TO-DAY'S LUNCHEON—COMMUNITY SERVICE.

THREE NEW MEMBERS

Three new members, Dr. Graham McDougall, physician, Dr. Edward H. Wood, physician, and John A. Gibbs, real estate, were welcomed into the Peterborough Kiwanis Club at the weekly luncheon held at the Empress Hotel at noon to-day.

President Frank Whitehouse in the chair directed a programme that kept the members interested.

Rotarian Rev. Harold W. Young, of George Street Methodist Church, the speaker, and expounded ideas of community service that went home to every member. He wished the club a long life, a prosperous and a happy one. Pointing out that all worthy efforts were built upon some basic idea he dwelt upon the fact that Kiwanis was similarly founded on one idea—the idea of service.

The club, he urged, should exalt service in the community and emphasise the philosophy of giving and not that of getting. "Right here at Christmas time I believe we have a great opportunity to practise the giving philosophy," he said, and he appealed to Kiwanians to make this as bright a Christmas as possible for unfortunate children.

Rev. Mr. Young pleaded for more confidence in the business world, and declared his conviction that if the newspapers would propagate confidence in every way a solution to the present depression might be found, but he emphasised the thought that the only real solution to industrial matters could be effected through a relation of true friendship existing between employer and employee, and he felt that the Kiwanis Club had great opportunities to work for this ideal.

Walter Stocker, chairman of the Relief Committee, reported that arrangements were being completed for the Kiwanians to bring cheer into many homes at Christmas time, and he asked for the assistance of every member.

Walter Oke was "booster" of to-day's luncheon, and congratulatory adresses were made to Kiwanian George N. Gordon, M.P., on his election, and to Kiwanian Will. B. Warne on his entrance into the ranks of the Benedicts.

It was one of the happiest affairs the Club has ever held.

THAT ODD JOB SHOULD BE DONE NOW

CORRESPOND WITH THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT'S APPEAL AND THE MESSAGE OF ROTARY—IF YOU HAVE A SMALL JOB TELEPHONE 571—PETERBORO' IN COMPARATIVELY GOOD POSITION—YOU CAN HELP MAKE IT BETTER.

Buy, build, work, and create a job for every man.
Prosperity for all.
—Rotary Club Members.

In this timely message of the Rotary Club are contained both a challenge or an appeal and the way to its accomplishment. Throughout the city, and probably throughout the country, bill boards proclaim this succinct statement of the country's need of work, and at the same time reminds the people that there is work to do that should be done right now. At the same time, the Ontario Government is publishing in the leading papers of the Province advertisements conveying a similar reminder, and indicating that the machinery is available by which work may be offered to those who have no employment.

Coming home to Peterborough, there is evidently a general willingness to fall in line with that pregnant proclamation of the Rotarians. It brings the realisation that by taking thought of the present industrial situation it may be considerably relieved and the last stage in the process of readjustment may be completed without serious hardship or distress to citizens who have suffered from stagnant business.

Those "Odd Jobs."

The Ontario Government's Employment Bureau is not only available, but is anxious to secure as many openings as possible in this trying situation. The Bureau's regular outlets for labour have absorbed all that could be expected of them, but there are the "casual jobs" around the city which, although small in themselves, would in the aggregate provide valuable help to the Department in its efforts to secure employment for those out of work.

"It is the odd job, the casual job, that will help us out in Peterborough," said Hugh Robertson, who is in charge of the local office in the Charlbond building. "There are little jobs to be done around the house, or in the store and factory that should be done now. Mechanics and other skilled workmen who have been thrown out of work in this industrial depression have taken whatever offered, and have been struggling through, but there are others, too, who have not fared even so well as that. The Ontario Government is appealing to the loyalty of the people of this Province to help one another. Merchants, for example, should remember that their business has been and is created by these mechanics and other working men, and that as a matter of fairplay they should in turn help to create work, if at all possible, and if they can afford it, just as the billboard posters and the newspaper advertisements propose. We had someone call up the other day for a man to cut half a cord of wood. I had a man out there by ten o'clock, and he was through early in the afternoon. He got a dollar for it, and he earned it and kept his self-respect.

Telephone 571.

"If people will telephone to this office, No. 571, we will make a list of any work of that kind, either for rough or skilled labour, and in that way we could work together with good results."

Wages are down to as low a level as the public can expect, Mr. Robertson said, and there is no reason why any person with work to be done should hesitate or delay in letting it, able as an Xmas gift.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND
BY "SAPPER"
(CYRIL McNEILE)

"Round the corner Mullings and an obliging fellah in a black coat will shovel you out the necessary Bradburys."

The man glanced at the cheque.

"Fifty quid sir!" he gasped. "Why—it's too much sir. . . I . . ."

"The labourer Mullings is worthy of his hire. You have been of the very greatest assistance to me; and incidentally it is more than likely that I may want you again. Now where can I get hold of you?"

"13 Green Street 'Oxton sir 'll always find me. And any time sir as you wants me I'd like to come just for the sport of the thing."

Hugh grinned.

"Good lad. And it may be sooner than you think."

With a cheery laugh he turned back into his club and for a moment or two the ex-soldier stood looking after him. Then with great deliberation he turned to the chauffeur and spat reflectively.

"If there was more like 'im and less like 'im"—he indicated a stout vulgarian rolling past in a large car and dreadful clothes—"things wouldn't 'appen such as is 'appening to-day. Ho! no."

With which weighty dictum Mr. Mullings late private of the Royal Loamshires turned his steps in the direction of the "obliging fellah in a black coat."

Inside the Junior Sports Club, Hugh Drummond was burying his nose in a large tankard of the ale for which that cheery pot-house was still famous. And in the intervals of this most delightful pastime he was trying to make up his mind on a peculiarly knotty point. Should he or should he not communicate with the police on the matter? He felt that as a respectable citizen of the country it was undoubtedly his duty to tell somebody something. The point was who to tell and what to tell him. On the subject of Scotland Yard his ideas were nebulous; he had a vague impression that one filled in a form and waited—tedious operations, both.

"Besides, dear old flick," he murmured abstractedly to the portrait of the founder of the club, who had drunk the cellar dry and then died, "am I a respectable citizen? Can it be said with any certainty, that if I filled in a form saying all that had happened in the last two days, I shouldn't be put in quod myself?"

He sighed profoundly and gazed out into the sunny square. A waiter was arranging the first editions of the evening papers on a table, and Hugh beckoned to him to bring one. His mind was still occupied with his problem, and almost mechanically he glanced over the columns. Cricket, racing, the latest divorce case and the latest strike—all the usual headings were there. And he was just putting down the paper, to again concentrate on his problem, when a paragraph caught his eye.

"STRANGE MURDER IN BELFAST

"The man whose body was discovered in such peculiar circumstances near the docks has been identified as Mr. James Granger, the confidential secretary to Mr. Hiram Potts, the American multimillionaire, at present in this country. The unfortunate victim of this dastardly outrage—his head, as we reported in our last night's issue, was nearly severed from his body—had, apparently been sent over on business by Mr. Potts, and had arrived the preceding day. What he was doing in the locality in which he was found is a mystery.

"We understand that Mr. Potts, who has recently been indisposed, has returned to the Carlton, and is greatly upset at the sudden tragedy.

"The police are confident that they will shortly obtain a clue, though the rough element in the locality where the murder was committed presents great difficulties. It seems clear that the motive was robbery, as all the murdered man's pockets were rifled. But the most peculiar thing about the case is the extraordinary care taken by the murderer to prevent the identification of the body. Every article of clothing, even down to the murdered man's socks, had had the name torn out, and it was only through the criminal overlooking the tailors tab inside the inner breast-pocket of Mr. Granger's coat that the police were enabled to identify the body."

THE MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, December 12 (Canadian Press). — The local market for cash grain was more active yesterday and in sympathy with the decline in the Winnipeg markets the prices were a cent a bushel. The flour situation was without change. A good grade continues in all lines of mill feed, and the market had a very firm undertone. Prices for rolled oats have advanced 15 to 20 cents a bag, with a good trade passing. There was no change in the baled hay market. The egg market was without new developments, and business in potatoes is slow. Prices for butter were maintained and business is still very quiet in cheese.

POULTRY SHOW TO BREAK RECORDS.

Association Are Preparing for Biggest Even tEver Held Here.

The officers and directors of the Peterborough Poultry Association are putting on a special drive with their donation list for the purpose of making the banner winter show to be held in the Market Hall on 3rd, 4th, and 5th January, 1922, one of the largest ever held in this district. The citizens are responding most generously with donations in support of furthering the breeding of pure-bred fowl in this district, believing that they should assist in the efforts of the ever increasing number of fanciers, who are alone responsible for the marked improvement in the quality of poultry and eggs sold on our local market. In order to encourage the continuation of this important industry, the public is urged to get behind the boys and assist them in putting on one of the biggest shows that has ever been held in this district. This show is being held each year by the assistance it receives from the citizens of Peterborough. Guelph, Hamilton, and other cities have large poultry shows. Why not Peterborough? Not only is it an advertisement for the city, but it is an industry that supplies natural nourishment to the human body and goes a long way in helping to make the growing generation stronger and more vigorous.

The prize-list of the poultry show this year is one of the largest and most attractive ever printed in the history of the association.

SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE.

SYDNEY, N.S., Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press.)— A settlement of the strike of the railway yardmen of the Cape Breton steel companies is forecasted by the announcement of James Murdock, Canadian Vice-President of the Canadian Brotherhood Railway Trainmen, that he is to visit Sydney within the next ten days for this purpose. What the basis of settlement may be is unknown here, as local steel officials say that they have no knowledge of the move.

The strike has now been on for over a year.

Huron says: "A large quantity of sweet clover has been put in silos this year. I had a man in the office the other day who is using it and is not satisfied with it at all. He claims this is the last time he will put it in the silo, and he says that a couple of his neighbors are of the same opinion."

Dufferin and Lincoln report more or less plowing have been done during the week.

There is comparatively little demand by farmers for farm help. Middlesex reports men taking farm work for the winter months at from $10 to $15 a month, with board.

Port Arthur reports a good demand for fresh cows.

Prices of hogs show an upward trend, the rates now ranging from $8.50 to $9.75 a cwt.

Little pigs are selling in Brant and Frontonac at around $10 a pair.

Kent makes the following suggestive statement: "Local packers are cutting heavily on hogs overweight, from 1 1-2 to 2 cents being the usual cut. Bruce says that lambs are selling at from $9 to $11 a cwt. according to quality.

APPLICATION BEING HEARD

BELL TELEPHONE CASE BEFORE THE BOARD OF RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS—COUNCIL WANTS BALANCE SHEET.

CASE RESUMED TO-DAY

OTTAWA, Dec. 13.— (Canadian Press.)After an all-day sitting yesterday, the Board of Railway Commissioners adjourned until to-day the hearing of the Bell Telephone Company's application for permission to increase their rates. During the whole day C. F. Size, Vice-President and general manager of the Bell Telephone Company, was on the witness stand. Mr. Size asserted that the essence of the application was in order to place his company in a position to raise money, to retain its credit and to enable it to make a reasonable return to its shareholders. A decline in the long distance telephone business was in large part responsible, he said, for reducing the company's revenue.

Questioning Mr. Size, G. R. Geary, K.C., for the city of Toronto, asked when the Northern Electric Company had passed their dividends. Mr. Size stated that dividends had been paid for the first quarter of the present year, but not later. He was a shareholder, he said, but not a director of the company. Two letters were read by Mr. Size addressed to the president of the Bell Telephone Company and signed by Clement Say, Secretary of the Northern Electric Company. The first dealt with the capital stock of the company which is totalled, it was stated, $6,000,000; divided into 60,000 shares of $100. The Bell Telephone Company held 50 per cent.; the Nothern Electric Company, 43.55 per cent; 18 shareholders who were not directors, 4.99 per cent.; 11 directors 1.46 per cent.

The second letter from the Northern Electric Company outlined alleged unsatisfatcory conditions which led them to pass their dividend.

G. R. Geary insisted upon the production of a balance sheet for the company as of August 31. Mr. Size said that he understood that it would be impracticable to draw up a bolance sheet unless an inventory were

MACKENZIE KING IS BUSY LOOKING OVER CABINET MATERIAL —INVITATIONS TO OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Though there were no new developments in the matter of Cabinet organization on Parliament Hill yesterday, things have begun to take on activity to some extent, and the Liberal leader, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, will, from now on, probably see many of the aspirants for portfolios, of whom here is no lack. Just when the change in administrations will become effective is as yet uncertain. The Meighen Ministry is understood to be just about ready to step out of harness, and is holding a final series of Cabinet meetings to prepare for that step. Then it will be for the incoming Premier to name his Ministers.

Yesterday Hon. Mr. King saw some of the men whose names are likely to figure in the new Cabinet roster, but whether any of these were actually invited to join his Ministry was not divulged.

On Saturday evening and Sunday Ernest Lapointe, K.C., of Quebec, was here by invitation, it is understood, and while he left for Quebec Sunday evening, he is to return within a day or two.

Yesterday morning W. C. Kennedy, of North Essex, arrived in the city and met Hon. Mr. King during the day. Others visiting were Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, member-elect for Gaspe; Hon. Jacques Bureau, Three Rivers; E. A. LePierre, Nipissing, and H. E. Lavigeur, Quebec.

It is expected that within the next day or two many others of the members-elect will arrive in Ottawa, some by invitation and others without waiting for the invitation, but thus far there has been no official intimation as to who will find portfolios awaiting them.

INQUIRY AGAIN POSTPONED.

EDMONTON, December 13.—Canadian Press. — The sitting of the Grain Inquiry Board which was to have been held in Winnipeg yesterday, has been definitely postponed.

Mr. Justice Hyndman, the presiding officer of the board, is sitting as a member of the Appelllate division of the Supreme Court at Calgary this week.

MAY GO TO ELECTORATE

CONJECTURE CONTINUES RIFE REGARDING OUTCOME OF THE IRISH SITUATION—MEETING ON WEDNESDAY.

DEVALERA'S STATEMENT

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Conjecture continues rife regarding the decision the Dail Eireann will take at its momentous meeting on Wednesday, of the Irish Treaty. Conferences continued at the Mansion House yesterday, but little leaked out to indicate the trend of the discussions.

A statement issued by Eamon De Valera at Dublin last night, in which he declared that any agreement was subject to ratification by the Dail Eireann, is considered in some quarters to lend support to those who think the Dail Eireann will make no decision, but refer the case to the electorate, on the ground that the members of the Dail Eireann were not authorized by the Irish people to accept the settlement the delegates signed.

DUBLIN, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press). — The division of opinion among members of the Dail Eireann is not limited to the question of approval or disapproval of the treaty with Great Britain signed in London last week.

Some Sinn Fein leaders who think the treaty is a good one agree with Eamon De Valera, the Sinn Fein President, in believing that it embodies such a departure from the policy previously submitted to the South Ireland electors that it cannot be accepted without a direct and fresh mandate from the various constituencies.

Difficult to Take Vote

Sinn Fein observers pointed out that it would be difficult to refer the matter to the country in view of the fact that the scheme of elections in South Ireland is one of proportional representation, on a basis unsuitable for deciding such direct issues.

One of the strongest supporters of the treaty among the clergy is Bishop Fogarty of Killaloe, in Mr. De Valera's constituency, who for a long time has been a trustee of Sinn Fein funds. None of those who have attempted to estimate the number of Mr. De Valera's supporters in the Dail has placed the number

COMPACT FACTS

Few people realize that 26,445 Canadian ex-service men have been established on the land and are nearly all making good; that Canada's water power development represents an investment of $475,000,000, while the power produced would otherwise require 18,000,000 tons of coal yearly; or that nearly 88 per cent of the world's supply of asbestos comes from the Province of Quebec. The Natural Resources Intelligence Branch of the Department of the Interior has just issued a revised edition of "Compact Facts", which contains in concise form information regarding Canada, its area, population, trade and industries; their extent, capital invested, wages paid, values of life stock, principal crops, and amounts produced; mineral resources and present production; also forest resources and forest products. Copies of the booklet are available on application to the Superintendent, Natural Resources Intelligence Branch, Department of the Interior, Ottawa. The general public will find this meaty little reference book a very useful article.

EPIDEMICS ARE COSTLY

That it is a more economical policy to prevent epidemic of contagious diseases than it is to deal with them after they have broken out is demonstrated by the fact that the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital has cost the city $13,693.58 during the past year. Yet in Peterboro as in every other centre there is no department that has been so penuriously dealt with as the department of public health. It has been a long and slow process to develop the machinery that is in operation to-day, and we have not as yet gone nearly as far in the direction of disease pevention as the importance of such work demands. Much of it has been left to public-spirited private organizations such as the Health Association and the Babies' Clinic, where as a city we have failed to appreciate that the care of the health of the people is the greatest responsibility that rests upon the heads of those in authority. A healthy city is not merely a better city, but it is a cheaper city in which to live. Epidemics such as Peteboro has been fighting for some time are not only a menace to the lives of the citizens but they are poor business as well. They cost money and it is cheaper to keep them out, than take care of them afterward.

NOT SO RIDICULOUS

Brantford postal employees want Member-elect Raymond to be made Postmaster-General urging that having charge of that office in the little Telephone city eminently qualifies him for the supreme position. Now what do you think of that? — Hamilton Spectator.

The Examiner must confess that it fails to see anything ridiculous in the idea that a man who has been at the head of a post office in a city of 25,000 people for several decades has some claim for consideration when the Postmaster-General's portfolio is being allocated. Mr. Raymond most certainly has a better conception of the postal service a greater first hand knowledge of its problems and difficulties, and a keener appreciation of the work of the pesonnel than the average lawyer or other professional types that find their way into parliament could possibly have. Where then does the Spectator find the Brantford petition amusing? Other advantages being equal the ex-postmaster of the Telephone city would seem to have a superior claim on the position by reason of his technical knowledge of the work of the department. We'll admit that often appointments have been made in the past with little consideration of the fitness of the men selected, but that surely cannot be the Spectators only foundation for the ridicule it seeks to cast upon the movement to advance a man who seems to have many practical qualifications for the position for which he is being boomed.

A JOB FOR EVERY MAN

On the advice of the Provincial Advisory Committee on Unemployment, the Ontario Government is publishing a series of advertisments appealing to the general public, to the manufacturer, the wholesaler, the retailer, the banker, the construction industry, the farmer and the organized labour for co-operation in dealing with the present industrial situation with a view to as speeedily as possible effect a return to prosperous conditions and providing work for every one. The manufacturers are being asked to take a price for goods on hand equal to the cost of replacement, having regard to the decreased cost of raw material and labour, while wholesalers and retailers will be urged to sell at replacement prices. Building contractors and builders' supply firms are appealed to to reduce prices to a minimum to encourage those desiring to build to ask for tenders at once. The banks are asked to co-operate by allowing all reasonable credits and reducing their rates as rapidly as the conditions permit. The farmers' part in the movement will be to maintain reasonable poduction and to be prepared to make improvements and add to their plant if a proportionate reduction is reached in other lines. Organized labour, the committee suggest should willingly accept a wage reduction proportionate to the decrease in the cost living.

There is no reason to doubt that a genuine effort on a co-operative basis of all the interests to whom the Government is appealing would have a magical effect upon the situation. The disappearance of inflated prices and high wages would stabilize industry. Create a rush of new orders and thus provide employment.

In the meantime the general public has a responsibility to discharge. The Labour Bureau exists for the purpose of finding jobs if they can be secured, of course, but short ones, even a day's work will be welcome. The public is asked to co-operate by working with the bureau. If you have a day's work around your house just now, don't get somebody who is working all day to come in in the evening and do the job after hours. Make that work provide employment for somebody who is jobless. Call up the bureau, telephone No. 571 and let them know your wants, and give them sufficient notice to get a man who can do the work and really needs employment. They have lots of such men on their lists.

GIANTS AND PYGMIES IN PARLIAMENT

It needed a general election like that of Tuesday last to make the people of Canada think. An election at any time might be regarded as democracy in action; but that would be a very poor type of democracy which put widely varying values on the votes cast. As matters stand in Canada, the situation as to voting power is extraordinary and, to say the least, quite contrary to sound democratic principles. We have the one man one vote system; but we must see that the vote of one man has three, four, and up to eight times the elective power of another man's vote. If that were unavoidable and incurable it would still be a serious blemish on our boasted democracy; but when it is as unnecessary as it remediable the thing becomes a national reproach. It is a reproach because we have now had a vivid warning of the way in which the situation as to voting power is capable of completely defeating the will of the people.

The purpose of an election is to ascertain the will of the people. Issues are determined by the voice of the majority, each vote being assumed to have the same value. If the people of Canada voted as a single group, then a majority of one on either side would settle the matter. But they do not vote as a group, and it would probably be both inexpedient and impracticable to have them do so. They vote by constituencies. If these constituencies were uniform as to population, or practically so, then the situation would be ideal. Each vote would have the same elective power. As it is, however, the constituencies vary widely as to population, and the effect of this variation is positively startling when it comes to the election of a Federal Parliament. The result is to create a most unequal situation as to representative power in the House of Commons. We are here only concerned about the facts, apart from any theory or representation.

When a Parliament has been elected, each member of that legislative body has precisely the same voting power on a division. But when they are valued in accordance with their representative power—their relation to the people on the basis of numbers—they present the spectacle of great inequality. If they could each assume a physical stature in proportion to the number they represented, some would be giants and some would be pygmies. Some would be six and eight times taller than others. Could Parliament be presented to the eye in that way it would be grotesque; yet grotesque as it would be, it would very accurately visualize the Parliament which annually meets in Ottawa. The anomalous thing is that the pygmies have exactly the voting strength of giants.

Let the matter be made plain by a concrete illustration. Over 40,000 votes were cast in Ottawa on Tuesday last to elect two members. In the nearby constituency of Prescott, less than 5,000 votes elected one member. In other words, it took four times as many votes to elect a member in Ottawa as it did in Prescott; yet when Parliament meets the vote of the member from Prescott will have the same value as the vote of one of the members from Ottawa. Multiply that example by many scores and you have a true picture of the situation in the country as a whole. The theory of the constitution is that each member shall represent about 32,000 of population. In practice, however, some represent 10,000 and others 90,000. This would be harmless if the voting took place in Parliament as at a meeting of a joint stock corporation; but it has in it enormous possibilities of mischief when the vote of the man who represents 90,000 has no more value than that of the man who represents 10,000.

This is the lesson the Progressives have taught us. They will hold, say 60 seats on a population strength no greater than that of Toronto and Montreal combined; yet Toronto and Montreal elected but twelve members. The Progressives might, in fact, have captured the control of Parliament by winning 120 selected ridings, the total population of which would have been under three millions. While that is possible, it cannot be said that we are here discussing a matter which has no bearing on practical democracy. It is really the outstanding lesson of the election, and, as was said at the outset, it should set the people of Canada thinking. As they think they will discover that our democracy is a very effective thing indeed; so much so in fact, that it is sound only in theory. The structure contemplated by the constitution is true to democratic principles; but what we actually have is something so warped and fantastic as to have no resemblance whatever to what the authors of the British North America Act had in mind. That being so, how much longer are we going to permit this unsound system to endure.—Ottawa Journal.

THERE'S BUT ONE WAY

(Written for the wreath which Lady Limerick placed on the Cenotaph on Armistice Day.)

There's just one gift that all our dead desire,
One gift that men can give, and that's a dream,
Unless we, too, can burn with that same fire
Of sacrifice; die to the things that seem;
Die to the little hatreds; die to greed;
Die to the old ignoble selves we knew;
Die to the base contempts of sect and creed
And rise again, like these, with souls as true.
Nay (since they died before their task was finished),
Attempt new heights, bring even their dreams to birth;
Build us that better world, O, not diminished
By one true splendor that they planned on earth.
And that's not done by sword, or tongue, or pen —
There's but one way. God makes us better men.

—Alfred Noyes.

A KNOCK-OUT BLOW FOR CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL IN DUMMER

SCHOOL SECTION NO. 5 REJECTS PROJECT ON A VOTE OF 27 AGAINST TO 13 FOR.

SECOND POLL TAKEN

WARSAW, Dec 13.—Non-residents voters with an eye to the tax rate and no personal interest in educational facilities dealt the consolidated school scheme in Dummer a knockout blow at No. 5 School Section yesterday morning when the vote resulted in 13 for and 27 against.

Such is the version of the negative polling entertained by many. But School Inspector Richard Lees, who is a strong advocate of consolidated schools, and as such is bitterly opposed by some of the Dummer people and was refused permission to speak on behalf of the prospect yesterday, is strongly of the opinion that another vote can be taken, intimating to the Examiner yesterday that the question is likely to be introduced again when the present fervor has subsided.

In Warsaw S.S. No. 3 the proposed consolidated school has been endorsed by 52 votes for and 19 against. The first vote at S.S. No. 5 on October 24 resulted in a poll of 16 for and 12 against. The opposition to the school had four of the votes declared invalid by the School Inspector because of irregularity in voting, and the resulting tie decided the Inspector to take a new poll at No. 5. This was done yesterday, and resulted in a ballot that said "No" to the proposed school that would accomodate both sections and must needs receive a majority in each affected school section to be carried.

At the poll which was taken from 10 a.m. to 12 noon he requested permission to speak and explain how the tax rate would be no higher with a consolidated school but would be actually lower, but this permission was refused after an unfavorable vote had been taken.

Mr. Lees stated that there were about ten other votes in the section that could have been counted as favorable to the school, but were not cast through illness or some other cause, and for this reason he had hopes that future ballot might tell another tale.

There was more interest over the vote than there was over the general election. declared the school inspector to the Examiner, when commenting on the result. The people were there from all over the township. I cannot see anything in the Act that prevents the trustees taking anoher poll.

"For about eight years I suffered from anaemia. My circulation was poor, my gums and lips were pale, and my hands and feet were always cold. I was nervous and unable to sleep well. I had frequent headaches, seemed restless and easily worried or irritated. There was a buzzing sound in my ears. Indigestion was also one of my complaints, and I often was attacked by weak spells. I went to a doctor, who told me I was anaemic, but as I did not get any better I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after the first box I felt brighter and my headaches completely disappeared. I continued using the Nerve Food for quite a while. BUILDING TRADES HOLD CONVENTION

WAGES AND OTHER ITEMS AFFECTING BUILDING DEALT WITH

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 13 —(Canadian Press).—Questions of continent-wide importance to the building industry were discussed in the annual report of W. T. McGarvey, secretary of the Mason Contractors' Association of the United States and Canada, at the opening session of the association's 12th annual convention in the Tecumseh House yesterday afternoon.

Mr. McGarvey, in opening, referred to the exchange situation between the United States and Canada, and asked: "Can conditions be attributed somewhat to the fact that out of every $100 paid the United States Government in taxes, $92 is spent for war purposes?"

Dealing with wages and other items affecting the building trades, the secretary reported that with falling prices and industrial difficulties, some of the local "joint arbitration boards had been passing through troubled waters, by warning the journeymen that a world-wide depression was upon us, and that the continuance of the high wage was only a means to an end for our business. In a great many cities the wisdom of the men prompted a reduction, while in other cities there was a refusal, and we believe this refusal was partially the cause of only 72 per cent. of building mechanics being employed in 51 cities that reported to us. The United States Senate Committee on Reconstruction has agreed that there has been a substantial, though not a large, decrease in building material prices, and therefore reported that labor must take a visible share of the readjustment programme in the building industry; that labor cannot remain as the only factor not contributing to the lower cost of living. In order to further the building industry this same Senate committee has recommended from Federal taxation, mortgages up to $40,000 on improved real estate used for dwellings where such mortgages are held by individuals."

Railroad Ties by Jack Lait

MANY a shiny track along which has chooed the Matrimonial Limited has been laid on railroad ties; ties formed through chance acquaintanceships in railroad cars.

The normal relations of stranger unto stranger prescribe that they shall be unto each other as the ships that pass in the night. They look, they see—they are gone. But in railroad trains this is all different. By indiscriminate assembly, each pursuing his or her own purpose and seeking his or her own destination without reference to the purpose or destination of others who fall into the same train, there are brought into sustained propinquity millions of men and women with almost as many diversified tastes, inclinations, standards, ideals, ideas and impulses.

"Beware of Strangers" is the sign in the old-fashioned depot. Every mother has warned her daughter at many periods in her growing progress to shun the man who has not been properly introduced, and many a father has as often and as emphatically counseled his son to side-step the stray female and low-bridge unidentified temptation.

But—women are beautiful and men are weak; women are susceptible and men are bold. They are close together. They are sentenced to be close together for some considerable time (anything past half a minute is a considerable time in this branch), and—which is very important—all other people who see or can see what is going on or what may be going to be going on, are strangers, too. No neighbors, no relatives, no friends, most likely, can spy here. And there is the psychological transformation of being away from home, which so often loosens the solid bonds of convention, custom and conduct definitely imposed and quiescently accepted within the boundaries of the daily domestic, industrial and social territories of the town where is the regular post-office address.

After folks get to know one another, looks seldom count much. The scenario scissorers may blurb all they like about women keeping young to hold their husbands' love—but women don't have to look young to hold their husbands, they have to look young if they want to steal other women's husbands; their own have long since formed their findings, and the wives' looks haven't much to do with them any more. The most famous beauties are the first and most frequently divorced.

But on first meetings looks are almost everything. One doesn't know what another does or has or thinks or believes. The eye gets the first message, always. Like many first messages—for instance, the fake armistice cable—later communications cancel the specious communication. But the eye is still the first. And, with strangers, of course there isn't a second at all it it isn't desired that there be a first.

And looks, as you well know, mean so little. A prosperous safeblower can look just like a successful cashier; an intelligent chorus girl can pass for a debutante; an artist may give optical suggestion of a sausage manufacturer, and most millionaires look like bookkeepers. Thieves don't wear masks and carry dark lanterns on trains.

Therefore, railroad meetings and subsequent railroad ties—which have led from pointless flirtations that end with time for the dining car to affairs, marriages, scandals and other wrecks—are fraught with dynamite and carbolic acid as well as being flavored with honey, baited with ambrosia and perfumed with aromatic incense and anthracite exhaust.

All this is very interesting, deplorable and amusing. But it is very important, too, for it furnishes the "situation" whereon hangs a tale:

Her Nibs, the Duchess, one of the smoothest pickpockets at large, bride of Monk the Mole, was en route from Toledo to Chicago, one of those mean neither-sleeper-jump-nor-quick-skip trips, meaning chair car.

Now, a chair-car is all that has been said above about cars in general, extracted into the essence of all that has thus been pointed out. The luxuriant cars eliminate the very poor, at least, and that is something; they cut out the very stingy, and that is something else again; they mean daylight, they mean proportionately short journeys, thus throwing away the other styles of romances which concern the roughnecks, the misers, the homesteaders, the returned wounded soldiers (they usually can't afford parlor-cars), and the several-day, overnight, transmap, and immigrant traffic.

A railroad story about a chair-car, therefore, deals with the aristocracy of touring. And where the aristocracy mingles, the Duchess flits. For she was a shoplifter of distinction, a traveler of experience and parts, a beauty, a nifty dresser, all that a lady might be asked to be—in a chair-car, anyway.

The Duchess was running down home to see her mother. She had a mother. It is popularly supposed that a woman who steals has no mother. It is secretly held that there isn't any woman who steals—now, really. But both these premises are false. Crooks have mothers and mothers have crooks. So the Duchess and her ma had one another, and the Duchess was on her way to spend the holidays with the dear old gray-haired woman in Chicago.

In the seat beside her in the chair-car sat Depuyster Dagge. Dagge wore gloves.

Some men beat their wives, some men write short stories, some men collect potteries, some men wear sleeve-garters, some men grease their hair, some men read Marx, some men grow beards, some men shoot clay pigeons, some men address indignant bromides to editors, some men chew toothpicks, some men play solitaire, some men can't see Billie Burke, and some men wear gloves for hours in nice, warm Pullman cars.

Some men also wear caps. Dagge did. A cap in a car is more explicable and forgivable than gloves. But the combination of both is most damning. It convicts the wearer of being a snob, a poser and a fourflusher.

Depuyster Dagge was all of that. Not that he wasn't "class" as the blue book and the checkbook certify it; but he insisted on advertising to the world that he had it. Those will rise to state that nothing is as remote from class as advertising it. But Depuyster Dagge was more than a fourflusher, he was a fiveflusher—bluffing with the winning hand.

He read a book. Reading $2.50 novels on trains is another mark of visible superiority. Most folks are satisfied with a magazine or two, and some of us with a newspaper—maybe the one laid down by the party in the next seat. But the Pullman dude must have his book. Holding that book with gloved hands, and letting its wisdom seep in under a cap, then, constitutes about all there is to identify on first slant the traveling stuck-up, except possibly spats. Two kinds of men wear spats—the kind that ought to get a croix de guerre and the kind that ought to get thirty days, depending on how they wear them. Dagge wore them well enough, all right.

The Duchess gave him the east and west and the all-around out of the near extremities of her expressive as well as absorbing eyes. She was too wise to think she had his number, for she was too wise to rate strangers on what she could see, alone. But she summed up a rather fair idea of the sort of gold-plated oilcan who sat beside her. Dagge had not given her as much as a vagrant glance. That, maybe, tops all the other pronounced items of his description in proving him a hopeless, blue-blooded bounder.

As the Duchess semi-circled her orbs to take in the Ritz neighbor they fell upon a telegram, lying almost face open, on the floor between her chair and the one honored by Depuyster Dagge. There never was a woman born who wouldn't read a telegram, no matter to whom it was addressed. And the Duchess had found it a good rule to read everything, always, and compile as comprehensive a compendium of miscellaneous accurate information as time and chance afforded. So she set herself at a stiff angle from which she could aim her eyes downward to read the message without making it patent by the position of her head or her body that she was getting an eyeful.

The train joggled some, and it required a few moments for her to get it all:

"Depuyster Dagge, Amsterdam Club, N. Y. C.

Meet me Chicago Thursday stop off Toledo see Mark Lane Hotel Oregon get instruction where we meet.

Morgan."

The Duchess almost laughed aloud. Lane was "Silk" Miller, the go-between for a flock of the rawest wire-tappers in America. Morgan was Mitch Tavannes, steerer and separator for the same. And this silk-lined superior sap was burning up the tracks beating it for Chicago to get his—to get his, thinking he was going to get someone's else.

The Duchess knew the game inside out and backward.

The Millers were dear friends, cronies. The Duchess and Kate Miller, who had been known as "Applesauce Kit," in the days when she worked the carnivals, state fairs, political conventions, homecomings, opera first nights and other congested gatherings of set-ups, were old pals. Many a time had they chuckled over the fish who took the shiny hook gilded with promises of a quick turnover—of other people's money.

The telegram was a form. The stopover in Toledo was a frame. There must be another person, in on the "racket," aboard, for it was part of the system that this person get "in" with the prospect, so that the "work" could be augmented by one who was apparently a stranger, and who could not, therefore, be boosting along.

Surely enough—here came a tall, slender chap, seeking the numbers on the mahogany panels, and, surely enough, he had the chair on the other side of Depuyster Dagge. The Duchess knew him at sight, as he did her. "Skel" Bell wondered for one flicker of one eye what she was doing there. He had not been "officed" that the Duchess was in on the "play," and he knew that if she were she had instructions and he didn't, so any communications must come from her. Receiving no cue, he proceeded as per routine. He sat down in the empty chair, kept empty while he had been ahead in the smoker, and draped himself in the conventional posture of a gent perusing his paper. What paper? A very green one, unmistakably concentrating on such information as past performances and form. He read along, then chuckled.

"Can you beat this?" he tossed to Dagge, "here's a filly out five times, she wins two firsts and is never out of the money, and she goes to the barrier 6 to 1 against a herd of tanglefoots?"

Dagge let his book straighten down and looked at the hospitable stranger without committing himself.

"This is the year for the talent to clean a winter bankroll," proceeded Bell. Dagge's face registered nothing. "Ever pick 'em?"

Dagge ordinarily would have cut anyone who addressed him in a public conveyance, especially on such a subject as horse racing. But at the time he was loaded with the subject. For the first time in his life he was going to be a wise guy and trim somebody. Not since his great grandfather had hornswoggled squatters out of Broadway property at Arizona valuations had a Dagge been successful in polishing off a simp. Now fortune had sent his way one Morgan, formally introduced to him by one of the clerks at his pet broker's, and Morgan had opened the heavens to him.

Morgan had opened the heavens gently, but plenty. He had unfolded to Dagge a cinch system for beating the bookies. Dagge had never burrowed deeply into the mechanics or ethics of horse racing. He knew that it was a game that bore a rotten reputation, and that shrewd sharpshooters called bookmakers conspired with thick-necked malefactors who had "stables," and that weazened midgets called jockeys joined with them to take from the plunger his pile and from the silly shoe clerk his pusillanimous pay.

No part of it had ever attracted Dagge. He had never even seen a Derby as a sportsman and as a metropolite. He had always disliked professional sports, the more so when they were unsavory in character. But this Morgan had presented to him a wonderful new side of it. He had whispered to him how these very snipers, the crooks behind the crooks who tapped the boobs, could be knocked over—could be tapped and taken for the wads they took from the rummies they took.

"Tapped" was the word. Morgan had it down to a science. Information one minute ahead of the official returns, bets down on sure things already in and over. What could be half as sweet?.

It required a little capital, a nest-egg as nucleus. Dagge would supply that. Indeed he would, for he had ten thousand dollars in his inside waistcoat pocket at the moment. That ten would be a hundred and the hundred would be other hundreds within the week. It wasn't honest. But—wasn't it? Was it wrong to cheat cheaters? Is stealing stolen money reprehensible? A few days earlier, Depuyster Dagge had never imagined he could steal at all. But now he itched for sucker dough. In his veins burned the urge of larceny, the first and most enduring and most certain of human impulses.

This wire-tapping was a game as old as Sarah Bernhardt. But it had grown old in glory, for it had outlived all its black eyes, all its public exposures, through plays and books and inside information. At Palm Beach it had flourished and fattened in hotels where, on every wall, hung placards warning the unwary and detailing the methods. The sheriff signed these placards. Before the gang left Palm Beach, they took the Sheriff. And the rest of their victims were bankers, manufacturers and the like. I once asked "Nickey" Arnstein how one certain corporation president could have been such a fool as to fall, fall to the tune of $100,000. "Fool?" exclaimed Nickey, "a fool hasn't got $100,000 to shoot at."

So, Depuyster Dagge was rumbling on to Chicago to be operated on for his $10,000, with the instrument which had a record, at the hands of the surgeons who could pull the painless re-setting of his ideas. And Bell was to keep him "worked up" on the idea.

Dagge entered, at first timidly, but soon as heartily as a Dagge could enter anything, into discussion with this slangy but friendly neighbor, who warmed Dagge on the general subject of racing. Before the train had reached Englewood, Dagge was an expert. The more expert he became, the simpler and more plausible appeared Morgan's scheme. Dagge was "sold" beyond all reluctance. Now he knew not only what he was to do, but also what would happen when he did it—every angle and detail of it.

He had half a notion to invite this amiable acquaintance in. Why not?

Here was an idea.

Why not put it up to Bell, who seemed to know more than a little about the process, and pay Bell a small percentage, and pass up Morgan, entirely, thus robbing the man with whom he was to rob the men who robbed the public?

It was a thought. Depuyster Dagge began to wonder where he had been all these years? In his head burned the light of a cunning manipulator, a genius for acquiring quick money and big money without taking chances.

His instructions had been to meet Morgan at a well-known "loop" hotel at eleven. He had several hours to spare. Bell had already invited him to dinner, the train being due at six. Depuyster Dagge, who a week before that would not have allowed Bell in his garage, accepted the invitation. At dinner he planned to unfold the gag to Bell, and with Bell to run the $10,000 that snuggled against his breast in his inside waistcoat pocket into a fortune.

Bell still wondered what the Duchess was doing there; what part she was acting; what function she was performing; what end she was serving.

If a foreign Ambasador disappeared with important papers of state in his pocket, no one would guess that maybe he got pie-eyed and fell off a bridge; no, if he was an Ambassador and he had papers, it must be an international melodrama of intrigue.

And Bell did not think the Duchess would be going on a family call. She was one of his outfit, though never directly hooked up in a wire-tapping "lay," and so there must be some devious and intricate purpose behind her presence, placed, as she was, on the other side of the fish, who could not have happened between them by any coincidence.

Still Bell waited for a flash. It was not for him to "step in."

As the train ground into the downtown depot, the Duchess pressed gently ahead, between Bell, who was leading, and Dagge, who was following.

The Duchess whispered into Bell's ear:

"Tell Morgan the sap is cold. He didn't bring the jack. Don't take his alibi. He double-crossed you."

Bell's face darkened. Here was a pretty mess—the sap cold and no jack.

Half an hour later, Dagge was trying to enthuse Bell on a scheme to cut out Morgan. With the Duchess's tip ringing in his ear, Bell was more puzzled than ever.

"I'll listen," said Bell. "Have you got the kale?"

"Have I?" smiled Dagge, and unbuttoned his vest. He reached. His face grew ashen. His fingers grew icy.

"I—I ——"

"Yes, you," sneered Bell. "I don't know what your grift is, but I don't want none of it."

And he walked out and 'phoned Morgan at the secret number that it was a blow, that the peach was a lemon, that something mysterious had come off and the work was all off.

Dagge was wildly jabbing at his pocket, frisking himself all over, grinding his teeth, faint and dizzy.

The Duchess was giving her dear old mother a thousand dollars in currency for Christmas, assuring her she had plenty more—and she showed her nine thousand more to prove it.

GOOD NEWS.

So two old warriors put aside the swords that they have worn
For many storied ages past—since chivalry was born—
And give each other words of cheer
where yesterday spoke scorn.
Yet scorn was not the word for them; each knew the mettle
well,
Of his great foe—had seen him fall
where but the bravest fell—
As all of British history in flaming page does tell.

One flag was theirs, this long time since, and both have held it high
In bitter rivalry of race, with only valors tie—
Like hating brothers, back to back, they've stood upright to die.

So now at last they quench their rents, and clasp strong hands and smile
Across the narrow strip of sea that runs twixt isle and isle—
As is the way of fighting man whose foeman is worth while.

Why Not 8% and ---Safety

THE old idea that safety accompanied a low rate of interest has long been put in the discard.

During the past 7 or 8 years, with banking facilities strained to the limit under abnormal demands, borrowers in the AAA1 class (Bradstreet's highest rating) have been obliged—compelled by circumstances beyond their control—to pay rates of interest without precedent.

AN INQUIRY INTO THE JERUSALEM RIOT.

Six Persons Were Killed and 36 Injured.

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Dec. 13—(By Associated Press).—An official inquiry has been started into the riot of November 2, the fourth anniversary of the Balfour Declaration in which Palestine was promised as a National Homeland for the Jews, when six persons were killed and 36 wounded.

The trouble had been seething since two weeks ago, when the Palestine Committee for Independence with headquarters in Egypt, sent telegrams to all parts of Palestine advising all natives to close shops and cease work yesterday as a protest against England's policy in the Holy Land.

The Government therefore, having learned of the "holiday" telegrams, had taken elaborate precautions for the safety of the people. Troops with drawn bayonets had been stationed in the strategic sections of the city. Armed motor cards paraded the principal streets. Mohammedans and Christians kept their shops closed. Even the Jews who favor English occupation, fearing disorders, had decided to take a holiday.

Patriotic Speeches

In accordance with prearranged plans a large crowd of Mohammedans at 9 o'clock had gathered in the Mosque of Omar, their only place of worship in Jerusalem. Patriotic speeches were delivered influential Moslems, thus creating a tense feeling against the Jews, who were pictured as "trying to usurp the country".

What is believed to have added fuel to the anti-Jewish fires was the fact that the Mosque directly overlooks the Jewish synagogue.

No one could determine with any degree of accuracy to-day just how the fighting started. Many rumors were circulated, diametrically differing according to their origin. One report was to the effect that a young Jew of Bolshevist type had gone to the Mosque and jeered the Mohammed speakers. Another report placed the blame on a group of Moslem boys who are alleged to have invaded the Jewish quarter, beating men and woman with sticks. But the real origin of the fighting, at the moment of writing is still a mystery. However, it was established that disorders began at 10 o'clock in the morning in a little dingy street. By noon the fighting had spread to all sections of the walled city.

Meanwhile, martial law had been declared. The first act of the military was to disarm the members of the police force who were charged with collusion with the rioters. Soldiers were rushed to the affected areas with machine guns. By 2 p.m., the situation was well in hand and order had been restored. The night was uneventful.

ROTARIANS WILL AID NEEDY, ETC.

Help the Needy.

Something was said as to the proposed idea of Rotary that, with the Christmas season on us and very much of privation that Rotary might do something, as had been suggested at the previous meeting. Rotarian (Rev.) Young, who had in the meantime given the matter attention and enquiry reported that so many as twenty-two families in the city, from among others, were in great need. He suggested that these cases be divided up among Rotary, that each of the families be taken care of by two Rotarians to see that something was done to make, at least for the day, a cheerful Christmas. Due enquiry to be made, first, to avoid overlapping.

Then it was told of the general meeting at the Board of Commerce, of a sort of Gathering of the Clans, to see if all efforts could be pooled in an endeavor to help. Rotarian Reg. Turner volunteered to find out and to report as to several cases, with the above end in view. It is the idea that of the families referred to that facts will be ascertained, the names dropped in a hat and drawn for, and each Rotarian will attend to the name that falls to his lot, making his own further enquiry to ascertain what would be needed and judicious. Possibly a payment of rent, or for fuel, or some such assistance would be entirely in order, suggested Rotarian Young. These things will be considered. But not long, as action is necessary.

A case of extreme hardship was mentioned, and the last seen of Rotarian Rollie Denne was his dodging in and about the crowd rubbing a dollar of this one and that other to help out. That man and family will get the assistance, $25.00. What the able Rotarian undertakes to do he never leaves undone.

Further references to cases to be helped will come up at next weekly meeting.

SWINDLE ON A PRETTY BIG SCALE.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 13.—(By Associated Press). — A swindle of large proportions has been perpetrated on the Argentine Post Office Department by the printing and sale of false five cent stamps. The sale of these stamps apparently has been going on possibly for years, but it was only recently discovered. The Department has ordered the withdrawal of the issue in question.

The Post Office Department admitted that the fraudulent stamps were practically identical with the auhorized ones, and hat it was not possible to trace the source of the questionable supply.

Five cent stamps bearing the portrait of General San Martin no longer are accepted in payment for postage.

SKATING ON CANAL AND LITTLE LAKE

The canal and Little Lake are again the rendezvous of skaters. The canal has been in fine condition for several weeks, but the Little Lake has only just taken on a real surface. This afternoon six hockeyists and numerous skaters were besporting themselves on a glassy sheet that extends out from the bathing house to thin ice and slush, a hundred yards from shore. The boys say the ice is remarkably keen.

It is just about three months since the bathing beach was closed.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

UNCALLED FOR

In your issue of the 9inst. there appeared a letter over the signature of "Ex-Sergt. Major."

To my mind this letter was quite uncalled for. First, because the fact that Mr. Burnham's majority in 1917 was much larger than Mr. Gordon's of the 6th inst. was settled and disposed of; secondly, such a letter coming from an ex-soldier shows lack of appreciation, to say the least. It was due to the noble stand of Mr. Burnham and others at that time "Sergt. Major" received the backing he got.

Mr. Burnham wore the uniform and turned over his pay to the Red Cross. Give credit where it is due.

Yours truly,
HAROLD FREEMAN.
Ex 93rd Soldier

To the Editor Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—I with to say that my letter in last night's Examiner had no personal reference to Mr. J. H. Burnham. I make this explanation freely as I have no desire to do Mr. Burnham an injustice.

Yours truly,
J. J. HARTLEY.

WORKMAN HONORED FOR WAR INVENTION

Mechanical Engineers Award Medal to Man Who Invented Shell Device.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—Hjalmar C. Carlson, a sheet metal worker of Worcester, Mass., was honored by 2,000 members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at their annual meeting when the gold medal of the society, the highest honor it could bestow, was awarded him "in recognition of an extraordinary engineering achievement with great public service." He was credited with the invention of a device which made it possible to speed up the supply of 30,000,000 high explosive shells to our troops in France. Carlson came to the United States when 13 years old as an immigrant boy. He was not on hand to receive the medal because of illness.

A statement by the society said that the medal was awarded to Carlson for "his invention making possible the production of 30,000,000 drawn steel booster casings, used principally as a component of 75 millimeter high explosive shells, and also extensively in gas shells and bombs, as an aid to victory in the World War."

CRAZE FOR LUXURIES INDUCES CRIME TO-DAY.

Such is View Held by English Prison Governors.

LONDON, Dec. 13.— (By Associated Press.)—Lower wages and a craze for luxurious living are held accountable by English prison governors for many present-day crimes in a report made by them to the Home Office.

Although crime has dwindled considerably during the past 20 years, the number of prisoners for the year 1920-21 was 49,712, or 9,925 more than in the previous year. The report, however, states that "so small an increase in a year in which there has been much unemployment and industrial unrest is noteworthy."

The governor of Durham prison says:

"A new stamp of offender has sprung into existence. Men and women of respectable antecedents and parentage ,in regular employment and in no respects associated with the criminal class, are taking to serious crime with astounding facility."

The suggestion that a spirit of lawlessness acquired by men while on military service is responsible for this is rejected by the governor, on the ground that women in equal proportion to men are the offenders. His explanation is that high wages, once easily earned and more easily spent, are now not obtainable.

"Men and women, boys and grils," his report states, "have all got used to 'big' money, out of all proportion to the slight effort necessary to obtain it," and he continues: "The economic readjustment of the past year has created a number of discontented, reckless people, who do not realize that they have been living in an artificial wage market, and unconsciously resent the changed conditions of supply and demand, work and play. Money they must have to provide the luxuries and amusements to which they have grown accustomed, so they steal, pilfer and loaf."

The governor of Shrewsbury prison calls attention to the prevalence of thefts on railways and elsewhere, often by men with excellent long service records, and receiving high wages.

A big increase in automobile thefts is mentioned by the governor of Wandsworth prison.

It is proposed shortly to introduce recreation classes in male convict prisons and make it possible for convicts to earn by good conduct and industry, the privilege of classes for reading, recitations, lectures and music.

DR. TILLEY DIES SUDDENLY.

TORONTO, December 13.—While on a visit to his son, W. N. Tilley, K. C., 488 Avenue road, Toronto, Dr. W. E. Tilley, aged 81 years, died suddenly on Saturday night from heart trouble.

The late Dr. Tilley was for 35 years Public School Inspecto for Durham. He is survived by three sons, H. R., manager of the West Indies branch of the Confederation Life Association; Dr. A. S. Tilley of Bowmanville; W. N. Tilley, K.C., of Toronto, and one daughter, Mrs. A. N. Mitchell, of Toronto.

Interment was made yesterday in the family plot at Bowmanville.

PROFITABLE SERVICES AT MARK ST. CHURCH.

Pastor Preached on "Stephen, First Christian Martyr."

The Sabbath services were very profitable both morning and evening, and the choir was assisted by Mrs. Braund and Miss Myrtle Suscee.

"The First Christian Martyr" was the subject of the morning sermon, and was a development of Acts 7:54: "When they heard these things they were cut to the heart."

Stephen, full of faith and power, working wonders and miracles among the people, aroused a fresh tempest of persecution in which he himself is arrested. He is brought to trial and pleads his own cause. In his defence he declares that God's own religion is not bound up in the Jewish ritual nor is the contents of that ritual a standard of qualification for membership in the Church of Christ. It is not the rite of circumcision, or obedience to the law of Moses, that saves the soul, but vital contact with the crucified, risen and exalted Christ. It is an undying truth, that rites, ceremonies, forms and rituals, are as cold and dead as the leaves that scud befor: the autumn wind, and none knew it better than Stephen.

Magnificent Character.

Stephen was the first Christian martyr, and led the van of the vast army that would follow. His piety, activity and zeal soon brought him into notice. It would be a fine thing for the community where we live if our piety and zeal for God were conspicuous.

He was hailed before the rulers and council, accused of blasphemy against Moses, the Law, and even against God. And what do you see? A man trembling from head to foot, with cheeks blanched with fear, and a cowering look? No- His face shone like an angel. A light from behind the sun fell upon his soul, beamed in his eyes, and threw a hallowed splendour over his face. His defence was noble, and he charged home uopn the Sanhedrian the murder of the prophets and of Christ. Under this powerful address they were cut to the heart and gnashed uopn him with their teeth. In this they seemed to resemble the fiends of hell. Stephen was filled with the Holy Ghost.

Imitate Stephen.

The supreme godhead of Christ loomed large in the spiritual eyes of the martyr. He knew that this doctrine lies at the very foundation of our Salvation. If Christ be not divine nothing counts. If Christ rose not from the dead then all is lost, for He is a dead Christ and our preaching and hope are all in vain. But Stephen calls Him "Lord," and Christ had neither money, nor mansion, ner throne, nor army; and so His dominion must have been a spiritual kingdom. The martyr was on the very brink of eternity; he knew his time was nearly gone, and yet 'mid the breaking up of his bleeding body he worships Christ as the Eternal God. Stephen believed that none could forgive sin but God. Listen to his dying cry, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." Again, "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." What mighty doctrines are here embodied. Christ receives the spirit directly it leaves the body. Nothing can be clearer than that. Again, none can forgive sin but God alone, and Christ is God. The doctrine of the immortality of the soul is very manifest in the death scene of this martyr of the early church. The stones were crushing him to death mid the wild and frenzied demonstrations of the howling mob, but nothing could touch his deathless soul.

Stephen's Piety.

He was full of faith, full of the Holy Ghost, full of wisdom and enlarged views of God's Word, and had mighty power to defend the divine teaching. He kneels down in death and looks up for his humility is as deep as his confidence in his risen Lord. How large his benevolence as he prays for his enemies: "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge."This was the spirit of Christ when living and when dying. "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do," were Jesus' dying words. Nothing but the power and grace of God can enable you to forgive your enemies. To love your enemies is an evidence of extraordinary piety for it is the most difficult duty in Christianity. The sacrifice which Stephen made was the loftiest evidence he could give of his unqualified piety. The favor of God was far dearer to him than life. His piety as stern, robust, unflinching principle.

Stephen's Dying Courage.

Stephen's death was sudden and tragical. Death is solemn under any circumstances. We all hope to die at home surrounded by our friends. This martyr for Christ died surrounded by men,fierce as the tigers of the jungle. His was a cruel, brutal, agonizing death, but it was a peaceful death. Holy calm, sweet peace, blessed quietude marked the closing scene. Mid hootings, shoutings, fierce and frenzied yells, this matchless herald of the cross, with bleeding and broken body kneels down mid flowing blood and falls asleep.

To die like Stephen means to live like him. You must triumph over sin if you would be victorious over death. Living grace is "dying grace." It was a death closed by prayer. But Stephen lived in the power of prayer. Your living testimony is better than your dying testimony.

A young man said to me on one occasion, "I intend to line up with the church when my debts are paid." I told him that he might be dead before his debts were paid. Some time after this I kneeled by his dying bed at midnight, and I heard him say, softly, "No light at all." Light in life means light in death.

HIGHWAY PANSIES GROW IN DECEMBER'S OPEN AIR.

Mrs. James Sproul, Stop 8, Hamilton Highway, picked ten pansies in her front garden—not last summer, but on 2nd December last. Untouched by frost, the blossoms were as fresh as if wintry winds were not blowing. Hamilton Highway folk needn't yearn for the sunny south when they can gather 'flowers in May" and pansies in December.

Mrs. Sproul is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Porter,, King Street, Peterborough.

A MODERN MIRACLE

What Mr. Robert I. Buchanan, of Sarnia, Ont., has to say:

It is with great pleasure that I can testify to the great curative qualities of Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment.

The summer of 1902 I took typhoid fever which left me with inflammatory rheumatism. My legs used to swell and the pain at times was almost unbearable. In January, 1903, I was compelled to go to bed and one month after my leg broke open at the knee. I was removed to Sarnia Hospital, where I spent almost one year and during that time had four operations. A part of the femur was removed from my leg and they made an incision through the other leg, which went right through the bone. I left Sarnia Hospital in February, 1904, and started to treat with other remedies but they failed to do me any good. In November, 1906, I was taken to Toronto hospital. They put a Thomas splint on to straighten my leg up and opened up the wound again. I left the hospital in February, 1907, and remained at home until July, 1907, when I returned to Toronto hospital again. They broke my leg just below the knee and straightened it. I came home in December, but the sore in my leg was still open. I was then using the cupping treatment which helped a little for a time. I tried a number of different ointments, but they did not appear to help me.

In July, 1908, your agent left me a box of Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment. After using them for about six months my health has been fully restored and the four different sores on my leg are completely healed.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment are for sale at WARNE'S DRUG STORE, Peterborough. Herb Tablets 25c, 50c and $1.00 per box. Hou-Tan Ointment, 50c.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HELD A SALE—DISTRICT ITEMS OF INTEREST.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 13. -- The sale held by the Woman's Institute on Saturday afternoon in Mr. W. E. Ball's store proved a success in every way. The afternoon tea tables, of which Mrs. Lamb and Miss Margaret Whyte were in charge, were constantly filled, and the children especially, enjoyed the fish pond, over which Miss Ella Grandy presided. The table of articles donated for the rummage sale gave intending purchasers a variety from which to choose, including china and glassware, collars, ties, handkerchiefs, aprons, shoes, clothing ,etc., some new, some slightly used, but all in good condition; vegetables, cream, and apples were also offered for sale, and found ready buyers. The home-made baking looked very appetizing and sold rapidly. Mrs. W. E. Ball, Mrs. W. Rowland, Mrs. T. Ingram, Mrs. R. J. McKnight and Mrs H. Armstrong were in charge of these two departments.

Mrs. (Dr.) Mitchell made an excellent cashier, while Miss E. M. Fisher, the capable president of the Woman's Institute, had the responsibility of a general oversight of the afternoon's proceedings. Practically everything was sold, and the receipts were quite satisfactory considering the late hour at which preparations for the sale were completed, and the fact that no attempt was made to have it on a very large scale. The Institute officers and members are to be congratulated on the successful carrying out of the undertaking.

Held a Shower.

A number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. Jack Armstrong, 8th line, Cavan, on Friday evening, and held a "shower" for Miss Letitia Armstrong, whose marriage to Mr. Richard Wood of Cavan, takes place next Wednesday. There were about fifty guests in the gathering and the "shower," which was a miscellaneous one, contained many beautiful and useful gifts, showing the affection and esteem in which the bride-to-be is held by her many friends. Progressive euchre and music provided entertainment afterwards, and a dainty lunch was served by the hostess before the guests left for their various homes.

Death in Lindsay.

The death occurred in Lindsay on Wednesday, December 7th, after only five days' illness, of Mrs. Ernest J. Leith, in her 29th year. The deceased, whose maiden name was Carrie Adela Davidson, was born in Winnipeg, but while still quite young, went with her parents to Vancouver, B.C., to reside. Eight years ago she was married to Mr. Leith and shortly afterwards they moved to the east, living for seven years on the Leith homestead on Fallis' Line, removing only three months ago to Lindsay, where her husband has been appointed night constable. Besides her husband there are left to mourn her loss, three children, aged respectively, seven, four and two years; also her parents, her father being Conductor D. H. Davidson, if the C.P.R. from Vancouver to Kamloops, B.C., and Mrs. Davidson, two sisters, Misses Bertha and Nora at home and two brothers, Edward of Kenora and Daniel of Vancouver.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday, December 13th, leaving the family residence, 20 Simcoe street, at 3 p.m. Service at the house at 2.30. Interment will take place either at Riverside cemetery at Lindsay, or to the 340 p.m. train, leaving by it en route to Vancouver, B.C., the decision as to his daughter's last resting place being delayed until the arrival of Mr. Davidson, when the matter will be deferred to his wishes.

The late Mrs. Leith was a Presbyterian in religion, and was highly respected by all who knew her. The sad circumstances attending her death have called forth many expressions of sincere sympathy for the bereaved relatives.

Epworth League.

There was a good attendance at the Senior Epworth League meeting on Monday evening, when Mr. Elwin Brown, who holds the position of first vice-president in the local League, at Port Hope, and is also secretary of the Bay of Quinte Conference League, addressed the gathering.

Mr. Frank Alcorn occupied the hair, and before Mr. Brown's address a quartette composed of Mrs. Sayles, Miss Alice Stewart, Mr. Alcorn and Mr. J. L. Byam, sang "There is a Shepherd who cares for His own."

Mr. Brown's topic was, "One Life to Live," and his talk was founded on the League pledge, which implies the objective of service, not selfishness. Before beginning his theme, Mr. Brown announced the winter school to be held at Cobourg, Jan. 9 to 16, 1922, with a programme similar to that of the summer schools and with the same object namely, the training of Christian leaders, and urged the League to endeavour to send delegates for the week.

Some practical suggestions for improving the weekly meetings, and increasing the attendance, were also given by the visiting sepaker, at the request of the president. Mrs. Sayles sang a solo, "I Believe," and after the offering was taken the meeting closed with the Benediction.

$6,750.00 IN AID OF CONSUMPTIVES

CONTRIBUTED IN PETERBORO DURING RECENT CAMPAIGN

The campaign recently conducted here in aid of the National Sanatorium has proved fairly successful, although brought on at a time when a great many people were out of work. The total amount subscribed and paid in to Mr. W. H. Dunsford, treasurer, is $6,750, which is short of the objective placed for Peterborough, named at $10,000.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, chairman of the committee, desires to thank all the contributors, the workers in connection with the fund, the boy scouts, and all other who were instrumental in securing the good amount named above.

There are still some subscriptions that should come in, and where any of the Scoutgrams have not been called for, if the parties will kindly send in donations or subscriptions to Mr. W. H. Dunsford, Manager Bank of Commerce, city, who is treasurer of the fund, they will be thankfully received and acknowledged.

This campaign was for one of the most deserving of institutions, and Peterborough people have already been greatly benefitted, and will continue to be benefitted by the organization and equipment to which the money subscribed in Peterborough will be donated.

ANNIVERSARY KNOX CHURCH

Prof. William Manson Occupied the Pulpit—Congregational Supper.

On Sunday, Knox Church was honored by a visit from Rev. Prof. Wm. Manson, M.A., of Knox College, Toronto. At the morning service, he gave a very beautiful address on God's Providence, and in the evening spoke with great effect on prayer. In the afternoon he addressed the Sunday School. The large audiences that greeted Prof. Manson on all these occasions were deeply impressed by the devotional content of his message, clothed in language that is only the product of ripe scholarship.

On Monday evening, the ladies of the church, under the able leadership of Mrs. Foster, served dinner to the several hundreds who packed the hall and overflowed into the auditorium of the church. There have been many large attendances at such entertainments in Knox Church during past years, but the attendance, both of last night and of Sunday, broke all records, making, in this respect, the eleventh anniversary the best the church has yet enjoyed. The tables were prettily arranged and tastefully decorated, as well as fairly groaning under their load of good things to eat. So complete were the arrangements that the great gathering was ready for the programme to commence at 8.15.

The chair was occupied by the Rev. James A. MacKenzie, who introduced the following artistes: Miss Trucie Pearson, who gave beautiful renditions of vocal solos, "Haymaking," "Impatience," and "Where My Caravan Has Rested"; Mr. F. E. Walden, who was heard to great advantage in a piano solo, graciously responded with an equally fine encore. Mr. Walden also sang in fine voice "The Little Irish Girl" and "The Fishers of St. Ives." Miss Dorothy Gillespie and Mr. Walden rendered a very pleasing piano duet. Mr. J. John, always a welcome visitor at Knox, gave three much-appreciated readings; Mr. Wm. Thompson, Peterborough's Harry Lauder, brough down the house with his splendid impersonations of his great fellow-countryman. Mr. Alex. Segar, one of the versatile young men of the congregation, rendered a very pretty instrumental solo; and Master Ian Munro, another Knox laddie, gave an address on "Optimism," which captured the gathering with its vivid description, its convincing logic and the speaker's easy eloquence.

Votes of thanks were enthusiastically tendered to the artistes, and to the members of the Ladies' Aid, who had made such a pleasant evening possible.

The proceedings were closed with the National Anthem and the benediction.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Aside from further strength of Metals and heaviness of European Oils, changes at the opening of to-day's Stock Market were insignificant. Trading was in moderate volume, and only a few of the usual speculative favorites were quoted within the first half-hour. Royal Dutch re-acted one point, while Mexican Petroleum gained that much. Profit-taking in leading foreign exchanges caused sharp recessions from yesterday's substantial advances. Sterling re-acted another two cents, and French, Italian, and German rates were lower by 6 to 16 points.

Higher Export Tax.

Reports that Mexican Government had decided to abrogate higher export tax on oils made that group the centre of interest before noon. Mexican Petroleum rose three points and gains of one to 2 1-2 points were made by Pan-American, General Asphalt, Houston and Standard Oil of California. Coppers and kindred shares improved their early position. Federal Minining and Smelting, Common and Preferred, scoring greatest gains. Replogle, Vannadium, Virginia Iron, American Car and Tobacco Co. and Chain Store specialties also improved. Only rails to show even moderate strength were Chicago and Northwestern, Illinois Central and New York, Chicago and St. Louis. Call money opened at 5 per cent.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13. —(Canadian Press.) — Sterling exchange heavy, demand Great Britain 4.19 1-4. Canadian Dollars 7 15-16 per cent. discount.

Liberal arrivals of Corn but Corn and Oats both on the down grade. After opening a shade to 1-2c. off, with May 53 to 53 3-8, the Corn market continued to sag. Oats started unchanged to 1-4 to 3-8 lower, May 37 5-8 to 37 3-4 and later showed a moderate general decline.

TORONTO MARKETS.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Dec. 13.— (Canadian Press.)—Trading was brisk on local market during the first half hour this morning. Lyall, whose weakness has been the feature of trading of the last few days, opened at 43 1-2 this morning after closing at 43 yesterday. It rose a point to 44 1-2 during early trading. Brazilian was stronger by three-quarters at 29 1-2. Brompton appeared a quarter lower at 22 1-4. Detroit United Railway sold unchanged at 73 1-2, as did also Steel of Canada at 61.

ANNUAL MEETING W. M. AUXILIARY ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Reports Show Healthy Condition —Officers Elected.

The forty-eighth annual meeting of St. Paul's W. M. Auxiliary took place last Friday afternoon, when reports were read and officers for the ensuing year elected.

The secretary, Mrs. A. Porteous, read the secretary's report, as follows:

To the President and members of St. Paul's Women's Missionary Auxiliary I beg to submit the following report:

Before presenting my report may I, on behalf of the Society express our regret that Mrs. Harstone found it necessary to resign her position as secretary of our organization after ten years of efficient, faithful service.

A meeting of the Executive was held on January 14th to arrange the year's work.

We have a membership of one hundred and thirty-five with an average attendance at our meetings of thirty-nine.

The Literature Secretary reports literature sent to Hall's Bridge every month.

The Messenger Secretary reports one hundred and thirty subscribers. "The Messenger" is said to have the largest circulation of any magazine in the Dominion, and is filled from cover to cover with splendid articles on Mission work, Bible study, and etc. It is the official organ of the Women's Missionary Society the only magazine that gives a full account of the work of our Society at home and abroad and should be read by every member of the society.

The study books chosen for the year were:—"The Bible and Missions" and "Canada's Share in the World Tasks," providing material for very interesting and instructive papers.

Seven hundred and ninety-five dollars and twenty-five cents ($795.25.) was sent in answer to an appeal from China Famine Fund. We have one life membership to report.

We were privileged in having the Annual Povincial Women's Society meet in this church April 26-27-28. The meetings were an inspiration to more faithful service and more earnest prayer for the spread of the gospel in heathen lands. Mrs. Goodfellow was the delegate appointed to the convention.

Mrs. Robt. Hall and Mrs. Morrison were appointed delegates to the Presbyterial W.M.S. held in Port Hope, June 14 and 15.

The supply committee reports a bale valued at $114.95 sent to the school at Birtle, Manitoba.

At the Thankoffering meeting in October, Mrs. Mason of Sonya gave a very interesting address on Pioneering in 1921. The offering was one thousand and sixty dollars and seventy cents ($1,060.70). Let us not forget that the offering is not complete without prayer and service.

The Strangers' Secretary reports 29 visits to strangers and new-comers and thirty-six (36) Hospital visits.

The Home Helpers' Secretary reports twenty-five members visited who contributed seven dollars and seventy-five cents ($7.75) to the general fund and thirteen subscriptions to the Messenger for 1922.

We had planned a house-to-house canvass to increase our membership, but owing to the prevalance of contagious diseases in the City it was thought advisable to postpone the canvas till the new year when an earnest effort will be made to reach our objective of "Every Woman in the Congregation a Member."

Our loving sympathy is extended to those of our members who have suffered bereavement during the past year, and we pray that the God of all love and comfort may comfort them and draw them closer to Himself.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

General Fund

The treasurer report shows a total of $2,176.67, two thousand one hundred and seventy six dollars contributed to the General fund.

The Willing Workers' Mission Band also report a good year contributing $55.00 to the general fund.

The Indian Field

The speaker of the afternoon was Miss Gardiner, a returned missionary from India. She gave a very interesting talk on the work in the Indian field.

Officers For 1922

President, Miss C. Dickson; 1st vice president, Mrs. R. Pogue; 2nd. vice president, Mrs. Roger; 3rd. vice president, Mrs. Robt. Hall; 4th vice president, Miss A. Lancaster; Secretary, Mrs. A. Porteous; Treasurer, Mrs. G. S. McKee; Home Helpers' secretary, Mrs. W. H. Turner; Strangers' Secretary, Miss L. Best; assistant Strangers' secretary, Mrs. Graham; Literature secretary, Miss Cameron; Messenger, secretary, Miss L. Davidson; Organist, Mrs. Logan.

CATTLE KILLED.

STIRLING, Dec. 13.—While driving four cows across the G. T. R. tracks, Fred McCutcheon, of this village, had the misfortune to have three of them killed when struck by a passing freight train. HOW HUN SUBS WERE LOCATED.

Salvage Men Examined Them Where Sunk.

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., Dec. 13.—(Associated Press). — Commodore Sir Frederick Young, salvage engineer, who was technical head of the British naval salvage service during the war, in a lecture here, told how German submarines which had been sunk, were located and examined. Each submarine carried codes, operations, orders and other valuable material. Special salvage men were sent where the submarine had been sunk, divers went down and "cut their way" into the interior after which they thoroughly examined it. Much information that proved of the greatest value in combatting the U-boat offensive was obtained.

The "Daily Mail" adds: "It was this submarine intelligence branch which also unearthed the secret of the German magnetic torpedo (although Sir Frederick Young did not tell his audience this), and thus let us into the secret of a grave new menace to our shipping."

HEART WOULD BEAT LIKE A TRIP HAMMER

Heart trouble has of late years become very prevalent. Sometimes a pain catches you in the region of the heart, now and then your heart skips beats, palpitates, throbs, or beats with such rapidity and violence you think it is going to burst.

You have weak and dizzy spells, sinking sensations, are nervous irritable and depressed, and if you attempt to walk up stairs or any distance you get all out of breath.

We know of no remedy that will do so much to make the heart regain strength and vigor, regulate its beat and restore it to a healthy and normal condition as will

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. Chadwick, Delhi, Ont., writes, "I had palpitation of the heart, and the least exercise such as going upstairs or up a hill, my heart would beat like a trip hammer and at times I was dizzy-headed and had a sinking sensation as if my time were near.

A friend suggested I try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I procured three boxes and by the time the first one was used I began to improve. In all I took six boxes, and now, although in my 66th year I feel like a young girl; no dizziness or heart-thumping and can walk miles without fatigue. At time of sickness I weighed 120 pounds, now I weigh 150."

Price, 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by the T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Young Men's Club (Bergoine, Hopkins, Luther and Ward) finished first in this race, but were disqualified for a foul.

The above list of winners summarizes the results of the athletic meet held in Brock street rink under the auspices of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association last night, which turned out to be one of the most interesting and enjoyable events of its kind that has been staged here. A big crowd was in attendance and everybody seemed to be pleased with the programme and with the manner in which it was carried out, as advertised. It demonstrated that the P.A.A.A. is a going concern and that the name of the Association behind any sporting event that may be put on here is a guarantee of success. With the exception of the tug-of-war contest, for which only one team put in an appearance, the whole list of events as announced was given and there was no lack of entries or enthusiasm.

The Melodie Concert Band, under the direction of Bandmaster W. Ford, furnished music between the events and during some of the longer races, and their well-rendered selections were appreciated by the crowd.

The whole card was run off in good style and the programme was varied enough to suit everybody. As stated, the only event that failed to materialize was the tug-of-war. Jerry Coughlin had a team that looked big and strong enough to hook unto the national debt and pull it a mile in two, but there was no opposition forthcoming. It was proposed that the officials should form a team to test the Coughlin aggregation, but after taking a look at the crew, who were all in the Percheron class, the timers and judges asked to be excused. They had no intention of playing crack-the-whip, with themselves at the end of the whip.

The Big Race.

The event in which the greatest interest was taken was the five mile race between Art Scholes of the Gladstone A.C. of Toronto, the Ontario five-mile champion, and Albert Smoke, of Peterborough. Smoke won the race handily, having two laps and a half margin over his Toronto rival, after carrying Scholes at a fast clip all the way. Scholes was handicapped by a blistered foot, which of course grew worse as the race went on, and the sprint with which he finished showed the gameness of the little Gladstone runner.

For the first two miles the pair ran as a team. Scholes led for the first few laps, with Smoke at his heels, and then at the end of the first half mile the Indian shot to the front, with Scholes hanging on. The pair did the first mile in 5.10 and the second with the two close together, was negotiated only ten seconds slower. Half-way through the third mile Smoke cut loose with a sprint that carried him away from the Toronto runner and he rapidly increased his lead until he lapped Scholes in the fourth mile. The loser tried to hold on, but Smoke kept up the pressure and soon picked up a second lap on Scholes, catching him for the second time at the 4 1-2 mile mark. Smoke ran like a well-oiled machine all through the race, and he sprinted the last lap like a hundred yards man, finishing with a broad smile on his face, while the crowd gave him an ovation for his great performance. Scholes also finished with a sprint and was loudly cheered for the game spirit he showed.

The time for the five miles was 26 minutes, 33 1-2 seconds.

Relay Races Good.

All three relays, the school competition, the Industrial contest, and the open event were hotly fought and provided a bunch of excitement.

The Collegiate squad cleaned up the school race in commanding style, their quartette, Thornton, Henry, Curtis and Johnston having a good margin on St. Peter's school, who were second with McPherson, Collins, Clancy and Wolfe. The Business College crew were third in this race.

There were two starters in the Industrial race, which C.G.E. won from the Canadian Woollens. The latter had a lead at the end of the first relay, but McLeish put C.G.E. ahead in his turn on the track, and Bates, who was third man for the winners, increased the gap, making it easy for Vass, who finished the route, to bring home the bacon. The teams were Davis, McLeish, Bates and Vass for the C.G.E., and Read, Bryett, Vinette and Dundas for Canadian Woollens.

The best relay of the night was the open competition for the city championships, between the P.A.A.A., Windsor Athletic Club, Y.M.C.A. and the Young Men's Club. The latter organization were the first to finish, but were disqualified because Bergoine passed Dugan in the last lap on the inside of the track instead of on the outside as called for by the rules. The race was a real battle. Smoke ran with the Windsor team and Thorpe with the Y.M.C.A., in the rear when they took up the but their respective teams were well running, and they had no chance to pull down the lead. Scholes was to have been a member of the P.A.A.A. team, but his blistered foot made it impossible for him to take part.

The P.A.A.A. team looked like sure winners for three-quarters of the journey. Tingley put them in front in the second relay and Bates increased the margin over the Young Men's Club, who were running second. Dugan, who finished for the P.A.A.A., was handed a good lead to work on, but Chris Bergoine, the fourth man for the Young Men's Club, showed a turn of speed that rapidly eat up the distance between himself and the pace-maker, and finally he flashed in front and crossed the line first. P.A.A.A. finished second, the Y. M. C. A. third, and the Windsor A.C. fourth. The judges, however, ruled the Young Men's Club out as explained in the foregoing paragraph, and the other teams moved up a place in the standing.

The Skating Races.

There were two roller skating races on the card, a one mile event for ladies and a three mile men's race.

There were four starters in the ladies' race, Miss Pearl Coursey, who eventually won the contest, Mrs. Gray who was second, Miss M. Kelly and Miss Mabel Hill. The latter led for the greater part of the race, but the pace she cut out was too fast for her and she had nothing left to stand off Miss Coursey when she came through with a spurt and took the lead. Only the winner and Mrs. Gray finished.

A dozen skaters faced the barrier in the men's three mile race and it was a rattling contest, Joe Dineen, who maintained a remarkably even speed all the way through, winning handily, with "Gamey" Graham second and Tingley third. There was a lot of wild sprinting in the first half mile, but the front runners soon were overhauled. Dineen early lapping most of the field, while Graham also secured a lap on the opposition. A little later Dineen lapped Graham and established a lead that could not be overhauled, Graham finishing a strong second, a lap ahead of Tingley. Harry Cobb roke a skate and lost two laps on the leaders in the first mile of the race, but when he returned to the track he cut loose with a sprint that made things interesting. It was too big a handicap for him to make up.

The Hockey Game.

The Arena team won the roller hockey match from the P.A.A.A. by one goal to nothing, "Gamey" Graham getting the only counter late in the second half. Ice hockey rules are followed, but a baseball is used instead of a puck. The winter game need never fear competition from the roller variety, for it is impossible to stick-handle play combination or shoot nearly as effectively as on the frozen surface. The teams last night were very evenly matched and it was anybody's game until the final gong. Jerry Coughlin was referee and the teams were:

Arena		P.A.A.A.
K. Murray	Goal	L. Lebarr
E. Lebarr	Defence	Cobb
Hensley		J. Murray
Dugan	Centre	Parrington
Graham	R. Wing	Dineen
Ranger	L. Wing	Rody

The first event on the programme, the boys' sack race, was won easily by Gordon Pogue from a field of four. He negotiated the length of the rink at a fast clip and without an upset. Stewart Graham was second and Ray Long third.

The officials were:

Referee—Dr. A. W. McPherson.

Judges—Dr. Frank, R. C. Flitton, Ed. Wright, Art. Johnston.

Clerk of the Course — Douglas Loomis.

Starter—Walter Smaill.

Timers— H. A. Cranfield, Walter Jackson.

Announcer—L. Pitcher.

PENN STATE FOOTBALL STARS HAVE THEIR SUPERSTITIONS

STATE COLLEGE, PA., Dec. 14.—The Penn State football team, rated by most critics as the best in the East this Fall, wasn't a bit superstitious, only:

Nobody wanted to take No. 13.

Everybody took the same route to and from the practice field each night.

Good-luck tickets [illegible] come players never missed a day during the season.

Everybody wanted the same berth number on each trip that was taken.

Glenn Killegger anyways wore his stockings turned inside out.

Tiny McMahon always discarded his headgear after the fifth play in a game.

Graduate Manager Neill Fleming wouldn't have missed a night of practice on a bet for fear of breaking the charm.

Hugo Bezdek wouldn't—oh, what's the use, he used to be a big league baseball manager!

"BIG SIX" GETS $24,573 MORE.

NEW YORK, December 12. — Christy Mathewson, famous pitching mainstay of the Giants of former years, who is recovering from tuberculosis at Saranac, N.Y., on Friday was sent a cheque for $24,573 by the Mathewson Testimonial Committee. Thirty thousand dollars had previously been sent "Big Six" from a testimonial game played for him on 30th September, between the Giants and the Boston Braves.

MAJOR LEAGUE MAGNATES OBJECT TO NEW YORK CLUBS BUYING UP ALL STARS

(By Henry L. Farrell, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Frenzied finance of the recent minor league meeting will do baseball no good, in the opinion of many of the prominent major leagues.

However, opinion being expressed here as the majors gather for this week's meeting is influenced a great deal by the size of the club's cash role.

The Browns, the Cubs and the Cards are among the loudest protestants of the prevailing tendency to beat the excess profits tax by gathering in players for large outlays of cash.

Some of the other magnates, without becoming to loud about it, object to a situation which makes it impossible to buy any player that the Giants or Yanks want for their roster.

This discontent may make a big issue of the draft in the coming meetings, and cause the subject to be brought by Commissioner Landis before the committee of minors in attendance.

Trades are still being talked of, the latest being a move by the Yanks to get Howard Ehmke and Bob Veach from the Tigers. Cob is said to be ready to swap if the Yanks will include Johnny Mitchell in the deal.

Regarding the reported demand of Rogers Hornsby for a three-year contract for $75,000 officials of the Cards said they would not discuss salary with their batting star until he conferred with them.

Johnny Evers, it was learned today, is almost sure to return to the Giants next season as a coach, and "Cosy" Dolan will go back with Jack Hendricks in Indianapolis.

Hot Shots on Sport

Was your favorite layer feeling Warlike about seven o'clock last night The fifth was a ticklish spot, but, oh mamma, what a sackful got away.

"Faint heart never made a fair bank-roll," said Languid Luke, as he pocketed a sizeable fee on two dead favorites.

Lou Marsh made a "bull" when he gave the decision against Schneider according to the press.

Don't be too harsh on Judge Landis. Perhaps he saw Babe Ruth acting before he plastered on the big penalty.

Babe Ruth can now explain, unlike Portia: "The quanity of mercy has been sprained."

Some politicians are now convinced that the "solid bloc" is as potent as the guillotine for political executions.

Landis says he would give the minors back "the draft". Ruth opines that the minors should give Landis the air.

An English sport writer named George says lacrosse is the fastest game in existence. Mr. George seems to have overlooked two odds-on propositions in polo and hockey.

That is all right as far as outdoor pastimes are concerned, but when it come to indoor games, the old problem of finding "the hidden ace" is as perplexing and entertaining as ever.

Goldfish prices are coming down, and they may yet challenge the lordly sardine for the place of honor on the Friday boarding house menu.

Fish may be cheaper than usual, but, judging by the crowds who attend the big wrestling matches, they are just as plentiful.

The committee of the P. A. A. A. which had charge of the indoor meet at the rink last night, will hold a meeting to-night for the purpose of completing the prize list and making arrangements for the distribution of the prizes.

The new club for the City Hockey League will carry on under the name of Lakeviews. Organization of the club will be completed to-day, and announcement of the officers will follow on Wednesday.

The grouping for the two Peterborough Junior O.H.A. teams is being given consideration these days. While changes are suggested, one big feature that should not be overlooked is one change for the better, in the number of teams. The Lindsay-Peterborough double schedule has been overdone.

If the players travel as fast on the ice as the respective managers of the teams are going just now, in their search for signatures, the City Hockey League will serve an excellent brand of hockey this coming winter. But the managers will make a big mistake if they allow their enthusiasm to get the better of good judgment. Remember what happened to the dog in the manger.

P. A. A. A. hockey candidates will continue indoor training at the Y.M. C.A. gmy this evening. The invitation to all hockey players is wide open. The fellows who are staying away are missing a lot of fun.

BASEBALL

John McGraw of the New York Giants is generally considered one of the greatest managers in the history of the game.

McGraw is supposed to be an excellent judge of ball players. One need only glance at his record in the majors for proof of that.

However, the greatest of managers very often make mistakes. They often turn some player adrift who later develops into a star.

The case of Arnold Statz, who was the sensation of the Pacific Coast League, is an excellent example of that truth.

Statz was a star at Holy Cross four or five years back, Jesse Burkett was coaching Holy Cross at the time. Burkett and McGraw are pals.

The fact that Burkett belived Satz had a fine chance to make good in the majors caused McGraw to pay the collegian a fancy salary to join the Giants.

McGraw is a manager who takes snap action. Statz is a very small fellow. McGraw usually likes big fellows. He soon decided Statz wasn't a big league possibility.

Waivers were asked on him. His fame was best known to the Boston Americans, since Holy Cross is located at Worcester, Mass., about 50 miles from Boston.

Statz received a short trial in the American League and pronounced lacking. He was sent to the Pacific Coast League. He was the sensation of that circuit last year. Now a number of major league clubs are bidding for his services.

JAXON---The King of the White and Gold Accordian

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

Yesterday's programme at the Royal demonstrated that the manager's promises as to excellence of the great million dollar production, entitled "Son of Wallingford," were fully justified. Those attending the performance were unanimous that this is one of the most spectacular and dramatically entertaining films they had seen. We see our old friends, J. Rufus and Blackie Daw trying to carry out one of their gigantic swindles whilst trying hard to have their sons follow the straight and narrow path of honesty. And the honest efforts of the younger generation leads to fortune, whilst the other rascals are "stung." The first episode of the romantic serial drama, "Breaking Through," began yesterday. This story shows the fight of a plucky girl whose fortune in a Yukon mine is endangered making a fight for wealth and love. The opening chapter of the serial shows the heroine at a young ladies' seminary. Here the girls hold an interrupted hazing party and a water polo match. It is well worth the price of admission alone to see the girls doing an Annette Kellerman stunt whilst swimming. As the play proceeds, the heroine goes to the Yukon to save her mine, which is about to be stolen by crooks. There is life, pretty girls and lots of pep in every foot of the film. The other films are of exceptional interest also. This programme is repeated to-day.

REX STOCK COMPANY

The Rex Stock Company had their usual well-filled house last evening for their bright little unnamed play. This is a light offering with a good deal of comedy and a definiate moral underlying the funny situations. The heroine, 'Becky', played by Zana Vaughn, is a lovely young wife with a habit of collecting scalps, and an inpate avoidance of the truth, whenever possible. The tangled web that she weaves with her multitudinous lies enmeshes her in a number of difficult situations with her husband, particularly when her 'platonic' friend, a young married man with a reputation for philandering, is accused by his jealous wife of being in love with Becky and is watched by detectives. The record of the pair's excursions is brought to her husband, whose lover like devotion becomes distinctly clouded, and it takes a great deal of manoeuvring on the part of the heroine and her father, from whom she has inherited her habit of prevarications, to finally straighten matters out.

Zana Vaughn does some good emotional work in this attractive play, and holds the stage for the major portion of the four acts; "Rex" is her husband, Tom Warder; Billy Seymour is the nonchalant 'villain' of the piece; William Mitchell is Jenks, the butler; Gloria Machan the harassed wife, Eve Linden; Hazel Wiliams is Laura Fraser, a mutual friend; and, Wm. Yule as Mr. Roland, Becky's father, with Kathryn VanEsse as Mrs. Crespigny, his landlady, have excellently enacted parts. Mr. Yule is pursued by his landlady, who has strong matrimonial intentions, and the pair have some funny scenes concluding their rather lop-sided romance with a most peculiar proposal on the part of the gentleman, whose attention is mainly directed towards the preservation of his comfortable flat and the attentions afforded him by the loving widow.

The little Park kiddies have some entertaining numbers, and Hazel Williams and Billy Seymour do a song and dance which receives much applause.—Jeannette.

AT THE CAPITOL.

A packed house at the Capitol last evening, greeted the performance of the feature picture.

An emotional picture full of thrills with a background distinctly out of the ordinary, is The Sheik" at the Capitol this week. With Arabian desert scenes, a wild sand-storm, a portrayal of things strange and out of the ordinary, like the Monte Carlo of the Desert, forbidden to all but Arabs, where the marriage market is held and brides won on the turn of the wheel, with stirring exhibitions of Arabian horsemanship and the emotions of untamed desert dwellers, it makes an intensely interesting production. Diana Mayo, the orphaned daughter of an English peer, goes into the desert with an Arab guide, and becomes involved with the Sheik, Ahmed Ben Hassan. Through devious ways, and after many adventures, including the capturing of Diana by Omair, the tribesman, they fall in love with each other, and the pictures ends happily.

A thriling installment of the new serial, "Hurricane Hutch", a two-reel comedy, "Brownie's Baby Doll", and the vaudeville, complete a fine programme. Little Miss Dorothy Waters, the seven-year-old comedienne, is the feature of the vaudeville. She is a charming little lady with a repertoire of songs and dances, including an old-fashioned number, done in old-fashioned costume, a very modern dance, the Highland Fling, and the Sailor Boy, all of which were loudly encored. Jaxon, the accordeon King, with his white and gold piano accordeon, received rounds of enthusiastic applause, in a song, step and instrumental offering. —Jeannette.

STRUCK ON THE HEAD.

FENELON FALLS, Dec. 13. — While working at Chamber's camp, about six miles from Kinmount, Mr. E. Nugent was struck on the head by a falling limb, and was unconscious for some time as a result of the blow. He was brought to his home at Fenelon Falls and is under the care of Dr. G. C. Graham. He has regained consciousness and is progressing favorably.

A SEVEN-YEAR-OLD WONDER AT CAPITOL

UNIQUE EXPERIENCES OF DOROTHY WATERS, THE REGULAR LITTLE JAZZ BABY.

A regular little jazz baby is probably the best description for small Dorothy Waters, the lively seven-year-old who is appearing at the Capitol this week. A firm little bobhead, with dancing brown eyes and a precocious outlook, she is an attractive bit of feminity. A child who has never been to school, but studies every day on her travels, writes her exercises in a plain, round hand in her lesson-book and spells better than some children of older years, she can run a typewriter with ease, and talks with vivacity of her adventures in the picture world with "Doug." and "Mary Picklesfeet," her irreverent name for the famous screen star.

Won Gold Medal.

She was born in Vancouver. "Yes, I'm a Canuck," she announced triumphantly, and took the gold medal there for three successive years for being the most perfect specimen of babyhood. During the Great War, she started dancing for the soldiers, her nimble little feet netting $2,000 for the cause, and from there was taken to Los Angeles to the picture colony. She played with Mary, whom she asserts has "a lot of pinned-on curls," in "Suds" and "Through the Back Door," with Doug. in "The Nut," and she laughed with glee over the mistake he made once when he kicked a real policeman instead of a dummy, and was chased with a club in the hands of the irate officer. She has happy memories of swinging on the bars with Fairbanks, when, "Oh boy, but I had a good time with him. I knocked him off nine times," and talks enthusiastically of her prowess in one of Eddie Polo's serials, when they made her ride bareback on a big white horse, after putting turpentine on his tail to make him jump and rear. To an enquiry as to whether she stayed on, she answered, "I had to," and related other bareback episodes, during which she had been thrown only once. She played with Wallace Reid as a Cup in 'The Love Special,' she was with Warren Kerrigan and Frank Mayo in "The Red Lane," with Will Rogers, "who is always hungry," she rode horses in child parts in Dorothy Phillips' sensational picture, "Men, Women and Marriage," when seven people were injured and three killed outright in the filming of the production; she was the "country cousin" in "Black Beauty," and liked it, because she wore a pretty wig, and she adores Lew Cody, for no special reason that she can think of. "Just because." One day she was appeared in Seattle, and Lew Cody was in one of the other theatres. He came and got her and brought her out on the stage, and told the people all about her, and she liked that immensely.

A Wild Ride.

She was with Bebe Daniels on the wild ride which landed the actress in the cells. "When the cop stepped out and caught us," she said, "Bebe said we weren't going fast at all, but hully gee, we went so fast you couldn't see the posts go past."

Dorothy once competed with 500 children in the movie colony at California and won the prize for the best child actress. Her picture was run for three weeks at the Million Dollar Theatre in Los Angeles after this. She likes California, and loves Los Angeles and New York better than other places she has been in, and she is quite a travelled child, starting from Los Angeles on May 5th last, and making her way through to Canada ever since, dancing and singing on the Pantages and the Orpheum circuits. She loves the pictures, "because you get such lovely long auto rides, and grand lunches," and can stay in bed in the mornings as "long as you like," but she likes better than anything else the vaudeville stage, where the people clap and applaud and make a fuss over her. Besides, she hates the heavy grease paint of the cinema world, "it itches her nose so."

A Real Toe Dancer.

She wants to be a dancer when she grows up, a real toe dancer, and do Russian dances and character interpretations, but she doesn't want to be like Eva Tanguay, "because she's too rough." She got up unexpectedly from the typewriter in the Capitol office, and did the "split" and some high-kicking stunts as an example of her powers, returning later to her cherished doll, which says "Mamma," and is kept carefully wrapped up in this cold climate.

Dorothy likes people. She likes to meet them, and waits in the lobby of the theatre after performances to shake hands with her friends. She always has quite a little reception, and hopes her Peterborough audiences will come and greet her to-night and to-morrow at the Capitol.

—Jeannette.

PEOPLE ARE SAVING

TO BE ABLE TO GIVE MORE FREELY AT CHRISTMAS

Many people are practising saving with a good deal of punctilliousness these days, with the laudable desire of enjoying ore of the delights of giving. Shoppers are taking advantage of the different Christmas clearances sales advertised, with the object of saving money on their varied general wants. Perhaps the most attractive of these numerous buying chances is the Kline Bankrupt Sale, where the stock was bought in by a local merchant at 36 1-2 cents on the dollar and is being offered to the public at remarkably low prices.

Ladies who have been crowding this store say that the prices are certainly surprising. One can imagine what the bargains must be if the selling prices bear any comparison to the price the stock was bought in at. It's a fine chance for the ladies to complete their wardrobes.

DENIES LOBBYING STORIES

OTTAWA, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press). — Speaking to Canadian Press last night Hon. Mackenzie King said he expressed regret that "there seems to be an impression that Liberals members from all parts of country are lobbying for cabinet positions" This, he said, was erroneous for one of things which he appreciated was that members have done nothing in the nature of lobbying.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE ANNUAL

(By Henry L. Farrell, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

New York, December 12. — More baseball! Another week of it!

The old town looked like the late world's series to-day, with all the big majors and all minors gathered around the camp fire.

The International League starts the week with its annual meeting to-day.

Nothing but routine business, fixing the schedule, etc., according to President John Conway Toole.

The majors may make overtures about the draft, but there doesn't seem to be a chance to break down the wall the three "double A" leagues have thrown around themselves.

There may be a change in the circuit to bring in Montreal instead of Syracuse or Jersey City.

E. C. Landgraf, owner of the Syracuse Club, said in Buffalo that he could be induced to take his franchise to Montreal, but the deal would be financed by himself.

Practically all of the majors were on hand for the series of pow-wows that open to-morrow.

With the exception of Barney Dreyfuss and his Pirate manager, George Gibson, all of the National League bosses had shown themselves in the hotel lobby conferences.

The American League, which does not go to work until Wednesday, was not represented so well. The delegates of the Washington, Cleveland, and Philadelphia clubs were amon gthe missing.

EDITOR LOSES ELECTION BET

"The National Liberal-Conservative organization (what a mouthful) declares it will have at least sixty seats in Ontario when the ballots are counted. What a rude awakening it will have!" — Kingston Whig, Liberal.

We hereby offer to bet the Kingston Whig the best hat in the market that the Liberals will not get ten seats in Ontario.

If it were not for the anti-conscriptionists of the Province of Quebec, the Liberal party in this election would be a joke.

The above is from the Ottawa Journal of Friday, Nov. 25th. Inasmuch as some local publicity has been given to the matter, it may as well be stated that the editor of the Whig accepted the challenge, because he was convinced that there could be no easier way of winning a new hat. And et us pay Mr. P. D. Ross, editor of the Journal, the compliment that he is a mighty good loser, for he wired us the day following the election:

"Wire your size, or come down and have lunch".

So if you see the editor of the Whig sporting a new lid, you'll know now that he came by it honestly.—Kingston Whig.

Millions Who Are Sick Need This Medicine

Will Be a Revelation to Suffering Humanity—Cleans Liver in a Few Minutes—Symptoms of Liver Trouble are: Sallow Complexion, Bad Taste in Mouth on Rising, Tired, Out of Sorts, Etc.

This new drug is called Tanated Calomel. It acts only on the Liver, which immediately relieves many troubles, as Rheumatism, Constipation, Boils, Kidney Pains, etc. No Salts, Seidlitz, are necessary after taking, because it is self-eliminating. It does not have a nauseating sickening feeling the next day, like so many similar drugs. You, no doubt, have been taking all sorts of laxatives, Salts, castor oil, etc., with only temporary results. The reason is that some of these draw liquid from the blood and tissues, causing a great flush. What you need is something like Tanated Calomel, which causes the Bile to be excreted from the Liver into the Bowel, causing a natural elimination of the waste. You know waste allowed to remain in the system causes a multitude of troubles. I can venture to say that 90 per cent. of all sickness is due directly to this very thing. What is generally the first thing your doctor does when you are sick? He gets your Bowels operating so as to eliminate wastes in your Bowels, which are poisoning your system. Now, in order to be happy, healthy, vigorous, vivacious bright, alert, keen to observe and understand, you must first keep your Liver clean, or you are coaxing all sorts of trouble upon yourself. Doctors recommend that you take a tablet before eating and one at bedtime. Just get some of these, and I feel assured that you will feel as if you had a new lease of life.

These Tanated Calomel Tablets are for sale by F. C. Webber, Charlotte street.

LOCAL VETERANS ELECTED OFFICERS.

H. J. Staunton, President — Plan Christmas Tree For Children.

A meeting of the G.W.V.A. took place last evening in their hall, with Mr. H. J. Staunton in the chair.

The chief business of the evening was the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

President — H. J. Staunton; 1st Vice-President — A. E. White; 2nd Vice-President—F. Cant. Executive — Messrs. W. Cole, V. Stewart, T. Cooper, H. Gamble, and G. M. D. Curtis. Sergeant - at - Arms — F. Millard.

The question of endorsation by the society of candidates in the municipal elections was considered. It was decided to leave it to the members to attend at the citizens' meeting in a body and do this, if desired.

The amalgamition of the bands was endorsed by the meeting and the Executive instructed to facilitate the transfer of instruments.

Canteen Funds.

A resolution forwarded from the Belleville branch of the G.W.V.A. was discussed. It recommended that surplus canteen funds be taken and a home built and maintained, where aged veterans of the Great War might be taken care of in their old age. The meeting last night moved that no action be taken in this regard, in view of the fact that this branch had already passed a resolution dealing with scholarships for veterans' children, which had been adopted and endorsed by the Provincial and Dominion Command in convention.

Christmas Tree.

A committee composed of Messrs. A. E. White, J. Allen, H. Graham, F. Gant and W. Cole, was appointed to go into arrangements for providing a Christmas tree for the children.

HEADS THAT ACHE AND PAIN

It is hard to drag along with a head that aches and pains all the time.

In nine cases out of ten, persistent headaches are due to poisoned blood, the blood being rendered impure through some derangement of the stomach, liver or bowels, but no matter which organ is to blame the cause must be removed before permanent relief can be obtained.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS,

which has been on the market for the past forty five years, removes the cause of the headache by starting the organs of elimination acting freely, and when the impurities are carried off from the system, purified blood circulates in the brain cells, and the aches and pains vanish.

Miss Clara Murphy, Centre Dummer, Ont., writes: "My system was greatly run down and my blood out of order. I suffered a great deal from severe pains in my head which made me feel very miserable. After having tried other remedies I purchased a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and was very glad to notice a decided improvement in my health. I took another bottle and it has done me an enormous amount of good. I have recommended it to some of my friends who were in a similar condition and they all say it is a wonderful remedy."

B. B. B. is manufactured only by The T. R. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HOME WEEK COMMITTEE

MEETING HELD LAST EVENING TO CONSIDER PLANS FOR OLD BOYS' REUNION.

REPORTS RECEIVED

(By F. H. Dobbin.)

The preliminary work of the last three weeks brought together a most encouraging attendance last evening at the general meeting of the organizers and helpers in the Peterboro Old Home Week proposition. The Executive Committee and chairmen of committees have been carrying on to reach a basis of actual efficiency so far as the personnel is concerned. It had been determined that all committees as suggested should be combed over by personal touch to be sure that those chosen would act. The reports to the meeting were encouraging.

It had been determined to ask the assistance of all the societies and organizations in the city, many of these in the hands of the ladies. There was a hearty response, and a most encouraging interest was shown by the attendance of very many many members of the societies and expressions of intention to assist. In fact the women at this meeting outnumbered the men. This fact elicited approval from Chairman J. J. Turner, who tendered to the ladies the franchise of the meeting, the Old Home Week and all parts of the work. Masculine applause at this juncture. Even an acceptable delegation came along from the City Council, the members of which are supposed to have their minds taken up with the affairs of State. The meeting, with rare discretion and diplomacy, refrained from assaulting the aldermen with regard to a civic grant. That bridge will be crossed when we come to it.

Following the submission of the minutes of the last general meeting and aproval theerof, Mr. Merrill reported for the Boosters' Committeee. The function of this committee, of which Mr. Merrill is the chairman, is to boost, push, urge and propel all things that look like help. It was learned that in the city were 65 organizations which could be appealed to and the business of this special committee is to get under the financial responsibility and lift. Hence, its importance. Of the number, 20 societies reported, so far, that "Barkis' was willin'" and representatives were present to back up the undertaking.

Working Committee.

It is expected that two members of each society will be on the working committee, and it looks as if this idea will be carried out. Briefly the idea, as outlined by Mr. Merrill, is that each society undertake to raise and contribute $50 to the expenses. Either as a gvant from funds already accumulated or by putting on some entertainment or occasion, so long as the money was forthcoming. The idea may seem a little presumptious but the money has to be raised. The scheme was heartily approved, both by those who will be concerned in the raising and by those who will be concerned in the raising, and by those who would look pleasant but help privately.

The chairman asked for discussion.. Mr. Kenner, vice-chairman of the Booster's committee approved, but would like to know the ultimate objective to be reached. Other members spoke and gave views. So the plan was adopted. The more so as the Gun Club sent word that it was good for $50. The Gun Club, when it gets into action, makes quite a report. The Belmont Club asked to be counted in as contributors—a sure thing. Good sports, all. The Dental Society, said Dr. Craig, would stand with the others. Some one undertook to pledge the Knights of Columbus to get behind the proposition financially. Columbus is a good name to presage new discoveries.

The Ministerial Association beamed approval and will help. It may not be in funds but can certainly speak a word in season, as remarked by Rev. Mr. Young. The Holy Name Society sent word that Old Home Week would get hearty encouragement. So that, all in all, a spirit of optimism prevailed. Finally at this juncture, to nail down the proposition, a resolution was passed that all Societies be requested to contribute $50 each, and the thing was considered as settled.

Finance Report.

Mixed up in the above discussion and action was the report from the Finance Committee, from Mr. Turner (J. J.) He pointed out that the needs of the several committees had not as yet been tabled, but that would be done, much as the City Council tries to do, in the way of estimates. And following the municipal example, the estimates would be revised, with the usual protests from chairmen that we shouldn't muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn, or words to that effect. Members about the room, urged a survey of the possible expense before any money was spent. This was agreed to. Unless some one could be found who would take a chance on supplying things needed and wait for his money. This is in line with a practice that prevails to some extent just now.

The Committee on Accommodation reported per Chris Graham. The matter was being considered and some action taken. It meant that a complete survey of the city would be made to find out just how many people could be stowed away and made happy. Further report to follow.

The Publicity Committee reported what was being done, and asked for authority to go on and get from the people of the city the names and addresses of relatives, friends and others all away from the limits. A formal advertisement will be placed in the press, with brief instructions what to do. As these names come in they will be indexed and got ready for the issuance of the invitation to be mailed under the auspices of the Booster's Committee. It is hoped that by the end of January some fair idea will be had of where people are and how many are on the absentee list. Resolution to carry on indicated above, was passed.

Reports Lacking.

Reports were lacking from the Reception Committee, the Entertainment Committee, but heaps of suggestion were offered. The Sports Committee reported that it was up and doing and would act. There seemed so much that this committee could do that it hardly knew what to do first.

From Brantford came a letter giving detailed account of the Old Home Week in that city and how it was brought about, all good information. St. Catharines sent word that the experience last July in running a similar venture, and which was a fine success, was at their service.

It was decided that with the Xmas season well under way, that further meetings should be deferred, and January 9th (second Monday in January) was fixed for the next conference. Of this further notice will be given as a refresher in due time.

In the meantime a communication will be sent to all organizations, soliciting assistance financially and in the way of personal work. It is expected that replies will be to hand in time for the next meeting.

As soon as possible a list of the organizations and committees will be prepared and published. A few vacancies are to be filled and the list will be complete. In all ten committees are included with diverse functions.

As a matter of interest the following societies and organizations were represented at the meeting:

King Edward Home and School — Mrs. J. Holmes and Mrs. W. J. Howden.

Business Girls' Club—Miss Mary Lowrie, Mrs. G. McClennan.

Local Council of Women—Mrs. A. Mowat.

Canadian Womens' Club — Mrs. Widdifield.

Queen Mary Home and School—Miss Elizabeth Johnston.

Prince of Wales Home and School —Mrs. A. B. Cunningham and Mrs. P. H. Neville.

Christian Mothers of St. Petr's — Mrs. John Coughlin and Mrs. B. Law.

CONCEDES YUKON TO CONSERVATIVES

TORONTO, December 13 (Canadian Press). — With the Yukon conceded to the Conservatives, the standing of the parties, as a result of the Dominion election, is:

Conservatives, 51: Liberals, 117: Progressives, 65; and Labour, 2.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED.

REGINA, December 13 (Canadian Press). — The resignation of Hon. J. A. Maharg was accepted by Premier Martin yesterday, and Hon. C. M. Hamilton was named the successor. Mr. Maharg's action was based on the Premier's action in supporting the Liberals.

The Premier criticised Mr. Maharg, and expressed regret, particularly because "you apparently feel that something I stated misled you."

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back Its Color and Lustre With Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

AID SOCIETY MEET

A meeting of the Children's Aid Society took place yesterday afternoon in their new meeting place in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Rev. F. E. Malott presided, and four new members were officially welcomed at this meeting, Mrs. Hill, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, W. Stocker and Wm. Sangster. There were also present: Mesdames Fanning, Knox, Welsh, Stocker, Evans, Gibbs, Kimberley and Messrs. J. Edgar, G. W. Powell, R. H. Parsons and Dr. D. C. King.

Rev. Mr. Malott gave a brief report of his attendance in Toronto of the recent meeting of the Social Service Council, at which recommendations with regard to two social welfare measures had been strongly advocated by the meeting; the first, the need of closer co-operation between societies devoted to this work, and the excellent service rendered by trained social workers, and the second, the value of a Juvenile Court in assisting with the work of a Children's Aid Society

Reports Presented.

The matron's delayed report for October was read, showing a total of 17 children in the Shelter during the month, with four sent ont and six brought in. For November the total was 14, one sent out and one brought in.

Mr. Powell's report for November gave applications for children, 5. Mr. Powell's report also dealt with the actions of several wards of the Shelter, one of whom, although only nine years of age, "has kept the Police Department worried for the last two years." This young man is periodically returnd to the Shelter, as his mother is unable to do anything with him. He has a propensity for staying out late at nights, and appropriating anything that happens to take his fancy during his excursions.

Miscellaneous Business.

The Board unanimously passed a motion to the effect that the expenses of Rev. F. E. Malott's trip to Toronto be paid by the Society.

The thanks of the Society was heartily accorded to the Quaker Oats Company for their gifts of bread to the Shelter every other month during the year,-this benefaction having been omitted from the list at the last meeting.

A motion was passed to appoint Rev. P. Costello and Mrs. F. Hodg-

PARLIAMENT IN SESSION NOON TODAY

WILL CONSIDER THE IRISH TREATY—KING DELIVERED A SPEECH FROM THE THRONE —DAIL EIREAN MEETS.

LATE IRISH NEWS

LONDON, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press.)—Special session of Parliament called to consider Irish treaty was opened at noon to-day by King George, who declared in a speech from the Throne, that it was his "earnest hope that by articles of agreement strife of centuries may be ended."

Continuing he declared that it was with "heartfelt joy that I learned of the agreement affecting not only the welfare of Ireland but of the British and Irish races throughout the world," and expressed the hope that "Ireland as free partner in commonwealth of nations forming the British Empire will secure fulfillment of her national ideals."

When Premier Lloyd George entered the House of Commons to-day, while ratification of the Irish treaty was being urged by speakers, he was received with a storm of cheers.

THE DAIL EIREANN.

DUBLIN, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press.) — The Dail Eireann, after formal opening and brief discussion of credentials of plenipotentiaries at the London Irish conference went into secret session to-day with the announcement that a public session would be resumed to-morrow. De Valera who opened the proceedings, explained the circumstances under which the plenipotentiaries had been appointed and said they had received instructions that a complete text of the treaty should be submitted to Dublin and a reply awaited. That, he said, had not been done.

COLLINS DENIES CHARGE.

DUBLIN, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press).—Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins denied the charge of De Valera that they had not otherwise instructions in negotiations, and as discussion continued it developed acute difference between plenipotentiaries and the Republican President. It was stated that a decision would be reached to-morrow at a public session.

INTENSIFIED BITTERNESS.

LONDON, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press).—The publication of correspondence between Sir James Craig and Lloyd George on the Irish negotiations is said to have intensified bitterness in Ulster against Britain, and a prominent member of the Ulster Parliament is quoted as comparing Lloyd George to a "card sharper, who keeps an extra ace up his sleeve and produces it as the necessity demands."

A TENSE MOMENT.

DUBLIN, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press).—One of the tenest moments of debate was when, after De Valera had insisted that delegates should have reported to the Dail Cabinet before signing the treaty, Michael Collins declared with much heat and emotion: "I have been called traitor. Let the Irish people decide whether I am or not." Both Collins and Griffith showed emphatically that they stood by their signatures on the treaty. Collins declaring that if it was rejected his mind would be none the less clear.

London Ulsters' intention to stand aloof from the Irish Free State was expressed to-day by Sir James Craig in a letter to Premier Lloyd George.

BRANCH LABORATORY OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD NOW OPEN

A DISTINCT ADVANCE IN THE DIRECTION OF PUBLIC HEALTH —LABORATORY IS LOCATED ON THIRD FLOOR OF CITY HALL—THE EQUIPMENT INCLUDES A SMALL SIZED MENAGERIE.

The location in Peterborough of a branch laboratory of the Provincial Board of Health places this city in a very enviable position from the standpoint of public health. The laboratory is now open, and Dr. T. Y. McNair, of Toronto, who is in charge, is in a position to make any tests that may be required by the local medical fraternity.

Dr. McNair is a graduate of Toronto University, and during the war served in the Canadian Army Medical Corps in France. Since demobilisation he has taken post-graduate work as resident in pathology and bacteriology at the Toronto General Hospital and the Department of Pathology, Toronto University. Recently he has been connected with the Provincial Board of Health, and from his wide studies in pathology and bacteriology and his practical experience, is well fitted for his position here.

At present Dr. McNair and an assistant are carrying on the work, but the staff will, it is expected, have to be enlarged as the demand upon the branch grows.

On Third Floor of City Hall.

The branch is located on the upper floor of the City Hall in renovated quarters that bear little resemblance to their appearance three months ago. The carpenter has changed the lay-out of the entire flat, and the combined forces of carpenters, plasterers, and plumbers have effected an astonishing transformation.

Charles Huffman & Sons were the contractors, and at a cost of about $5,000.00, excluding the cost of the apparatus, the Provincial Board have now very complete quarters for pathological work. The rooms are light and airy, and at present there is no restriction as to room, and for some time to come the authorities will apparently have no cause for worry on this score.

Commodious Quarters.

There are, in addition to four large rooms, a smaller chamber in which the guinea pigs and rabbits which are used for test purposes are kept, a hallway, a store room, and a very modern wash room. The office is pleasantly furnished in golden oak, and filing cabinets and modern record-keeping appliances are not lacking. Next to the office is located the store room, in which rows of test tubes, graduates, and glittering appliances, bottles of chemicals and powders repose. Three large rooms form the portion of the laboratory where Dr. McNair determines by pathological examination if a person has diphtheria or just a sore throat, a cold on the chest, or the dreaded T. B.

Mysteries Gladly Revealed.

Dr. McNair welcomes visitors who are interested in medical research, and is willing to explain in detail how the tests are made.

Physicians in this district receive from the laboratory special containers for swabs, blood, sputum, and water tests, and accompanying each, on an attached form, is sent the physician's particulars. The tests are carefully numbered as received, and made in rotation, and within twenty-four hours, except, of course, in indistinct cases, the result is known. Previously it took sometimes a week to receive a report from Toronto, and a speedy diagnosis of the case was impossible.

Pure Milk and Pure Water.

When complete, the laboratory will be able to make pathological tests of every nature, and the milk tests at present made by Sanitary Inspector C. H. Stapleton will hereafter be made at the laboratory. The city water will also be under examination.

Dr. McNair told The Examiner the milk and water supply of the city would be watched carefully.

Must be Sterile.

From the time the tests are first delivered, either by mail or personally, every precaution is taken that no other bacteria should communicate with the test, and of course also that none of the bacteria in tests should be communicated to the director or his assistant, and an elaborate system of sterilizers has been installed. The acid-proof work benches and solid lead sink are interesting, and also the baking oven and centrifuger that whirls liquids through a vacuum at 3,500 revolutions per minute and separates the solids from the lighter parts.

Guinea Pigs and Rabbits.

The heart of any child would beat fast in the live stock quarters, where a couple of dozen guinea pigs and big, fat white and brown bunnies romp around in tiny cages. The guinea pigs are more lively than the rabbits, and do not seem to anticipate an early death. Altogether the life of a laboratory guinea pig is not a bad one till some cruel liquid finds him unresisting. The little animals are used for various purposes, chief of which is—unhappy thought—inoculating them with tuberculosis bacteria and testing serum through the same medium. The rabbits are used for the manufacture of serums.

Free Service.

Besides making all the tests free, the laboratory issues vaccines, antitoxins, and serums free of charge to practitioners, and this service, it is expected, will be widely availed of.

The principal service of the laboratory will be, however, to diagnose a case for medical men through a pathological examination, that is said to be practically infallible, of blood, sputum, water, or throat swab.

NEW CONSTABLE

Sworn in last Saturday, William Welch, a new member of the police force is now learning the rudiments of patrol work.

Welch is a straping young fellow who has just completed 10 months with the Royal Horse Artillery, Kingston. He applied last September for a position on the force, passed the examination with flying colors and was taken on the strength last week. Welch's home is in the city.

The man who does not advertise because he tried it once and failed, should throw away his cigar because the lights went out.

RECRUITING IN RANGERS HAS STOPPED

UNIT WILL BE INSPECTED TOMORROW EVENING---PLANS FOR THE WINTER MONTHS.

NEW MEN SIGNED

The Peterborough Rangers were given a final polishing up last night, and the unit is now ready and eager for inspection to-morrow night by Major-General Sir Henry Burstall, C.B., K.C.M.G., Inspector-General of Canadian Forces, and Brigadier-General W. B. M. King, C.M.G., D.S.O., G.O.C., M. D. No. 3.

Inspection will commence at 8 p.m., and will last nearly an hour. There will be a march past, and the unit will not be spared the critical eyes of the inspecting officers in any way.

With 11 recruits taken on last night, the strength of the unit has now been brought up to 365, excluding officers. Dr. H. M. Yelland, M.O., has his stretcher-bearers complete now, another recruit having been taken in last night. Among last night's recruits was Albert E. White, vice-president of the G. W. V. A., who had long service overseas. Sidney Whatley, secretary of the association, is Quartermaster. The men who joined up last night were:

Napoleon Vinette, 155 River Road.
Walter Crowe, 158 Charlotte Street.
Ernest Murphy, 130 Park Street.
William Bugg, Wolseley Street.
Thomas Wynne, 444 Driscoll Ter.
Roderick Cameron, 708 Stewart St. (stretcher-bearer).
Harold Wynne, 444 Driscoll Ter., 4½ years with the 39th Battalion.
Ernest Bovcke, 696 Water Street.
Thomas H. Mitchell, 412 George Street.
Melville Whatley, 174 Perry Street.
Albert E. White, 275 McGill Street, previous experience in the 57th and overseas with the 31st Battalion, C.E.F.

Inspection Duty.

Captain G. C. Dupre, of R. C. Corps, Kingston, was at the Armouries to-day on inspection duty. The ordnance, clothing, etc., was all in process of inspection, with the Quartermaster assisting.

Recruiting is now closed for this year, and the recreational phase of the regiment's activities will commence and continue till spring in order to sustain undiminished interest in the unit by every officer, N.C.O., and man. The recreational facilities of the officers' and sergeants' mess will be open, and the billiard and card tables should receive considerable patronage during the winter months.

Plans are under way for social evenings and dances during the winter, and it is also expected to hold smokers, at which a short, spicy address will be given by one of the officers on some section of military instruction. Shooting, bowling and indoor baseball competitions are involved in the officers' plans, and if all these are carried out there should not be many dull evenings for members this winter.

In addition to this list of proposed recreations, the big open-air skating rink is being rushed to completion, and, weather permitting, will be in use by the end of this week. It will be free to members, and already a regimental hockey league is mooted. The facilities for the comfort of skaters will be superior to other years. The two dressing-rooms will be well heated, and, in addition, a large waiting-room is being added.

Music Provided.

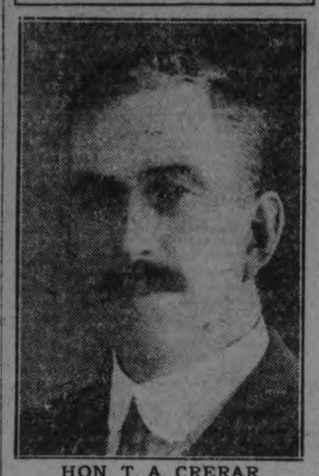
The best of music will be provided. Hockey leagues or teams that desire a rink for practice can communicate with the Rink Committee, Armouries, for terms. Hours for practice will likely be from 5 to 7 p.m.

In charge of experienced instructors, machine gun classes and musketry classes will be held at the Armouries during the winter; and, commencing January 10, three nights a week for six weeks, a provisional school for officers in charge of Major Salmon, of the Royal Canadian Regiment, Montreal, will be held. A large enrolment of officers to receive permanent commissions is anticipated.

LIQUOR FLOW DIMINISHING.

REGINA, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press.)— According to a statement issued by Saskatchewan Liquor Commission, the flow of liquor across the International boundary is diminishing.

A CALL FOR CRERAR



HON. T. A. CRERAR,

Leader of the Progressives and the official Opposition in the Federal House. Political sharps say Mackenzie King will invite the agrarian leader to join the new cabinet.

The New Cabinet

AGRARIAN LEADERS MAY BE GIVEN A PLACE IN THE NEW CABINET —POLITICAL GOSSIP FROM OTTAWA.

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press).—The Ottawa correspondent of the Globe this morning, in discussing the Cabinet of Hon. Mr. King, declared that the Liberal leader, in a desire to give the country a national Government, may seek the services of Hon. T. A. Crerar for the Railways portfolio, and also approach Premier E. C. Drury to enter his Cabinet. Sir Lomar Gouin is slated for Trade and Commerce. According to the correspondent, Fielding is sure of the Finance Minister portfolio, and the Minister of the Interior or Railways portfolio will be offered to Crerar. He says a messenger is speeding westward and that before he returns he will have had important interviews with the Progressive leader and Hon. A. B. Hudson, and that there seems no doubt that Hon. Mr. King will seek the services of Progressive leaders to give a "Canada forward Government."

Keep Meighen In.

It is intimated in Government circles that a Conservative fund will be subscribed, the income from which will provide Premier Meighen with the necessary salary as leader of his party. He will remain in public life. A seat for him will be found in Ontario.

The gossips here mention the following as in the field of selections:

Nova Scotia—Fielding with D. O. Mackenzie or Duff.

New Brunswick—Premier Foster.

Quebec—Sir Lomer Gouin, Ernest Lapointe, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux and Hon. Walter Mitchell or J. A. Robb.

Ontario—The Premier-elect, W. D. Kennedy or Hon. Chas. Murphy. Perhaps Hon. G. P. Graham, G. N. Gordon or H. B. McGivern as Solicitor-General, one other.

Manitoba—Hon. A. B. Hudson if he will accept.

Saskatchewan—Premier Martin or W. R. Motherwell.

Alberta—Nothing doing. No Liberals elected.

British Columbia—Senator Bostock with all the prominent Liberals of the province ambitious.

The death of Senator Crothers creates the first vacancy for the new Government to fill. It is an Ottawa senatorship.

Mentioned for it are Thomas Ahearn, capitalist; Col. A. T. Thompson, who accompanied Mr. King on his western tour, and Alexander Smith, lawyer and publicist.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. T. A. Crerar to-day declined to make any comment on the report that he would enter the King Cabinet and Hon. A. B. Hudson has made no statement that would indicate his course if portfolio were offered.

$5000 CLAIM SETTLED BY AGREEMENT

DR. T. JOHNSTON RECEIVES SATISFACTORY SUM FROM HYDRO-ELECTRIC COMMISSION—SLANDER SUIT TO JURY.

BUOYANCY OF RAT

The defence in the slander suit for $500 damages brought by Nathan Nicholls against his brother-in-law, Stephen Nicholls, both of Buckhorn, closed shortly before noon to-day in the December sittings of the County Court. Counsel immediately proceeded to address the jury, G. N. Gordon for the defendant, and F. D. Kerr for the plaintiff, N. Nicholls.

The alleged slander consisted in Stephen Nicholls having publicly stated that Nathan Nicholls had stolen a muskrat last spring from a trap belonging to the defendant, Stephen Nicholls.

The jury in this case was as follows: J. Hamilton, O. Buskin, N. Stockdale, A. Bell, James Comstock, James Clysdale, James Ball, James Curran, D. Mahood, W. J. Hope, H. R. Martin, and H. McCullough.

Mr. Kerr concluded at 1.30 o'clock and Judge Huycke deferred his charge until after lunch.

Dr. T. Johnston.

Dr. T. Johnston, who is the plaintiff in another action in which he is asking for $5,000 damages from the Hydro-Electric Commission, as managers of the Peterborough Street Railway, was called by Mr. Kerr as an expert on the question of the buoyancy of dead bodies, especially of drowned persons and muskrats.

Mr. Gordon objected that no analogy could exist between a drowned rat and a drowned man unless the man was Esquimaux. Mr. Gordon also held that while Dr. Johnston could be called as an expert in veterinary matters, he was not an expert on drowned bodies. A coroner might be in a better position to give testimony of that kind.

Dr. Johnston said that the injury to the rat's foot, as described in court, would set up gases, probably within half an hour, that would increase the buoyancy of the body. Extreme fright would set up gases in the animal's stomach. These changes would tend to keep the body of a dead rat afloat.

Dr. Johnston admitted that he had never caught a muskrat. To Mr. Gordon he agreed with the statement of a previous witness that the water-soaked fur of a rat would cause it to sink readily in some circumstances.

Henry Taylor, another witness for the defence, said that across the narrows he heard Nathan Nicholls.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND
BY "SAPPER"
(CYRIL McNEILE)

Drummond laid down the paper on his knees, and stared a little dazedly at the club's immoral founder.

"Holy smoke! laddie," he murmured, "that man Peterson ought to be on the committee here. Verily, I believe, he could galvanise the staff into some semblance of activity."

"Did you order anything, sir?" A waiter paused beside him.

"No," murmured Drummond, "but I will rectify the omission. Another large tankard of ale."

The waiter departed, and Hugh picked up the paper again.

"We understand," he murmured gently to himself, "that Mr. Potts, who has recently been indisposed, has returned to the Carlton. . . . Now that's very interesting. . . ." He lit a cigarette and lay back in his chair. "I was under the impression that Mr. Potts was safely tucked up in bed, consuming semolin pudding, at Goring. It requires elucidation."

"I beg your pardon, sir," remarked the waiter, placing the beer on the table beside him.

"You needn't," returned Hugh. "Up to date you have justified my fondest expectations. And as a further proof of my goodwill, I would like you to get me a trunk call—2 X Goring."

A few minutes later he was in the telephone box.

"Peter, I have seldom been so glad to hear your voice. Is all well? Good. Don't mention any names. Our guest is there, is he? Gone on strike against more milk puddings, you say. Coax him, Peter. Make a noise like a sturgeon and he'll think it's caviare. Have you seen the papers? There are interesting doings in Belfast, which concern us rather intimately. I'll be down later, and we'll have a pow-wow."

He hung up the receiver and stepped out of the box.

"If, Algy," he remarked to a man who looking at the tape machine outside, "the paper says a blighter's somewhere and you know he's somewhere else—what do you do?"

"Up to date in such cases I have always shot the editor," murmured Algy Longworth. "Come and feed."

"You're so helpful, Algy. A perfect rock of strength. Do you want a job?"

"What sort of a job?" demanded the other suspiciously.

"Oh! not work, dear old boy. Damn it, man—you know me better than that, surely!"

"People are so funny nowadays," returned Longworth gloomily. "The most unlikely souls seem to be doing things and trying to look as if they were necessary. What is this job?"

Together the two men strolled into the luncheon-room, and long after the cheese had been finished, Algy Longworth was still listening in silence to his companion.

"My dear old bean," he murmured ecstatically as Hugh finished, "my very dear old bean. I think it's the most priceless thing I ever heard. Enrol me as a member of the band. And, incidentally, Toby Sinclair is running round in circles asking for trouble. Let's rope him in."

"Go and find him this afternoon, Algy," said Hugh, rising. "And tell him to keep his mouth shut. I'd come with you, but it occurs to me that the wretched Potts, bathed in tears at the Carlton, is in need of sympathy. I would have him weep on my shoulder awhile. So long, old dear. You'll hear from me in a day or two."

It was as he reached the pavement that Algy dashed out after him, with genuine alarm written all over his face.

"Hugh," he spluttered, "there's only one stipulation. An armistice must be declared during Ascot week."

With a thoughtful smile on his face Drummond sauntered along Pall Mall. He had told Longworth more or less on the spur of the moment, knowing that gentleman's capabilities to a nicety. Under a cloak of assumed flippancy he concealed an iron nerve which had never yet failed him; and, in spite of the fact that he wore an entirely unnecessary eyeglass, he could see farther into a brick wall than most of the people who called him a fool.

It was his suggestion of telling Toby Sinclair that caused the smile. For it had started a train of thought in Drummond's mind which seemed to him to be good. If Sinclair—why not two or three more equally trusty sportsmen? Why not a gang of the boys?

Toby possessed a V.C., and a good one—for there are grades of the V.C., and those grades are appreciated to a nicety by the recipient's brother officers if not by the general public. The show would fit Toby like a glove. . . . Then there was Ted Jerningham, who combined the roles of an amateur actor of more than average merit with an ability to hit anything at any range with every conceivable type of firearm. And Jerry Seymour in the Flying Corps. . . . Not a bad thing to have a flying man—up one's sleeve. . . . And possibly some one versed in the ways of tanks might come in handy. . . .

The smile broadened to a grin; surely life was very good. And then the grin faded, and something suspiciously like a frown took its place. For he had arrived at the Carlton, and reality had come back to him. He seemed to see the almost headless body of a man lying in a Belfast slum. . . .

"Mr. Potts will see no one, sir," remarked the man to whom he addressed his question. "You are about the twentieth gentleman who has been here already to-day."

Hugh had expected this, and smiled genially.

"Precisely, my stout fellow," he remarked, "but I'll lay a small amount of money that they were newspaper men. Now, I'm not. And I think if you will have this note delivered to Mr. Potts, he will see me."

He sat down at a table, and drew a sheet of paper towards him. Two facts were certain: first, that the man upstairs was not the real Potts; second, that he was one of Peterson's gang. The difficulty was to know exactly how to word the note. There might be some mystic pass-word, the omission of which would prove him an impostor at once. At length he took a pen and wrote rapidly; he would have to chance it.

"Urgent. A message from headquarters."

He sealed the envelope and handed it with the necessary five shillings for postage to the man. Then he sat down to wait. It was going to be a ticklish interview if he was to learn anything, but the thrill of the game had fairly got him by now, and he watched eagerly for the messenger's return. After what seemed an interminable delay he saw him crossing the lounge.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press.)—Oils gave promise at the opening of to-day's stock market of extending their many advances of the previous day. Independent Steels, also Equipments and Utilities were active and higher. Rails and Coppers eased slightly. Standard Oil of New Jersey, California Petroleum and Pan-American "B" were one to 2 1-2 points higher. Baldwin Locomotive, Crucible Steel and Peoples Gas rose one to two points. Motors, Rubbers and Shippings were firm. British, French, Italian and German exchange rates rallied moderately from yesterday's final quotations.

Other domestic and foreign issues, notably the California group, were included in the further advance of Oils during the morning. Oils became somewhat unsettled at noon, however, on a sharp re-action in Mexican Petroleum, that issue falling two points under yesterday's close. Coppers and affiliated shares were in further demand, also Independent Steels, Equipments, Chemicals, Textiles and Leathers. Lack of public interest in more important Rails and Industrials provoked short selling in United States Steel and secondary Rails, notably St. Paul Preferred and Erie Common and First Preferred. Recent activity in Liberty Bonds was resumed, third 4½-4's repeating their record quotation of the year. Call money opened at 5 per cent.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press) —Sterling exchange irregular; demand, Great Britain, 4.18¼; Canadian exchange, 7.7-8 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press).—Opening wheat quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to ½c higher, with May 1.11 3-4 to 1.12 and July 1.01 7-8 to 1.02, were followed by a moderate set-back and then a slight rally.

The slowness of the domestic demand had a bearish influence on corn. After opening unchanged to 3-8 lower, May 52½ to 52 3-4, the market continued to sag.

Oats declined with other cereals, starting at ¼c off to a shade advance, May 37½ to 37 5-8, and then weakening all around.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Further weakness in Lyall features early trading on local stock exchange this morning. Yesterday directors of company cut dividend in half and stock opened 2 3-4 points lower today at 41. Montreal Power was up half point at 88 1-2. Other issues, however, were unchanged.

WANT TO SELL OUT.

LINDSAY, Dec. 14.—The Canadian Cereal and Flour Mills, Limited, wrote the Council relative to their milling property in Lindsay. They were anxious to dispose of property, including mill, minus the machinery, and suggested the town purchase the same. If not considered by the municipality its co-operation was asked by the company with a view to disposing of same. The communication was filed.

HARVEY TOWNSHIP RESIDENTS APPEAR IN A DAMAGE ACTION

A DEAD MUSKRAT PARTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR PRESENT LITIGATION — DAMAGES CLAIMED

IN COUNTY COURT

The $500 damage suit for slander entered by Nathan Nicholls of Harvey against Stephen Nicholls of the same township in the December sittings of the County Court was begun before a jury with Judge Huycke presiding on Tuesday afternoon. F. D. Kerr K.C. appeared for the plaintiff and G.N. Gordon for the defendant.

The Grand Jury returned a verdict of no bill in the case of Robert of Asphodel who was charged with assault, and a true bill on five predictments of forgery against H. Allard.

Nathan Nicholls

Nathan Nicholls, the plaintiff was called first by Mr. Kerr. He said he had been residing for a year at Halls' Bridge in Harvey township where he conducted a barber shop and also drove a car for hire.

When the plaintiff said there was no blood relationship between himself and the defendant Steven Nicholls, but that they had married sisters, Judge Huckye interposed a suggestion that some effort be made to settle the case amicably.

"I have no doubt these two ladies are good, kind, reputable women," said His Honour "surely you can avoid this."

Counsel expressed a willingness to confer and retired to the barristers' room, returning within five minutes and separately consulting their clients.

"Well gentlemen what success" asked Judge Huycke when Mr. Kerr and plaintiff returned.

"The parties have been unable to get together" replied Mr. Kerr.

Examination of plaintiff proceeded Last March he was trapping at Buckhorn Lake.

"Stephen Nicholls made the accusation that you took a rat from one of his traps" Mr. Kerr asked.

"He did" plaintiff replied.

"Is there any truth in that statement?"—"No."

"You and Steve Nicholls have known each other a long time," Mr. Gordon asked in cross-examination.

"Practically all our lives"

Plaintiff said he didn't know that Steve Nicholls' stock belonged to his son.

"It must have been lately," plaintiff said.

Mr. Gordon—It will surprise you to know that they were made over two or three years ago.

When you were charged in the police court with stealing a rat wouldn't that attract a great deal of attention around Halls' bridge

Mr. Nicholls—I suppose it would

$rog-'-hr,a firtsaU...A-G- dhoSEE

"Some wouldn't believe it under any circumstances?"—"Yes."

"And some were mean-spirited enough to believe it though it wasn't true?" "I suppose so."

An Earlier Trouble

Relations had beeen strained between these two men three o four years ago, plaintiff said.

"All over a few miserable muskrat

Mr. Nicholls said that they hadn't beeen on spaking terms for a year or more.

Mr. Gordon—You were honorably acquitted in police court?

Plaintiff—Yes.

"Steve Nicholls still stuck to it?" Mr. Gordon asked.

Plaintiff—Yes.

Mr. Nicholls said he saw a dead rat floating near the place where defendant said one of his traps had been stolen, and told him about it.

Mr. Gordon—You were the first to see it floating near some trees?—Yes.

"In the police court Magistrate Langley decided that there was not enough evidence to find you guilty and you were acquitted?"—Yes.

"And everybody knew that?"—Yes, but Steve Nicholls went home and told that he had won the case.

You don't know that personally?—No.

Well you have no right to tell here what you don't know.

Mr. Gordon asked the plaintiff to give in detail what loss in business he had suffered from these statements.

Plaintiff—I'm not figuring so much on business. It hurt my character.

Mr. Gordon—Didn't you say that nobody would believe Steve Nicholls?

APSLEY RETURNED SOLDIERS WILL FORM BRANCH G.W.V.A.

PRELIMINARY MEETING HELD —PARISH HALL WILL BE USED ONE NIGHT EACH WEEK.

NEWS FROM APSLEY

APSLEY, Dec. 13—A meeting of returned soldiers of Apsley and district was held in the Parish Room on Friday evening to discuss the matter of forming a branch of the G.W.V.A.

Several of the men who had been invited were unable to attend, but those present were enthusiastic over the idea, though one or two at first were somewhat peeved at the Association, claiming that they had paid their membership fee of two dollars into the Peterborough Branch two years ago but had never received the badge or any acknowledgment whatever.

Mr. Alf. Mitchel assured them this would not happen if they joined the Apsley branch. The Rev. C. A. G. Spence presided at the meeting and promised in the event of a branch being formed here that the Parish Room should be at the disposal of the Veterans as a club room one night a week. Comrade McFadden of Lakefield was expected to be present to address the meeting, but at the last moment found it impossible to attend. A resolution to form a branch in Apsley was unanimously passed, and Mr. Wm. Parks was elected secretary pro tem

It was decided to adjourn the meeting until Dec. 26th, when it is expected that Comrade Shewer of the Lakefield Branch and others will visit Apsley for the purpose of initiating the members. In the meantime every returned man in the district will be notified by the Secretary and a large attendance is lo looked for. Mrs. Jones very kindly provided refreshments, which were much appreciated, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded her by the veterans for her thoughtfulness.

It being social and musical night for the A.Y.P.A. on Saturday, a very pleasant evening was spent by members and their friends and four associate members were secured. Billiards and card games were induged in, and several songs were rendered by members. Mrs. Spence provided refreshments. Next Saturday night will be devoted to Bible Study.

She is survived by four sons, two daughters, twenty-six grandchildren and thirty-eight great-grandchildren, and was predeceased some years ago by two sons, Thomas, of Seattle, and David, of Toronto. CASE STILL PROCEEDING

BELL TELEPHONE APPLICATION WILL LIKELY TAKE UP A LOT OF TIME—C. F. SIZE ON STAND

NEW STOCK ISSUES

OTTAWA. December 14. Canadian Press.—After another day's hearing before the Railway Commission here, the application of the Bell Telephone Company for permission to increase their tolls, was adjourned until to-day, with no prospect of any conclusion being reached within the near futuree. C. F. Size, the general manager of the Bell Telephone Company, was on the witness stand during the greater part of the day, questioned by G. R. Geary, K.C., who represented the City of Toronto, and R. A. Reid, of the Ontario Attorney General's Department.

At the afternoon session R. A. Reid received gentle censure at the hands of Hon Frank Carvell, the chairman, upon his attitude towards the witness The Board, Mr. Carvell assured him, would secure all possible information from the Bell Company. He thought that Mr. Reid was hardly justified in throwing out aspersions against the bona fides of the company. Never until the present hearing, said Mr. Carvell, during his two and a half years as chairman of the board, had the relations between it and the witnesses or between the witnesses and counsel, been other than entirely courteous.

Mr. Size called attention to an item in the Bell Telephone Company's balance sheet showing their holding of $200,000 par value North American Telegraph Company's stock with a book value of considerably less. There was "no mystery," he said.

Reverting to the company's stock issues, Mr. Size stated that until this year's flotation the shareholders had always taken up any fresh issue of stock. Mr. Reid thereupon called attention to the fact that the shareholders had thereby benefitted to the extent of the difference between the par value and the market value at which they could at once dispose of the stock which had averaged $145 a share for 10 years, and had risen as high as $176

Mr. Carvell intervened to ask Mr. Reid if he knew why it was an advantage to offer stock to the shareholders at less than market value. "In order to dispose of it more rapidly," replied Mr. Reid.

Mr. Carvell then elaborated the point. He said that there was the advantage of placing the stock among a certain number of people who were interested in the utility. furthermore it was possible to avoid such demoralization of the market as might follow throwing a large block of the stock on the market. The price was kept up where otherwise it would very likely slump.

Mr. Reid said he also understood the system kept the shares in the same hands and secured a continuation of the existing management.

DIVIDEND REDUCED.

MONTREAL, December 14 (Canadian Press). — At the meeting of directors of the Peter Lyall & Sons Construction Company, Ltd., here yesterday afternoon, the quarterly dividend rate of 2 per cent. for the three months to 31st December was cut to 1 per cent. It is payable on 10th January.

President William Lyall issued a statement after the meeting, in which the blame for the board's action is placed on the Government. The building at Ottawa is still owing by the Government, and "from present indications settlement will not be made for some time." Further reasons consist of "unforeseen delays in connection with the company's contracts which prevented its progress schedule from being maintained."

OIL EXPLOSION CAUSED DEATHS DETROIT HOME

NINE PERSONS DEAD AND THREE SERIOUSLY BURNED— SURVIVORS JUMPED FROM A WINDOW

DEROIT, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press.)— Nine persons, seven of them children, are dead, and three others are seriously burned, one perhaps fatally, as the result of a fire yesterday that destroyed the farm home of Mrs. Margaret Wakeu, two miles north of the Detroit city limits. The dead are: Mrs. Wakeu's husband and her four children; Mrs. Eliza Cosnick, of Detroit, and the latter's three children, who were visiting at the Wakeu home. Mrs. Wakeu is not expected by hospital authorities to recover. Joseph Weiswaki, 34, a boarder at the home, jumped from a second storey window, his clothes ablaze. His condition is serious. Another boarder escaped uninjured by jumping from the window.

The fire started from an explosion caused when Mrs. Waku poured kerosene into a kitchen stove to start a fire.

The Wakeu and Cosnick children were burned to death in their beds.

PREDICTS A NEW STATUS

INDIA'S REPRESENTMENT TO ARMS CONFERENCE LOOKS FOR DOMINION STATUS IN INDIA WITHIN A FEW YEARS.

FOLLOW IRELAND

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—Within the next ten years India will speak as a co-equal partner with Canada and Australia in the British Empire, the Right Hon. V. S. Srinwasa Sastri, India's representative in the British delegation to the Armament Conference, predicted yesterday in an address before the City Club. The speaker also predicted that possibly recent Irish developments would "quicken even his estimate of ten years," adding that "Britain will be wise if she gives dominion status to India more easily than she has given it to Ireland."

Mr. Sastri impressed upon his audience that the voice of India at the Arms Conference, "is not that of a British dependency peopled by a subject nation," and that "no British officer is watching over me to keep me in order."

"In fact," he added, "I have exactly the same status at this Conference as Sir Robert Borden of Canada and Senator Pearce of Australia."

Mr. Sastri's address was said to have been in the nature of a reply to a plea for Indian independence made here recently by an Indian representative of the Ghandi Non-Co-operation movement. While praising Ghandi as a "great man," he declared that his movement was both unwise and futile.

"It is true that India has grievances," Mr. Sastri continued, "but what people has not If I am to believe your newspapers, you have the rottenest government in the world here. Yet you all look contented and well fed. You are not going to rise in violent revolution; no people will join in such movements unless their governments are vicious, unless from settled policy they grind the faces of their people. That is not the case in India, It is true, of course, that British rule rests in the last resort on force, but Britain does not hold India by terrorism. Therefore, Ghandi's movement will fail."

Why a Healthy Person Very Seldom Worries—

Worry is simply fear of misfortune. It overburdens your mind, and oftentimes creates physical disorders. Your nervous system and mentality are under such a strain that sleepless nights result. Without refreshing sleep, your whole physical and mental well-being suffers.

A healthy man seldom worries. Physical exhilaration supplies ease and optimism to the mind. Only those whose nervous systems are worn-down are irritable, languid and depressed.

Eminent physicians state that many cases of nerve trouble are caused by drinking tea or coffee. The drugs, thein and caffeine, contained in these drinks over-stimulate the entire system, often causing the serious ills which result from disturbing the regular bodily functions. Repetition only makes matters worse.

Why not stop drinking tea and coffee and drink Postum instead? Postum is the delicious, healthful beverage—satisfying in flavor. Drink Postum for 10 days and notice the difference. Your irritated nerves will be strengthened because Postum lets you get the deep, restful sleep you need.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

CHRISTMAS CHEER

In spite of the distracting influence of a general election and the distressing effect of an industrial depression, the Christmas spirit cannot be kept out of Peterboro. And this year, above all others, it should be a matter for rejoicing that the Yuletide season is coming to stir the hearts of the people with that irresistible desire to do something for others to brighten, if only for a day, somebody's life, to make the children happy. Signs that the holiday awakening is already with us and that the old magic is exerting its spell are apparent in the plans of many local organizations to bring Christmas cheer into the homes of families who otherwise would find this Yuleide a drear, drab affair. Church societies, the King's Daughters, the Big Sisters, the Rotarians, Kiwanis Club and other organizations are all to engage in this splendid work, and it is their ambition that no home will be neglected, that everywhere in Peterboro, in spite of the unemployment, there will be nobody cold, nobody hungry, no children without Christmas gifts on the anniversary of the birth of our Saviour. It is a noble effort that the Examiner is sure will be endorsed and helped by the citizens generally if they are called upon to co-operate.

PRODUCING RESULTS.

The records for automobile fatalities for Toronto for eleven months of 1921, as compiled by the Safety League, show a total of 45 such deaths on the streets of Toronto. This figure is a noticeable improvement over 1920, when there were 64, which means a reduction of 30% in fatalities, in spite of an increase of thousands of motor cars registered in Toronto in 1921. In the months of January to November inclusive, 1919, there were 47 automobile deaths on the streets of Toronto, so 1921 shows a slight improvement there too.

Officials of the Safety League state that definite results may be expected from the safety campaign being conducted, particularly among the children in the schools. It is to be hoped that the improvement noted by the League will be continued and that the officials will, in spite of the fact that the Ontario Government failed to support their efforts this year, go on fighting the battle for safer conditions on the streets of Canadian cities. Bringing the mtter of precaution against accident home to the school children should produce good results. Such education is as valuable as the three "R's" and as necessary.

PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION

The advocates of proportional representation are bobbing up again, as might naturally be expected after a general election, and this time they have some concrete examples to produce as exhibits in proof of their contention. For instance, they point out that large sections of Canada will be unrepresented in the new Parliament. In Nova Scotia the thousands of Conservative voters will not have a spokesman from their province. Similarly the Liberal and Conservative voters of the prairie provinces are almost without representation. The many thousand Liberals in the City of Toronto have no voice in the new House, for although the total vote polled for Liberal candidates was large, not a Liberal member was elected in the Queen City. Proportional representation, its supporters claim, would make this condition of affairs impossible, while the objection that its adoption would result in the group government is answered by the statement that we have the group system already under the old method and it probably would not be any worse if a different plan for selecting members was chosen. And on the other hand every section of Canada's population would have a chance to be represented in Parliament, and last week's election shows that is not possible under the old system.

THOSE DESPERATE REDS

Socialists, Communists and several other brands of Reds from all parts of Canada, have been meeting in Toronto to inaugurate a movement to establish a workers' republic of Canada. Nobody interfered with their convention and they were allowed to state their aims and objects without any interference from the authorities, although some of the speeches made were radical in the extreme. They talked of forming "real fighting working class units," babbled in the usual vein about "capitalist oppression," characterized the Labor members of the Legislature as "a spineless bunch," and in general had an enjoyable time. If they expected the police to haul some of them off to jail, where they could pose as martyrs for the cause, they were grievously disappointed, for, like their comrades in Hyde Park, London, they were allowed to let off steam as they saw fit. Probably the authorities thought that any body of men who, with the truth of the Russian debacle before them, could advocate the establishment of a similar system in Canada, were incapable of doing any harm to Canadian institutions. At the same time the deportation of some of the Red gentry, giving them an opportunity of studying Sovietism at first hand, might do them good and certainly would be to the benefit of the country they are apparently ambitious to destroy.

ELECTIONS AND BUSINESS

It is generally conceded that elections are an interference with business. In the United States it is taken for granted that a Presidential campaign produces a distinct dullness in trade. Men are diverted from their usual activities to partisan engagements, and the people are also distracted by the bustle and stir of electioneering methods. When it is all over there are always philosophers who talk of wasted time and energy and it must be confessed there is something to be said from that point of view. Nevertheless, elections are not only unavoidable, but they contribute largely to the necessary enlightenment of people. They represent an opportunity for the spirit of democracy to become articulate, and that is surely a thing most desirable.

We must all see, however, that it would be much better if this assertion of personal and direct interest by the sovereign people were not a mere spasm. Just why the discussion of public issues should take place only during an election campaign is not clear. Of course, the press comes in at that point. It is a safe assumption that a vast majority of the electorate read the papers, and in that way they are able to keep in touch with the administrative performances of Government; but that is scarcely enough. Our democratic system is probably weakened by the long hiatus between direct appeals to popular judgment.

Yet it is not desirable that the commercial and industrial life of the country should be exposed to the interruptions which are inseparable from organized conflicts among political parties; for we are all agreed that such things divert the people from serious business interests. And those interests are undoubtedly serious at this juncture. The problems of readjustment call for the concentrated energy and sagacity of the whole people; and now that the general election is out of the way we shall need to buckle to the task. We can look for little or no help from the politicians. Business in all its elaborate aspects is depressed. That condition is world-wide. Each nation will have to do its part in restoring confidence, activity, and that subtle thing we call stability. While all nations are bound together in a sympathetic relationship—so that they prosper or suffer in common—our efforts toward betterment must be applied to Canada.

The excitement and diversions of a national campaign being now definitely out of the way, business will be resumed at the old stand. While the outlook is not stimulating, there is plenty to do. Canada is today less severely pinched by trade stringency than any other country in the world. While the people work they will not have time to talk about the flush days that are past. They were not as flush as they seemed. Much of the prosperity of the war period was wholly artificial, and we would have been better, all things considered, without it. Hard work, and hard work alone, will solve our problems. While the politicians plan Cabinets, and confer craftily about policies, the people at large will be doing a national service of perhaps greater importance by getting back earnestly and courageously on the old job.

The work of the noble, good and true,
Busy for them the long day through,
Beautiful faces, they that wear
The light of a pleasing spirit there,

Are the precious souls that love the light.

The Reason for "Bone Dry"

A Bone Dry Battery is one that has been shipped and stocked in absolutely dry condition—that has never had a drop of moisture in it. Batteries with ordinary separators cannot be kept Bone Dry; the dryness would warp and crack the wood, from which the separators are commonly made, and soon render it useless.

Willard Threaded Rubber Insulation on the contrary, keeps indefinitely, and remains new. Thus, when you buy a Bone Dry Willard Threaded Rubber Battery, either on a car or from a dealer's stock, you know that you are buying a new battery. Bone Dryness is only one Willard advantage, but one important enough to influence every car owner in the Dominion in favor of the Willard Threaded Rubber Battery.

If you want the advantage of newness, be sure—when you buy a battery—to ask for the Willard Threaded Rubber Battery by its full name.

You can recognize it easily by the Thread-Rubber Trade-Mark stamped in red on one side of the battery case.

In the Police Court yesterday morning the eleven stewards arrested in Monday night's raid by the police appeared in Court, and the cases were adjourned until Friday.

R. L. Maitland, counsel for the hotel men, said a finish fight was on. Either hotels will be allowed to sell beer or the clubs would be put out of business, he stated. One of his clients, he declared, has eight clubs competing with him in one block. Hotel bars continued business as usual to-day.

RESTRICTIONS LIFTED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—The Cunard Line announced yesterday that it had received cable advices of the lifting of restrictions on the port of Queenstown, Ireland, and that henceforth all Cunard steamers for Liverpool would touch at the Irish port.

The restriction prohibiting British-bound steamers from calling at an Irish port was imposed two years ago. No restriction was laid on westbound vessels, however.

The steamship Scythia, sailing Christmas Eve, will be the first east-bound Cunarder to stop at Queenstown.

Over 50 Years Ago

A young man who practiced medicine in a rural district became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his success in the treatment of disease. He finally made up his mind to place some of his treatments before the entire people and, moving to Buffalo, N. Y., he put up what he called his Favorite Prescription, and placed it with the druggists in every state in the Union and in Canada.

That was over fifty-five years ago. For fifty-one years this Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce's has sold more largely throughout the land than any other medicine of like character. It's the testimony of thousands of women that it has benefited or entirely eradicated such distressing ailments as women are prone to.

For over fifty years some of Dr. Pierce's home medicines have been selling over the drug counters, so that more than fifty million bottles have been sold during that time. This speaks well for the reliability and value of Dr. Pierce's standard home remedies. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood tonic and strength-builder which contains no alcohol, yet has tonic qualities that have endeared it to the American public. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, composed of May-apple, Aloin and jalap, have long been considered a reliable vegetable laxative, in the same way that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has long been recognized as a tonic for diseases peculiar to womankind. More recently that wonderful discovery of Dr. Pierce's—namely, Anuric (anti-uric acid), has been successfully used by many thousands of people who write Dr. Pierce in unqualified terms of the benefits received—that their backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble have been completely conquered by the use of Anuric.

ELECTION CONCEDED

DAWSON CITY, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Election of Captain George Black, Government candidate in the Yukon by fifty majority over F. T. Congdon is conceded.

HARVEY TOWNSHIP RESIDENTS, ETC.

Plaintiff—No, but I'll say now that a lot wouldn't believe him. They paid no attention to him.

Is there a single person who did believe him?—It was the whole talk of Buckhorn.

Mr. Gordon—Well there's not a great deal to talk about around there?—No.

Plaintiff did not name any person particularly who had been driven away from his barbershop because of the statements, of any who believed.

"Half of the people didn't believe him" he said.

If defendant had apologized the trial would have been avoided, plaintiff added.

Mr. Gordon—Suppose he apologized now, would that satisfy you?—Not after all the expense he has put me to.

Well you know in these case it's the lawyers who are always in, observed Mr. Gordon.

Accused Him.

H. A. Shearer, general merchant at Halls' Bridge, testified that in the store he heard Stephen Nicholls say "I caught the thief stealing the rat. I have the foot here." Witness understood that he blamed Nathan Nicholls.

The next witness, Harold Montgomery, was more definite. He declared that he met Stephen Nicholls on Buckhorn Lake who said to him, "I caught the thief this morning, and it was no Indian. It was Nate Nicholls."

"To Mr. Gordon witness said he had not been paid for appearing at the police court trial, but had driven to dances in Mr. Nicholls' car paying usually a dollar a trip.

Esther Thompson

Corroboratory evidence was given by Esther Thompson, engaged as a clerk in Warsaw, and previously employed as clerk in H. A. Shearer's store at Buckhorn.

She said she heard Stephen Nicholls say, "I caught the thief that stole my rat. I'm ashamed for he's of the same name.

Mr. Kerr—Who did you understand Stephen Nicholls referred to?—To Nathan Nicholls.

Mr. Gordon—There are lots of families in Smith and Harvey?—Not very many. The talk was about Nathan Nicholls before Steve Nicholls said it.

Judge Huckye disallowed Mr. Gordon's application for non-suit on the grounds that the plaintiff was unable to prove any specific time at which the words were stated and also because of the variation of the statements. His Honour pointed out that the time was approximately fixed as having been last spring.

Saw Rat Taken

Stephen Nicholls, examined by Mr. Gordon, related the events of a morning's trapping on Buckhorn Lake.

"I pulled up against a dry stump in the marsh thirty yards away from Nate Nicholls and watched him pull a rat out of my trap. I started then to move toward him. I took the foot out of the trap he left in. I said "you've got a rat in that boat that belongs to me with only three feet on it." He said he had no rat belonging to me. I said, "let me search your boat and if it's not there you can pull me."

He said—"You accuse me of stealing your rat." I said, "I certainly do."

He picked up a pike pole and swore an oath that he would stick the pike pole in me if I went near his boat."

Mr. Gordon—Did you go near him?

Defendant—No sir.

You left him with the three-legged rat?—Yes sir.

"He came back and said, 'You can search my boat now. You can see your rat floating down the lake.'"

Mr. Gordon—Did you look for it? No.

Did you show him the foot?—Yes I held it up in my hand.

Defendant said that if a rat was kept in a canoe and its skin dry it would float for a time, but if the skin was wet the rat would sink.

To Mr. Kerr, Nicholls admitted he had said that Nathan Nicholls had stolen his rat. He supplemented that accusation with the charge that "Nate Nicholls had taken other people's traps."

Do you want to go on record as saying that a muskrat could escape from that trap and float?—If it was alive it would float.

To Mr. Gordon defendant said he had seen Nathan Nicholls taking traps that belonged to Aaron Post of Apsley. Wesley Cummings was present and also said it, witness said.

OBITUARY

MRS. DAVID FORSYTH.

There passed away at her home in Douro on Monday, Dec. 5th, one of the pioneers of Peterborough county, in the person of Jessie McGowan, relict of the late David Forsyth, in her 80th year. She was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and came to this country with her parents when four years of age, settling first in the eastern part of Dummer township, and later at Allandale. One of a family of eleven, all have predeceased her but one brother, William, of Tisdale, Saskatchewan. Her husband, whom she married in 1859, predeceased her by eight years. Twelve years ago they celebrated their golden wedding, when all their living sons, daughters and grandchildren were present.

The late Mrs. Forsyth is survived by a family of five sons, William and Thomas of Douro, David of Peterborough, George of Warsaw, Fuinley of Toronto; and one daughter, Miss Ellen at home. One son and three daughters have predeceased her.

Hers was the quiet, unobtrusive, Christian character, and she was beloved by all who knew her. In the early years of her married life, before they owned horses, she and her husband walked to the old kirk in the glebe at Colquohoun's Corners, where she taught a Sunday school class, and her home was always open to the stranger. She was laid to rest in the family plot at Cottesloe, Thursday, Dec. 8th, and a large concourse of friends, neighbors and acquaintances followed her remains to their last resting place. The pall-bearers were four sons and two grandsons, Harold Forsyth of Peterborough, and Kerwood Taylor of Toronto. Relatives from Wingham, Toronto, Peterborough and Warsaw attended the funeral.

Could Not Eat

Constipation is caused by a torpid condition of the liver. Dosing with salts, castor oil, etc., to move the bowels, cannot afford more than temporary relief.

If you are to rid yourself of this ailment and the scores of annoying symptoms and diseases which come in its wake, it is necessary to get the liver right by such treatment as is suggested in this letter:

Mrs. Alvin Richards, R. R. No. 1, Seeley's Bay, Ont., writes:

"For two years I was afflicted with indigestion, and in the morning when I got up my breath was bad. I had a poor appetite, and just felt like eating certain foods. I used many different medicines as a laxative without benefit, and the doctor's medicine did not help me at all. Finally I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and found them better than anything I had ever tried. I can highly recommend them to anyone troubled with constipation or kidney troubles."

TRINITY CHURCH LADIES' SOCIAL

HALL WAS PRETTILY DECORATED —AMONG THOSE WHO TOOK PART.

The members of Trinity Ladies' Aid Society, of which Mrs. R. J. Kidd is president and Mrs. A. F. Lane secretary, held a very pretty and successful salad tea in Trinity church hall yesterday afternoon and evening. Crowds of people attended during the afternoon, received by the Reception committee, Mesdames Malott, Carver and Moncrief. The hall was prettily decorated, through the kindness of Mr. H. E. Hodgens, manager of the Turnbull company, with gay Christmas bells and festoons. The orange grove, in charge of Mesdames Padget, J. Lillico, Edmison, Thompson, J. H. Wolstenholm, Cummer and Hanley, was a delightful little retreat arranged on the platform, screened by Christmas trees, and devoted to the sale of oranges, orangeade and marmalade; the home-made cooking table, bright with red garniture and flowers, was supervised by Mesdames S. Clegg, J. McCoy, A. Brown, Ira Moore and Mrs. Davern.

The candy was sold at a lovely table, draped with rose-pink and white festoons, with lattice-work and flowers, and was in charge of Mesdames Mattice, G. N. Gordon, French and Miss A. Wood; the white elephant table, a novelty counter for the sale of odds and ends, arranged very effectively with a snow-powdered elephant, down whose soft sides tiny dolls scrambled and fell, was looked after by Mesdames P. H. Neville, W. J. Green, Jas. Browne and Cowain; and the salads were sold at a striking table, draped in black and gold, by Mesdames Seaton, Walsh and Lyle. The pork and beans counter, in gay red and white, was in charge of Mesdames Taylor, Northey, Kimberley and Noftall. Mrs. R. Bugg had the fish pond, a well-patronized little corner.

The pretty tea tables, were in charge of Mrs. F. C. Neal, with her corp of assistants; the Misses Elva Jackson, Florence Derry, Ethel Elliott, Theresa Taylor, Lenore Lyle, Mabel Brown, Luella Jobbitt, Marion Dugan, Frances Jewell and Georgie Clementi.

An enjoyable musical programme during the tea hour was rendered by Mrs. Norman Moncrief, Miss C. Caldwell and Miss Helen McFadden, and during the evening, Mr. R. F. Downey got a good deal of fun from an impromptu auction to clear up the odds and ends left from the sale.

Much of the credit of the whole successful affairs was due to the untiring efforts of the convenors, Mrs. T. Cruikshank and Mrs. Geo. H. King.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, this mixture saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

TORONTO CITIZEN WORKS FULL TIME

WILLIAM PAGE NEVER THOUGHT ANY MEDICINE COULD DO FOR HIM WHAT TANLAC DID.

"I am putting in full time at work since Tanlac has got me in such fine shape," said William Page, 29 Hamilton St., Toronto Ont.

"My troubles had been pulling me down for six years and during all that time I hardly knew what it was to ever feel good. My stomach was all out of order and as regular as I ate anything I had to pay for it in suffering. There was a burning like fire in my stomach, I would bloat all up with gas that nearly cut off my breath and at times I had such smothering spell that I thought each breath would be my las' I had frequent attacks of rheumatism in both knees and ankles and sometimes these spells nearly laid me out altogether. My nerves were all unstrung, I was restless all night long and could sleep but little and when morning came I never felt fit for work."

"But Tanlac straightened me out and today I am feeling fine and in absolutely sound health. I have a corking good appetite and can eat anything set before me and digest it as good as ever I could. My nerves are strong as steel and the rheumatism has just about completely gone. I sleep like a top and get up mornings ready for a big day's work."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

BREAD SELLING FOR 16 CENTS

LARGER SUPPLY NEEDED FOR LOCAL DEMAND — A GOOD QUALITY.

Peterboro bakers are still charging 20 cents a large loaf for bread In Port Hope they make bread and ship it into Peterboro and sell it for 16 cents a loaf. Last Saturday there was about 500 loaves sent into Peterboro and the two local grocers who sell it in the city were sold out before six o'clock and tried in vain by telephone and telegraph to get a further supply. It had previously been selling at 18 cents and when the price was reduced there was such an avalanche of orders that the supply melted away in no time.

One Charlotte street grocer who dispenses it exclusively has to secure a supply of local Saturday, but he has ordered a large shipment for this week that should meet the demand. He said that he never has a complaint about the quality and the south end store that handles the same article told the same story. Here it was described as "just like mother used to make."

It is said however if a person wants to get an article that closely approaches the old-fashioned home-made bread the Port Hope product comes nearest to the ideal with none of the flavour lost in fine baking. It is baked from Reindeer flour manufactured by the Peterboro Cereal Company.

say to the defendant, "Now you can look in my boat."

Mr. Gordon's Address.

Addressing the jury, Mr. Gordon emphasized the corroboratory testimony of Taylor saying that it upheld the story of Stephen Nicholls.

Mr. Gordon had just begun his address when Mr. Kerr interrupted with an objection.

Judge Hoyeke had left the court-room only a moment before.

"I don't want you to talk to me at all. We'll wait till His Honor comes," said Mr. Gordon.

"Strange that I can't go out for a minute to get a paper," Judge Hoyeke said on his return.

Mr. Kerr explained that his objection was to Mr. Gordon's use of the word "facts" in addressing the jury, whose duty, he contended, was to determine what the facts actually were.

Proceeding, Mr. Gordon alluded to the expert evidence as to the gaseous re-action in circumstances described in court.

"We should have had a post-mortem on this rat to see if it died of gas on the stomach from fright, or whether he was an old veteran of the mashes and accustomed to traps, or whether he died game," said Mr. Gordon.

He concluded his address with a reminder that this was the Christmas season, the time of peace and good-will, instead of the bad feeling that had been engendered.

"Nathan Nicholls stated in the box that if Steve Nicholls hadn't brought that case into the Police Court he wouldn't have started this action."

Mr. Gordon recalled: "There you have it—a case of spite, a get-even case. And Nathan Nicholls was vindicated in Police Court. He was acquitted."

Hypocrisy, Said Mr. Kerr.

"Did you ever hear such hypocrisy as that of Stephen Nicholls, through his counsel, Mr. Gordon when he speaks of the Christmas season."

Mr. Kerr began in his turn addressing the jury. It should have been the initiative and the part of Stephen Nicholls to make the first aproach and to ask that the past be forgotten, Mr. Kerr contended.

Reviewing the evidence he said that Steve Nicholls regarded part of the Buckhorn waters as his own preserves, and he was angry because Nathan Nicholls intruded. In that mood he followed Nathan Nicholls to the scene of the dispute. Mr. Kerr discussed the main incidents of the occurrence and asked the jury to bring in a verdict clearing the character and reputation of Nathan Nicholls.

The only way to shut up Stephen Nicholls was to impose a salutary fine on him, Mr. Kerr suggested.

Case Settled.

Dr. Johnston's action against the Peterboro Street Railway was settled out of court. Hon. J. B. Lucas, former member of the Hydro-Electric Commission, represented the Street Railway's interest, and F. D. Kerr for the plaintiff, who received a satisfactory cash payment and costs.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

LINDSAY, Dec. 14.—A a meeting of the Lindsay Police Committee of the Council, the Town Clerk was instructed to forward a resolution of sympathy to Constable E. J. Leith in his recent bereavement. He was also granted one month's leave of absence.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION COUNCIL MET YESTERDAY IN CONVENTION—PERSONAL ITEMS.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 14. — Campbellford and Seymour Convention of the Ontario Religious Education Council was held in the Baptist Church yesterday afternoon and evening.

The following executive were elected for the coming year:

President—Mr. Malcolm Totton, Burnbrae.
Vice-President—Mr. R. J. Bullen.
Secy.-Treas.—Mrs. G. A. Kingston.
Children's Department — Miss Katie Gould.
Young People's Dept. (Girls) — Mrs. J. P. Archer.
Young People's Dept. (Boys) — Rev. J. J. Black, Burnbrae.
Adult Dept.—Mr. F. H. Weston.
Home Depart.—Mrs. H. Carter.
Teacher Training — Mr. A. Winters.
Missionary Dept. — Mrs. Hume.
Temperance Dept.—Mrs. George Dickson.

It was decided to hold the next annual convention at St. Andrew's Church, Burnbrae.

The afternon session, as well as the evening session, was replete with able addresses and practical suggestions for Sunday School workers. Addresses were given by Rev. H. S. Bennett, Mr. F. W. Weston, the retiring president, and a most helpful talk on "Our Work with 'Teen Age Boys," by Mr. O. H. McDonald, the Director of Boys' Work, Baptist Board of Religious Education.

The Round Table Conference conducted by Mr. McDonald was most instructive and helpful. Mrs. C. W. Turner rendered a solo which was much appreciated. Excellent reports from the various departments were given—Secy.-Treas., Mrs. Dickson; Sunday School scholars pass out of Mrs. G. A. Kingston; Tacher Training, Mr. A. Winters; Children's Depart., Miss Katie Gould; Young people's Dept., Mis. J. P. Archer.

Evening Session.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. H. S. Bennett, followed by a well-rendered anthem by the choir, 'Fling Abroad the Gospel Banner."

Mr. McDonald gave a most inspiring address on "Evangelism in the Sunday School." The Sunday School is the church's greatest opportunity, it is a great unworked field. The adult life is bound with habits, sinews. The child's mind is most retentive, and the mind receptive, and the heart tender. The Sunday School is a fruitful field, the great majority of Christian leaders, at least eighty per cent., came to Christ in the 'teen years, and sixty per cent. of Sunda School scholars pass out of the schfood without having been led to Christ. Educational education is a process of years of teaching and training for service. There should be Sunday School ingathering, rallying, home visitation, and community service. Teacher training with definite courses of study, prepared lessons, definite preparations for decision or witnessing day. Christ had only twelve disciples, some rather unpromising at first. Christ's method was teaching of groups, but in the majority of cases. He dealt with the individual. The speaker urged the teachers to begin at once to prepare their pupils for decision day, to be held perhaps in the spring.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh also gave a helpful and earnest address on Sunday School work, as did also Rev. J. E. Glover.

Mrs. (Rev.) J. E. Glover rendered a solo in her usual pleasing voice.

A hearty vote of thanks was moved by Mr. G. A. Kingston, seconded by Mr. F. W. SPLENDID CONCERT BY PARK ST. CHOIR

VOICES, WELL TRAINED, HEARD TO GOOD ADVANTAGE LAST NIGHT.

Last evening the Park street Baptist choir delighted their audience with a splendid programme of instrumental and vocal numbers.

The Rev. Mr. Morrow occupied the chair in a very able manner and showed a keen interest in the talent displayed by the choir.

Mr. Hartshorn sang "The Trumpeter" in good voice. Miss Norma Moore and Mr. B. Robinson held the audience spellbound while they played the "Poet and Peasant" overture as a piano duet. An encore was demanded and cheerfully responded to with "Whelemeau," a very pretty number indeed. "Mr. A. Lee very ably sang "My Task," and "Star of Bethlehem" in a fine tenor voice. Mr. Hartshorn's splendid violin solo, "Berceause," held the attention of the audience ,as also did "Gavotte," his encore number.

After the above numbers had been rendered the choir presented the Christmas cantata, "The Light of the World," (by Fred Holton), opening with "Thy Light is Come" by the whole choir, followed by the ladies' voices in "Shine Splendor Divine." The whole choir here joined in with "Thy Light Everlasting," followed by a soprano solo, "The Name of Jesus" by Miss Doris Pemberton, whose clear notes and mellow tones were greatly appreciated. "Sing, O Heaven," a duet by Mr. M. Dunkley and Mr. J. Iredale, was enthusiastically received.

Miss Pemberton handled the solo and obligato in "And There Were Shepherds" with a strong clear voice. "Glory to God in the Highest" by the choir, introduced a bass solo by Mr. W. H. Moore, "Now When Jesus Was Born," in which he demonstrated that his clear, deep voice has lost none of its melody. The next number, "Wonderful Baby Jesus," a contralto solo by Miss L. Wade, with the choir in chorus, was one of the strong numbers of the evening. Her sweet solo with the choir humming was quite entrancing. Then followed "Seek Ye the Lord" and the final chorus, "The Light of the World" by the whole choir.

From beginning to finish this cantata was perfect in every detail, and as the voices were lifted in song it seemed as if the very roof responded with a loud "Amen."

Mr. B. Robinson, the organist and choir leader, who had spent much time and energy in preparing this event, is to be highly complimented on the splendid showing of the choir throughout the entire programme.

CITY ANGLICAN S. S. TEACHERS ORGANIZE

The Anglican Sunday School teachers of this city organised at a meeting held in St. John's Parish Hall last night, following an enjoyable banquet. The Anglican Teachers' Association of Peterborough was formed, and the following officers elected:

President, Mr. B. B. Morden; vice-president, Mrs. R. Denne; secretary-treasurer, Miss Bonnycastle.

There were 200 Sunday School workers present, and they were addressed by one of Toronto's leading Anglican ministers, Rev. Dr. Hiltz.

The Association was organised amid great enthusiasm, and the officers feel that by discussing the best ways and means of Bible instruction much good can be accomplished.

SAYS NEWFOUNDLAND DOES NOT WANT UNION

ST. JOHN'S Nfld., Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Commenting on a recent addres of Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, missionary physician of Labrador, delivered at Toronto, advocating the adoption of Newfoundland by Canada, the St. John's Evening Telegram says editorially,—

"The issue of Confederation is not by any means a live one with the people of this country. Even if it were they would roundly and soundly resent interference or dictation from any person upon a matter so thoroughly domestic in its solution The evil of the publicity given to such addresses as that made at Toronto by Dr. Grenfell, lies in the fact that a whole continent through its newspapers, which are supplied by pres agencies with news of this character, gets the impression that Newfoundland desires union with Canada; an impression strengthened by press agencies with news of this the man who makes the assertion. To be clear on this particular point let us make it known to Dr. Grenfell and a others who may be inclined to hold similar opinions to those expressed by him at Toronto, that Newfoundland does not desire to be adopted by Canada; has no inclination for the process, but when such time arrives, as may seem opportune for union or to carry on as at present, according to circumstances, the people of Newfoundland and they alone will work out and settle the future political destiny of the country without advice from any person, whether gratuitous or paid for.

SAILED FOR FRANCE

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press).— Marshal Foch sailed for France to-day on the liner, Paris.

"IRISH AND CANADIAN POEMS"

With a clear and smoothly-flowing vocabulary, an optimistic outlook and a limpid muse which colors his charming verses with springtime freshness, Michael A. Hargadon gives his "Irish and Canadian Poems" to a public which cannot fail to appreciate the sweetness and clarity of his singing.

Although many of the poems speak of Ireland, the poet's birthplace, there is an absence of that pessimistic outlook which characterizes so many of the Celtic song-birds. His is the Ireland, perhaps, of a newer day, and although the Celtic fire and mysticism is not apparent to any extent there is the unfailing plaint of the patriot in the cry,

"I wish I were in Ireland now,
For I am tired of exile ways."

and the concluding verse of "Irish Roads":

"The foreign roads are strange and long,
And exiled eves must often fill
For sight of long white roads that wind
Like ribbons round an Irish hill."

There is a homely and endearing touch to the "Irish Country School," where is described the antics of,

"The lads with tattered garments and the fair Bright Celtic faces and the curling hair."

and a wonderful tribute to the beauty of his native land in the musical stanzas of "Sligo Bay." Celtic imagination and a Celtic grasp of moving words are evidenced in the description of the old churchyard, "By Colga Lake."

Mr. Hargadon has dedicated many of his shorter efforts to his fallen soldier friends of Montreal, his Canadian home, but here again are no very mournful measures, but a peaceful note of glad resurrection running through the memorial phrases. He immortalizes the beauty of "Banff" and "Lake Louise," in poems dedicated to their honor, saying of the latter:

"This lake is God's best picture; that is why
He hung it on the mountains at the sky
And set it in so beautiful a frame."

And his "Poems to Stella," to whom the book is dedicated, are little models of beautiful poetic sentiment. "Stella" and "Remembrance in Absence" are tuneful examples of a lover's rhapsodies. "Broken Buds" and "You Are Not Old" are two of the prettiest reflective pieces; a bit from the latter:

"Stars are not old when half way they have trod
The highland walks of God:
While in your eyes the stars we may behold
You are not old."

The charming little volume, with its songs of the shamrock and the maple leaf, is done on heavy cream paper with a leaf-brown attractive binding, and includes some beautiful views of Irish and Canadian scenery, and some fine cuts of several of Montreal's fallen war heroes. It is published by the Modern Printing Company, 39 Dowd street, Montreal, post free, for $1.00.

PETERBORO EXHIBITION PLANT SHOWS INVESTMENT OF $40,000

APPRAISAL MADE BY W. H. BARRY TABULATES ESTIMATED VALUE OF ALL THE PERMANENT IMPROVEMENTS MADE BY THE EXHIBITION BOARD—MEETING LAST NIGHT PREPARED FOR THE ANNUAL MEETING TO BE HELD IN JANUARY.

The present investment in Peterborough's Exhibition Park amounts to $40,723.60, according to the estimate of W. H. Barry, architect, who at the request of the Board prepared a statement setting forth the value of the exhibition plant, including buildings, grandstand, everything in fact that has been built on the grounds through the efforts of the directors, with the assistance of the public. This information was given to the Fair Board at last night's meeting. A glance around the crowded room in the Chamber of Commerce left the impression that every director was present, and the spirit of enthusiasm pervaded the assembly as palpably as on the eve of an exhibition when everyone is naturally keyed up and waiting for what the morrow and the day after that will bring.

Mr. R. Denne presided, and whether from habit or in the knowledge that Santa Claus is going to bring the Exhibition something special this year, although he may not arrive promptly on Christmas eve, Mr. Denne remarked at one stage of the meeting, "greater, grander and better than ever." In other words Mr. Denne and his Board work at the Fair, not around harvest time, or after the summer holidays, but the whole year round. Just now they are preparing for the annual meeting which will be held in the third week in January, and in spite of the fact that the Fair has not yet emerged from the financial woods the directors are seized with the idea that things are soon going to break their way faster than they have been experting.

As a matter of fact there are one or two doves about to be let loose from the ark, but nothing will be said about them, especially about the likeliest of the brace, until it comes back with something substantial. That will be time enough to pass the good word around, according to the opinion of the Board leaders.

Herb Cox May Help.

Mr. Herbert C. Cox, of Toronto, was in the city yesterday, and during the afternoon called upon Mr. Denne "to kid me about being licked," the President ingenuously remarked with a good-natured laugh. After he had gone Mr. Denne called up R. H. Turner, vice-president of the Board, and together they started after Mr. Cox, and overtaking him told him that the Exhibition Park needed a new and modern judges' stand. To Mr. Cox's enquiry, Mr. Denne replied that it would cost in the neighborhood of $700 and asked ed him if he would consider the plans of one if they were prepared. Mr. Cox said he would be glad to look over the plans when they were sent to him, which is regarded as almost an assurance that a new judge's stand will be a gift to the Board and to the city from an old Peterborough boy, whose long residence in Toronto has not obliterated the memories and the associations of the old town.

This Year's Results.

The detailed statement of the Peterborough Agricultural Exhibition's finances will be presented at the annual meeting, but a foreword of the situation was given the drectors last night. This year's fair showed a surplus of $4.032, but against it must be placed the expenditure in permanent improvements such as the addition to the grand stand and the new cattle barn, accommodation that was needed for spectators and exhibitors. These were the bulkiest items, but there were others such as the planting of trees, re-arrangement of the sheep and swine pens and other fixtures, to meet which the directors arranegd for a loan to cover the overdraft.

All Members Invited.

It was decided last night that invitations will be sent by letter and through newspaper announcements to every member of the Exhibition association requesting them to attend the annual meeting in order that the annual business shall be transacted as in the past, with the full approval and endorsation of all those who are directly interested in the Fair through their common membership. The election of officers and of a new Board of Directors will be, as usual, one of the important matters at the annual meeting, and with a big attendance it is hoped to begin the new year with all the energy and strength of personnel that can be mustered.

It is hard for to keep the children from taking cold, they will run out of doors not properly wrapped, or have too much clothing on and get overheated and cool off too suddenly, they get their feet wet kick off the clothes at night; the mother cannot watch them all the time so what is she going to do

I have tried different remedies, but I seem to get the best results from Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I have no difficulty in giving it to them as they like it. I always have at least one bottle in the house."

LABOR SHIFT SYSTEM IS NOT A SUCCESS

The labour shift system has not been a great success, The Examiner was informed. Just as the men get used to the outside work, after, in some cases months of inactivity, they are laid off and another gang has to be taken on and initiated into the mysteries of sewer digging. And so the educational process will go on ad infinitum until all the ten gangs are covered, and if any work then remains the first gangs will be taken on again. They should not need instruction, but it is likely in eight weeks much of the education will have evaporated.

There are at present thirty men working on Walnut street sewer, the only one which any work has yet been done. In a few days the major portion of the work will be finished and connections will take another fortnight to put i The works department will then go on with some of the other work arranged for, probably in East City. Altogether, there is about a mile of sewers to be laid. With indications of a heavy snowfall coming the Board of Works is dreading winter weather, and fear the frost will go farther in the ground which is already frozen for a foot below the surface.

During a recent by-election in England the headmaster of the Hornsey County School invited both candidates to address a meeting of his teachers and scholars. The educational authorities forbade the meeting.

CO-ED LEFT TO DIE AS MOTORIST FLEES

Hope College Student Found Unconcious in Road.

HOLLAND, Mich., Dec. 14.—City and county authorities are still seeking to establish the indentity of the motorist who ran down and fatally injured Miss Delia Heneveld, a Hope College freshman, on the Michigan Pike early Satrduay evening, and left her by the roadside to die.

Miss Heneveld, 17 years old, the daughter of Henry Heneveld, of Fremont, lived with her grandmother three miles from the city, on the pike, and walked to and from the college daily. She left her home about 6 p.m. Saturday to come to the city to shop.

son to represent the Roman Catholics of the city on the Board of the Children's Aid Society, to take the place of the members of this church formerly on the Board.

Dr. D. C. King read a letter received by him from the Rotary Club, asking his assistance in the endeavor of the Club to take a survey of the city, in order to ascertain the number of crippled children, whom the Rotary Club desire to assist.

A Baby Farm.

Dr. King also called to the attention of the meeting the condition of an alleged 'baby farm' situated in this city, where babies are housed in conditions which are not conducive to their future health or well-being. The speaker asserted that establishments of this sort should be charged a nominal licensing fee, as is done in Toronto, and the house placed under the supervision of the M.O.H. He thought that the matter should be brought to the attention of the Board of Health or the local Police Department.

Rev. Mr. Malott informed the meeting that this condition had been brought to the notice of the local Social Service Council and this organization is taking steps to investigate matters.

Dr. King was appointed to represent the Children's Aid Society and to work in conjunction with the committee from the Social Service Council in regard to the proposed Juvenile Court to be established here shortly.

The Rotary Club has signified its intention of providing a Christmas treat for the children at the Shelter, and the Kiwanis Club will officiate in this capacity for them at New Year's.

On motion of the ladies, in small recognition of this untiring and faithful service in the interests of the society, a pen will be purchased for the secretary, Mr. John Edgar, and he will also be made an annual allowance for postage.

MOVIES OF ALL STUDENTS A LIFE RECORD FOR PRINCETON UNIVERSITY

PRINCETON, N.J., Dec. 13. — The movies have succeeded in netering the innermost life of Princeton University, and from now on will play an important part in recording the annals of the various classes. Last Fall the class of 1921 conceived the idea of taking pictures of its members for use at reunions in later years, and the present senior class of 1922 has decided to do likewise. It is probable that the plan will be continued by each succeeding class.

The films will provide a permanent record of the men in their undergraduate years, and will include important events during their stay at Princeton. Already 5,000 feet of film have been taken of the football games with Harvard and Yale, the graduation exercises of 1921, and the visits of Dr. Einstein and Marshal Foch.

THE HOME AND SCHOOL COUNCIL

A meeting of the Home and School Council was held in the Board room of the Public Library on Tuesday evening, which was fairly well ttenaded, the President, Mrs. S. T. Medd in the chair.

Some very interesting information has been received with regard to a "milk campaign" in the schools and Mr. E. H. Stonehouse of the Ontario Dairy Council is to be invited to address a public meeting in January, on this question.

The meeting heartily endorsed Mrs. W. R. Morris and Mrs. Arthur Stevenson as candidates for the Board of Education.

Mr. Mowat gave a short but very interesting talk on Canadian authors and read extracts from poems, he urged upon his audience to read more Canadian poetry.

Dr. A. E. Marty of Toronto, will address a public meeting in March.

A very good list of local speakers on educational matters has been prepared, for information regarding these, apply to the Secretary, Mrs. Frederick, 20 Benson ave.

NATIONAL LEAGUE BASEBALL GAMES

Two hundred and forty-five players took part in games for the National League clubs during the past season. Of this number, one hundred and seven players engaged in fifteen or more games, while sixty-eight played in less than fifteen contests.

National League batting history of the previous year repeated itself, as both Roger Hornsby and the St. Louis Cardinals won leading honors for the second successive year.

Hornsby's batting mark of .397 is the highest average since 1899, when Edward Delehanty of Philadelphia led the league with an average of .408. It is a net gain of twenty-seven percentage points over his mark of 1920, while the St. Louis club, which led in club batting with a percentage of .308, improved its mark of 1920 by nineteen percentage points.

Rogers Hornsby made most hits, 235, led in two-base hits with 44, and tied with Ray Powell of Boston for the most three-baggers with 18.

Carson Bigbee of Pittsburg is the leading one-base hitter with 161 singles, and George Kelly of New York with 23 home runs, made the most four-base hits.

Like last year, Rogers Hornsby again leads the long hitters, with 378 total bases, for an extra-base percentage of .630.

Six players made two hundred or more hits, as follows: Rogers Hornsby and Austin McHenry of St. Louis, 225 and 201 hits, respectively; Frank Frisch and Emil Meusel of New York, 211 and 201 hits, respectively; Carson Bigbee of Pittsburg, 204 hits, and James Johnston of Brooklyn, 203 hits. Not since 1899, when seven players made 200 hits, have so many National Leaguers reached this high mark.

Eight players joined the "Century Run Club" in 1921, as follows: Hornsby led with 131 runs; Frank Fisch and David Bancroft each scored 121; Raymond Powell, 114; George Burns, 111; James Johnston, 104, and Carson Bigbee, 100.

Frank Fisch of New York was easily the leading base stealer with 49 stolen bases.

Milton Stock of St. Louis led at sacrificing with 36 sacrifice hits.

Ivan Olson of Brooklyn faced pitching the most, going to the bat 652 times.

Six players engaged in every game their clubs played, as follows: Hornsby, 154; Frisch, Bancroft, Boeckel and Bohne, 153 each, and James Johnston, 152.

A tie exists for the longest streak of safe hitting in consecutive games, as Carson Bigbee and Joseph Rapp both maintained batting streaks in 23 successive games.

Nine players made five hits in a game, as follows: John Smith of St. Louis, twice; William Southworth, Walter Barbare and Fred Nicholson of Boston; Max Carey and Walter Maranville of Pittsburg, Frank Frisch of New York, Thos. Griffith of Brooklyn and George Maisel of Chicago.

Players tallied four runs per game on twelve occasions, as follows: Rogers Hornsby and William Southworth, each twice; Raymond Powell, Thomas Daly, David Bancroft, Frank Frisch, George Cutshaw, Max Carey, Carson Bigbee and John Smith of St. Louis.

Rogers Hornsby hit for the most total bases in a game, 11, making a three-bagger and two home runs on June 7.

Davis Robertson of Pittsburg by batting in eight runs on August 19, equalled the National League runs-batted-in record, held jointly by Bransfield of Pittsburg and Cravath of Philadelphia.

PURSUIT RACE ON THE ROLLERS

FOUR OF THE CITY'S FASTEST SKATERS WILL BATTLE ON FRIDAY NIGHT.

There has been much argument as to the fastest roller skater in Peterborough and a contest has been arranged for Friday night at the Arena that promises to do much to settle the question. The four entrants are Harry Cobb, Percy Parrington, Joe Dineen and Harvey Staunton, and the contest will be a pursuit race. Each contestant will start from a different quarter post and each will automatically be eliminated as soon as he is caught by the skater coming from behind him. This should make a memorable battle. There will be an admission charge of 10c for spectators.

BOYCOTT MINOR BALL LEAGUES

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(By Canadian Press).—A proposal to moycott Class AA and Class A minor baseballl leagues, in so far as the purchase of their players was concerned, was made at the annual National League meeting yesterday by Charls H. Ebbets, owner of the Brooklyn Club. Other League officials were said to have favored the idea after discussing "prohibitive" prices asked by the minors for star performers, and suggested that the matter be placed before the point. major leagues' meeting Thursday.

"We thought at first," said one club owner, "that we could fix a limit price to be paid by majors for minor league players, but decided that this would not help matters. The only way to get around high prices is to adopt Mr. Ebbets' suggestion and refuse to buy players, at any price, from leagues refusing to draft."

A "Stone Wall"

The suggegstion of the Brooklyn owner, if adopted by the majors, would place a 'stone wall' about the minor stars even higher than that built by the dropping of the draft, according to some of the International League owners, who finished up their annual meeting to-day. They asserted that a boycott would serve to antagonize the minors and caus a breaking up of the friendly relations now existant. Commissioner Landis, they said, would hardly stand for such a condition.

A discussion of all matter regarding the League's relations with the minors was postponed until to-day. The 154-game schedule was favored for 1922. The opening date was suggested as April 12, subject to the approval of the American League.

"THE SHEIK"
At the Capitol last time to-night

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

Tonight is the best chance to see the Rex Stock Company in the "Mystery show." Of course it is no longer a mystery after you listen to the clever dialogue and watch the splendid performance which Mr. and Mrs. Snelgrove and their excellent support given. It was a foregone conclusion that the audiences would like the show—nothing more attractive than this bill has been done in a long time and if some of the situations didn't go over, it was not the fault of the actors. The scenery the detail and everything connected with the play was worth while. It makes us wish that Rex would more often produce works by such men as Clyde Fitch and that we would have the opportunity to see Miss Vaughn at her best. In a role mingling comedy and pathos, reading lines wherein the slightest mistep would ruin the meaning, Miss Vaughn gave a performance which delighted her admirers and added fresh laurels to her already large share.

In his curtain speech Mr.. Snelgrove told the audience that a holiday for stage folk is just as necessary as for everybody else, so the week of December the 19th will find the Rex Stock Company enjoying a well deserved rest and an opportunity to prepare for the great Christmas festival.. On December the twenty-sixth, the Grand Theatre will reopen with one of the funniest of recent farces entitled, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" Mr.. and Mrs.. Snelgrove and their entire company, wish to thank the people of Peterboro for their patronage and extend to everyone their heartiest wishes for a Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year! LAURA

AT THE ROYAL.

The reader's attention is drawn to the complete change of pictures for to-morrow at the Royal Theatre. There have been in drama and comedy, both feature and super-feature pictures, but to-morrow's programme includes the first Western super-feature yet produced. This is a wonderful picture in seven reels, featuring Harry Carey in "The Fox." Most of this thrilling picture was taken in the very heart of the Mojaie desert. You see in action two troops of the celebrated 11th U. S. Cavalry and a thousand horsemen sweep across the desolate mirage-haunted face of the desert. You see that terrible product of the war, T.N.T., used to dislodge the troops. You see the heroes' escape by a subterranean river. In fact, you see a struggle against fearful odds, in a fearsome country, for the eventual triumph of right over wrong. There are also seven other first run reels, including Historic Halifax, "No Clothes to Guide Him," "Nervy Dentist," and "The Movie Trail." Here is a programme that would cost you half a dollar to see at any other theatre. The Royal is a Peterborough-owned theatre, and every cent, outside the film service, remains right in Peterborough. By this time our patrons have been able to see that our service, although given at such a small price of admission, as consistent with present hard times, is within reach of every one, and cannot be surpassed at any theatre in the Dominion.

"THE SON OF WALLINGFORD"

A Million Dollar Production; Spectacular, Stupendous, Thrilling; Greatest Photodrama of the Year.

At the Royal Last Time Tonight

"The Son of Wallingford" is a more than usual merit. It stamps the beginning of 10 per cent. efficiency in manufacturing motion pictures. George Randolph Chester, the author of the story, has been studying the film industry protractedly and for two years has been at work at th Vitagraph studios in the capacity of editor-in-chief working out his theories and preparing for the day when he should direct this big production.

The story "The Son of Wallingford" is the result of about twenty years thought and planning. It was written by Mr. Chester, collaborating with his wife, Lillian.

When the first Wallingford stories were being taken Mr. Chester conceived the idea of giving the older Wallingford a son. This youth to have the earmarks of criminality but to be the child of a straight living, honest mother. In the earlier stories the boy was introduced and shown growing to manhood. Then Mr. Chester commenced this work which he feels to be the greatest he has ever produced. Here he proves that physical attributes play small part in the character of the man. Having written the novel, Mr Chester prepared for continuity. This consists of 1505 scenes and 80 sets. It was no small task and the manuscript was exceptionally bulky.

Then commenced the work of scheduling each scene, securing the location, planning for the construction of many massive sets and engaging the cast. Mr. Chester was determined that everything should be ready before he started the actual work of filming the production. His locations were all selected with great care. The town of Whittier, California, was engaged for a whole week because it was best adapted to the action. A lake, measuring 500 by 2,000 feet was constructed at a cost of $20,000 on the shore near Hollywood. Massive gates and huge pumps controlled the supply of

When the lake was erected, ten huge tanks, 12x14 feet were filled with crude oil. The action around this lake is exceptionally spectacular The oil from the tanks was dumped into the lake, making a coat of oil about a foot thick. This was ignited and huge flames swept up in whirlpools twice the size of a man's water.

The fire action was the best ever filmed. The lake burned for ten days steady and precaution, a trained force of fire fighters was stationed at various points around the barrier of the lake.

Having secured all his locations and prepared for every emergency, Mr. Chester selected his cast. He interviewed several hundred players before securing those that were to appear in the production. J. Rufus Wallingford, the well loved schemer, is portrayed by Wilfrid North. Mr. North is duplicate of J. Rufus, and in make-up he appears exactly like the drawings which have illustrated the Wallingford stories for a dozen years.

George Webb, a famous screen player ,was selected for Blackie Daw, and gives a remarkable portrayal of this character. Every characteristic described by the author in his stories is delineated by Mr. Webb.

Jimmy Walingford, the son and a new character to the Wallingford story, is portrayed by Tom Gallery. Here again Mr. Chester showed his rare judgment in selecting his player, for Gallery has the chief essential to the role—a lobeless ear.

Another new character that of Mary Curtis, the heroine, is portrayed by Priscilla Bonner. No one is better suited for the role than this daint little miss, who has won favor with countless film fans.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Capitol offers a wonderful week-end show. Dainty Dorothy Waters, the clever little film star, is to remain all week. Daly and Larrivee, wonderful harmony singers, are also on the bill.

Commencing to-morrow night and for the balance of this week, the Capitol will present a wonderful vaudeville programme and a great picture show from short reel subjects and comedies to feature picture. Dainty Dorothy Waters, the clever little film star, who made such a sensational hit with the public the first 3 days of this week, has been re-engaged to remain up to Saturday night, and a big special Saturday matinee will be given in order to give every child in this city an opportunity to meet this pretty and talented little actress, who is not only a remarkable entertainer for her years, but has appeared in many of the largest film productions with the world's biggest stars. Daly and Larrivee, another splendid double act, harmony singers, with remarkable voices, from grand opera to jazz. Everywhere on the Paramount circuit these excellent entertainers have been a solid hit.

Not since John Drew was in his prime on the legitimate stage has the theatre seen a light comedy performance given with a suavity and finesse that distinguished Bert Lytell's screen appearance in "The Man Who," an adaptation by Arthur Zellner of Lloyd Osborne's Saturday Evening Post story. As Beddy Mills, the man who tries to break the shoe trust by starting a barefoot movement in the social world, Mr. Lytell was a source of constant joy to the discriminating. He obtained his effects with economy of method and subtly artistic restraint, but the effects stirred the risibilities of the audience, which greeted the production with gurgling enthusiasm. Mr. Lytell made of Beddy a lovable human being, poignant in his moments of tenderness.

"The Man Who" is a Maxwell Karger production for Metro, and never has Mr. Karger directed a performance that was more finely done down to the smallest detail. Such well-known stars as Lucy Cotton and Virginia Valli appeared in Mr. Lytell's support, Miss Cotton ravishingly beautiful as the New York aristocrat for whom Beddy tries to become a Man Who, and Miss Valli adorable as the shoe magnate's daughter. Others in the cast were: Frank Currier, Tammany Young, Fred. Warren, Clarence J. Elmer, William Roselle, Mary Louise Beaton and Frank Straver. The photography is by Arthur Martinelli and the art interiors by M. P. Staulcup.

This splendid feature and the great vaudeville bill will complete a wonderful show for the last 3 days of this week at just the usual Capitol prices.—Fan-Fan.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

All of these great questions must remain open to debate, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis having answered none of them in his decision in the case of Babe Ruth, Bob Meusel, and Bill Piercy, three members of the New York Yankees, "a contestant for the world's championship in 1921," as the Judge aptly puts it.

The first question seems more of a puzzle than ever. Babe Ruth has been weighing himself every half-hour since the decision without arriving at any conclusion, but inclined to an opinion it is a draw, and that he is entitled to a return match to a decision.

* * *

Babe must pay $3,362, his share of the world series money. That means two fillings of his gasoline tank, or one week's pay in his new vaudeville act entitled "Pretty Baby; or the Bambina's Revenge." But that isn't the hard part—no, sir. The hard part is this:

* * *

George Herman Ruth is sentenced to spend the early spring of 1922 motoring!

* * *

Judge Landis has barred him from baseball from 12th April to 20th May. He can write baseball stories for the Christy Walsh syndicate during that time, but no playing.

* * *

Bill Piercy, Yankee pitcher, will be kept from the box during that time by Judge Landis' order, too, but as Bill has always been kept from the box for much longer periods by the Yankee managers, it won't mean much of a hardship.

* * *

If Piercy gets into a game by 20th August he will write Judge Landis a personal letter of thanks for having called the manager's attention to him.

* * *

The chief sufferers from the Landis decision will be the newspaper photographers. They put in the entire season from April to October taking group pictures of Babe Ruth in front of various stands, and their snapping average for the 1922 season will be greatly cut down with the Bambino off the field for the first thirty-eight days.

* * *

In fact, Izzie Kaplan, the world's greatest snapshotter, feels that his future has been ruined already by the Federal Judge.

* * *

"All chances of me hanging up a new snapshotting record for my 1922 playing season is to pieces knocked," said Izzie. "Last year I took it 10,345,277 snapshots of Babe Ruthsky. This beated my 1920 record by 1,367 pictures. Next season I hoped to knock it out 11,000,000 snapshots of Ruthsky, but if he can't play it a single game until Decorations Day—ooy! it's a ruination."

* * *

Judge Landis, we forgot to explain, imposes the sentences because the Babe went barnstorming after the world series. There's where justice goes wrong again. The Babe at least got a few hits on the barnstorming tour, while he struck out most every time at bat in the world series. He should have been punished for not going barnstorming sooner.

* * *

By taking the Bambino's trusty bat out of play for thirty-eight days the Judge has done more for the cause of disarmament than all the sessions of the Washington Conference.

* * *

After all, nobody suffered through Babe's excursion into rural baseball. The real crime came when he went on the stage and tried to act.

* * *

If Hizzoner ever drops into a vaudeville house while the Babe is on the bill he will jump the fine to five or ten million, and issue shooting licenses to all playgoers.

* * *

"Which is the bigger, Babe Ruth or baseball?" mused the Bambino as he read the Landis decision. "I refuse to answer on the ground it might incriminate or degrade me," but—say—I can tell you who is a lot narrower than either."

LAKEVIEW CLUB FOR CITY LEAGUE

EMMETT SHEEHAN WILL PLAY FOR THE NEWLY ORGANIZED HOCKEY CLUB.

Organization of the Lakeview Hockey Club, the new entry in the City Hockey League, has been completed, with James Skinner as President, Lew LeBarr, Sr., Vice-President, Eddie Wright secretary-treasurer, and F. D. Craig manager. The club's colors are red and white.

Emmett Sheehan, who was with De Laval last season, will be seen with the Lakeviews if he is in a position to play hockey here this coming winter.

168-GAME BASEBALL SCHEDULE ADOPTED

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Officials of the International League adopted a 168-game schedule, opening April 19 and closing September 23, at their meeting here yesterday.

Opening games will be played at Newark, Baltimore, Jersey City and Reading.

A suggestion that the four northern teams be permitted to train for one week prior to the opening of the season in parks of the southern teams, was adopted.

The price of waivers was increased from $1,000 to $2,000 and a rule was adopted which will prohibit the withdrawal of waivers once they have been asked.

BASEBALL

George Mogridge has less stuff than most of the American League southpaws, yet is one of the most effective. He can think.

Now that Harry Heilmann has showed the way to Ty Cobb in the Winter League, wonder if Ty will consult Harry on managerial moves next season.

"Donie" Bush has an idea that he would like to take a whirl at managing a minor league club, when his big league days are over.

One of the mysteries of the American League is Howard Enmke. The Detroit start has a world of stuff, yet fails to win consistently. A change of scenery might work wonders.

The St. Louis Cardinals are being strongly touted to win the National League pennant next year. Some of the National League experts insist Manager Rickey is the club's biggest handicap.

Basket ball is a strenuous sport. It seems rather foolish for two star players like "Rabbit" Maranville and Frankie Frisch to indulge in.

One hears little about Bill Doak of the St. Louis Cardinals, because Bill is a modest, unassuming chap. However, he is one of the most effective pitchers in the National League.

Too bad Shortstop Frankie O'Rourke of the Washington club has a weak throwing arm, otherwise he fills the bill. A poor arm keeps him from completing many a double play.

GREATEST YET, SAYS McGRAW

NEW YORK, December 14. — John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, expressed the belief today that Heinie Groh, his $100,000 infield acquisition, would make the team's infield the greatest he has ever managed.

"I will place Groh on third, of course, for Heinie has no superior anywhere as a third sacker. Frisch will be moved to second, where he belongs and would rather play. He will be the same shining light, too. With Kelly on first and Bancroft at short—well, wait and see.

"Rawlings, one of the heroes in the world series, will be used as utility infielder, and we will have a feeling of security with Johnny ready for duty at a moment's notice.

OUTLOOK BRIGHTER IN NEWFOUNDLAND

ST. JOHN'S Nfld., Dec. 13.—With big shipments of fish to European markets during the past two months and better prices than prevailed at the close of the fishing season, Newfoundland is experiencing a new feeling of hopefulness, and the outlook is much brighter than it has been since the general business depression made its appearance Some months ago little demand for fish was anticipated from the European markets, but latterly Newfoundland's large customers, such as Spain, Portugal and Italy, have been showing a capacity to absorb our fish, which is highly encouraging to the trade. In the case of Spain the unexpected change in the market has been largely due to imposition of a high duty on Norwegian fish in retaliation for the Norwegian embargo on Spanish wines. The Greek market, while not satisfactory is showing signs of improvement. The West Indian markets are developing a better tone, but Brazil is still backward and few cargoes are going forward there.

THOSE CHILDREN

"Mummy, I'm goin' to give Auntie Maud my spade and pail.

"Whatever for, Willie?"

"So that she can kick it".

"Yes, Daddy said we should have a lot of money if only auntie would kick the bucket!"—Edinburgh Scotsman.

ASSAULT CASE HEARD IN LINDSAY.

LINDSAY, December 14. — The Verulam assault case was continued in Court on Monday afternoon, when the case against Baden Pogue was heard. Considerable of the evidence that had been adduced in the case against Ford Brooks stood for the second case.

The accused himself, in testifying, practically admitted the assault, stating in defence that the man Kelly had been paying unwelcome attention to his sister, a seventeen-year-old girl. The father also testified to this, and stated that Kelly had been warned, through a lawyer, to keep away from the Pogue family and home.

In arguing the case, Mr. Stewart submitted that the man Brooks acted as any ordinary man would under similar circumstances. As soon as he found out that the man was Kelly, he backed out of the affair.

Mr. Stewart stated that he did not believe that the evidence of the witnesses, Roy Lambert and Constable Jones, was reliable. They had repeated what tney declared to be a statement of Brooks to the effect that he had kicked Kelly and held him while Pogue had pummelled him. Mr. Stewart declared his belief that Pogue had sufficient provocation to justify his actions, although he believed that he had lost his self-control temporarily.

Mr. Anderson submitted that the men did not have any excuse for taking the law into their own hands. He defied anybody to show where any Court of law had condoned that sort of thing.

Judge Swayze stated that he would give judgment in the case on Thursday morning at eleven o'clock.

PETERBOROUGH MALE VOICE CHOIR.

The weekly practice of this choir was held last night in the Greene Music Studio, when about forty-five of the members turned out to enjoy a good two hours' singing. Under the capable baton of Mr. J. H. Renwick, it must be said that great progress has been made since the first practice this season. The music selected lends itself to the training undergone, bringing out the main particulars in choral singing — combination of voices and the finer tonal effects. Last night's practice was one of the best yet held, and augurs well for the appearance of the choir in its second annual concert. And with the Christmas vacation now on for the next two Tuesday evenings, it is hoped the members will make a point of being present at the first practice of the New Year, on 3rd January, and every succeeding practice. Attendance counts for the privilege of being in the choir ranks on the evening of the concert next spring.

A MATTER OF TASTE

"Don't you wish you was a bird, Jimmy, and could fly way up in the sky?" mused Little Jean dreamiiy.

"Naw!" scorned Jimmy. "I'd ruther be a eephant and squirt water through my nose."

There is talk of reorganizing the old New York State baseball league.

"Derby Day" Bill Clymer, is mentioned to pilot one of the outfits.

Keep Yourself Fit And Enjoy Good Health

In these twentieth century days of hustle and bustle, hurry and worry, it is absolutely essential that you keep yourself fit all the time. If you do not enjoy HEALTH you are in no condition to cope with the world. The present-day man or woman must be healthy. CHIROPRACTIC is your safeguard. When given a fair chance it will make you healthy and keep you healthy. This seems a large contract, but try it and find out for yourself.

WHAT IS CHIROPRACTIC?

It is a health science which is in harmony with natural laws, because Chiropractic is founded on the fact that interrupted transmission of mental impulses causes abnormal functioning of organs and tissues and that this interruption of transmission is the result of pressure upon nerves where they leave the spinal column. Chiropractic has restored hundreds of thousands of sick people to health. It is for you and yours; what it has done for others it will doubtless do for you if given a fair chance. Why not give it a fair chance? A system that is so natural cannot fail to be good.

WE WILL GLADLY EXPLAIN CHIROPRACTIC TO YOU.

GERMAN STAMPS INDUSTRIAL DESIGNS.

The intention of Germany to forge ahead in the industrial world is depicted in an emblematical way on her new 60 pfennig postage stamps, a number of which have lately been received in Peterboro. The head of Germania, which formerly had such a prominent place on German stamps has been replaced by a group of three blacksmiths striking at a horseshoe held on an anvil by a boy. The design is quite complicated. A figure 60 appears in the top left hand corner and along the bottom are the words "Deutsches Reich." The stamp is slate colored. A figure of a blacksmith has no doubt been chosen because in Germany as in many other countries tradition depicts him as being an upright, industrious and strong man. In addition there are many old German proverbs connected with "smithies" and having the word "forge" as the keyword.

"ALWAYS A WINNER" WITH PUNCH BOARD USED HERE

CHIEF OF POLICE NEWHALL SEES NO REASON FOR PROHIBITING THE PUNCH BOARDS NOW BEING DISPLAYED IN THE LOCAL STORES.

FINES IN TORONTO

For selling "punch boards' alleged under the law to be a device for conducting a lottery, a Richmond Hill man yesterday was fined $10 and costs in Toronto county police court. Last week a number of merchants of Richmond Hill were fined $10 and costs for operating a "punch board." At their insistence the distributor of the offending board was prosecuted.

Peterboro is well acquainted with the "punch boards" that are offending the morals of the Richmond Hill residents.

In Many Stores Here.

Practically every tobacco store, grocery and novelty shop has one and they are said to be quite a business adjunct. Every punch should disclose a number and chocolates ranging from a 5c bar to a $1.50 box are given to customers.

In an interview this morning Chief of Police S. Newhall stated that he found no moral offence in the board, and there had been no complaints made to him. Technically he believed there was a breach of the act, but unless there was an agitation he gave the Examiner to understand tradesmen operating these boards and the distributors would not be hailed into court.

Always a Winner.

"There is always a winner," the Chief said. "The odds are even so it is fair enough in that way. There was quite an agitation in Campbelford over them and we did not let them operate here till Detective William Meagher and myself had the distributor bring a board up, and we punched out all the holes. We found that there was a winner every time with a $1.50 box in the board. You pay ten cents and you get a chocolate bar anyway, with the chance of winning a large box. There's nothing to it.'

Chief Newhall gave the impression that people were too ready to make a mountain out of a molehill.

Stevens and Company, wholesale confectioners, etc., are local distributors of the device. This morning the Examiner was unable to interview Mr. Leslie Stevens, manager of the company, who is travelling in the country.

RESIGNATION IS DEMANDED

MEMBER OF MARTIN CABINET IN SASKATCHEWAN SUBJECT OF PARLIAMENTARY DISCUSSIONS

REGINA, Dec. 15. — (Canadian Press.)—Hon. George Langley's resignation from the Martin Cabinet and Legislature was demanded by Premier Martin because Mr. Langley in July was charged with attempting to interfere with the course of justice in the Redberry constituency according to correspondence between the Premier and the former Minister of Agricultural Affairs, tabled in the Legislature yesterday. The Premier alleged that Hon. Mr. Langley had endeavored to influence a decision of the magistrate investigating a charge of bribery.

THE PRUDENTIAL IN PETERBORO

The Peterboro District of the Prudential Insurance Company of America Boosts Peterboro.

It must be a great satisfaction to Mr. J. I. Allen, Superintendent of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, who has charge of the Peterboro District, which comprises you might say, Central Ontario with offices in Orillia, Cobourg and Oshawa, to find that the Peterboro District, of which he has control stands No. 53 out of 800 Superintendencies in the United States and Canada, and his district leads the entire Canadian Field standing No. 1. The next district that is near him is Quebec.

The name Peterboro, Ontario, Canada, appearing in the Prudential Weekly Record, which is sent to over 14,000 men in the United States and Canada every week, cannot help but bring the name Peterboro before the people of the United States and Canada. This is certainly a proud position for Mr. Allen to occupy and peaks well for the organization of Insurance men unequalled in the Canadian field.

To-morrow the Peterboro District holds their annual Staff Meeting at which will be present some Home Office representatives and Supt. P. L. McCreath of Kingston and the following Assistant Superintendents and Agents from detached Territory. Assts. J. C. Hughes, Orillia, D. Morris, Oshawa; E. E. White, Cobourg; and Agents S. C. Chatten, and W. A. Black from Barrie; A. G. Day, R. J. Jackson and C. H. Croydon from Orillia; Agents W. O. Bennett, E. Jeffrey and R. R. Bird from Oshawa, A. E. Sturgess from Whitby and S. R. Davey from Bowmanville, J. L. Coffey and W. N. Manley from Cobourg and J. N. Trenouth from Port Hope; W. H. Chapman from Campbellford and E. P. Haynes from Lindsay.

The work done by the Peterboro District of the Prudential Insurance Company of America must certainly have met with the sincere approval of their many friends.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND

BY "SAPPER"

(CYRIL McNEILE)

"Mr. Potts will see you, sir. Will you come this way?"

"Is he alone?" said Hugh, as they were whirled up in the lift.

"Yes, sir. I think he was expecting you."

"Indeed," murmured Hugh. "How nice it is to have one's expectations realised."

He followed his guide along a corridor, and paused outside a door while he went in a room. He heard a murmur of voices, and then the man reappeared.

"This way, sir," he said, and Hugh stepped inside, to stop with an involuntary gasp of surprise. The man seated in the chair was Potts, to all intents and purposes. The likeness was extraordinary, and had he not known that the real article was at Goring he would have been completely deceived himself.

The man waited till the door was closed; then he rose and stepped forward suspiciously.

"I don't know you," he said. "Who are you?"

"Since when has everyone employed by headquarters known one another?" Drummond returned guardedly. "And, incidentally, your likeness to our lamented friend is wonderful. It very nearly deceived even me."

The man, not ill-pleased, gave a short laugh.

"It'll pass, I think. But it's risky. These cursed reporters have been badgering the whole morning. . . And if his wife or somebody comes over, what then?"

Drummond nodded in agreement.

"Quite so. But what can you do?"

"It wasn't like Rosca to bungle in Belfast. He's never left a clue before, and he had plenty of time to do the job properly."

"A name inside a breast-pocket might easily be overlooked," remarked Hugh, seizing the obvious clue.

"Are you making excuses for him?" snarled the other. "He's failed, and failure is death. Such is our rule. Would you have it altered?"

"Most certainly not. The issues are far too great for any weakness. . . ."

"You're right, my friend—you're right. Long live the Brotherhood." He stared out of the window with smouldering eyes, and Hugh preserved a discreet silence. Then suddenly the other broke out again. . . . "Have they killed that insolent puppy of a soldier yet?"

"Er—not yet," murmured Hugh mildly.

"They must find the American at once." The man thumped the table emphatically. "It was important before—at least his money was. Now with this blunder—it's vital."

"Precisely," said Hugh. "Precisely."

"I've already interviewed one man from Scotland Yard, but every hour increases the danger. However, you have a message for me. What is it?"

Hugh rose and casually picked up his hat. He had got more out of the interview than he had hoped for, and there was nothing to be gained by prolonging it. But it struck him that Mr. Potts's impersonator was a man of unpleasant disposition, and that tactically a flanking movement to the door was indicated. And, being of an open nature himself, it is possible that the real state of affairs showed for a moment on his face. Be that as it may, something suddenly aroused the other's suspicions, and with a snarl of fury he sprang past Hugh to the door.

"Who are you?" He spat the words out venomously, at the same time whipping an ugly-looking knife out of his pocket.

Hugh replaced his hat and stick on the table and grinned gently.

"I am the insolent puppy of a soldier, dear old bird," he remarked, watching the other warily. "And if I was you I'd put the tooth-pick away. . . You might hurt yourself——"

As he spoke he was edging, little by little, towards the other man, who crouched snarling by the door. His eyes, grim and determined, never left the other's face; his hands, apparently hanging listless by his sides, were tingling with the joy of what he knew was coming.

"And the penalty of failure is death, isn't it, dear one?" He spoke almost dreamily; but not for an instant did his attention relax. The words of Olaki, his Japanese instructor, were ringing through his brain: "Distract his attention if you can; but, as you value your life, don't let him distract yours."

And so, almost imperceptibly, he crept towards the other man, talking gently.

"Such is your rule. And I think you have failed, haven't you, you unpleasant specimen of humanity? How will they kill you, I wonder?"

It as wat that moment that the man made his mistake. It is a mistake that has nipped the life of many a promising pussy in the bud, at the hands, or rather the teeth, of a dog that knows. He looked away; only for a moment—but he looked away. Just as a cat's nerves give after a while and it looks round for an avenue of escape, so did the crouching man take his eyes from Hugh. And quick as any dog, Hugh sprang.

With his left hand he seized the man's right wrist, with his right he seized his throat. Then he forced him upright against the door and held him there. Little by little the grip of his right hand tightened, till the other's eyes were starting from his head, and he plucked at Hugh's face with an impotent left arm, an arm not long enough by three inches to do any damage. And all the while the soldier smiled gently, and stared into the other's eyes. Even when inch by inch he shifted his grip on the man's knife hand he never took his eyes from his oppoent's face; even when with a sudden gasp of agony the man dropped his knife from fingers which, of a sudden, had become numb, the steady, merciless glance still bored into his brain.

"You're not very clever at it, are you?" said Hugh softly. "It would be so easy to kill you now, and, except for the inconvenience I should undoubtedly suffer, it mightn't be a bad idea. But they know me downstairs, and it would make it so awkward when I wanted to dine here again . . So, taking everything into account, I think——"

There was a sudden lightning movement, a heave and a quick jerk. The impersonator of Potts was dimly conscious of flying through the air, and of hitting the floor some yards from the door. He then became acutely conscious that the floor was hard, and that being winded is a most painful experience. Doubled up and groaning, he watched Hugh pick up his hat and stick, and made for the door. He made a frantic effort to rise, but the pain was too great, and he rolled over cursing, while the soldier, his hand on the door-knob, laughed gently.

THE GAS STOVE TRAY

Nearly all gas plates and many gas stoves have no tray underneath the burners. A tray to catch the dirt and droppings is quite a necessity. On can be made and attached either by the tinner or by the handy man about the house. A tray of galvanized iron may be cut to fit under neath the burners of your stove and a small edge about the tray turned up on the four sides. The tray may be kept in place by two small shelves of strip, galvanized iron, one on each side, of the stove There are many ways of fastening the tray; this point is immaterial, but do have the tray. Its costs is little and the convenience great.

JUMPED FROM MOVING TRAIN SEEKS DAMAGES FOR INJURY

MRS. G. W. HILL, OF HASTINGS, HAD ANKLE WRENCHED AT HASTINGS STATION--HAD LOST TIME GETTING OFF BECAUSE FRONT DOOR LOCKED.

COUNTY COURT CASE

A claim of $500 damages against the G.T.R. for injuries suffered by Mrs. George W. Hill, of Hastings, when she jumped off a train at her home station on May 25th last, was the second case on the docket of the December sittings of the County Court to go to trial. It was begun late yesterday afternoon and was almost completed at the 6 p.m. adjournment. Mr. and Mrs. Hill are joint plaintiffs against the G. T. R. company, Mrs. Hill seeking compensation for the pain she suffered, and Mr. Hill for the loss of his wife's time from their grocery store in which she had assisted him.

G. N. Gordon appeared for plaintiffs and J. P. Pratt of Montreal, for the G.T.R.

Mrs. Hill's Story.

Mrs. Hill, one of the plaintiffs, was called first. She said that on May 25th last she and her husband were returning from Keene to Hastings on the G.T.R. morning train. No one announced the stop as the train approached Hastings.

Plaintiffs started to go out by the door they had entered, but found both vestibule doors locked. They then went to the other end of the coach. No trainman was there.

"Just as I stepped off the train I realized it was moving. My ankle was twisted as my foot touched the ground. I fell and Mrs. Spooner picked me up. I was taken home and Dr. Campbell treated me. I couldn't walk at all for a month and it bothers me now when on my feet, and during cold weather."

"Was the train on time that day?" Mr. Gordon asked.

"No; it was late," Mrs. Hill said.

Would you mind telling us how much you weighed at that time — Around 160.

How long did the train stop at the station?—About a minute and a half.

How was it you didn't pull the cord?— In my excitement I didn't think of it. I never had any experience in that before.

Why did you not call out to an official?—There was no official on the coach.

Mrs. Hill was then cross-examined by Mr. Pratt. She said that at Keene the conductor or a brakesman was at the steps of the coach she entered.

Who told you the train was late?—I heard it at the station and at home. I was told it was twenty minutes late.

You had driven to Keene the day before?—Yes. My husband sold his horse.

What encumbrances did your husband have going home?—A blanket, rug and whip. He was carrying them on his arm.

"The train was moving when I jumped," she said. "When I reached the step my husband came behind it. The train was beginning to move. My husband called to me to jump."

Mr. Pratt—Did you jump forward, that is by a leap, or did you step forward —I stepped forward.

Plaintiff said she was not in bed a month, but sat up in a big chair and afterward walked around with a cane. Dr. Campbell examined the ankle for the last time about a month after the accident. He said it would take a long time to heal because a sprain was worse than a break.

Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H.

Dr. Young, called by Mr. Gordon,

SEARCHING FOR LIQUOR.

SCRANTON, Pa., December 15 (Canadian Press). — United States Customs officers who were here yesterday said they were searching for a large shipment of whisky alleged to have been hidden in a shipment of Christmas trees sent from Canada to Scranton. The officials declared that several thousand gallons of the forbidden liquor had been secreted among a number of carloads of the trees, which left the Canadian border some days ago. While the shipment was traced to Scranton, neither the trees nor the whisky have been located, they said.

CONTINUE RAIDS.

VANCOUVER, December 15 (Canadian Press). — Continual raids on all clubs and hotel bars and the seizure of beer stocks were recommended by members of the Provincial Liquor Control Board to the Vancouver Police Commission as a solution of th problem of the sale of beer at a meeting yesterday.

Archie Johnson, chairman of the Liquor Board, explained that it was a mistake to think the Government could not cancel the license of any clubs selling beer, and keep it cancelled.

Nine new clubs opened last night, and sale of beer in hotel, bars, and clubs goes merrily on.

POWERS IN FULL ACCORD

SUCCESS OF THE NAVAL NEGOTIATIONS MAY BE EXPECTED AT ANY MOMENT — THE HOOD TYPE OF SEA FIGHTER.

TECHNICAL DETAILS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press.) — Great Britain, the United States and Japan were in full accord as to principles last night on a plan of naval limitation,

All major questions involved have been whipped into shape. Technical details as to one phase alone held back an official announcement.

The plan worked out by Secretary Hughes, Arthur J. Balfour and Admiral Baron Kato in a series of joint conferences, follows the original United States proposal, except in one respect. That difference is the agreement that Japan may retain the battleship Mutsu instead of the Setsu; that the United States retain the Colorado and Washington in place of the Delaware and North Dakota, and that Great Britain build the approximate equivalent in capital ships.

Promulgation of the agreement has been delayed by arranging details as to the British equivalent for the Mutsu. The "Big Three" are in agreement as to policy.

It appears that the British angle might be settled by providing that she retain two super-Hoods and scrap three or more old ships in their places to bring relative tonnage in retained ships into approximately the same ratio as originally proposed by Secretaray Hughes. That element of the plan was still to be finally decided, however, when the "Big Three" meeting late to-day adjourned. Further meetings of the trio are expected. Any formal announcement of complete agreement on the basis of the "5-5-3" ratio plan must await this last step.

It was emphasized in conference circles that the three conferees are eager to reach full accord and that no technical objection of a minor character would be allowed to stand in the way. In view of this spirit, plainly manifest on all sides, an announcement of success by the naval conferees was viewed as to be expected at any moment.

Should a proposal that Great Britain retain two Super-Hoods of the four she had ordered be advanced and found acceptable, it would be taken in naval circles as evidence of the good relationship that has been established during the conference. The plan is open, it is said, to technical objections, since the ships would be of a type not included in the Jaapnese or United States savies. They were planned as vessels bordering on the "composite" type, talked of just at the close of the war. Tey would combine the batteries of battelships with the speed of battle cruisers, but sacrifice something in armor as compared to battleships.

FLOOD WATERS RECEDING.

SEATTLE, Wn., December 15 (Canadian Press).—Western Washington was counting its damages today after four days of floods that resulted in the loss of thirteen lives, rendered hundreds temporarily homeless, washed out bridges and roads, disorganised traffic, and cut wire communications in many parts of the State. High waters were receding rapidly, and little further trouble was expected, according to reports reaching Seattle.

LLOYD GEORGE INFORMED HOUSE OF IRISH EVENTS

D. LLOYD GEORGE.

Whose speech yesterday in the British House of Parliament will pass down into history as one of the high spots in his career.

RENDERED AN ACCOUNT OF HIS STEWARDSHIP AND GOVERNMENT'S PART IN THE MOMENTOUS SETTLEMENT.

DAIL EIREANN MEETS

LONDON, Dec. 14.— (Canadian Press.)—Contrasted strikingly with Britain's royal pomp and splendor displayed in the House of Lords yesterday was the scene in the House of Commons a few hours later, when, without ceremony, but with evident consciousness of power and influence, the members heard the Prime Minister render an account of his stewardship and the Government's part in the Irish settlement.

For an hour and three quarters, Mr. Lloyd George spoke to crowded benches and jammed galleries. The only touch of color in the ancient legislative chamber was the brilliant red-coated uniform of Colonel Sir Samuel Hoare, who moved the reply to the Speech from the Throne.

It was not an oration like that of October 31, when the Prime Minister, having been challenged, presented to the country the alternatives of war or negotiation with Ireland, and won the day by a division overwhelmingly favoring the Government's policy; his role yesterday was one simply narrating the problems faced by the delegations, with a description of the way they were handled.

Early in his address he silenced those inclined to interrupt him. When an Ulster member interrogated him on "allegiance," Mr. Lloyd George having said that the status of Ireland was that of a free state, with allegiance to the King, he turned and faced the Ulsterite, and declared emphatically:

"Yes, allegiance to the King, and swearing allegiance to the King."

Imperial War Cabinet.

He then asked the members to refrain from interruptions, as his task of exposition was difficult and one which he disliked.

The Prime Minister was deeply impressive as he came near the end, when, in slow tones and solemn manner, he drew a picture of the British

They Turn to Life Insurance

Over a thousand persons every day in Canada are turning to life insurance for the purpose of caring for the future of their dependents.

Life Insurance to the amount of over Six Hundred Million Dollars was issued in 1920. This amount of money would provide an income of One Hundred Dollars a month for fifteen years to fifty thousand families.

The proceeds of the vast number of life insurance policies being issued year by year will bring untold benefit to the families of those who have made this wise provision.

You may be able to care for your wife and children as long as you live, but life insurance will provide for them as long as they live.

THURSDAY, DEC. 15TH, 1921.

A FORWARD STEP.

A splendid advance towards the improvement of health conditions in Peterborough, in increasing the efficiency of the local physicians and in ensuring for this city a pure supply of milk and water is the location here of a branch laboratory of the Provincial Board of Health, which is now ready for duty. The importance of such an institution in making possible a rapid and sure diagnosis cannot be over estimated. Until the present time it has been necessary for Peterborough doctors to depend upon the Provincial Laboratory at Toronto for their tests, a proceeding that required three or four days. The local branch can give a report within twenty-four hours, a service that will be of the greatest value, especially in diagnosing cases of infectious diseases, in which every hour gained helps to prevent the spread of the disease. No greater single step in the direction of a healthier Peterborough has been taken than the establishing here of this institution.

RED CROSS OUTPOSTS.

The action of the Executive Committee of the Canadian Red Cross in deciding to authorize the establishment of an outpost in charge of a public health nurse at Wilberforce, in Haliburton County, will be heartily commended by those who are in a position to know the conditions that exist in some of the northern townships. Just such assistance as this is needed in the northern sections of Peterborough County, where it is often impossible to readily secure the services of a doctor and where many families are without the proper facilities and lack the necessary knowledge to effectively deal with the cases of illness and injuries that arise. A public health nurse located in the centre of this district would not only make conditions more comfortable for many an unfortunate invalid, but would be the means of preserving lives that otherwise will be snuffed out because of the lack of proper attention and care. The doctors do what they can when they are called upon, but they have a long distance to travel and they are usually not sent for unless the case is considered a matter of life and death. The Red Cross can do much to improve the situation, and the Haliburton outpost is concrete proof that the need is recognized and will be dealt with.

THE MUNICIPAL CAMPAIGN.

Peterborough's municipal campaign does not seem to be a self-starter, for although nomination day is rapidly drawing near, there is even less than the usual crop of rumours as to possible candidates. There is no evidence of "open diplomacy" so far as municipal politics are concerned, and aspirants for civic honours are unusually coy about announcing their intentions. Whether this presages a paucity of candidates or not it is difficult at this stage of the proceedings to state. Possibly nomination day will find the usual plentitude of names and, unfortunately, the same lack of quality as on similiar occasions in the past. There will be many opportunities for good service on behalf of Peterborough during the coming months in the City Council, but the difficulty seems to be to induce those most qualified to serve to offer themselves as candidates. The work makes heavy demands upon one's time and the only pay—except criticism, and there is plenty of that—is the satisfaction of having made a sacrifice in the public behalf; but, nevertheless, public-spirited citizens with the necessary qualifications should be prepared to accept the drawbacks for the chance they will have of doing their share in providing Peterborough with a business administration. Such men are badly needed in the handling of the city's affairs and any organization that is successful in securing their entrance into the campaign will be deserving of general thanks.

SPORT IN SCHOOLS.

The Collingwood Bulletin has been discussing the relation of sports to education:

"Is the time and absorbing attention now devoted to sports desirable, necessary or best for the coming generation of education people?

"Do the sports as now practiced to the neglect of the literary work which formerly was considered the object of high school life benefit the students as a whole or merely the teams?

"Does it really benefit the teams, the actual participants?

"Is not a large part of the fall term now almost completely lost by high school to real school work, to quiet, earnest, thoughtful study?"

These are some of the questions propounded by The Bulletin. They afford some food for thought, but in general we are inclined to think our Collingwood contemporary is over exaggerating the undesirable features and entirely missing the beneficial effects of athletics in the schools. Indulgence in sports to such an extent that studies are neglected is, of course, to be deplored, but the teachers have the remedy in their own hands. They have only to bar from membership on school teams those who are not achieving the progress in their work that they should be making. With this safeguard adopted, there is no reason to doubt that sports are an important and beneficial department of school life. For those who actually participate there is the development of muscle and brawn that is to be ardently desired, and there is character training as well, for the players are taught to play the game, fight hard but fairly, control their temple in difficult situations, win like gentlemen and lose like true sportsmen. Are not these things to be aimed at and developed? And for the whole school, there is the splendid boon of a firmly established esprit de corps. Staff and pupils are linked together in a community of interest in the fate of the school team. There is a new spirit abroad and pupils go to school gladly, proud of the institution and happy in the comradeship that is engendered. And what a store of memories of the halycon days of youth is being set up, to refresh one in after years! No, brother Bulletin, there is not the faintest cause for worry. The boys and girls of to-day will not be deficient in education, but will be better men and women physically, mentally and morally because of the increased interest in school athletics.

In this connection the Rotary Club does well to dine the boys of the local Collegiate rugby team. They have proved doughty warriors on the field, gentlemen off it and a credit to their school and their home city.

WHAT'S THE MATTER?

In an article in a recent number of The Fortnightly Review, James M. Beck, Solicitor General for the United States, quotes figures to prove that in recent years there has been an unprecedented growth in crimes in that country. Pending criminal indictments, he says, have increased from 9,503 in 1912 to over 70,000 in 1921. While it is admitted that this abnormal increase is due in part to sumptuary legislation—approximately 30,000 cases now pending arise under the prohibition laws—yet eliminating these there remains an increase in nine years of over 400 per cent. in the comparatively narrow sphere of Federal criminal jurisdiction.

Some striking illustrations are given. Thus the losses from burglaries which have been repaid by leading United States casualty companies have grown from $886,000 in 1914 to $10,000,000 in 1920. In the same period embezzlements have increased five-fold. Thefts from mail trains and express companies have been enormous—many mail trains now carry armed marines for protection. "The streets of our cities, once reasonably secure from crimes of violence, have now become the field of operations for the footpad and the highwayman." In Chicago alone 5,000 automobiles were stolen in a single year. "Once murder was an infrequent and abnormal crime. Today in our large cities it is of almost daily occurrence." In Chicago in 1919, there were 336 murders and only 44 convictions.

Mr. Beck finds in present conditions the evidence of a general revolt against authority. This revolt against authority he associates in turn with the deterioration of human character which he accepts as a symptom of life in this medical age. Machinery and organization have much to do with this deterioration. "Take from a man the opportunity for work and the sense of pride in achievement and you have taken from him the very life of existence. Robert Burns could sing as he drove his plowshare through the fields of Ayr. Today millions, who simply watch an automatic infallible machine, which requires neither strength nor skill, do not sing at their work, but many curse the fate which has chained them like Ixion to a soulless machine."

But, according to Mr. Beck, the evil is still greater. "Specialization of our modern mechanical civilization has caused a submergence of the individual into the group or class. Man is fast ceasing to be the unit of human society; self-governing groups are becoming the new units. . . . A mass morality has been substituted for individual morality, and unfortunately group morality generally intensifies the vices rather than the virtues of man." Possibly, in Mr. Beck's view, the greatest result of the mechanical age is the spirit of organization. Its merits are manifold, but we are beginning to see that a faculty of organization which submerges the individual is not an unmixed good. "No nation was ever more highly organized than the modern state. Physically, intellectually and spiritually it has become a highly developed machine, and its dominating mechanical spirit had so submerged the individual that in 1914 the paradox was observed of an enlightened nation that was seemingly destitute of a conscience."

Is Mr. Beck pessimistic in his outlook? Well, it does no harm to take a look at the dark side of things at times.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

LLOYD GEORGE INFORMED HOUSE

Imperial War Cabinet, at which a vacant chair was waiting for Ireland and looked to the future when Britain's fears would be Ireland's anxieties, and Britain's victory Ireland's joy.

Peace With Honor.

Lord Curzon, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in addressing the Lords, contended that the agreement brought peace with honor. It involved, he said, three essential principles — the supremacy of the Crown; the security of the United Kingdom, and the integrity of the Empire. He expected to witness a vindication of the agreement not only by its contents but by its consequence— a peaceful and contented Ireland.

The Dail Eireann.

DUBLIN, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press.)—The question of ratification or rejection of the agreement arrived at in London by the representatives of the British Government and the plenipotentiaries of the Dail Eireann, to settle the discord which for centuries has existed between Ireland and Britain, was discussed yesterday at a public meeting of the Dail Eireann and later at two secret sessions. Another secret session is to be held to-day.

At the public meeting yesterday Eamon De Valera, the President, and Arthur Griffith, Michael Collins and other Dail deputies expressed their views as to whether the Irish delegation to London has exceeded its powers in signing the agreement with the British Cabinet for a settlement of the Irish problem.

De Valera and the members of the delegaton were sharply divided on the question at issue. De Valera contended that the treaty should not have been signed without its having first referred to the Dublin Parliament; Delegates Griffith and Collins insister that they and their colleagues had the power invested in them to sign an agreement but not the authority to conclude it.

Another secret session will be held to-day.

PIMPLES ON FACE
DIDN'T LIKE TO GO OUT

Those nasty little pimples that break out on the face and other parts of the body are simply indications that the blood is out of order and requires purifying.

There is only one way to get rid of this obnoxious skin trouble, and that is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing which can best be done by that old reliable blood medicine, and when the blood is purified the pimples will vanish and you will have a clear, healthy complexion.

Miss Mary E. Flangan, R. R. No. 3, Stella, Ont., writes: "I have suffered for about two years with pimples and blotches breaking out on my face. The doctor said it was caused by bad blood. My face was so bad I didn't like to go out among a crowd of people. One day I was talking to a friend, and she advised me to get a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and try it. I took three bottles, and there was not a blotch or pimple of any kind left. Some of my friends asked me what I had used and I said, "Burdock Blood Bitters chased them."

B. B. B. has been on the market for the past 45 years, so you are not experimenting with some new and untried remedy.

JUMPED FROM MOVING TRAIN

said he examined Mrs. Hill's ankle just before court opened on Wednesday. The left ankle was half an inch larger in circumference than the other.

"There is no impediment as far as the joint is concerned," Dr. Young said. "Outside of the swelling the foot is correct. From the history of the case I shoud say Mrs.Hill had considerable pain for a week and also more or less pain for some time after that."

To Mr. Pratt, witness said the circumference of one ankle was 9 1-2 in. and the other 9 inches. There was no permanent injury, but the ligaments had been torn and would take a long time to regain normal condition.

Dr. Young said he advised Mrs. Hill that she shall in future wear boots, to support her ankle, instead of low shoes.

George W. Hill.

Mr. Hill testified that the rear vestibule door was open, but the door of the coach proper was closed.

His evidence was similar to that given by his wife.

Mr. Gordon—Were you travelling in a first-class coach?

Mr. Hill—Well, it was the best coach there.

"Generally there's a trainman who says this way out," witness said to Mr. Pratt, "but no one made an announcement that day. I went to get off through the door I got on. The outside doors were both locked and the trap doors down."

It was after that he and his wife retreated to the other end of the car. Wen he reached the platform the train was moving.

"Didn't it occur to you to wait until one of the train crew came?"—didn't see any of them.

Did you see them at all?—I saw them at Keene ,but not at Hastings until after the train stopped when Mrs. Hill fas hurt.

Robert F. Orr.

For the defence Mr. Pratt called Mr. R. F. Orr, trainmaster of this division, who testified that he was a passenger on that train May 25 in company with Harry M. Hobson, superintendent of track. At Hastings they got off and walked over to a shed about 70 feet away, gave instructions to have some rubbish removed. This took about four minutes.

Mr. Hobson's evidence coincided with Mr. Orr's.

F. J. Horner, relief conductor, Lindsay, was in charge of the train. "At Keene the vestibule doors next to the baggage car was closed. The centre vestibule and rear were open. That's the way they were at Hastings. We were two minutes ahead of time when we reached Hastings. I stood at the centre steps of the train and helped passengers off. I can't recall these people."

Continuing Mr. Horner said: "I saw this lady jump off and her husband follow. I was about 15 feet away from them. They got off the steps at the rear of the first coach. Our train that day was composed of the baggage car and two coaches."

Mr. Gordon —Wouldn't it have been better to leave the front vestibule doors of the first coach open?

Mr. Horner — Passengers might fall off. We're at the steps of the open door to help them off.

Mr. Gordon — Instead of letting them fall off.

Mr. Pratt — If you had all the doors open the crew couldn't man them?

Mr. Horner—No, sir.

Rule of the Road.

Findlay Pollard, station agent at Keene, produced the company's rules for the public as they had been on view the day of the mishap.

At Mr. Pratt's direction he read one of them to the effect that no person shall attempt to get on or off a train while it is in motion.

Bovril saves your housekeeping money

It may be pretty safely said that Bovril pays its own cost by the extra nourishment you get out of the other foods you buy. For Bovril has a remarkable power of enabling you to extract nourishment which would otherwise not be absorbed by the body, and so would be wasted.

But there is an even bigger gain than the money one. The very fact that you are getting more nourishment from your food means that you are stronger, more full of vitality, better in health in every way. There is no better food economy than to use Bovril.

A MODERN MIRACLE

What Mr. Robert I. Buchanan, of Sarnia, Ont., has to say:

It is with great pleasure that I can testify to the great curative qualities of Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment.

The summer of 1902 I took typhoid fever which left me with inflammatory rheumatism. My legs used to swell and the pain at times was almost unbearable. In January, 1903, I was compelled to go to bed and one month after my leg broke open at the knee. I was removed to Sarnia Hospital, where I spent almost one year and during that time had four operations. A part of the femur was removed from my leg and they made an incision through the other leg, which went right through the bone. I left Sarnia Hospital in February, 1904, and started to treat with other remedies but they failed to do me any good. In November, 1906, I was taken to Toronto hospital. They put a Thomas splint on to straighten my leg up and opened up the wound again. I left the hospital in February, 1907, and remained at home until July, 1907, when I returned to Toronto hospital again. They broke my leg just below the knee and straightened it. I came home in December, but the sore in my leg was still open. I was then using the cupping treatment which helped a little for a time. I tried a number of different ointments; but they did not appear to help me.

In July, 1908, your agent left me a box of Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment. After using them for about six months my health has been fully restored and the four different sores on my leg are completely healed.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment are for sale at WARNE'S DRUG STORE, Peterborough. Herb Tablets 25c, 50c and $1.00 per box. Hou-Tan Ointment, 50c.

Bandit Raisuli's Shattered Dream of Empire

And the Very Sudden Ending to Life-Long Visions of Palaces, Riches and a Harem of Specially Selected Beauties Entertained by the Notorious Moroccan Brigand.

Showing the Spanish Zone of Morocco Over Which Raisuli Hoped to Rule and Where He Has Finally Served Notice of Surrender.

Stalwart Men at Arms of Raisuli's Band Who Followed Him Through Every Change of Fortune, but Who Couldn't Win Him an African Kingdom.

Above—A Raid on an English "Pig - Sticking" Party When He Was Known as the Bandit of Tangier, with a Price on His Head.

Mulai Almed Ben Mohammed Raisuli, in the Days When He Was Lithe and Handsome and Not Too Fat to Fight.

ANY native Moroccan will tell you that in the course of time and according to the wishes of Allah as revealed through his true and only Prophet Mohammed, the conquest of Maghrib El-Aksa was completed in the reign of the Caliph Walid, by Musa, a kinsman of the All Highest. And Músa had children, who in turn had children who in turn had children of their own for generation unto generation.

Thus it happens that a true son of the True Prophet still prevails in Maghrib El-Aksa, or Morocco as the Unbelievers call it. His name—Mulai Almed Ben Mohammed Raisuli, or, simply, Raisuli the bandit, if you like. True enough, his prevalence at the present writing is confined almost entirely to the area he occupies when he sits down, which he often does. The Raisuli of today is not the Raisuli who abducted Ion Perdicaris and Sir Harry MacLean, who slew the insolent collector of tithes, who defended his tribesmen from oppression, who was sometimes Kaid of A'Brieze and who aspired to be Suzerain of the whole Spanish Morocco. His greatness has gone, his dream of empire—a marble palace, attendant slaves, dancing girls—vanished.

For while neither the Sultan's spies nor the soldiers of Spain could bring him down, his waistline did. Slowly strangled by his appetite, Raisuli the Magnificent has fallen under his own weight. The Spanish government has been informed that the rebellion of the Moors so far as Raisuli is concerned, is over. Raisuli wants to surrender for the simple reason that he is too fat to fight.

Viewed in the light of the prior offer made to the Spanish government by the Moroccan Robin Hood, the present message has an element of the comic—but it is comedy with high tragic relief. This offer was made when the Moors in Spanish Morocco first began to get troublesome. Raisuli at this time swore by his teeth and eyes and the bones of his ancestors that if Spain would promise to make him Sultan he would crush the rebellion.

His offer was refused. Raisuli allied himself with the rebels. If Spain wouldn't give him an empire he would take it. But, as has already been stated, he reckoned without his waistline.

The man who would be king now sits in front of his little tent out in the Rif hills and awaits his Fate. His glory gone with his figure, all he needs and wants is peace.

Though Raisuli has long been known as a Berber chief on account of the zeal with which he fought the battles and championed the right of the Berber tribes, he is not of the Berber blood. He is pure Arab like his Caliph ancestors and in none of his line was there ever an admixture of negro blood as exists today in the Wang Wana of northern and eastern Africa. And like his Caliph ancestors, who brought the faith of Islam into Africa, his so-called crimes were usually inspired by a religious or a political motive.

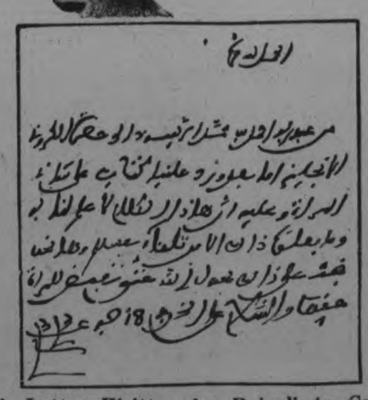
Raisuli appears as far back as 1898, as the leader of a band of Berbers who led rather much of a nomadic life out in the hills and who made occasional forays into the neighborhood of Tangier. Parties of Englishmen and Americans who took trips into the unexplored Moroccan regions for the purpose of hunting the wild boar were occasionally raided and despoiled of a few trinkets and supplies.

First Victim a Tax Collector

The brigand, however, was never less than a patriot among the Berbers because it was known that he was only seeking greater power with the Sultan in order to advance their interests. There came a time, however, when a tax gatherer of the Sultan of Fez came out to collect from the tribesmen what they considered were extortionate tithes. Raisuli intercepted him and in a quarrel that followed, killed him.

The Sultan had already been hearing of Raisuli. At that time, however, the bandit wasn't powerful enough to command a following who might menace the Sultan, so it is probable the Moorish potentate decided he had best be put out of the way.

But whether under instructions or not, one of the Sultan's chief men-at-arms named Abd-El-Aziz, who was also a sort of chancellor of the exchequer, lured Raisuli to the town of Mogador on the Atlantic coast. Here the Berber chief was seized and thrown into prison. It was the intention of Abd-El-Aziz to put him through a series of exquisite tortures and finally kill him. He never calculated that Raisuli's men would be able to help him, for Mogador was many miles away from the Berber stronghold.



A Letter Written by Raisuli to Col. Pleydell, an English Officer, in Which He Promises to Correct an Abuse Visited by One of His Men on a Native Woman.

The loyalty of the men whom Raisuli had befriended, however, was unswerving and not to be daunted by difficulties. When their chief failed to return after a reasonable time they set out after him. One dark night they came down on Mogador, slew the Sultan's soldiers right and left, broke into the prison where Raisuli was being kept and with the "Prophet's son" again at their head rode out into the country.

Abd-El-Aziz had chosen the worst man in Morocco as an enemy, as he was afterward to find out. Meanwhile, Raisuli's star was steadily ascending. He was a man without fear and with a marked capacity for organization. He was the idol of his people. The Sultan came to rely upon him to put down petty insurrections, and Raisuli, who knew how to play his own game, was always at the Sultan's service in those times. He was finally made Kaid of A'Brieze.

In 1903, Raisuli abducted Walter Harris, the correspondent in Morocco of the London Times, and got a substantial price for his safe return. He used this money to buy arms and ammunition for his people. In 1904, seeing that the time was ripe for a further stroke in his own people's interests, he seized another tax gatherer. At that time a part of the Sultan's army was encamped near A'Brieze under the command of his old enemy, Abd-El-Aziz. In order to provide himself with a pretext for making demands, Raisuli had allowed the tax gatherer to come among his people and fall into his trap. After beating the fellow half to death, he turned him back and then, in apparent wrath, demanded of the Sultan that he, Raisuli, be made Governor of Tangier and Fez in order that future injustices of this sort might be avoided.

Observing a reluctance on the part of the Sultan to comply with this request, he set about finding a way to enforce his demand. The result was the abduction of Ion Perdicaris.

Mr. Perdicaris, a man of means and scholarly attainments whose home when in the United States was at Trenton, N. J., lived with his English stepson, Cromwell Vadley, on the outskirts of Tangier. Raisuli and a few of his followers swooped down on their dwelling one night, carried them off into a mountain prison and demanded a ransom of $70,000 for their return.

A long siege of fruitless parleying followed, in which the Moorish Sultan, American consular representatives, American naval officers, English officials and relatives of the kidnapped men participated. Raisuli stood firm and the Sultan seemed helpless.

Theodore Roosevelt was President at the time and, seeing an apparent stale-mate in the proceedings, issued his memorable ultimatum—"Perdicaris Alive or Raisuli Dead." This frightened the Sultan considerably, especially when he learned that three wicked-looking American warships had cruised into the harbor at Tangier. Raisuli advised the Sultan to make his thievish lieutenant, Abd-El-Aziz, disgorge and this finally was what happened. Rather than be further discredited, Abd-El-Aziz produced the money in gold and silver bullion, which was duly dispatched to Raisuli's retreat in the hills. Perdicaris was released and Raisuli was made governor of a province.

Perdicaris himself was authority for the statement that he was treated as an honored guest during his captivity. Raisuli was at all times solicitous for his welfare; surrounded him with every comfort and allowed him as much liberty as possible under the circumstances. He represented the brigand as tall, handsome and with a high order of intelligence.

In the period from 1918 to 1920 Raisuli was several times reported dead. Each time, however, he nailed this rumor by reappearing under picturesque circumstances. After the armistice in Europe parties of Europeans and Americans, bent upon boar hunting or pig-sticking, as it is called out there, ran into Raisuli's men. Often he staged minor raids, chiefly for the purpose of letting the world know that he was still alive and kicking. It got to be rather the vogue, among English society folk to be raided by Raisuli. There are any number of English gentlemen and gentlewomen who met Raisuli under circumstances like this and who become fast friends with him. A number still correspond with him.

Revolt of the Moors

In 1921 the Moors began a country-wide revolt against the rule of Spain. Spanish officials attributed this uprising to Raisuli's influence. When he offered to put the rebellon under heel if the King would establish him as Sultan, they were convinced that the whole thing was a put-up job. His offer was flatly declined, probably for that reason. Raisuli then joined the rebels openly.

Little was heard from him for a long while. He had sworn that the Spanish troops would feel the weight of his hand, but he was little in evidence. Then came the offer of surrender.

A lone Berber treked into Melilla one day, after having become detached from the particular band of Moors with which he had been fighting. It proved to be a former lieutenant of Raisuli—one Abd El-Melek. He was very hungry and very sad and had no more fight in him. One of the Spanish officers, then in the town, questioned him, through an interpreter, about his former chief.

"Alas," he said, "may the bones of my great-grandmother decay and my own hair fall out strand by strand, if it is not the truth that the Great One has to be lifted into his saddle by two strong men. Alas—alas! He is like this." And the disconsolate Abd El-Melek made a gesture with his two arms indicative of a Gargantuan abdominal protuberance.

Thus ends the tale of Raisuli, the Once Powerful. His dream of empire and a new King Solomon's court is shattered. He is in the dust. Nobody fears him. Nobody loves him. He is too fat.

U.F.O. POLITICS TO BE SEPARATE FROM BUSINESS?

THIS IS ONE OF QUESTIONS TO BE SETTLED AT ANNUAL MEETING NOW ON.

TORONTO, Dec. 15. — Business yesterday at the eighth annual meeting of the United Farmers of Ontario consisted largely of organization work. In addition to many resolutions submitted on important matters, there is the question of whether politics should be kept separate from the business end of the organization, and the political destinies directed from Queen's Park.

In his report, J. J. Morrison dealt frankly with the affairs of the organization, and declared that the year now closing had been one of severe test to the movement.

"Influences, seen and unseen," he said, "have used every endeavor to discredit our movement. We have been attacked by the big daily press of the country as a narrow class movement. When that attack did not succeed an attempt was made to seduce us to destruction, with flattering attention. No doubt many have been affected, but the effort is exhausetd.

Shareholders Not Fearful.

Shareholders of the United Farmers' Co-operative Company, at their meeting yesterday, showed their belief, in the ability of the company to weather hard times, and get back to a paying basis. By an almost unanimous vote they reaffirmed their confidence in the present directorate, with the exception of one member, R. H. Ashton, the director who obtained the injunction preventing the holding of the legal annual meeting on this occasion.

In view of the injunction, the meeting was of a very informal nature. Gordon Waldron, K.C., the solicitor of the company, was in the chair, and guided the gathering through any possible legal shoals.

Manager Advises a Cut.

H. B. Clemes, general manager of the company, advised that the shareholders take their losses now and start the next year with a clean sheet. He sugested that shares be reduced from the par value of $25 to $15.

In the afternoon Dr. Farewell of Oshawa faced the irate meeting. He said he had resolved on his course of action in the courts as a means of freeing the company from politics.

Accuses Directors of Duplicity.

M. W. Glendon criticized R. W. E. Burnaby, who, he said, had refused to risk his money in the company. Mr. Burnaby defended himself, and several shareholders undertook to defend him. Arthur Craise of St. Catharines declared that Mr. Burnaby had organized the stock-selling campaign, had devoted much time to it, and had refused the remuneration he was offered by the directors.

President A. A. Powers and J. J. Morrison advised that the loss be wiped off the books immediately. Mr. Powers said the loss had occurred chiefly in the stores department, and suggested that a number of stores "which had no prospect of ever making money" be closed. A former manager of the company had, he said, opened a number of stores without the consent or knowledge of the directors, and now the company was reaping the harvest.

The son of a former premier of Ontario and the son-in-law of the late Hon. George T. Fulford, senator, Mr. Hardy has been an active supporter of the Liberal party for years, and in 1917 was the unsuccessful candidate in Leeds riding against Sir Thomas White.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

FALLIS LINE RESIDENT FOUND LYING UNCONSCIOUS IN THE FIELD—PERSONALS.

MILLBROOK, December 15.—The many friends of Mr. Thomas Aiken of the Fallis Line, will regret to learn that on Wednesday morning, some time after leaving the house in his usual good health, he was found in the field lying unconscious on the frozen ground, apparently suffering from a sudden attack of paralysis. It is hoped however that the trouble will not prove as serious as was at first supposed.

Sudden Death.

The death occurred suddenly in Toronto on Saturday of Dr. W. E. Tilley, in his 81st year. Deceased was well known by many of the older residents of Millbrook, as he came here regularly for several years in connection with the discharge of his duties as public school inspector. Interment took place on Monday in the family plot at Bowmanville, after a service in Methodist church. At the time of his death the deceased was with his son, Mr. W. N. Tilley, K. C., 488 Avenue Road, Toronto.

Mr. MacConnachie of Lindsay, was a business visitor in town last Tuesday, and was alo the guest of Rev. C. R. Spencer, a personal friend while here.

Shooting Accident.

Mr. Arthur Lewis accidentally shot himself recently while repairing a gun. Fortunately his injuries were not as serious as was feared at first, and after a brief stay in hospital, he was able to return home.

Mr. Jewell and Mr. Webster of Cambray were visitors reecntly at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Byam.

Mrs. George E. Burnham and little daughter, Mary, returned home on Tuesday evening after a few days visit with friends in Lindsay.

Mr. Harry Richards, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, is now so far recovered that he was able to return home with his daughter, Mrs. Geo. Raymes, of Colborne, on Monday. Mr. Richards will remain the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Raymes for some time while convalescing.

Mr. John A. Kelly, who was in town for the entertainment on Monday night, was the guest of Mr. J. J. Clarke and his daughter, while he was here.

Messrs. G. W. Sayles, Cecil Larmer and Frank Alcorn, Mrs. Sayles and Misses A. Brock and E. Abbott, motored to Peterboro on Tuesday evening and attended one of the local theatres. Mr. and Mrs. Sayles also took their two children, Marjorie and Walter, and Kathleen Freelove in again on Wednesday evening for the same purpose.

Miss Bertha Cullum, who is in training for a nurse at the Nicholls Hospital, Peterboro, has contracted diphtheria, and is now in the Isolation Hospital.

Funeral in West.

Mr. George Fallis of the Fallis Line attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Ernest J. Little, in Lindsay, on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Davidson, the parents of the deceased, arrived from the West on Monday and it was decided that interment should take place at Mrs. Leith's former home in Vancouver, B. C. Mr Leith and his three small children, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Davidson on their sad return journey.

The monthly dance given under the auspices of the G.W.V.A. will be held in the Armouries on Monday evening, Dec. 26th, and will doubtless prove equally successful and enjoyable as the two which have preceded it this season.

Anniversary Services.

The anniversary services of St. Enoch's Presbyterian church, Garden Hill, will be held on Sunday, December 1th, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 in the evening. The pastor, Rev. G. S. Gervan, will be the preacher for the day, and the evening service, at Grace church, Millbrook, will be withdrawn because of the special occasion at the Garden Hill appointment.

A.Y.P.A. Gathering.

The entertainment given in the town hall on Monday evening under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' church, drew a good-sized audience who were well pleased with the programme provided. The entertainer, John S. Kelly, who had not been heard in Millbrook on any previous occasion, gave a varied programme of songs, readings and ventriloqual selections. The fact that Mrs. (Canon) Allen presided at the piano makes it unnecessary to state that the musical numbers had the best possible assistance so far as the accompaniments were concerned, at least. The receipts were in the neighborhood of $65. Following the concert the A.Y.P.A. members, and a few other friends, remained for an hour or two and enjoyed a dance, taking advantage of the fact that the hall was warm and so could be used for the purpose.

The many friends of Miss Annie Armstrong, who had the misfortune to fall and fracture her hip three weeks ago, will be plased to learn that she is recovering more rapidly than had been thought possible, and is to be allowed soon to sit up for a brief interval each day.

Skating on Pond.

The pond being now frozen over the first skating of the season is being enjoyed, especially by the younger boys and girls after school hours, and on Saturday afternoon.

Many of the schools in the rural sections are preparing a special programme to be given during the afternoon before school closes for the Christmas holidays. Some intend having a tree and inviting the parents and trustees to be present, while in other schools the gifts for teachers and scholars will be presented in some different way.

L. O. L. Meeting.

After the business of the evening was concluded a bountiful supper was provided and thoroughly enjoyed. Brief addresses were delivered by some of the retiring officers as well as by some of the newly-elected ones, Mr. P. L. Byam, of Millbrook, attended the gathering.

Ladies' Aid Society.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church held their December meeting on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Benjamin Raper. In the absence of the President, Mrs. Needham, the Vice-President, Mrs. J. L. Byam, occupied the chair. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Roy Raper, and Dr. E. F. Gillott led in the opening prayer. A reading, entitled, "Mrs. Osborne's Awakening," was given by Miss Alberta Brock, and Mrs. Mullen and Mrs. Locke reported the work done by the Visiting committee since the last meeting.

In the discussion of business items it was decided to prepare Christmas baskets containing chicken, fruit, and other seasonable delicacies, for some of the sick and shut-in members of the Aid and of the church. Other business affairs were also discussed, but left in abeyance until the return of the President from Toronto. An enjoyable social hour was spent before the gathering dispersed.

The C.S.E.T. Boys

The C.S.E.T. boys belonging to the "Trail Rangers" held their meeting on Tuesday at 8 p.m. The two senior officers, Ernest Burnham Chief Ranger, and Albert Cullum, Deputy C. R., being absent, the secretary, Nelles Rowland, was called to the chair and filled the position admirably. Besides the usual devotional and business program, Rev. Mr. Tucker continued his weekly Bible talk, the topic this week being the life of Jacob. The boys had prepared their part well and answered the pastor's question in a most encouraging manner. The usual games for the 'activity period" brought the meeting to a close.

Quite a number from Millbrook attended the shooting-match held at Mr. William Kennedy's, the Marsh, on Wednesday the affair beginning at 12 a.m.

THE WEATHER

This (Thursday) morning had the lowest temperature this season up to the present time. Four above zero was the figure. The long period of cloudy and overcast skies, accompanied with a low barometer, has been succeeded by a rapidly rising barometer, which will bring more sunshine, brighter days and more agreeable conditions.—W. A Job For Every Man
Prosperity For All

Mr. Wholesaler——

A decline from the abnormal conditions of 1920 has already taken place.

The average cost of food per week per family increased in June, 1920, to 131 per cent. over that of 1913.

Up to October of this year, the percentage of increase over 1913 was 56.

The average cost of clothing increased 160 per cent. by June, 1920, and since then it has declined to 73 per cent. over that of 1913.

You have taken a share in this reduction. You have absorbed certain losses—as many retailers have done.

In a general plan of co-operation in which every section of the community is asked to take part, will you sell your goods at replacement prices, thereby enabling the retailers to buy more of your output? Production by the manufacturers will thereby be stimulated and a condition created whereby labor will find regular employment.

If this plan is acceptable, tell your customers what you propose to do. Win their absolute confidence now. Give them the best, closest deal you can and thus

Plan of Co-operation.

The Provincial Advisory Committee on Unemployment considered the industrial situation and endorses the following statement of proposals:—

1.—That Manufacturers should be asked to take a price for goods on hand equal to the cost of replacement having regard to decreased cost of raw material and of labor used in manufacture.

2.—That Wholesalers should be asked to sell goods on hand at replacement prices.

3.—That Retailers should be asked to sell at replacement prices.

4.—Knowing that the costs of building at the present time have been considerably reduced, those desiring to build should be encouraged to ask for new tenders on their proposed work; and that building contractors and builders' supply people should make a special effort to reduce prices to a minimum in order to restore this important key industry.

5.—That Banks and financial institutions should be prepared to co-operate to the utmost with all productive enterprise by allowing all reasonable credits and by decreasing rates as rapidly as conditions may allow.

6.—That Farmers should be asked to maintain reasonable production, and in the event of a proportionate reduction being reached in other lines, should be prepared to make needed improvements and betterments.

7.—That Labor shall be asked to take willingly a reduction in wages proportionate to progressive decrease in cost of living, in so far as such a reduction has not already taken place.

The above statement has been submitted to and endorsed by the following interests—manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers, building industries, agriculture, financial interests and the veterans.

TWO HOMES.

My neighbour's home across the way
Is a littered home, but very gay
With the pattering of little feet
And the ringing out of laughter sweet.
My home from little feet is free,
And its stately halls are orderly,
And quiet reigns in my rooms at night
As I sit and rest 'neath the shaded light.
And I listen while small voices cry
And I hear a tired lullaby;
But, oh, I wish each night and day
I lived in the home across the way.

BICYCLING

The man seeing his first six-day bicycle race leaned over the railing of the topmost gallery in Madison Square Garden and watched the thirteen slow-paced riders intently. Minute followed minute, and still they jogged around the big spruce saucer at that same monotonous gait The newcomer shook his head and looked over the crowd. Finally, he turned to the man next him and asked. "What are all these people waiting for?"

It was a fair question. Last week a total of nearly 150,000 persons sat or stood for hours at a time watching the languid cyclists drilling the miles and the hours away. There were sprints and accidents and consequent thrills of course, but the time these consumed was small, indeed, compared to the 143 hours which the race required. Yet the crowds hung doggedly on through the six days and nights — less one hour—and those who had not secured tickets in advance crowded around the entrances and waited patiently for admittance.

No more forcible illustration than this could be found of the tremendous hold that sports have taken on the American people since the war. Her is a sport that has no great regular following like baseball or racing attracting crowds of from 8,000 to 12,000 persons twice every day through an entire week. The age of the bicycle as a pleasure vihicle passed years ago. No one, save possibly a small group of manufacturers, was interested in what type or make of bicycle the riders used. Obviously, the crowd did not come for that.
